More color for your kitchen

Something to shoot for!

What an aim behind these arrows—they've snared not only Cannon's
new bow-knot towel,
but a brand-new color too!
It's "Bittersweet"—spicy as a winter berry, yet whisper-soft—and the smartest prize you could bring home from a towel hunt! Just one of Cannon's fashion-makers in soft, thirsty terry.
Cannon towels come at tempting prices—from

Free... if you join now and buy as few as four selections a year

100 PRINTS IN Full Color OF THE WORLD'S GREAT PAINTINGS

Including 25 of the famous masterpieces rescued from Germany NOW BEING EXHIBITED IN AMERICAN MUSEUMS including portfolio!

Like Having an Art Museum in Your Home

—and with the informative descriptions about the painter and his work that come with each reproduction, it is like being conducted through that Museum, whenever you feel the urge, by someone who can point out the beauties and the significance of the great paintings of the world. The most treasured examples of Art are included.

IF BOUGHT SEPARATELY, THEY WOULD COST AS MUCH AS $25.00

ALL SUITABLE FOR FRAMING

SOME OF THE GREAT PAINTERS REPRESENTED:

Rembrandt • Raphael • Goya
Brueghel • Vermeer • El Greco
Botticelli • Holbein • Cezanne
Renoir • Gauguin • Corot
Picasso • Rouault • Van Gogh
Daumier • Degas • Matisse

AND MANY, MANY OTHERS

HOW THIS OFFER CAN BE MADE: For many years, the Book of-the-Month Club NEWS has included in every issue a reproduction in full color of a world-famous painting. Hundreds of high schools and colleges have come to use these beautiful reproductions in their art classes, and many thousands of people over the country, we find, have been collecting them. Over the years the highly expensive full-color plates, necessary for such fine reproduction, have accumulated one by one and—with the recent addition of many of the famous German-owned masterpieces now being exhibited—by printing them all together in one large edition, this extraordinary gift to new members has been made possible.

NOTE TO PRESENT MEMBERS: If you would like to have The Portfolio of 100 Full Color Masterpieces under the Club's book-dividend system, write for information as to how to obtain it.

You buy many Club selections ANYWAY—why not get those you want from the Club, often PAY LESS, and share in the Club's book-dividends which totalled over $30,000,000 in the past two years

AS a member of the Book-of-the-Month Club you pay only for the particular books you decide to take. You may take as few as four selections in any twelve-month period.

You receive a careful pre-publication report about each selection. If you decide you want it, you need do nothing; it will come to you on a regular shipping date. If you don't want it, you may either specify any other book you want, or simply write, "Send me nothing next month."

The amount you pay for the Book-of-the-Month is the regular retail price set by the publisher in each case, frequently less. Notice, in the coupon, that the members' price is substantially lower in four out of six cases. (A small charge is added to cover postage and other mailing expenses.) Yet with every second Book-of-the-Month you take, you receive—free—one of the Club's book-dividends. These are beautiful library volumes, sometimes two-or-three volume sets.

Since the books you take from the Club are only those you would buy anyway, the saving is extraordinary. We suggest you try it for a short time, and see how it works. You may begin your subscription by ordering any book listed in the coupon at the right.

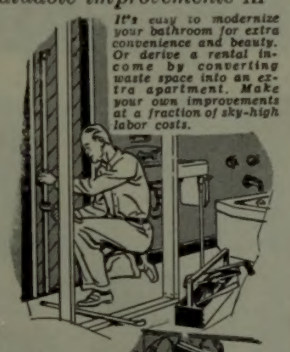
The Complete HOME HANDYMAN'S GUIDE



Here's Everything You Need to Know to Do Your Own REPAIRING • BEAUTIFYING • MODERNIZING • CONVERTING! The A to Z of CARPENTRY • PLUMBING • PAINTING DECORATING • WIRING and APPLIANCES • MASONRY FURNITURE REPAIR • HEATING SYSTEMS

at bargain price of only one!

Here's How This Book Saves You Hundreds of Dollars!

THIS amazingly comprehensive volume shows you how to do yourself all the jobs around the house that have long needed doing—and a lot more you've wished could be done. In 8-Books-bound-as-One, pictures and words show you how to make your own repairs in Plumbing, Wiring, Carpentry, Electrical Appliances, Masonry, Plaster, Heating System, Furniture, etc. Also how to make valuable improvements in your home, from a new closet to a whole new roof—from a new floor to a whole new modern kitchen!

It's easy to modernize your bathroom for extra convenience and beauty. Or derive a rental income by converting waste space into an extra apartment. Make your own improvements at a fraction of sky-high labor costs.

No longer need today's high labor costs keep you from having the kind of home you'll be proud of—attractive, smooth-running, free from hazards and equipped with every comfort! This Complete Guide makes even the most unfamiliar job easy to do—and fun to do! You not only save time and money . . . you also enjoy the thrill of watching your home acquire new luxury, new brightness, comfort and value . . . the envy of all your friends.

Make a New Kitchen, Game Room or Bathroom! Build an Extra Apartment and Live Rent-Free!

Here's 1,001 methods to help make your home more livable—and add hundreds, even thousands of dollars to its value. Need new closet space? Want to eliminate that dangerous draft in baby's room? Redecorate sister's room? Build a garden walk? Get better winter heat for less money?

Want to convert your basement or attic into an extra apartment and give yourself a rent income that may well offset a good part or all of your taxes, mortgage payments and other expenses? You can make all these improvements yourself at surprisingly little cost, with the help of this book.

Painters charge up to $100 for a single room. With the step-by-step instructions in this book even the woman of the house can do a professional job of redecorating.

Save Today's Sky-High Labor Costs!

"In Detroit, a painter quoted $55 for painting a householder's door! Near Philadelphia, a bricklayer's bill was $97 for 2 days' work. In Los Angeles, a 25-minute plastering job cost $25!—N. Y. News.

You can save such exorbitant costs and "do-it-yourself" at a cost of pennies where your neighbors have to spend dollars. THE COMPLETE HOME HANDYMAN'S GUIDE gives you all the information you need to do a professional job of repairing or improving your house from cellar to chimney-top—indoors or outdoors.

Easy Instructions in Clear Pictures and Simple Text!

This book assumes no mechanical knowledge or skill on your part. It starts from the very beginning, explaining how to select and use tools and materials. It gives you detailed information every step of the way, from repairing a lamp or iron to installing a complete wiring system; from repairing a chair-leg to rebuilding upholstery; from buying a brush to repainting the house inside and out.

More than 1000 ILLUSTRATIONS, accurately and explicitly drawn, make the complete instructions easy to follow. This 8-Books-in-One will repay its astonishingly small cost many times over.

It's easy to build that Hollywood kitchen your wife's been dreaming about. This book gives you specific plans and instructions.

More than 1000 HOW-TO-DO-IT ILLUSTRATIONS—512 Fact-Packed Pages

Wire stripper cleans insulation off either solid or stranded electrical wires. Three sharp-edged slots handle wire from size 12 to 22—or from television cables down to the finest house wiring. With a wire stripper, you have no excuse for dulling knife or scissors blades removing insulation. Quick Strip Wire Stripper is 79c in stores or ppd. Jaco Products, 6408 Euclid Ave., Cleveland 3, Ohio.

A heating pad now comes equipped with a seeing-eye switch that lets you set the thermostat in the dark. Besides the printed dial, 3 tiny buttons respond to setting. When one button can be felt, the heat is turned low; two buttons mean medium; three, high; while all buttons flush with switch signifies off. The pad, 12″x15″, is wetproof, covered with quilted rayon taffeta in pastel shades. Walker Heating Pad with Brailway Switch is $7.95, in stores only. Non-wetproof with Duvetyn cover, $6.95. The Walker Company, Middleboro, Massachusetts.

Double-action insulation for your home combines two insulating materials: cotton to insulate against conducted and convected heat, and aluminum foil to resist radiant heat. Cotton fibers are treated to keep their resiliency and resist fire and vermin, then are enclosed in aluminum foil which acts as a vapor barrier. Aluminum foil-backed cotton insulation comes in a blanket, 18″ wide; about 9c per square foot, at building supply dealers. National Cotton Council of America, P. O. Box 76, Memphis 1, Tennessee.

A hand warmer for mitten or pocket keeps your hands comfortable on the coldest day. The warmer utilizes benzine lighter fluid or naphtha, radiates heat without flame for more than 24 hours on one filling. You'll wish you'd had this one during the football season. Jon-E Hand Warmer, $3.50, in stores only. Aladdin Laboratories, 419 S. Sixth St., Minneapolis 15, Minnesota.

Roost your rubbers or galoshes on their own private door mat and let them drip dry. The mats are shaped to fit a pair of rubbers, any size; raised edge keeps the floor clean while ridges encourage drainage and quick drying. Use for the family's overshoes, and keep some Rubber Roosts by the door for guests' footwear, inside where it's warm. Rubber Roosts are $1.35 each or 3 for $4, in stores or ppd. Harry David, 818 Chippewa Ave., St. Paul 7, Minnesota.

Hose clamp fastens laundry hose to tub so you needn't waste time by holding the hose in place while the tub fills. Nor can the hose slide loose to drench you and the basement with hot water. Slip the end of the hose thru top hole, snap clamp on edge of tub. Rite-Hose-Clamp is steel, cadmium-plated, with strong spring. In stores or ppd., 79c. A. H. Boys Distributing Co., P. O. Box 1462, Des Moines, Iowa

Deep-fat fryer with automatic heat control turns out French-fried foods and doughnuts done to a queen's taste. High or low heat is available for foods of varying moisture content. Pilot light burns red when fat reaches the right temperature. Heat is applied to sides of fat container, eliminating scorched settlings. Container holds up to 3 pounds of fat, may be stored in refrigerator after fat has cooled. For AC only, the Marion "40" Deep Fryer, with white porcelain base, is $24.95, in stores only. Rutenber Electric Co., Marion, Indiana.

Wash your hands without water, in your workshop, on the road, or after gardening. Chemically treated cloth wipes off grease, ink, paint, or dirt. The chemical lasts indefinitely, is harmless to hands and leaves a slight protective film on the skin. Carry the cloth in the glove compartment to keep your hands clean when you drive. Cadie Hand Cleansing Cloth, 50c in stores or ppd. Cadie Chemical Products, Inc., 549 W. 132nd St., New York 27, New York.

Bathroom living at its best is provided by a convenient, recessed shelf. If yours is a family of bathroom relaxers, they'll appreciate the convenience of having magazines, cigarettes, and ash tray within easy reach. The fixture has a chrome-plated exterior and neutral enamel interior; 15"x20½" outside measurement. Family Hospitality Fixture, in stores only, $16.95. House of Hospitality, Box 254, North Hollywood, California.

Glass curtains now may really be glass: Fiberglas yarns are woven into fine marquisette to give you stretchproof and shrinkproof curtains that resist wrinkling, repel water and soil, and launder like magic. Rehang curtains while they're damp and they need no stretching or ironing, but fall into place crisply. Fiberglas curtains stitch up just like standard fabrics into panels, pleats, or ruffles. Inquire at dealers who handle F. Schumacher & Co., J. H. Thorp & Co., Inc., or Thortel Fireproof Fabrics curtain materials.

Closet lights switch on and off automatically with Lit-Switch installed at the top of the door. Ratchet plate fastens on doorframe, attaches with metal cords to pull chain on light fixture. Trip plate on the door turns ratchet as door moves, thus pulling chain to work the light switch. Keeps closet lights turned off when not in use. No wiring is necessary. Lit-Switch is 89c, in stores or ppd. Vocar Mfg. & Sales Co., 333 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago 1, Illinois.

Nylon carpeting for luxurious living and long wear is available in two different patterns. The entire pile of the carpeting is nylon, mothproof and dirt-resistant. Preshrunk, the carpet may be laundered by competent cleaners with excellent results. Nylon is resilient, so these carpets resist pile pack and wear over many years. The Splendante embossed pattern and Corique plain carpet are both available in Elfin green, Seaspray green, Sahara beige, beige, platinum, and Pelican gray, at about $45 to $50 per square yard, from dealers only. Nye-Wait Company, Inc., Auburn, New York.

Shirley Talbott, Conover Model, had just made her professional debut when she was named "America's Loveliest Model" in a nationwide contest conducted by a Washington, D. C., girls' club. A year later, she dazzled the beauty judges again to become "America's Dream Girl."

But one successful career isn't enough for Shirley. She is studying dramatics, now . . . looking toward the stage and screen. Wherever her career takes her, Shirley's winning smile will never be outsparkled—it's a Pepsodent Smile! "I brush my teeth with Pepsodent Tooth Paste twice a day," Shirley says. "That's one beauty rule I never break!"

The smile that wins is the Pepsodent Smile!

Shirley Talbott knows it. And people all over America agree—the smile that wins is the Pepsodent Smile! They've seen how Pepsodent removes the film that makes teeth look dull—uncovers new brightness in their smiles!

Wins 3 to 1 over any other tooth paste—families from coast to coast recently compared delicious New Pepsodent with the tooth paste they were using at home. By an average of 3 to 1, they said New Pepsodent tastes better, makes breath cleaner and teeth brighter than any other tooth paste they tried. For the safety of your smile use Pepsodent twice a day—see your dentist twice a year!

Help yourself to better-looking bookshelves

By Margaret Montgomery

A FAIRLY good-sized collection of books, unusual knick-knacks, and—if you like—several growing plants can add up to a handsome bookshelf arrangement. Bookshelves handsomely arranged can add warmth and friendliness to a room. It's not just the number or titles of the books that makes them an asset. It's how you arrange the books and how you fill the open space between them. Study the right and wrong pictures below—then see how much difference rearranging books and knick-knacks can make in your own home.

Wrong

Bookshelves like these add nothing to your room because there's no balance in the over-all arrangement of books and knick-knacks. That's not all that's wrong: (1) Large books on upper shelves seem to push down smaller books beneath them. (2) Dresden figure is lost in an end spot on a crowded shelf. (3) Set of small books broken up and divided between three shelves. (4) Magazines 'way up there only catch dust. (5) Wide open spaces are catchalls for cameras and ash trays. (6) Books are put in willy-nilly so they give the rows a picket-fence look. (7) Small brass and copper pieces don't have the weight to give the shelves a firm foundation. (8) Picture over the desk is too small and colorless to contribute anything to the bookshelves.

Photographs: James Bavne

Right

Better balance of small and large books and knickknacks makes a big difference. Stacks of magazines on one bottom shelf and bulky books on the other give the shelves a solid, substantial-looking base. Small books are arranged together on higher shelves—and that set is in one place now. Lighter-scaled decorative pieces near the top and more massive pieces toward the center of the shelves form a pleasing pattern for the eye to follow. Notice how the line of that pattern leads your eye into the center of the shelf unit. Two containers of greens, arranged with pottery and brass candlesticks, help fill bookless spaces and balance one another on either side. The larger picture between the shelves dramatizes the whole setting.

NOW A Trial Membership CAN BE OFFERED TO YOU!

YES, YOU MAY NOW OBTAIN BEAUTIFUL, beautiful BOOKS

LIKE THESE FOR THE SAME PRICE AS AN ORDINARY NOVEL

For a period of six months only, you may TRY OUT this cooperative plan by which you obtain a unique collection of the world's classics, especially illustrated by the world's great artists, well-printed on permanent papers— for the same price as rental library fiction!

ONE YEAR AGO, you couldn't have done it! One year ago, there were no vacancies in the membership of The Heritage Club. Because we had to know in advance how many books to make for the members, at that time we decided that we would accept only twenty-five thousand applications. But 27,788 applications came in. So 2,788 people were disappointed.

The reason for this gratifying success? Perhaps it is because it is all too seldom that such an honest value comes to those who love beautiful books.

The Heritage Club distributes to its members "the classics which are our heritage from the past, in editions which will be the heritage of the future." These books are not "de luxe," nor are they old editions dressed up for a new market. They are especially designed by the most famous typographers, illustrated by the greatest of the world's artists, carefully printed by leading printers on fine papers chemically tested to assure a life of at least two centuries, handsomely bound and in slip-cases.

And the members obtain these books for the same price which they are called upon to pay for ordinary novels! Despite increases of 100% in the costs of manufacturing, each member is called upon to pay only $3.65 for each book—or only $3.28 if he makes payment in advance!

NOW, AND for the remaining six months of our publishing year, we have decided to increase the membership. This month just one thousand new members will be enrolled, upon a Trial Membership basis. If you apply for one of these Trial Memberships (and in time to get one of them!) you will during the coming six months obtain these books:

Robinson Crusoe, the complete and adult text, illustrated with wonderful water-colors by Edward A. Wilson; The Song of Songs, each copy hand-illuminated with pure gold by Valenti Angelo; Wuthering Heights, illustrated with lithographs in color by Barnett Freedman, and Jane Eyre as a companion volume; The Decameron of Giovanni Boccaccio, amusingly illustrated with woodcuts by Fritz Kredel; Lorna Doone, illustrated with water-colors by the great English artist John Austen.

Yet, if it should happen that you do not desire to have any one of these books, there is a list of a dozen Substitution Titles.

These books will be treasures in your home, books you will be proud to own, books you will exhibit to your friends with pride. They are the books which one reads and re-reads.

Never in the history of book publishing has a greater bargain been offered to wise buyers of books. This Trial Membership gives you the opportunity to put this statement to the test.

Please fill out the coupon printed herewith and mail it to The Heritage Club promptly. You will then be sent a completely descriptive Prospectus, and a Trial Membership will be reserved.

Request for the Descriptive Prospectus

to THE HERITAGE CLUB,
595 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK 22, N. Y.

Please send me immediately a copy of your new Prospectus, in which you describe the special offer of Trial Memberships which you are now able to make, and in which the books are described in detail. I understand that you will reserve a Trial Membership in my name, awaiting receipt of my application.

Uses for a magnet. A horseshoe magnet is handy for picking up spilled nails and tacks. And it will keep tacks under control as you use them. Because a magnet attracts only ferrous metals, you can use it to determine whether hardware is solid brass or brass-plated steel. In the picture, a brass screw was left, a steel screw pulled away.

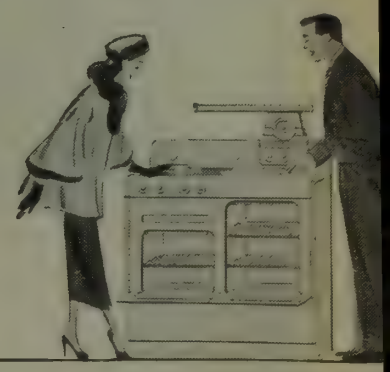
To load calking gun. You can save money by using bulk calking compound in your gun. To load, hold the open end (with tip removed and plunger full forward) about half an inch into compound. Pull steadily up on plunger. Use gun-grade compound, don't let cylinder lift out.



Smooth mortise. To cut a smooth mortise for a hinge, try this. After marking cut, drive a straight chisel cut to the right depth at each end. Then hold chisel, bevel side down, at the angle shown, and work back, driving repeated cuts a little shallower than the mortise depth. Space cuts $\frac{1}{8}$ to 3/16 inch apart. When the entire mortise is chipped, rake out chips with your thumb or claws of a hammer. Then trim the bottom of the mortise true with the chisel held flat. The tool used here as a mallet is a sailor's fid, a long wooden teardrop made of maple.

Mueller Climatrol *Modular Furnaces

- a new idea in home planning!

Now you combine modular units to fit your exact needs and budget

Here's good news! You can plan heating just the way you want it, and just the way you can afford it — with Mueller's exclusive new modular design. Each basic unit (from burner to summer air-conditioner) is designed to fit each other unit in any combination.

Here's what this amazing flexibility means: You can install a modern Mueller Climatrol year 'round heating and air-conditioning system complete at one time. Or you can build it a step at a time, adding each modular unit as you wish. For instance:

1. You can start with an efficient Mueller Climatrol gravity furnace.
2. You can equip it with a burner for gas or oil as you choose. If you want to change fuels later, simply change burners.
3. Then add a blower-filter unit and you have a Mueller Climatrol winter air-conditioner (as illustrated above).
4. Finally you can add a cooling unit, and enjoy the perfect comfort of Mueller Climatrol year 'round air-conditioning. Your system then is identical with a system which is bought complete at the outset.

Mueller's ninety-two years of specialized experience stand behind this important advance in home-heating design. Ask your Mueller Climatrol dealer for complete details today. Radiators can be attractive

By Mary Allen Fagen

DO YOUR radiators seem to jump right out of their corners at you? They needn't. Painting them the color of your walls or woodwork will make radiators less noticeable. And using the space over them for shelves will make radiators more attractive. Just be sure shelves are at least three inches above the radiator so hot air can flow freely. These pictures show how Mrs. Richard Rollins of Des Moines, Iowa, keeps her radiators in their places.

Bookshelves—built well above the radiator so bookbindings won't dry out—make a colorful wall in a narrow hall. Space seems furnished yet the traffic lanes are left open by the recessed shelves and radiator

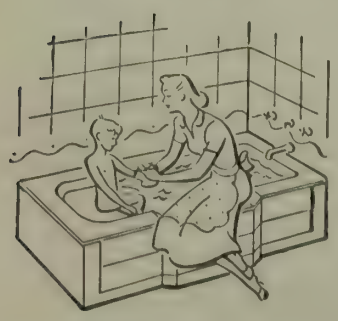
ELJER



"Here's something I've learned . . ."

"Harry and I lived in enough houses to find out that there is a big difference in plumbing fixtures. Our own new bathroom and kitchen are Eljer-equipped and one of the first things I've learned is that these are the easiest fixtures to keep sparkling clean! Just the swish of a damp cloth does it . . . and Harry says the way they are made means they will stay bright and new looking for a lifetime."

Eljer bathtubs have a rugged, rigid, cast-iron base that makes possible a smooth, extra-thick coating of glass-like enamel. And Eljer Vitreous China Fixtures just naturally resist stains and are impervious to all ordinary acids—because they are real china.

For Eljer fixtures in white or pastel shades, see your plumbing contractor or write Eljer Co., Box 192, Ford City, Pennsylvania.

CONVENIENCE AND SAFETY

Eljer's Legation Bath features an integral end-seat and a wide, front-rim seat, only 16 inches high . . . . easy to step in or out and ideal for bathing children. Tub interior is full size, yet requires no extra space. Bottom is flat, for safety's sake.

HOW NOT TO

SO YOU'RE a worrier? Well, why do you worry? You may think it is because of your problems and troubles. Actually, psychological studies show that nothing could be farther from the fact. Your problems have little if anything to do with your worrying. All worriers cherish the delusion that when they have resolved all their difficulties, their worries will be over. They won't be over—in fact, they won't even diminish until you begin to realize that chronic worry is not caused by problems and difficulties.

Pick out any habitual worrier at random. Take his troubles off his shoulders; solve them one by one. Straighten out every one of his problems, so that he hasn't a care in the world. What happens then? Just this: In the absence of real things to worry about, he dreams up things to fret and stew over; actually conjures them out of thin air. Or else he develops a morbid anxiety about remote contingencies—which haven't one chance in a hundred of coming about.

A LEADING psychologist has a number of charity patients. One of them—we'll call him Mr. Jones—was an inveterate worrier. And his state of mind was slowly but surely undermining his mental and physical health. He had nervous indigestion, insomnia, and so on. Jones, however, had a "reason" to worry. He worried about money. When the psychologist suggested that his chronic worrying might actually have nothing to do with his financial situation, the man became highly incensed.

"Are you suggesting," he protested incredulously, "that I worry about nothing? That's the most ridiculous thing I ever heard. I worry about one thing: money. And that's all there is to it. When my financial situation clears up, I'll have nothing to worry about—and I'll stop worrying. But until it does, I can't help it."

The psychologist wanted to ask him if he hadn't worried just as much before his earnings had diminished, but he didn't get to. For Mr. Jones, thoroly indignant, had stormed out of his office.

SOME months later, this gentleman received an unexpected windfall. It wasn't a fortune, but it would endow him and his family very comfortably for the rest of their lives. A short time afterward, however, he was back in the psychologist's office—this time as a paying patient. "I'm sorry about the way I acted," he apologized, "but you've just got to help me. My nerves are worse than they've ever been. My doctor tells me there's nothing organically wrong with me—but I can't eat; I can't sleep; I can't relax."

10 ways to worry less

1 Don't think of problems as difficulties; think of them as opportunities for action.

2 After you've done your best to deal with a situation, avoid speculating on the outcome. Forget it and go on to the next thing.

3 Keep busy. Keep the 24 hours of your day filled with these three ingredients: work, recreation, sleep. Don't allow yourself time for abstract thinking.

4 Don't concern yourself with things you can't do anything about. Armchair generals don't win battles, but they do have nervous breakdowns.

5 For the time being anyway, eliminate daydreaming completely. Stop building air castles.

6 Don't procrastinate. Putting off an unpleasant task until tomorrow simply gives you more time for your imagination to make a mountain out of a possible mole-

WORRY

By John E. Gibson

telltale lines etched by chronic tension and anxiety were even deeper than before. "But, Mr. Jones," he said wryly, "I understand that the condition you were worried about no longer exists. You were worried about money—period. Isn't that right? Now you're financially independent. What can you possibly have now to worry about?"

"You're laughing at me, doctor," Jones protested. "But it's no laughing matter. I am worried—desperately so. I'm worried about the investments I've made. In these times it's hard to be sure of anything. And if something should happen, we could be wiped out."

"MR. JONES," said the doctor gravely, "I could advise you to convert your investments into government bonds and put them in a safe-deposit box. I could advise it, but I'm not going to—because it wouldn't do the slightest good. You'd simply transfer your worry to something else—your health, your children, or your wife's affections. The list is endless. No worrier ever ran out of ammunition.

"Chronic worry is a state of mind which results when your inner sense of security is lacking. Often we are not consciously aware that we lack this inner confidence in ourselves. But we seek to rationalize this insecure feeling by attributing it to some outside cause—such as our financial situation, our health, our social standing in the community, and so on."

A glimmer of understanding flickered in the man's distraught eyes. "But," he said, "how are you going to help me?"

"By getting to the basic cause of your worry processes—which are rooted in your inner sense of insecurity. And then by showing you how to completely rebuild your confidence in yourself."

"How long will this take?"

"It depends entirely on yourself. If your case were not so far advanced, you could do the job yourself—once you understood the principles. As it is, your self-confidence is at such low ebb that you need outside help—at least to get you started."

SCIENCE has long known the insidious havoc that worry plays—both mentally and physically; that it produces such severe nervous tension that vital physical processes are upset and glandular functions interfered with. Medical researchers have found it a direct cause of a host of physical ailments, including asthma, high blood pressure, heart disease, eczema, and diabetes. Research at Northwestern University shows that chronic worry can even make you lose your teeth; for Professor Leonard S. Fosdick has found that worry and accomplish more

hill, more time for anxiety to sap your self-confidence. Do it now, brother, do it now!

7 Don't pour out your woes and anxieties to other people. You don't want their sympathy—it'll merely make it easy for you to feel sorrier for yourself.

8 Get up as soon as you wake up. If you lie in bed, you may use up as much nervous energy living your day in advance as you would in actual accomplishment of the day's work.

9 Try to arrange your schedule so you will not have to hurry. Hurry, a blood brother of worry, helps shatter poise and self-confidence, contributes to fear and anxiety.

10 If a project seems too big, break it up into simple steps of action. Then negotiate those steps like rungs in a ladder—one at a time. And don't allow yourself to think about the difficulties of step number two until you've executed step number one.

the unhandy man can build . . .

By Bob Gilmore and Darrell Huff

When this combination unit is closed (right), it seems to be a neat, modern wall cabinet. When it is opened (below), it becomes a desk or dining table. Best of all, it can be put together quickly with a minimum of skill

HERE is a home woodworking project for the man who has never hammered anything but his left thumb, and never made anything tougher than his point in an argument.

It is a combination desk, dining table, and storage cabinet. It is quick, easy, and quite inexpensive to build, and it would be a valuable addition to practically any home.

Most lumber dealers can supply all of the materials needed. Even the man who hasn't so much as a hammer and saw can buy all of the tools needed for less than a 10-dollar bill.

This unusual piece of furniture is made in two matching sections. One stands on the floor; the other hangs on the wall above. In use, the front of the hanging section hinges down on the base, which is pulled out from the wall so it will support the hinged section.

The lower section is a cupboard for storing almost anything. The upper section provides a desk top or table, plus a set of shelves for books, stationery, or dishes. Turn to page 20

How to get fine beef every time...

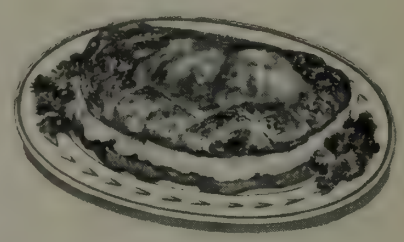
THRIFTY THOUGHTS ON ROUND STEAK



by

Martha Logan

Swift's Home Economist

STEAK BRAISED THIS WAY will be more richly flavored and tender. Cover with seasoned flour; pound with meat hammer or edge of heavy saucer till all flour is absorbed. Brown both sides in hot fat in heavy skillet. Add small amount of water. Cover; cook slowly (or bake at 350°F.). Add water sparingly if needed. Allow about 2½ to 3 hours for braising a 4 lb. round steak.

BRAISED STEAK "SANDWICH" is a one-platter feast. Braise, as above, 2 slices round steak each 1″ thick. Before browning steaks, brown 2 sliced onions in hot fat. Add these to 2 c. cooked tomatoes; pour over browned steak in place of water. Continue cooking the meat as above. Serve sandwich-style, filled with hot mashed potatoes, well seasoned.

STEAK TURNOVERS: Grind leftover meat; add grated raw carrot and a few tbsp. catsup or mushroom soup. Place a spoonful of mixture on squares of rich pastry or biscuit dough. Fold dough over meat; seal edges with fork and bake in mod. hot oven (425°F.). Serve with creamed fresh mushrooms or diluted mushroom soup.

The combination can be used (interchangeably if you like) for many different purposes—drawing table, writing desk, dining space, table for buffet serving, hobby cupboard, games, or you name it.

And for all its adaptable usefulness and storage space, this desk-table-cabinet combination requires only 4 square feet of floor space.

It can be painted, stained, lacquered, or covered with artificial or real leather to match the style of any room. Its clean lines will go well anywhere. In convenience and looks, it is worth a hundred dollars in any home. But you can build it for one-fourth that much.

Building the base

Since the base section is a useful storage cabinet by itself, build it first. It is made out of eight rectangular pieces of ¾-inch fir plywood.

If you have access to a power saw, you can cut these pieces economically out of 1½ plywood panels of the common 3x8-foot size. Otherwise you can saw them by hand, of course; or perhaps you can have them cut to size at the lumberyard.

You'll need these eight pieces:

1 piece, 18 inches by 37½ inches (for top)
1 piece, 16½ inches by 36 inches (shelf)
1 piece, 17¼ inches by 36 inches (bottom)
1 piece, 25 inches by 36 inches (back)
2 pieces, 18 inches by 25 inches (sides)
2 pieces, 17⅞ inches by 24⅛ inches (doors).

You'll need to collect a few other items, mostly hardware, and then you can really get to work:

36 flathead No. 8 wood screws, 2 inches long
2 continuous piano-type hinges, 24 inches long, with one 5/8-inch flathead wood screw for each hole in the hinges
2 friction cupboard catches, little ones to mount inside, to hold the doors shut
Can of wood plastic or wood putty, to cover flaws in the wood or your workmanship
Can of glue, preferably the synthetic resin kind
Few sheets of sandpaper, medium-coarse and fine
Dime's worth of thin finishing nails, 2 inches long
Some tools: saw, square, hammer, screwdriver, drill or brace and bit, countersink bit.

That's all, and you can make do without some of these tools if you don't have them and prefer not to buy them.

Wrap half a sheet of medium-coarse sandpaper around a hand-size block of wood and smooth any rough edges on the plywood, finishing up with fine sandpaper.

The pieces you'll have go together as shown in the exploded sketch above.

On the piece of plywood that is to be the back of the cabinet, draw a pencil line from end to end the long way to mark the position of the shelf. About 15 inches from the bottom is a good distance, but you can vary this to suit the storage purposes you have in mind.

Brush glue along one long edge of the shelf, and nail it to the back. Use only two nails (near the ends), and don't drive them all the way in; you're going to pull them out later.

Now, spaced evenly between the nails, drill two holes for screws. Ream them enough with the countersink bit to take the screw heads, and set the screws. Pull the two nails, drill and countersink the holes, and put two screws where the nails were.

In similar fashion, glue and screw the bottom on, then the sides (mark the sides for the shelf, as you did the back), and then the top. For each joint, use three screws on the sides, four along the back. Hold each joint in place with two nails as you go, placing the nails where they can be removed to let their holes take screws.

Before you mount the doors, cut a 1-inch triangle off a corner of

tays Silent asts Longer

(no moving parts in the freezing system)

"Silently as nature makes ice," said the ad my Dad read twenty Christmases ago. Here was the only noiseless refrigerator! That decided it—a Servel Gas Refrigerator for us!

Now, twenty years after, I've grown up; have child of my own. When we go home for Christmas, that s Servel still guards the dinner fixings! Still silent, too!

No wonder Jane and I went straight to our neig borhood dealer when we came to choose our n refrigerator. For only Servel has a freezing system w no moving parts at all. No motor or machinery! Jus tiny gas flame does the work, silently, efficiently.

"And what a beauty the new Servel is!" says Ja "There's a big frozen food compartment, plenty of cubes. There's moist and dry cold for fresh foods."

This story is typical, write Mr. and Mrs. E. A. N of East Orange, N. J., "Our Servel is still running well as it did when it came in 1929. We're migh proud to show it off to friends."

each, as indicated in the drawings. Then you can open them without pulls. Slip in the hinge, and check the doors for size. Trim a little off the edges if necessary for a smooth fit. Fasten on the hinges, and the cabinet is assembled.

Attach four casters or furniture glides to the bottom, so the chest will slide easily on the floor.

Building the wall section

An exploded view of the wall cabinet, above, shows the assembly of plywood and pine boards. In the finished unit, right, note placement of slats on door

The frame and shelves of the top part of the unit can be built of plywood, too, but 1-inch white pine (or fir or redwood) boards are less expensive and easier to work. Use plywood for the back and the front that hinges down to form the desk surface.

Top, bottom, sides, shelves, and strips can all come from 23 running feet of 1x8-inch pine. This, and one standard 3x8-foot panel of ¾-inch fir plywood will take care of the lumber requirements. These are the pieces you need:

2 pieces of pine, 7⅝ inches by 36 inches (top and bottom)
3 pieces of pine, 6⅛ inches by 36 inches (shelves)
2 pieces of pine, 7⅝ inches by 48 inches (sides)
2 pieces of pine, 1½ inches by 36 inches (strips)
1 piece of ¾-inch plywood, 36 by 46½ inches (back)
1 piece of ¾-inch plywood, 35⅞ by 46⅜ inches (fold-down door).

The pieces of pine for bottom, top, and sides are the full width (7⅝ inches) of what is called 1x8 lumber, so there isn't much cutting to do. Rip enough (about 1½ inches) off three of the 36-inch pieces to make the shelves. Then use two of these ripped-off pieces for strips across the outside of the door.

You'll also need:

42 flathead No. 8 wood screws, 2 inches long
1 continuous piano-type hinge, 36 inches long, with ⅝-inch flathead screws.

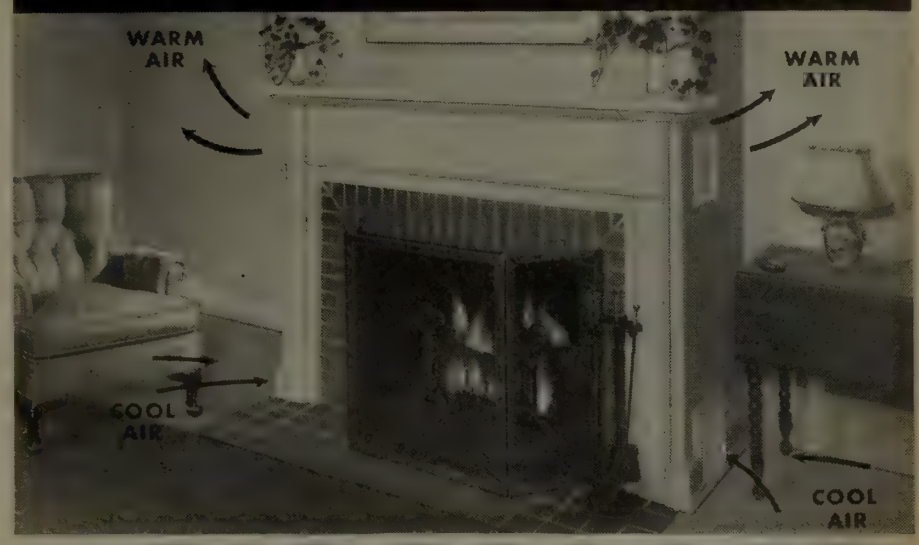
Assemble the pieces as sketched. Fasten pieces together with glue and screws at all joints, first nailing them temporarily, just as you did when building the base. Then mount the hinge.

Place the shelves to fit what you want to store on them. One good arrangement is to put the lowest shelf 15 inches from the bottom, to accommodate a portable typewriter in its case, and space the other shelves equally.

Glue and screw the two strips on the outside of the door, about 2 inches from the top and 4 inches from the bottom. They can serve as a frame for any picture or map you may want to mount on the door. The upper one is also a grip to use in opening the door.

Close the door, and mark a point at the center of the top piece, ⅜ inch in from the front edge. Drill a ⅜-inch hole thru the top and down into the edge of the door an inch or so. Whittle a peg from a piece of leftover pine, or use a piece of ⅜-inch hardwood dowel. It should be sandpapered until it drops easily into the hole to keep the door closed, and long enough so that ½ inch sticks out of the top to take hold of. Push a large thumbtack into the center of the top, to keep the dowel from dropping thru the hole when the door is opened.

If the top of the cabinet is beyond your reach, you can substitute friction-type catches.



Finishing

With both sections assembled, it is time to put on the finish. Begin by filling the screw holes and any imperfections a little more than level with wood plastic. When this has hardened, trim it level with a chisel or jackknife, and sandpaper edges and surfaces smooth with medium-coarse, then fine sandpaper.

The finish you use will depend

NEW COMFORT For Modern Homes

this FIREPLACE actually Circulates Heat!

Build a Heatilator*Fireplace in your new home—in any architectural style you like—and enjoy the comfort of this amazing fireplace that warms every corner of the room, uniformly and thoroughly. No longer will your face parch while your back freezes. The Heatilator Fireplace actually circulates heat to far corners, and even into adjoining rooms—something no old-fashioned fireplace will do.

You can use your Heatilator Fireplace to heat the entire house on cool spring and fall days, saving the waste and bother of furnace fires. In colder weather it augments furnace heat and serves as an auxiliary in times of fuel shortages or emergencies. It's the only heating equipment needed by many homes in mild climates.

Cool air from floor level is heated in the double-walled chamber around the fire—then circulated to far corners of the room.

The Heatilator Fireplace solves the difficult problem of heating basement rooms. Its circulated heat warms the entire room quickly and thoroughly.

The Heatilator Fireplace makes camps and summer homes usable weeks longer every year. Provides real comfort even for winter weekends.

WILL NOT SMOKE

The Heatilator Fireplace unit is a scientifically designed form around which the fireplace masonry is easily built. It assures correct construction, eliminates the common faults that cause smoking. Yet the unit adds little, if any, to the cost of the completed fireplace, due to savings in labor and materials.

For lasting satisfaction, insist on the unit that has been proved for 21 years —in homes and camps all over America.

You can count on a mirror

. . . if you want to give your dark room sparkle or make a small room seem bigger Photograph: Advertisers Photographic Studios, Inc.

To make your room look larger, when your whole fireplace wall seems insignificant, put a perfectly plain, frameless mirror wall to wall above the mantel. It's a dramatic Modern note over a fireplace with such clean-cut lines as this one has. And it adds a note of grace and spaciousness to any small room

George de Gennaro

To add depth to a narrow room, use a mirror like this instead of a picture. This ornately carved frame was stripped of its gold leaf and finished in the natural blonde wood. Almost any antique picture frame makes a perfect mirror frame. You'll find such a mirror is a rich-looking space-filler above your sofa

CHOCOLATE CREAM CHIFFON TARTS

(Makes 8 tarts)

These chocolate-rich, creamy-light tempters are easy to make—a sure success with Crisco's pastry method!

CRISCO PASTRY

2¼ cups sifted flour	¾ cup Crisco
1 teaspoon salt	¼ cup water

All Measurements Level: Sift flour and salt into bowl. Take out ½ cup flour and mix with ¼ cup water to form a paste. Cut Crisco (with knives or blender) into remaining flour until pieces are size of small peas. Add flour paste to Crisco-flour mixture. Mix, shape dough into ball. Divide in two parts.

On floured board, lightly roll out dough ⅛" thick. Cut 4 circles 6" in diameter. Line tart shell pans. Cut uneven edges about ¼" from edge of pan; fold under, flute with fingers. Prick small holes over sides and bottom of each shell. Repeat with second half of pastry. Bake in hot oven (425°F.) 10 to 12 minutes.

FILLING

2 squares melted chocolate	½ cup sugar
½ cup boiling water	¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon gelatin	1 teaspoon flavoring
¼ cup cold water	½ cup sugar
4 egg yolks	4 egg whites

Blend chocolate and hot water with gelatin softened in cold water. Add egg yolks beaten with ½ cup sugar. Stir in salt and flavoring; blend. Beat remaining sugar into egg whites. Stir lightly into chocolate mixture. Fill baked tart shells. Chill. Top with whipped cream.

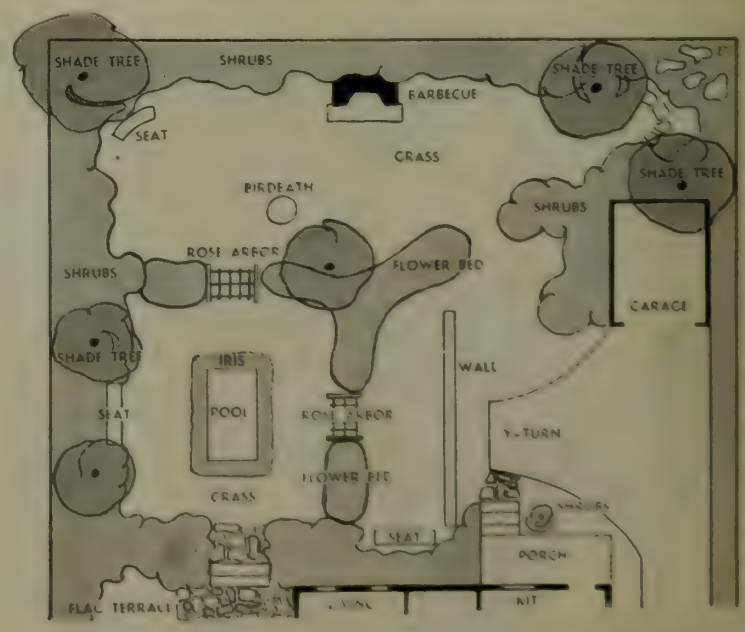
View today from the O'Connor terrace



Dear Editor:

WE CLIPPED the attached plan about 20 years ago from Better Homes & Gardens. We think it's as adaptable today as when first published. Our proof is the picture I'm sending you.

The only changes were to add a rose garden and a barbecue. We reversed the plan, tho, to give our garden a southern exposure.

The various units—flower garden, rock garden, terrace, and barbecue—were added in that order. We built the birdbath and lily pool ourselves. The main garden now provides a colorful panorama of gay bloom from spring to late fall.

We added a board fence behind the rose garden for its protection. When our teen-agers put in a bid for their place in the pattern of outdoor living, we built a barbecue just beyond the flower garden. This area already was screened from view by the shrubs and flowers, as shown on the plan. Artistically, the barbecue probably would have looked better in the corner opposite the rock garden, but prevailing winds make its present site more desirable. —Marie O'Connor, Klamath Falls, Oregon.

So many delicious kinds of breads . . . at the stores . . . or that you can bake at home. Really nutritious . . . and how they do perk up your menus!

So inexpensive...the 6-way nourishment of ENRICHED BREAD and FLOUR

"HOT FROM THE OVEN" come your own biscuits, muffins, cakes, cookies, pies to thrill your family and guests. Always buy flour labelled "Enriched" to be sure of this added nourishment.

WHAT TEMPTING VARIETY your baker offers! New treats in breads, rolls, cookies! And they're all highly nutritious when enriched. Ask him whether they are. It is important that you know.

ALWAYS SERVE PLENTY OF BREAD. It's delicious and so economical. On the wrappers of enriched white bread there's a panel stating that it is enriched. Look for it on the loaves that you buy.

You've always known it—that bread is food energy in its most economica form. And, in these hurry-up days, you know how you need energy. Bu see those flags? They tell the rest of the story. Modern enriched bread an baked foods make six important contributions to the all-round balance diet you and your family need. Yes, enriched bread and flour give you 6-wa nourishment! Remember this . . . at meal time, at snack time, every day

"IS BREAD FATTENING?" No; nutritionists tell us breads are no more fattening than any other food of equal energy content. The carbohydrates of bread are readily and easily converted into energy which is then used by the body as needed.

BEFORE

A huge, hooded fireplace (above) overpowered the small living room. It was too big to be disguised with paint. Brocaded easy chairs and brocade draperies that belonged with the fireplace made the room look austere and uncomfortable.

Once the fireplace got a paneled wall (right), the look of the room changed. Brighter, gayer colors and fabrics now fit in. Heavily beamed ceiling seems higher and lighter because it has been painted the same apple green as the walls. French windows are hidden with closely hung sheer curtains

You can remodel without

LOTS of people think remodeling a house means ripping out walls, installing new floors, and raising the roof in general. Sometimes remodeling does mean all that, but you often can transform your home with minor structural changes if the changes are part of an over-all plan.

Before calling in the carpenters, figure out how you want your home to look. Decide which feature needs to be changed to get the right effect. Is it an old fireplace, a misshaped window, a misplaced door? Moving a window is a pretty big job, but it can get bigger results if you'll plan carefully. After your problem spot is corrected, carry thru with draperies, slipcovers, wallpaper, and paint.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis M. Constance of Los Angeles is a good example of what a few changes can do. Ripping out a fireplace and replacing French doors with windows gave their whole home a new dignity and charm. You'd never know the old attic now

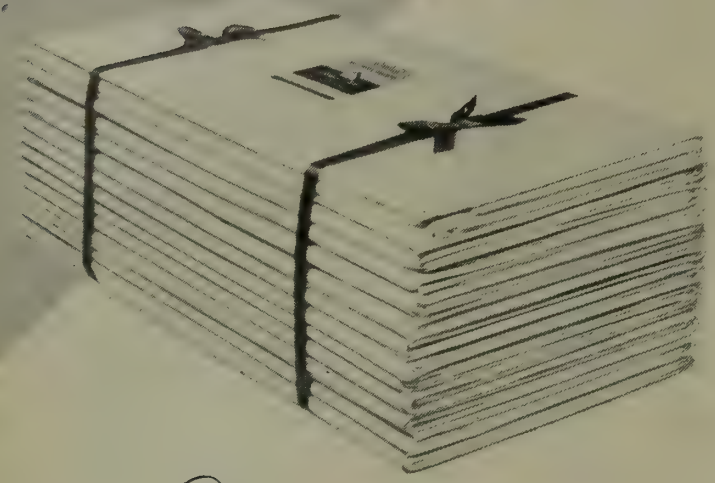
This extra bedroom was built in attic space that had long been wasted. By using Armstrong's Temlok® Interior Finish for the walls and ceiling, the job was done quickly and inexpensively. The cost of using lath and plaster was saved.

Temlok makes wall construction simple and fast. You simply nail or staple it over a wood framework. It has an attractive textured surface, painted at the factory and "ironed on" for extra smoothness.

Temlok adds comfort, too. It's made of compressed wood fibers which provide efficient insulation against summer heat and winter cold. In the bedroom above, the ceiling is of Temlok panels and the walls are Temlok planks. Big boards are also available for wainscots, closets, partitions, and other wall areas around the home.



Be sure to ask your lumber dealer about Armstrong's Temlok before you build or remodel. You'll be surprised at its low cost.

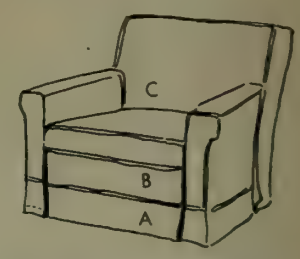
How to slipcover a sofa bed

By Kay Hardy

COVERING a sofa bed doesn't involve much more work than covering an upholstered couch. All you need to do is plan plackets and openings so the sofa bed's mechanism will work correctly without collapsing the whole slipcover. Here are instructions for covers for the most common kinds of sofa beds.



On Pullman-type love seats or couches, a strip across the front, under and in front of the loose cushions, swings up to the back of the couch. Cut and fit the back and arm sections just as you would for an ordinary couch. Stitch arm sections to the back allowing four-inch tuck-in flaps around the seats. Finish the edges with neat one-inch hems. Cover the loose cushions separately. Make the flounce along the sides and under the arms of the couch.

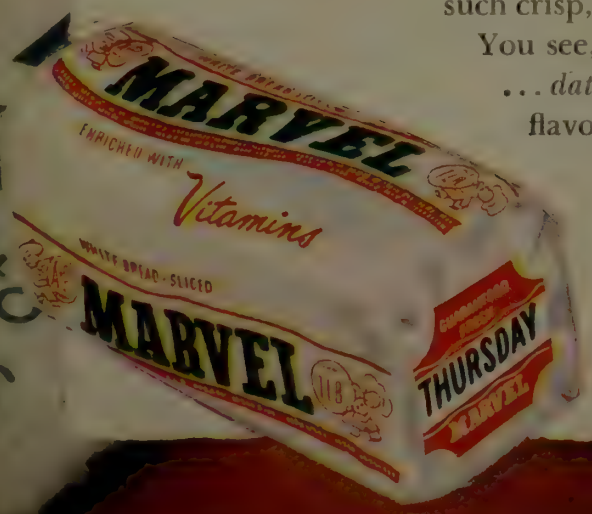
Then make a separate flounce and boxing for the movable front section. Allow a four-inch turnover at the top of the boxing to hold it under the cushions. If your cover slips on the upholstery, sew large hooks under the edge of the turnover and stitch matching eyes to the upholstery. Pleats or extra gathers will hide the point where the center flounce meets the side flounce. Or you can set in a slide fastener or snapper tape there. When you open the bed at night, you'll just have to take off this front cover.

Arm chairs that open into couches should have their arms and cushions slipcovered separately. Then cover the back, seat, and front of the chair with one long strip of material fitted along the top of the back and around the front of the seat. Allow extra material for a tuck-in at the back of the seat. Open and close the chair bed while the cover is pin-fitted to be sure there's enough give for the mechanism to work without moving the cover. Unless your cover is made from an especially nubby material, you can spread your mattress pad and sheets right over the slipcover.

Cover the arms and cushion of your chair couch separately

Cover sections a, b, and c lie flat when chair bed is opened

Studio couches with a drawer-like under structure that pulls out to make a double bed can be covered like the Pullman-type couches. Cover the sides, arms, and mattress first. Put a slide fastener or other placket closing along one edge of the back of the mattress for easy opening. Make the front-section slipcover separately. Tuck a zipper into the pleat or folds where the flounces join so you can remove the front cover when you pull out the drawer.



Zipper one edge on the back of mattress for easy opening

Couches whose springs let down from the back won't need special slipcover treatment if the springs are covered by loose cushions. When the placing of your couch requires a cover over the back, too, make a boxed pillowcase-type cover. Leave zipped or snapped placket openings in the cover where legs turn out at the corner where do they go from here?

HOME-BUILDING costs reached an all-time high in 1948. Thousands of you Better Homes & Gardens families have held off buying or building new homes, waiting for the price situation to clarify itself. To you, the question is: Where do costs go from here?

From three of the nation's top authorities on home-building costs, Better Homes & Gardens obtained this answer:

Costs may advance slightly in 1949, but the major increases are over; costs probably will decrease slowly, beginning in 1950.

By 1955, building costs should have settled at 15 to 25 percent below the 1948 level.

The price of older houses has passed its peak, and is on the downward glide, tho values are likely to hold fairly well.

These answers are from hard-headed realists. Two are executives of construction news-reporting and building-cost analyzing organizations: Myron L. Matthews, vice-president of Dow Service, Inc., publishers of Construction Industry Services, New York, and Roy Wenzlick, president of Roy Wenzlick & Co., publishers of the Real Estate Analyst Reports, St. Louis. The third is J. T. Miller, Better Homes & Gardens research director.

Their answers aren't final or dogmatic. Building costs are tied to the nation's whole economy. The costs are sharply and immediately affected by inflation and deflation, war and the threat of war, shortages and abundance, supply and demand. A sudden depression could upset all calculations.

But by weighing all related and forseeable influences, each of the authorities has given us straightforward answers to a series of questions on building economics. These questions were framed so the answers would help guide you in solving the problem: Should we build, buy, or remodel now, or should we wait?

Of necessity, their answers (synthesized under the questions below) give little weight to the many emotional and good-living considerations involved in acquiring a new home. Your family may have outgrown its present home; maybe industry is encroaching on your neighborhood; perhaps your income has changed since you bought your house. Such personal problems involving your family's immediate needs may well outweigh anything any group of economists might say.

But from a strictly economic point of view, here's the outlook as of January, 1949:

What's ahead in home-building costs for 1949?

The big increases are over. Costs may advance slightly, probably not past the middle of the year, and in a few limited areas a slight decrease may be noted. Market conditions will determine whether the drop is passed on to buyers. For most families it will cost only a small percentage more to build a house than in 1948.

What's ahead in home-building costs the next few years?

By 1955 costs should be down (perhaps 15 percent below 1948); construction should be better. One estimate places building costs in 1955 75 to 80 percent above the immediate prewar period, another 40 to 50 percent higher. A depression, of course, might force costs lower, but buyer income likely will follow the same curve, neutralizing the drop.

Here are some other components of the building picture which should help offset high building costs:

Builders are trying out new materials, and finding new uses for old. New ways of treating metal, glass, and other materials for home use are being marketed in a steady flow.

Better construction methods are being used. Large producers, trying to meet the postwar shortage of homes speedily, have evolved short cuts which are making more efficient use of man hours.

Labor is producing more. Apprentices taken into the building trades after the war have become better mechanics—their increased efficiency as they settle into their trades already has been noted.

What will be the effect of increased war preparation?

Increased military preparedness and European aid continue to create shortages. As a result, present home-building costs are supported at levels which normally would be lower. The more men and materials assigned to preparedness, the longer the downward trend will be delayed. [Turn to page 150

How to have quick bloom this summer

By Leslie MacRae

YOU needn't wait. Even tho you start from scratch, you can have bushels of flowers and the most inviting place on your street this very summer. There's no trick to this except knowing on which things to concentrate.

Suppose you do have a bare place where the sun beats down. You're lucky. Annual flowers such as petunias, zinnias, marigolds, and asters thrive in such a spot. And so do many others that you'll enjoy a lot.

Concentrate on these and gladiolus bulbs which will give you color inside of six weeks. Then add a few long-lived plants like perennial phlox. Phlox has big blobs of color all thru late summer on plants set in May.

Fork your soil well, and follow the suggestions below. What you get won't be magic—but a very reasonable facsimile.

Make it yours. The gaiety here comes from (1) petunias (Silver Medal) and annual asters (Burpee's Heavenly Blue); (2) snapdragons (Giant Skyscraper); (3) annual rudbeckias (Giant Hybrids); (4) gladioli (Barcarolle—orange; and Shirley Temple—yellow); and (5) phlox (Thor)

	TO START	CARE	OTHER GOOD CHOICES
ANNUALS	Petunias and asters—lots of color, low
	Order bright shades. Buy seedling plants by the dozen, or grow your own. Start seeds indoors by mid-April	Set petunias 10 inches and asters 15 inches apart. Nip faded blooms promptly. Kill aster beetles with DDT	Annual phlox, pinks, and verbenas can take the place of petunias. Zinnias and arctotis can replace asters
	Snapdragons—spikes for contrast
	Buy plants, or start tiny snapdragon seeds in sifted soil indoors. Barely cover seeds. Shift at 4-leaf stage	Space plants 12 inches apart where they have sun fully half the day. Stake individual stalks for the best display	Annual larkspur, and the new annual hollyhocks can substitute for snapdragons and give you greater height
	Rudbeckias—bold, graceful, lasting
	Sow seeds outdoors in April. Thin seedlings to stand 15 inches apart. Succeed in sandy and dry locations	No special attention needed for these slicked-up relatives of the oxeye daisy except to remove faded flowers	Marigolds of the taller kinds come closest to garden effect of rudbeckias. Or you can plant tall calliopsis
BULBS	Gladioli—lots of color, high
	Buy only good blooming-size bulbs. Space 8 inches apart in groups of 3 to 15. Cover bulbs 3 to 6 inches deep	Dust foliage after 8 inches tall at 10-day intervals with DDT to kill thrips. Stake each spike separately	Fiery montbretias and dwarf dahlias come close but do not equal the effect of well-grown gladiolus spikes
PERENNIALS	Phlox—for this year and next
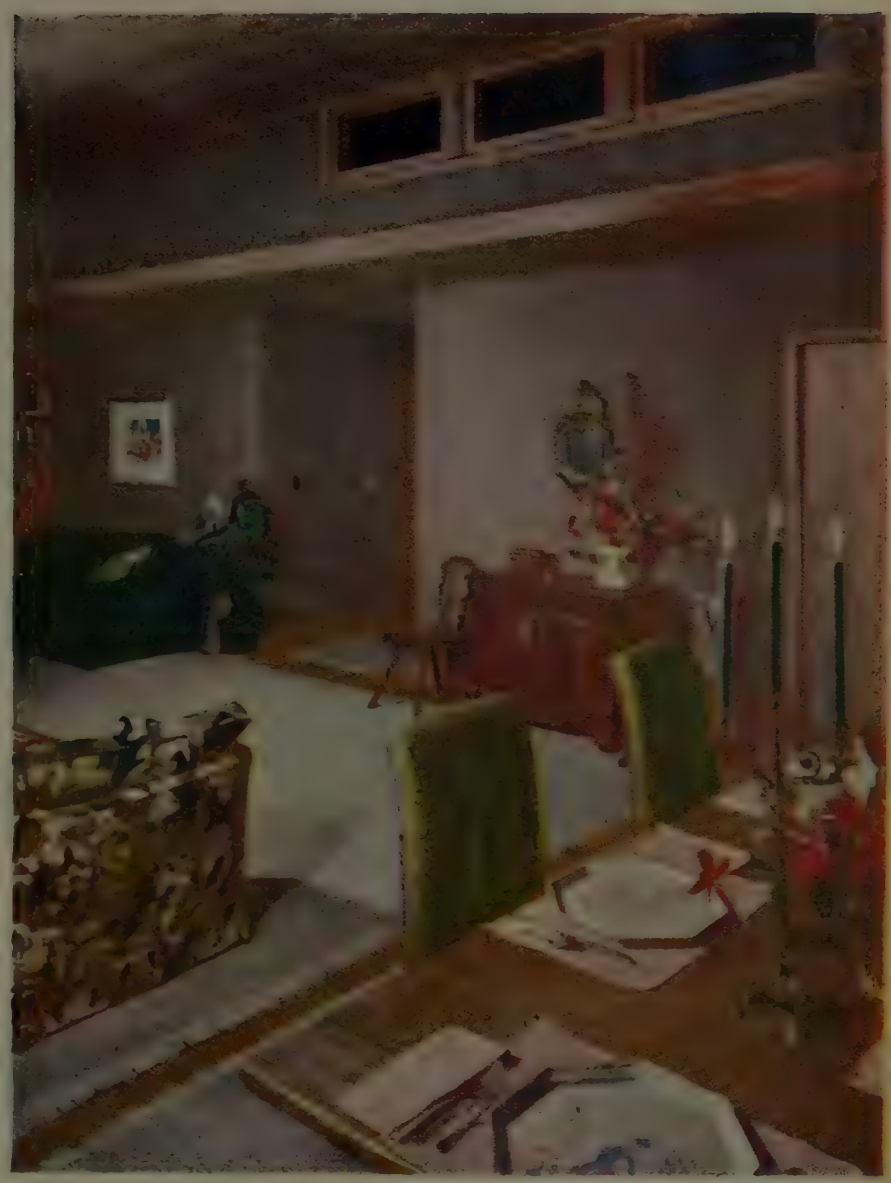
	Choose plants of distinct colors. Set 3 to 7 of same kind in a quite close group for showiest landscape effect	Mulch over root area, water often. To control redspider-mites and mildew, coat foliage with dusting sulfur	Early-blooming chrysanthemums in bright colors, well staked and well watered, can often pinch hit for phlox

Well planned for a narrow lot

Gray-brown walls, oatmeal-colored rug, redwood trim and ceiling form a restful, subdued background for colorful fabrics and for view thru fixed windows of living area

Good planning cuts noise, allows garden view, lets children play safely at rear of this small lot

Here is evidence that architecture, furnishings, and outdoor living areas must be closely related, especially on a narrow lot



By Ethel McCall Head

YOU can plan a house before you buy your lot. You can plan a house without considering the furnishings you have available for it. But it's not smart.

To be a good house, your house must take full advantage of your lot—slopes, orientation, view. To be a good home, your house should be planned around your present furnishings, unless you intend to start from scratch.

The Brentwood, California, home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Eisenbach was planned from lot-line to lot-line before a shovelful of earth was dug. The house is on a small lot, but it affords complete privacy because there are no windows on the street side. In the house Italian, English, and Modern furniture get along so well they look as if they had been brought up together.

Tho the Eisenbachs liked contemporary architecture, they wanted to avoid the coldness they found in so many contemporary interiors. So they asked Irvine Goldstein, A.I.A., to design a house with combination living-dining room, sheltered and informal outdoor living areas, and enclosed play areas for the children. They gave [Turn to page 86

Fresh charm for your windows

By Helen Aves

ANY window can be a picture window: pretty as a picture. It all depends on how you treat it. Sparkling, original window dress-ups can give a whole room new charm, so look around and find just the right window treatments for your rooms.

If yours is a window with a view, like the bay at left, treat it simply. Plant shelves, ruffled tiebacks, or draperies are all good so long as they frame and flatter the scene outside.

If you have no prize view, look for unusual material or styling so your glass curtains or draperies will bring warmth and color into your rooms.

But whatever your problem, use your imagination when you choose your window treatment. Fresh dress-ups will give your windows a new lease on life if you do.

Cleveland

Curtains alone can do the window-dressing job. Three tiers of filmy cottage curtains flaunting bright hems and frilly print valance lend an air of informal coziness to a bank of corner windows

What lovelier spot to enjoy your paper and morning coffee than a bay-window breakfast nook looking into your garden? Plants, plates, goblets, and ruffled valance across the top of the windows give the bay an inviting well-dressed look without hiding the view

Photographs: De Gennaro

Draperies can be used alone, too. Here's a whole wall that has been covered in rich folds of drapery to hide a pair of badly placed windows and give the room a dignified, sophisticated background

Use both curtains and draperies to soften sunlight by day, control privacy by night. Frothy tieback curtains add informal grace to windows in alcove. Traverse draperies have been hung just outside the alcove

When you build, here's one way to get

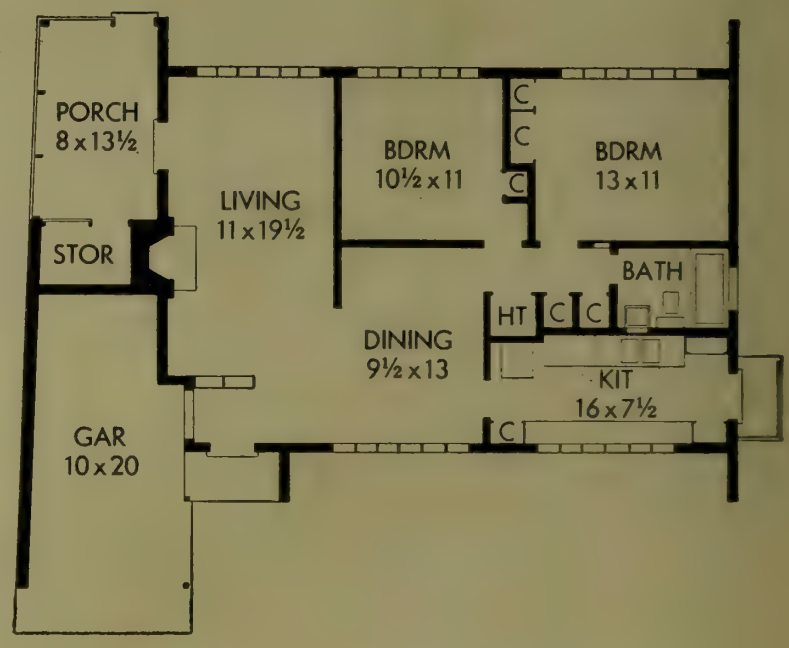
The most house for your money

By John Normile, A.I.A.

YOUR house must be built of materials that will keep maintenance costs at a minimum.

It must be easy to keep clean.

It must be correct in scale, and designed as a background for your furniture.



It must suit your way of life—the way you want to live and entertain your friends.

These are the foremost requirements of a fine house—the things that distinguish a house from its neighbors. They should be a part of the house you build. And you will find them all in Better Homes & Gardens Five Star Home No. 1901.

You'll find more than these four "musts" in this home, designed by Architect H. Elliott Bredow of Dallas for Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Skeeters. It not only measures up to the requirements, but it also goes well beyond them. It combines the latest in planning and use of materials with a setting for your present furnishings, whatever style they may be.

It is a friendly house, the result of warm colors and texture of wall materials. It also has a number of fine

Openness

Shielding living room from front door is a partition that serves as bookshelves. Top shelves have glass backs, let light from living room into the hall. Behind louvers is a large exhaust fan

Simplicity

Since your furnishings may be Traditional, the interior details are kept plain. Striking wall colors (here a light blue with trim a shade darker) and very simple moldings bridge the gap to Contemporary exterior lines

Convenience

Kitchen is a long (16 feet) room just wide enough for stepsaving convenience. Appliances and cupboards line inside wall. Counter under windows is a breakfast bar flanked by closets

Design

Three building materials blend together in both color and texture—concrete block for end walls, brick at front and rear up to sill height, vertical boards and battens above. Roof is pitched only enough to drain

Storage

Closets in both bedrooms have split hanging space. Since men's clothes require less hanging length than women's, space was saved by using two rods, one for suit coats and one for pants

Materials

Windows are metal casements. End walls extend past front and rear walls (see plan) to support overhang that protects windows from rain and summer sun. Fall and winter light, tho, still touches inside walls

Composition

Trellis supports one corner of carport roof, while an extension of the same roof protects entrance door. Note that the Colonial brass hardware is plain enough to look well on the slab front door

You can nail down building costs with your own hammer

Meet the Steges: Their story shows how your own work and an old house can add up to better living

The best way to saw prices in half is for you to handle the saw yourself

By Elizabeth Gilrain

Thousands of Americans are finding a way to make extra money and better living for themselves and their families.

They are spending their evenings and weekends building new houses or remodeling old ones—earning for themselves the high wages being paid in the building trades, and giving their families more comfortable places to live.

In last month's Better Homes & Gardens you read the stories of some of these amateur builders ("Pay Yourself Those High Wages," page 44).

This is the story of another Better Homes & Gardens family, representative of the large group whose members are taking care of their own problems. Their experience may help you.

BEFORE The bungalow looked like this three years ago

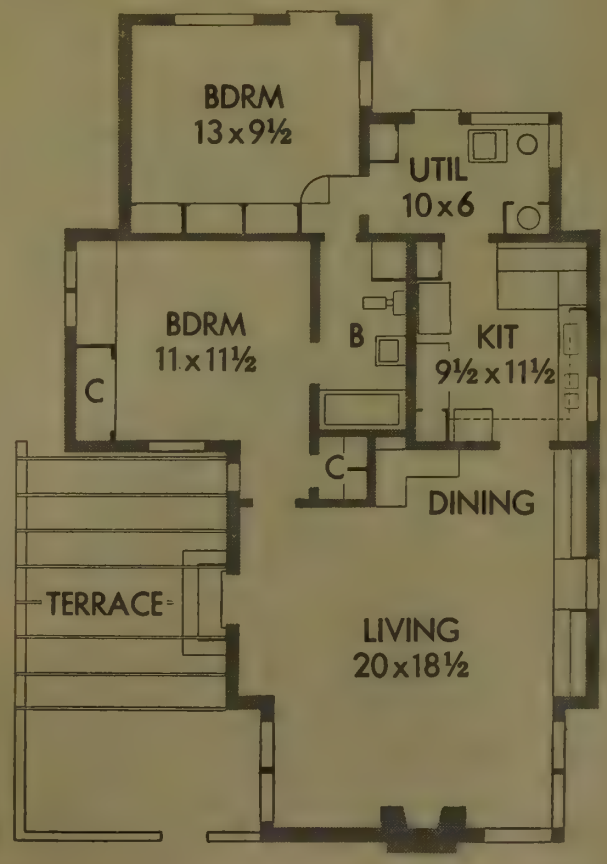
BEFORE this story begins, Julia and Wallace Stege were like thousands of other couples who are living on a day-to-day basis until they can buy or build, or even rent, their first home. For months the Steges lived in a series of motels around Los Angeles.

Then one Sunday morning Julie saw an ad for a $5,000 bungalow on the outskirts of the city. She suspected it wouldn't be anything livable at that price. Her suspicions were confirmed. Outside, the house was shabby and pressed by untended shrubs. Inside, there was a cramped living room, bedroom, bathroom, and kitchen. For storage there was a single dark closet. There was crumbling plaster, torn wallpaper, dangling ceiling fixtures, small windows, and discouragement. The Steges bought the house. For no reason, except that they had to have a place to live.

Quick figuring showed the Steges essential repairs would cost them the price of their house all over again, so they resolved to do the work themselves. They were equipped with crow bars, hammers and nails, and no building experience worth mentioning. Wally was a professional artist who had once built a fence before he joined the Air Force. Julie had been a WASP and ferried airplanes during the war. Also, she could sew. Those were the talents they brought to the enormous job of making an attractive, workable home out of a discarded shell.

IT TOOK 2½ years of heartbreaking, backbreaking work to finish the job. The cost in money was $2,000. (Of this, almost $1,000 went to a mason who completed work on the bedroom addition.)

Hundreds of couples would have clung to the expensive insecurity of the motel that Sunday morning. Others need only the example of people like Julie and Wally to use their own hands and heads to get homes they can afford. Here is their example:



AFTER Hard work by the Steges, plus some $2,000 brought this change. The Steges' first move was to enclose the front porch to get a seven-foot extension and a fireplace into the living room. New entrance door is at left, off the terrace. Julie made yellow canvas curtains to shut out summer sun. Masonry on wall and fireplace presents an interesting texture and contrast with clapboards of original walls; paint ties them together

BEFORE

SPENDING $2,000 and 2½ years of work, the Steges added seven feet of space and a fireplace to the living room by enclosing the front porch; carved a dining nook out of one end of the long bedroom closet; converted the back porch into a laundry; added a second bedroom at the back; and in every room concealed defects with built-ins. After all, they reasoned, if you have to hide an old wall, why not hide it with useful drawers, cupboards, and wardrobes?

AFTER

Interior, with its built-ins, shows good planning, is well executed

BEFORE (No. 1 on plan, left, above) Since the kitchen was the best room in the original house, its remodeling was left till last. Walls and ceiling are typical of what the Steges found when they moved in. This was the only counter space. Wally found building kitchen cabinets graduate work after other built-ins

DURING (No. 2, plan, right, above) About a month before completion, the Steges carried on under these circumstances—new sink, dishwasher, and surrounding cabinets in place, alcove table almost finished, refrigerator moved to give them elbowroom, walls untouched. Remodeling kitchen took nights and weekends of more than a month; dinner hour varied from 10:30 p.m. to 3 a.m.

AFTER (No. 2, plan, right, above) Because knotty pine he wanted wasn't available in quantity, Wally glued regular fir flooring strips together to make drawers and cabinets. Louvered door was a $6 display sample Julie hauled triumphantly home in the car only to find it didn't fit. Wally trimmed and added molding until it fit perfectly

What kind of Success do we want for our children?

SAYS THE AUTHOR: "For years we strained to pay for piano lessons. We sacrificed to buy her clothes. We ate endless stew and peanut butter to save money for her drama classes. None of it took.

"But as a high-school girl she gradually developed some sane ideas of her own, and as a college senior now she knows precisely what she wants.

"She aspires to be the mother in a typical happy home. Prosaic? Disappointing? On the contrary, Mom and I could leap with joy. For our own thinking has matured."

By Oren Arnold

IF YOU are a normally proud parent, you dream grandly for your children as a matter of course. When my first was born, I spent a year anticipating the time when she would—surely—be a great musician, a great authoress, a great humanitarian, preferably all three. She couldn't miss. She was too beautiful, and obviously destined. Even my smart young wife agreed.

Now, 20 years later, we will settle for much less. The glow has subsided. Yet we are not disillusioned and embittered, or any such melodramatic nonsense. Mother and I have simply reappraised the word "success" to fit the potential of a specific child.

Your attitude in guiding your children toward adult success is more vital today than at any other time in American history, because of the increasingly complex life in which they must live. Yet there is no cause for alarm. It is entirely possible for us, the conscientious fathers and mothers everywhere, to simplify matters, thus insuring our heirs a happiness greater than young adults are enjoying now. I have two more in the grade-school brackets. What kind of success do I plan for them? What do you want for yours?

WE CAN'T answer in daydreams. Nor can we force a realization, in our offspring, of our own frustrated ambitions. Indeed we can't be very specific about the success we plan for any child. We can only show guidance in terms of generalities—and experience tells us these had better be based on moral than on economic law. Our first task is calmly to begin judging and heightening the talents most marked in each individual youngster.

I call to mind an 80-year-old gentleman named Hades Temple. "Thunderation!" he roared once, "I never thought my son Dewey'd wanta be a preacher, but when I seen he was church-minded, I sent him to church!"

I WISH you could know Uncle Hades. He parked in front of our home one day, booted up the walk with his spurs clinking and burst into the living room with nary a knock. "Hey thar, ever'body!" He was always bull-voiced. "I'm here to invite you to a gatherin' of the whole damn Temple clan. Friday week. You're a-comin'."

We canceled everything else, knowing. We drove high into Arizona's green velvet mountains to the Temple ranch, and even at daybreak the festivities had begun. Out on the front lawn The Reverend Dewey Temple stood on the back end of a pickup truck to deliver a short sermon and a prayer before breakfast, because their Mom wanted to "start the day right." I had time to study the sons and daughters.

There was Yancey, 55 years old, a carbon copy of Uncle Hades except for age. He looked like a hero from an Edna Ferber novel, and he might well be; he owns a string of sawmills up in the Northwest. "When I seen that boy was crazy about lumberin'," Uncle Hades explained to me later, "I told him I'd whup him if he ever tried to raise cows. I got him a job with [Turn to page 78

YOU see here and on the following two pages some of the outstanding things in the garden field available for the first time in 1949.

These are the first pictures to show exactly how these new flowers and fruit grow, how they look after they have taken the sun, the winds, and the rain.

To give you this preview, we traveled thousands of miles last summer to find and photograph these new plants growing in home-garden settings. From the photographs, you can see which of them combine well. You get better ideas of height and spread.

Every new variety we mention has been rigidly tested. If you give these newcomers a place, they can perform just as handsomely for you.

can do for your dining room

COLORS make the best food more attractive. And those same crisp greens, ripe reds, and sunny yellows can make your dining room brighter and more inviting, too.

If your dining room is separate from your living room, why not use a bold color or a stunning pattern in the dining room? Remember, tho, to carry one of the colors from the adjoining room into your dining room so your home will have a carefully put-together look.

If your dining room is part of your living room, the whole room should blend together. Paint or paper one wall to set the dining end apart, but be sure the colors harmonize.

These pictures show the roles color can play.

Splashed with color, a kitchen becomes more than a place to tackle a stack of dishes after dinner. It becomes a room for family parties, a room for coffee with Dad home late from a meeting, a room that lifts your spirits no matter how tedious your job. With the new colors, kitchens can be among the most beautiful rooms in the house. Like these kitchens:

FUN to be in the kitchen? Of course, when a kitchen's as gay and cheerful, as colorful as this pair. Red, a favorite kitchen color, is predominant in both.

These kitchens were designed for family eating. Right, bamboo table and chairs join kitchen area for easy service. Below, snack bar is handy to range for serving. But it's also located to give you the elbowroom you need in the main working area. The family can not only file thru the kitchen and sniff—they can kibitz without getting in your way.

Persimmon-red cabinets are warm, friendly

Bold, yes, but don't you like it? Baked-enamel-on-steel units and walls are persimmon-red, balanced by brown and green bamboo-patterned wallpaper. Green is repeated in chair seats, table tops, curtains

Bright apple red and green accent a sleek white kitchen

SWEET CREAM from country dairies

SEASONING just to taste

Cream of Mushroom serves you well
In three delicious ways:
As Soup, as Sauce, in Cookery—
For tempting meals these days!

HEAVENLY AS A CREAM SAUCE:

Add 6 tablespoons of milk to 1 can of Campbell's Cream of Mushroom—just as it comes from the can. Heat and serve. Makes 1¾ cups.

. . . all add up to this LUXURY soup

And what a delightful soup it is—to give tempting variety to budget-restricted meals, as many and many a woman has discovered. Campbell's Cream of Mushroom Soup is such a glorious blend of choice, cultivated mushrooms and extra-heavy whipping cream. And there are delicate mushroom pieces, too, for the final touch. Here is truly a luxury soup —for economy meals.

Luscious cream pies... with the old-fashioned flavor, new trims for the crust, and new tricks for the topping

NOTHING makes you feel quite so expert as making and baking a handsome pie. Especially a cream pie with its crust tender and flaky, perfectly crimped and browned, cool creamy filling, and a top that's fluffy meringue or rich whipped cream.

Here we feature four cream pies—the favorites. Pineapple, coconut, lemon, and banana. Recipes for pastry, filling, and topping are below. For pictures that show how to make the edges on the crusts, see page 70.

Save money on meat main dishes

DISCOURAGED when you check your meat budget? Then buy the lesser-known meat cuts. They're a thrifty investment in good eating.

It takes time, patience, and know-how to prepare tender, savory ox joints, and juicy pork steaks. That's why there's less demand and lower prices for these cuts than for steaks and chops. And right there is your cue. These are the cuts to buy to save.

For each meat main dish in the meals below, you'll find an exact recipe to follow on page 76.

40-Minute Sunday Dinner

MAIN DISH	VEGETABLE	SALAD OR ACCOMPANIMENT	DESSERT	NICE TO SERVE
Spanish Pork Steak* With Rice in Green-Pepper Rings	Buttered Spinach	Molded Cranberry-Pineapple Salad French Garlic Bread	Mocha Chiffon Cake*	Pineapple Juice

This is quick for Sunday dinner. Brown pork shoulder steaks; add rice, onion, and tomatoes. Simmer 30 minutes. Fix the salad and bake the chiffon cake on Saturday. Garlic bread: Slice bread almost thru. Spread with 1 cup butter blended with 1 mashed clove garlic. Heat in paper bag in moderately hot oven (375°) 20 minutes. Serve pineapple juice in living room.

Ham Party Loaf

Upside-Down Ham Loaf*	Long Green Beans Glazed Parsnips*	Apple-Walnut Salad Hot Muffins	Pumpkin-Nut Pie*	Hot Coffee

Easy party dinner. Ham loaf has frosting of crushed pineapple when you turn it out of pan. Garnish loaf with celery leaves and maraschino cherries cut in petals. For real thrift, ask for ground ham butt or smoked picnic shoulder. Glaze sweet potatoes instead of parsnips if you prefer. Muffins, stirred up from a packaged mix, can bake with the ham loaf.

Family-Style

Veal Stew* With Buttered Noodles	Celery, Onions, and Peas in Stew	Pear and Cottage-Cheese Salad Orange Rolls*	Caramel-Coconut Custard*	Hot Tomato Juice Crisp Soya Wafers

Folks go for this hearty fare at the end of a blustery day. Cook the noodles in veal stock, drain and toss lightly with melted butter. Return veal stock to stew before thickening it. Mix a little chopped crystallized ginger in the cottage cheese. It's a good flavor companion with the pear. You can use bits of bright candied fruits left from Christmas in the orange rolls.

Fiesta Chili Supper

Chili Con Carne* With Corn-Bread Biscuits*		Crisp Carrot Sticks Celery Curls Dill Pickle Slices	Peanut-Butter Cookies Chilled Peaches	Pitcher of Cold Milk

This reputation-winning dish will make chili suppers a regular feature at your house. Chili looks as if it's been in the oven (see picture left). But it's cooked on top of the range. Use your favorite corn-bread recipe, or ours, reducing the liquid so batter holds its shape. Bake on greased cooky sheet. Turn steaming chili into hot bowl. Top with corn-bread biscuits.

Dutch-Oven Dinner

Braised Ox Joints* With Onions and Carrots	Big Baked Potatoes	Perfection Salad	Pineapple Cream Pie	Broiled Grapefruit

No need for pot watching. The stew simmers tender in a deep skillet or Dutch oven while the potatoes bake. It makes a meal that saves fuel, saves dishes at the sink. Sprinkle grapefruit halves with brown sugar; dot with butter. Broil, or bake, till the butter is melted. Serve for an appetite-catching first course. The pie's the one in the picture page 60. What a steam iron can do for you

Everything shown in this picture has been ironed with a steam iron. Unstarched cottons needed no sprinkling; the wool sweaters are steam-pressed into original shape

YOU can't beat a steam iron for pressing. But that's only one of the jobs it can do for you. A steam iron will cut your weekly ironing time; freshen felts, velvets, and suedes; simplify sewing—all with surprising ease. For today's steam irons are built for easy filling and emptying, streamlined for easy handling, and are surprisingly lightweight.

A steam iron is well suited for a supporting role in the weekly ironing. It's especially handy for pressing wool sweaters to proper shape and for ironing unstarched cottons and washable rayons. In the photograph above, we've steam-ironed a seersucker dress, sheets, pillowcases, shorts, sport shirt, wool sweaters, a child's playsuit, tea towels, and lightweight cotton curtains.

Even with a steam iron, you'll probably still prefer to sprinkle and dry-iron starched dress-up cottons, fine linens, and washable silks and satins. Experiment until you can sort your ironing each week into things to be steam-ironed and things to be dry-ironed.

When your steam ironing is finished, let the iron cool enough to handle comfortably. Then drain out any remaining water—to avoid having water run out thru vents when iron cools. Clean the reservoir and steam passage occasionally, following the manufacturer's instructions.

Give your steam iron good care from the time it's new and, in return, it will give you years of good pressing and ironing service. See next page for specific jobs a steam iron does especially well, page 81 for how to fill and use it.

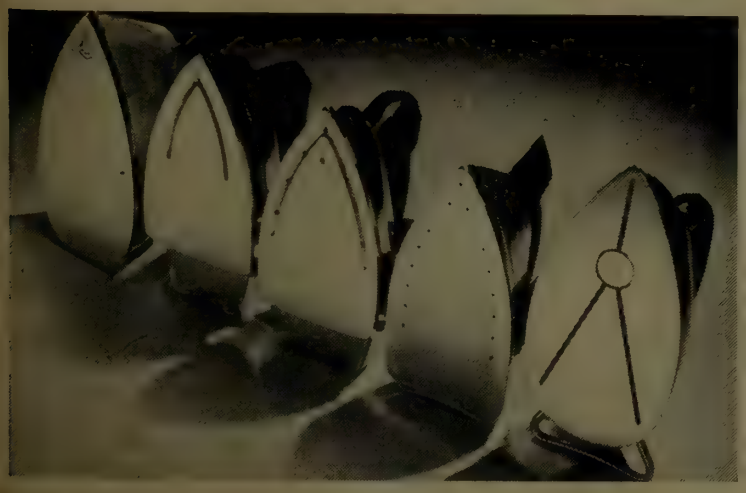
By Mary E. Carrick

The weekly ironing, pressing, sewing, and the freshening of fabrics in your home—all are easier with a steam iron

Press with a steam iron, and you don't have to bother with a damp cloth or worry about water spotting. The fine steam mist distributes moisture evenly. Press on wrong side. If necessary to press on right side, place white tissue paper, a pressing cloth, or double-thickness cheesecloth over the garment

Steam-iron slipcovers for perfect fit. Put the freshly laundered slipcovers on while slightly damp. Shape to fit perfectly, steaming where slight stretching is needed. Let dry; slipcover will fit like a glove. If flounce or ruffle is sewed to the body of the slipcover, use a sleeve board to iron the ruffle on the spot

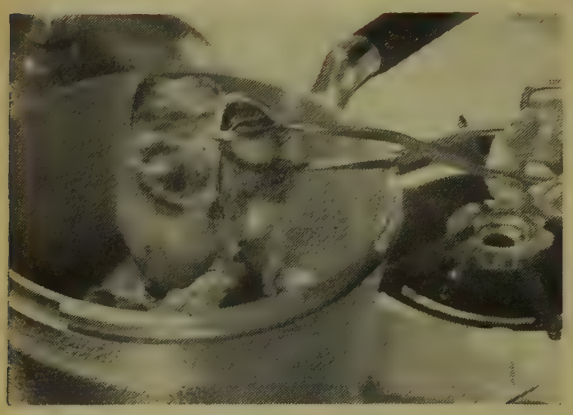
Photographs: Wesley Bowman



Freshen your felt hat by steaming it. Hold hat about an inch from iron. Rotate until all parts have been steamed; brush. Use same method for suede. To revive velvet, hold wrong side to steam. Dry, then brush right side gently. Or lay felts, suedes, velvets on ironing board; hold iron an inch above them

Speed up sewing with a steam iron. Use it to press seams open. It will save you time in turning hems since you can press them in place instead of basting. Even on wiry fabrics, edges stay turned and seams lie flat when steam-pressed. Here we're pressing open seams of a skirt before putting on belt

Eliminate dents in rugs made by furniture legs. Hold your steam iron about an inch above the spot and brush with whisk broom. Steam only long enough to spray mist over the surface of the rug; do not saturate. After it has dried thoroly, brush well. Go over spot with vacuum cleaner to straighten nap



How it works

Water is heated by the iron's regular heating unit. Steam comes out of openings in the bottom of iron. The location of the vents varies with the make of iron (picture, left). In some irons the entire tank of water is heated to steaming temperature. Then the steam escapes from the tank into the steam passage and comes out thru the bottom openings. In other irons, water is heated as it drips thru a valve into the chamber containing heating unit. Steam is produced as soon as soleplate of iron is hot.

Pork Chop Dinner—twice as fast and serves 4

1 Dip chops in seasoned flour. Brown them in pressure pan. Paprika gives the chops their rich color. Add ½ cup water; cook 10 minutes under pressure

2 Add the rest of the dinner: sweet potatoes, cut in half, and whole, cored apples. (Prick apples with fork so they will hold shape.) Cook 5 minutes

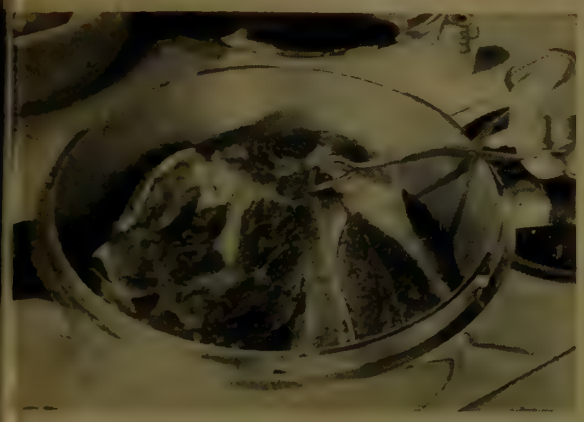
3 In less than 30 minutes—brown, tender pork chops, sweet potatoes, and whole red apples are ready for the platter. Fix salads of crisp lettuce wedges topped with Blue cheese dressing and for dessert have chocolate cake. If you like a green vegetable, you can cook thawed, frozen peas in the pressure pan in half a minute

Big dinners from a Pressure Saucepan

Pork chops take 30 minutes in a pressure pan, not 75. Pot roast 1 hour, not 3 or 4. Spaghetti sauce 20 minutes, not 3 hours

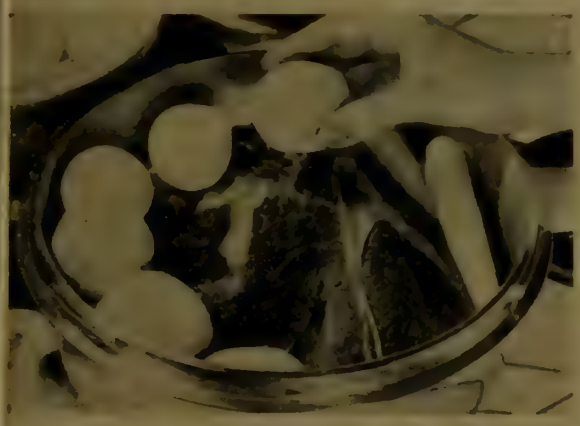
By Tasting-Test Kitchen

THE pictures here show the 1-2-3 of getting a good dinner in a hurry.



You arrive home at 5:15 or 5:30, and at 6 you're singing out, "Dinner's ready!"

There's a trick to it, of course. The trick is a pressure saucepan. The platter of brown pork chops, sweet potatoes, and whole red apples shown in the picture at the top of this page is a meal that would take 60 to 75 minutes if you didn't do the job with a pressure saucepan.



A pressure pan can cook the pork chop dinner in 30 minutes; a big pot roast and vegetables in 1 hour. It will have Italian Spaghetti ready on 20 minutes' notice. (And the flavor of the sauce will be the same as it is the long-cooked way.) So if you want to fix a big dinner, and fix it in a hurry, get out your pressure saucepan.

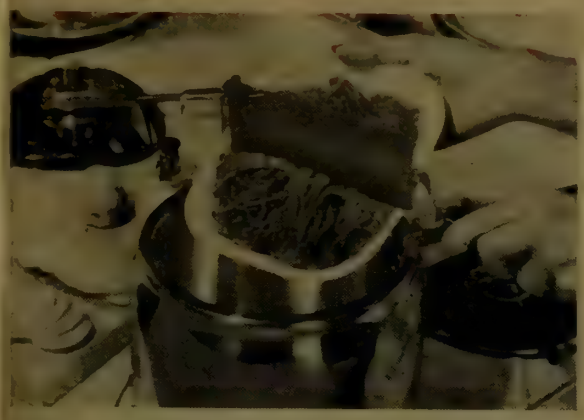
Pot Roast and Vegetables and makings for gravy

1 Brown a 3- to 4-pound pot roast in pressure pan. Season. Here we're using a new pressure fryer. Add ½ cup water and follow recipe page 80



2 Thirty minutes later, reduce pressure, add vegetables: medium whole onions, carrots, whole potatoes. Sprinkle vegetables with salt. Cook 10 minutes

3 In an hour your pressure pan dinner is ready for the platter. Pot roast is well seasoned, tender, and juicy. Vegetables are cooked to perfection. There's good makings for gravy. Serve Waldorf Salad and a cool orange Bavarian cream for dessert. For a pot-luck supper, the pressure pan will keep food hot till serving time

Italian Spaghetti with the same flavor but more speed

2 Next add tomato sauce, tomato paste, chili powder, seasonings, and water. Cook spaghetti sauce 20 minutes. While sauce is cooking, fix spaghetti

3 In 20 minutes—the same delicious dish you used to spend 3 to 5 hours cooking. Sauce is ready when spaghetti is cooked. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Have a big green salad and garlic bread. Cook stew and goulash in your pressure pan, too. Follow the timing suggested in manufacturer's instruction book

Fruit salads for your midwinter

Snow-Time Surprise This is a hot garnish salad. Serve it on the salad plate or meat platter. Fill peach half with crushed pineapple, drizzle some French dressing over the top, and broil for about 10 minutes. Serve broiled peach at once on a galax leaf or parsley, with stuffed olives

Tangy Fruit-Cocktail Ring Mold canned fruit cocktail in ginger-ale-flavored gelatine. (Recipe is on page 84—you simply substitute ginger ale for some of the liquid.) Fill hollow in center with Fruit-Salad Mayonnaise (recipe page 84) and top with a sprig of water cress

Cinnamon Star This is a cinnamon apple stuffed a new way. Cut apple (recipe page 84) in sixths, to within ½ inch of bottom. Stuff with a mixture of fluffy cream cheese, nuts, celery, and mayonnaise to moisten. Sprinkle with chopped nuts. Easy salad to serve on buffet tray

Orange-Pineapple Salad Arrange pineapple slices on plate this way:)(. You can use broken pineapple slices. Place orange sections on top as shown. Outline each section with a pimiento strip. For garnish, use curly endive, a jumbo ripe olive. Pass Fruit-Salad Mayonnaise meals

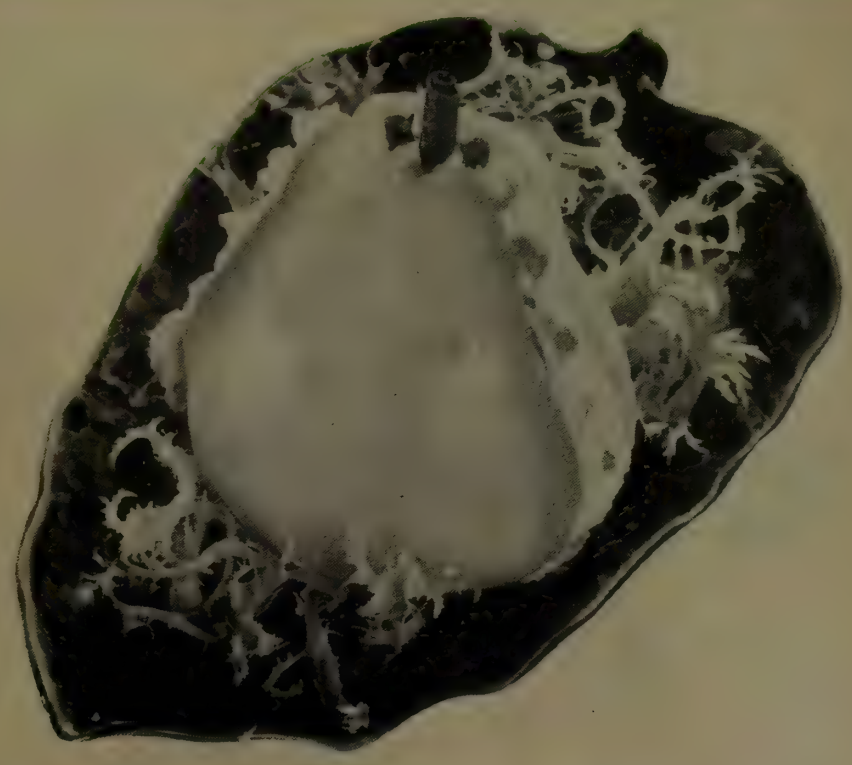
WHEN midwinter meals settle down to humdrum fare, plan a fruit salad to bring appetites out of the doldrums and to give your family a winter health plus. The new flavor and color combinations and different arrangements shown here were all planned with an eye on the clock. The gelatine salads you can make ahead, the others you can arrange quickly just before dinner.

Be sure to take advantage of the variety in midwinter salad greens—endive, water cress, lettuce, and glossy galax leaves. For salad dressings, check the grocer's shelf or make your own.



You can save time in preparation and in serving if you arrange the individual salads on a tray, chop plate, or platter. Then let each one help himself.

New trims for one-crust pies

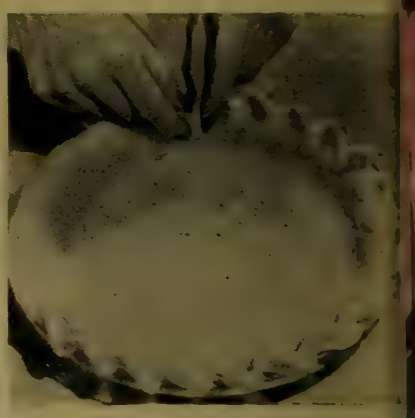
FOR a single-crust pastry recipe, see page 78.

Here's how to put the pastry in the pan: Fold rolled pastry in half, transfer it to pan, unfold, and fit it into pan. Don't stretch or pull the dough. Now . . . for the new trims. For the first two edges shown below, you trim the pastry with scissors, leaving ½ inch of pastry beyond edge of pan. Fold this extra half inch under. For Twister and Crisscross, trim edge of dough at rim of pan with a sharp knife.



Fluted

Edge of crust is double (see how to put pastry in pan, above). Use your index finger or the handle of a knife to make the indentations. The thumb and index finger of your other hand are a wedge to push against to make the scallops around the knife handle. If definite points are wanted, as in the picture, rather than rounded flutings, pinch curved edge into points.

Zigzag

Edge of crust is double (see how to put pastry in pan, above). Use index finger and thumb of both hands, as in picture, to make the fluted edge. Use a diagonal motion, bringing fingers of your left hand toward you, pushing the fingers of your right hand toward the center of the pie, or almost directly in front of your left hand.

Crust is trimmed at edge of pan. Cut rolled pastry into ¾-inch-wide strips. Moisten rim of pastry in pan. Seal one end of strip to moistened pastry. Hold in place with finger of left hand. Hold strip in right hand above rim of crust and gently twist, as shown in picture. With the finger of the left hand hold each flattened space of twist, against rim of moistened pastry and seal it there. Continue twisting strip with right hand. Don't stretch pastry while twisting it.

Crisscross

Crust is trimmed at edge of pan. Cut rolled pastry into ½-inch-wide strips. Moisten edge of pastry in pan. Interlace the two strips on edge of pie, as shown. Be sure the strips stay flat and don't twist or turn over. Handle gently, never pulling or stretching. With finger press rounded edge on both sides of crisscrossed strip tightly against moistened edge to seal.

How to put summer flavor in a winter salad —

(insist on Del Monte!)

Talk about summery-tasting fruits—rich, ripe and flavorful—and you're talking Del Monte's language! You get five of them in Del Monte Fruit Cocktail—combined in just-right proportions for flavor balance.

Ready-cut, ready-mixed, handy as can be! For all its good looks and taste, Del Monte Fruit Cocktail is quick and easy for you. And there's no such thing as a "plain" meal, with this bright flavor on the menu.

Use it for starters, salads, desserts—"as is" or in your favorite recipes. You can't miss, when you get Del Monte Brand Fruit Cocktail.

FESTIVE FRUIT SALAD

- 1 No. 2½ can Del Monte Fruit Cocktail
- 1 tbsp. sugar
- Dash of salt
- 2 tbsps. cornstarch
- 2 to 3 tsps. grated orange rind
- ¼ cup milk
- 2 tbsps. butter or margarine
- 4 unpeeled red apples
- Salad greens

Drain 1 cup syrup from fruit cocktail into saucepan; set fruit cocktail in refrigerator to chill. Mix sugar, salt, cornstarch, orange rind and milk; add to syrup in saucepan. Stirring constantly, bring mixture to boiling point and continue to cook 5 min. Beat in butter; cool. Cut 6 wedges from 1 apple; save for basket "handles." Halve other 3 apples, core them; then hollow out to within ½ inch of the peel. Brush "baskets" and "handles" with lemon juice and set aside; chop the rest of the apple and beat it into the dressing. Fill baskets with dressing, press in apple wedges (and halved orange slices, if desired) as shown. Arrange with chilled Del Monte Fruit Cocktail on salad greens. Serves 6. (You can omit the apples from both salad and dressing. The salad will be just as festive, because the fruit cocktail is Del Monte.)

CHOCOLATE CREAM CHEESE FROSTING

1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese
2 tablespoons milk
2 cups sifted confectioners' sugar
2 squares Baker's Unsweetened Chocolate, melted
Dash of salt

Soften cream cheese with milk. Add sugar, 1 cup at a time, blending after each addition. Add chocolate and salt and beat until smooth. (Add more milk, if necessary, for a spreading consistency.) Makes 1¼ cups frosting, or enough to cover tops of two 8- or 9-inch layers, or top and sides of an 8 x 8 x 2-inch cake, or about 2 dozen cupcakes. Double the recipe to cover tops and sides of two 10-inch layers.

Save money on meat

Spanish Pork Steak

A meal you can fix in skillet, Dutch oven, or casserole—

- ¾ cup rice
- 6 pork shoulder steaks
- 1 teaspoon fat
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- 1 large green pepper
- ½ cup minced onion
- 1 No. 2 can (2½ cups) tomatoes

Wash rice; cover with water and let stand one-half hour. Brown pork steaks in hot fat; season. Cut 6 ¼-inch slices from green pepper and place one slice on each steak; dice remaining pepper and sprinkle over meat, then sprinkle minced onion over meat. Fill pepper rings with rice (place remaining rice around meat). Pour over tomatoes; cover tightly and cook until rice is tender, about 30 minutes. Baste occasionally. Serves 6.

Mocha Chiffon Cake

Light feathery cocoa cake—with a hint of coffee flavor—

- ⅜ cup boiling water
- ¼ cup cocoa
- ⅞ cup cake flour
- ⅞ cup sugar
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1½ teaspoons baking powder
- ¼ cup cooking oil
- 4 unbeaten egg yolks
- ½ teaspoon vanilla
- ⅛ teaspoon red food coloring, if desired
- ½ cup stiff-beaten egg whites (4)
- ¼ teaspoon cream of tartar

Combine boiling water and cocoa; stir till smooth. Sift together flour, sugar, salt, and baking powder into bowl. Make a well in dry ingredients; add in order cooking oil, egg yolks, cooled cocoa mixture, vanilla, and red food coloring. Beat until satin smooth. Whip egg whites with cream of tartar till whites form very stiff peaks. Fold egg-yolk mixture gradually into egg whites. Bake in ungreased 8-inch square pan in a moderate oven (350°) 30 to 35 minutes. Invert pan to cool. Frost with Mocha Chocolate Frosting: Combine 6 tablespoons cocoa and 6 tablespoons hot coffee; add 6 tablespoons butter or fortified margarine and 1 teaspoon vanilla; beat till smooth. Add 3 cups confectioners' sugar gradually; beat.

Chili Con Carne With Corn-Bread Biscuits

Biscuits are baked separately, served on hot chili—

- 1 large onion, sliced
- 1 green pepper, chopped
- 1 pound ground beef
- 3 tablespoons fat
- 1 No. 2½ can (3½ cups) tomatoes
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ⅛ teaspoon paprika
- ⅛ teaspoon cayenne pepper
- 3 whole cloves
- 1 bay leaf
- 1 to 2 tablespoons chili powder
- 1 No. 2 can (2½ cups) kidney beans

Cook onion, pepper, and meat in hot fat until onion is golden. Add tomatoes and seasonings. Simmer 2 hours. Add beans; heat thoroly.

Corn-Bread Biscuits: Sift together ½ cup enriched flour, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon baking powder, and ½ teaspoon soda. Stir in ¾ cup yellow corn meal. Cut in 2 tablespoons shortening. Add 1 well-beaten egg and ⅔ cup milk. Mix just until flour is moistened. Drop from spoon onto greased baking sheet. Bake in hot oven (425°) until golden. Serve on hot Chili Con Carne. Serves 6.

Upside-Down Ham Loaf

You put brown sugar and crushed pineapple in the bottom of the baking pan—

- ⅓ cup light brown sugar
- 1 cup drained crushed pineapple
- 1 pound ground smoked ham or shoulder
- 1 pound ground pork
- 1 cup dry bread crumbs
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 2 beaten eggs
- 1 cup milk

Sprinkle sugar over bottom of greased 5½- by 10½-inch loaf pan. Cover with crushed pineapple. Combine remaining ingredients. Mix thoroly. Pack in pan. Bake in moderate oven (375°) 1¼ hours. Turn upside down on platter. Top with maraschino cherry flowers. Serve with hot buttered green beans. Garnish with celery leaves. Serves 8.

Glazed Parsnips

They bake in the oven 20 minutes—

- 12 medium parsnips, cut in half lengthwise
- 2 tablespoons water
- ½ cup brown sugar
- ¼ cup butter or fortified margarine

Cook parsnips in small amount of boiling, salted water, until tender. Drain. Combine remaining ingredients; heat to boiling and stir until sugar dissolves. Arrange parsnips in shallow baking dish; pour over syrup. Bake in moderately hot oven (375°) 20 minutes. Serves 6.

Pumpkin-Nut Pie

Dark corn syrup accounts for its good flavor and texture—

- ⅓ cup brown sugar
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon ginger
- ½ teaspoon cinnamon
- ¼ teaspoon nutmeg
- ¼ teaspoon cloves
- 1½ cups cooked pumpkin
- 3 slightly beaten eggs
- ½ cup dark corn syrup
- ¾ cup evaporated milk
- ¾ cup milk, scalded
- ½ recipe Plain Pastry
- ½ cup chopped California walnuts

Combine sugar, salt, spices, pumpkin, eggs, syrup, and evaporated milk. Gradually add hot milk, stirring constantly. Pour into main dishes

9-inch pastry-lined piepan. Sprinkle with chopped walnuts. Bake in hot oven (450°) 10 minutes, then in moderate oven (325°) 40 minutes, or until a knife inserted 1 inch from center comes out clean; sprinkle nuts over top of pie about 10 minutes before it is done.

Veal Stew With Buttered Noodles

Onions, celery, and peas are the vegetables in the stew—

- 2 pounds veal shoulder, cut in 1-inch pieces
- 3 tablespoons enriched flour
- 2½ teaspoons salt
- 2 tablespoons fat
- 3 cups cold water
- 1 cup celery sticks, 2 to 3 inches long
- 6 to 8 small white onions
- 2 cups cooked peas
- 2 cups noodles

Coat veal with mixture of flour, salt, and pepper; brown in hot fat in heavy skillet. Add water; cover and reduce heat. Simmer about 1¼ hours. Add celery and onions and continue cooking until tender, about 20 minutes. Add peas and heat thoroly. Thicken liquid for gravy. Season to taste. Serve with noodles. Cook noodles in boiling, salted water until tender. Drain. Sprinkle with paprika to serve. Serves 6. Note: If you like a brown gravy add 2 to 3 teaspoons kitchen bouquet.

Caramel-Coconut Custard

Flavor is burnt sugar—

- ½ cup sugar
- 3 cups milk, scalded
- 4 slightly beaten eggs
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- ¼ cup shredded coconut

Melt ¼ cup sugar in skillet until caramelized, stirring constantly. Gradually add hot milk to syrup, stirring constantly. Combine eggs, salt, vanilla, and remaining ¼ cup sugar. Slowly add caramel mixture. Pour into custard cups; sprinkle with coconut. Bake in shallow pan—1 inch hot water surrounding in moderate oven (325°) 30 to 40 minutes or until mixture doesn't adhere to knife. Serves 6.

"There now, wasn't that easy?"

Orange Rolls

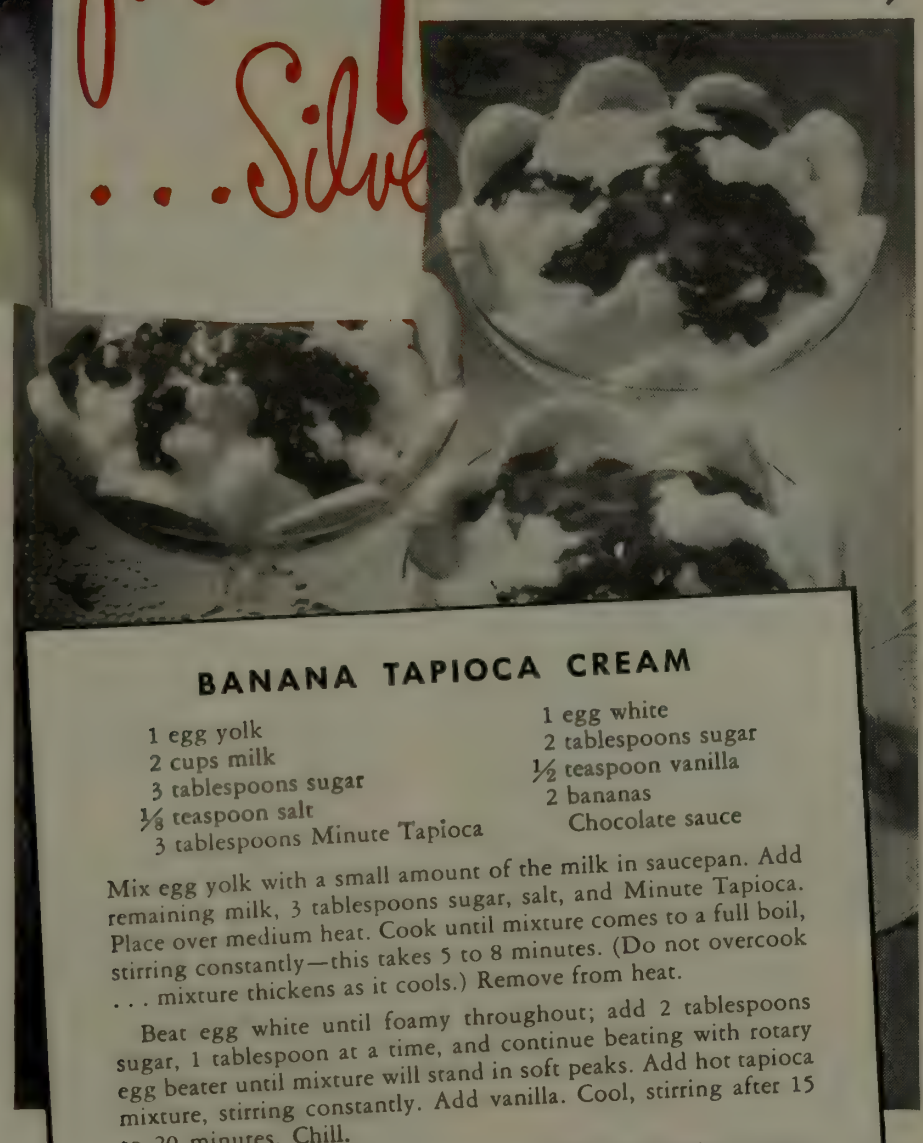
Make like cinnamon rolls—the filling is butter, sugar, and orange peel—

- ¾ cup milk, scalded
- ¼ cup shortening
- ⅓ cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 cake fresh or 1 package granular yeast
- 2 beaten eggs
- ¼ cup orange juice
- ½ cup candied orange peel
- 4 to 4½ cups enriched flour
- ½ cup butter or fortified margarine
- ¾ cup sugar
- 3 teaspoons grated orange peel

Combine milk, shortening, sugar, and salt; cool to lukewarm. Add crumbled yeast and stir well. Add eggs, orange juice and candied orange peel, and one-half flour; beat till smooth. Add remaining flour gradually; mix well. Place dough in greased bowl. Cover and let rise till double. Divide dough in half; roll each half into a rectangle 8 by 18 inches. Spread with softened butter or fortified margarine; sprinkle with sugar and grated orange peel. Roll and cut in 1½-inch slices. Place cut side down in greased baking pan; cover and let rise till double. Bake in moderately hot oven (375°) about 25 minutes. Makes about 2 dozen rolls.

Braised Ox Joints

Get out your stew kettle for a savory meat treat—



- 1 2-pound oxtail, cut in 2-inch lengths
- 2 tablespoons fat
- 1 cup minced onion
- 1 clove garlic, mashed
- 2 cups hot water
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon celery salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 1 bay leaf

Brown oxtail in hot fat. Add onion and garlic and cook until golden. Add remaining ingredients; heat to boiling. Simmer until meat is tender, 3½ to 4 hours. Add water as needed. Remove meat and thicken liquid for gravy. To thicken: Mix 2 tablespoons enriched flour and 2 tablespoons cold water for each cup of liquid. Stir into liquid. Cook 1 minute or until thickened, stirring constantly. Serves 5 to 6.

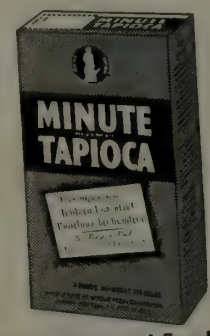
IOCA—GENUINE MINUTE TAPIOCA)

BANANA TAPIOCA CREAM

- 1 egg yolk
- 2 cups milk
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- 3 tablespoons Minute Tapioca
- 1 egg white
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- ½ teaspoon vanilla
- 2 bananas
- Chocolate sauce



Mix egg yolk with a small amount of the milk in saucepan. Add remaining milk, 3 tablespoons sugar, salt, and Minute Tapioca. Place over medium heat. Cook until mixture comes to a full boil, stirring constantly—this takes 5 to 8 minutes. (Do not overcook . . . mixture thickens as it cools.) Remove from heat.

Beat egg white until foamy throughout; add 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 tablespoon at a time, and continue beating with rotary egg beater until mixture will stand in soft peaks. Add hot tapioca mixture, stirring constantly. Add vanilla. Cool, stirring after 15 to 20 minutes. Chill.

Just before serving, dice bananas and fold into tapioca cream. Serve with a topping of chocolate sauce and additional banana slices. Makes 6 luxurious servings. So elegant to look at—such heaven to taste—you'll hardly believe it's so quick and easy to fix. Thrifty, too!

Recipes for Luscious cream pies

Cream Pie

The meringue is made in a double boiler. You make it as you would seven-minute frosting—

¼ cup cornstarch
⅔ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
2 cups milk, scalded
3 slightly beaten egg yolks
2 tablespoons butter or fortified margarine
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 cup moist, shredded coconut
1 9-inch baked pastry shell

Mix cornstarch, sugar, and salt; gradually add milk. Cook in double boiler till thick, about 10 minutes, stirring constantly. Slowly add small amount of hot mixture to egg yolks; stir into remaining hot mixture. Cook 5 minutes. Cool; add butter and vanilla. Stir in 1 cup coconut. Pour into cooled baked shell and spread with Coconut Meringue: Combine 2 egg whites (unbeaten), ½ cup sugar, ⅛ teaspoon salt, and 2 tablespoons water in double boiler. Beat with rotary egg beater till thoroly blended. Cook 1 minute over boiling water, beating constantly. Remove from hot water; beat 2 minutes longer or until mixture stands in peaks. Pile lightly on filled pie; sprinkle with ½ cup toasted shredded coconut. To toast coconut, spread on cooky sheet. Brown lightly in hot oven (400°). Watch it—should be a golden brown.

Lemon Meringue Pie

It's perfect lemon pie. Make the swirls in the meringue with the back of a teaspoon—

1 cup sugar
1¼ cups water
1 tablespoon butter or fortified margarine
¼ cup cornstarch
3 tablespoons cold water
6 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
3 egg yolks
2 tablespoons milk
1 8-inch baked pastry shell
Meringue:
3 egg whites
6 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon lemon juice

Combine sugar, water, and butter; heat until sugar dissolves. Add cornstarch blended with cold water; cook slowly until clear, about 8 minutes. Add lemon juice and peel; cook 2 minutes. Slowly add egg yolks beaten with milk; heat to boiling. Cool. Pour into cooled baked shell. Meringue: Beat egg whites till stiff but not dry; add sugar gradually; add lemon juice last. Spread meringue over cooled filling, sealing to edges of pastry. Brown in moderate oven (350°) 13 to 15 minutes.

Banana Cream Pie

Each wedge gets a fluff of whipped cream garnished with banana slices—

¼ cup cornstarch
⅔ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
2 cups milk, scalded
3 slightly beaten egg yolks
2 tablespoons butter or fortified margarine
½ teaspoon vanilla
2 or 3 sliced bananas
1 9-inch baked pastry shell

Mix cornstarch, sugar, and salt; gradually add milk. Cook in double boiler till thick, about 10 minutes, stirring constantly. Slowly add small amount of hot mixture to egg yolks; stir into remaining hot mixture. Cook 5 minutes. Cool: add butter and vanilla. Slice bananas into cooled baked shell, and pour over cooled filling. Garnish with whipped cream and additional banana slices. To flute banana, mark with tines of fork, then slice diagonally.

Plain Pastry

1 cup enriched flour
½ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup shortening
2½ to 3 tablespoons water

Sift flour and salt; cut in shortening until size of crumb resembles small peas. Gradually add water; mix until dough just holds together. Turn onto pastry cloth. Roll ⅛ inch thick. Line piepan; crimp edge. (See "New trims for one-crust pies," page 70.) Prick bottom with fork. Bake in hot oven (450°) about 15 minutes.

What kind of success do we want for our children?

the Forest Service when he was along 14, bought him books to read up on trees. Never could read much myself, but he read 'em to me. He's made good, Yank has."

The same was true for Lockwood, Cleveland, John Daniel, Lyric, and Gaybird Temple, the last two being daughters who married town boys that "done well." One son is in real estate, one in law, one in aviation. Only little Ethel Louella, the baby of the family, "couldn't make up her mind for a while," said Uncle Hades, who is not really a kinsman of mine but is everybody's uncle. Ethel Lou went off to college to study history and literature, bound to make a lady of herself. Then she came right back to the home ranch. Not until she was 25 did she marry, and then to a young man who is starting a ranch of his own. "I knowed she'd do it," her old pap laughed, proudly. "Shot bear before she was 14, rode any bucking horse I had, knows more about fancy cattle breeds than I do. A body has to do what gits in the blood."

Success, life success, stood out prominently on all these sturdy people. Hades Temple could have been a fierce and narrow-minded old hellion, his wife a pinch-faced shrew. But I have never anywhere else seen such benevolence, such assurance and poise and pride. Somewhere down their heritage these two pioneers acquired common sense.

IF YOU and I acquire it, it may come the hard way. For it takes parental strength to let a child pick his own road to success, then help him. A few of us beget prodigies—a boy or girl who, very young, shows extraordinary talent. It may be in music, in mathematics, in art, anything. Whence it comes nobody ever seems to know. And records show that the standout child is more than likely to be a standout adult, to go on up in his talent, even to the peak of genius. It takes brainy parents to watch such a growth and remain levelheaded. But most of us, perhaps fortunately, are blessed with average kids; Marys and Juniors and Busters and Janies who fill the house with noise and make us wonder whatever is to be done with them. We oldsters feel an urge to do what is right, but confusion can engulf us. Yet there are some direct actions to take, some how-to which can sustain us.

Go, for instance, to your child's school. Not for 10 minutes in the rush of morning, but for an hour at day's end. Better, take the teacher or several of his teachers to dinner, and analyze Junior from all points of view. They will have inspected him objectively, which is more than you can do. Yet they will be mildly prejudiced in his favor, enough to want to help guide him.

If you carry a chip on your shoulder, if you are steeped in fatuous pride, you may be indignant at first, or hurt. It may be your Junior's inalienable right to be president someday, but the poor kid may, alas, be entirely too much like you, his parent, ever to achieve that high station.

Some youngsters are just a little backward mentally, a little slower to learn. Teachers are trained to point out that fact tactfully and help you give the child an extra

There's a word for good Peanuts ...and Peanut Candy

YES, only the world's peanut experts can roast and salt peanuts the way PLANTERS do. And only PLANTERS can make those big Jumbo Blocks taste so good.

You'll love those big, Virginia peanuts, roasted and salted to crisp perfection. In the cellophane bag, they're famous as America's Nickel Lunch. More energy than in meat, fish or eggs.

And PLANTERS famous Jumbo Block is pure peanut candy at its very best. They're both only 5¢ each —both Planterrific!

These PLANTERS products are also made in Toronto, and sold everywhere in Canada.

How to bake apples so they don't crack

Peel a one-inch band along the apple's equator—that's the secret. Stuff centers with brown sugar and raisins. Add a little water to pan. Bake in moderately hot oven (375°) about 45 minutes. Baste apples frequently or cover the pan.

Pork Chop Dinner

4 pork chops, 1¾ inches thick
½ cup enriched flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon paprika
1 tablespoon fat
½ cup water
2 medium sweet potatoes, cut in half
4 medium apples cored

Dredge chops in mixture of flour, salt, paprika. Preheat pressure saucepan and brown chops on both sides in hot fat. Add water. Adjust cover; exhaust air from cooker. Cook at 15 pounds pressure 10 minutes. Reduce pressure rapidly. Open cooker and place potatoes on chops. Prick skins of apples and place them in cooker. Adjust cover; exhaust air and cook at 15 pounds pressure 5 minutes. Reduce pressure rapidly. Serves 4.

Pot Roast and Vegetables

1 tablespoon fat
3 to 4 pounds beef chuck or rump pot roast
Salt and pepper
½ cup water
4 to 6 small potatoes
4 to 6 medium onions
4 to 6 medium carrots

Heat pressure pan; add fat. Brown roast on all sides. Season. Add water. Adjust cover; exhaust air from cooker. Cook at 15 pounds pressure 30 to 35 minutes. Let pressure return to normal. Open cooker. Place vegetables on top. Season. Adjust cover; exhaust air from cooker. Cook at 15 pounds pressure 10 minutes. Reduce pressure rapidly. Serves 4 to 6.

20-Minute Italian Spaghetti

2 tablespoons salad oil
1 pound ground beef
4 or 5 medium onions, sliced
3 or 4 cloves garlic, chopped
1 8-ounce can tomato sauce
2 6-ounce cans tomato paste
½ teaspoon red pepper
1 tablespoon chili powder
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 cups water

Combine all ingredients in pressure pan. Adjust cover. Exhaust air from cooker. Cook at 15 pounds pressure—20 minutes. Reduce pressure quickly. Serve over cooked spaghetti (1 8-ounce package long spaghetti). Top with Parmesan cheese. Serves 6.

Resolutions

What a steam iron can do for you

How to use a steam iron

You get the best results with a steam iron if you move it in long, slow, even strokes. By using this ironing technique, you allow the steam to penetrate the fabric evenly so that wrinkles are removed the first time the iron is run over a section of the garment. This saves the time usually spent going over the same part of the material more than once.

How to fill

The method of filling steam irons with water varies with the make of iron. In this model, you pour water thru an opening located near the front of the handle. It is best to use soft or distilled water in steam irons since hard water contains corroding minerals which may clog the steam valves. Consult manufacturer's recommendations before using iron.

Filler opening in this steam iron is located in the main body of the iron. A funnel makes filling easier. Most new steam irons hold at least 1 cup water—enough for about 30 minutes of ironing or pressing. By measuring the full amount of water which your steam iron will hold, you get maximum steaming time from it and reduce the number of refills.

The steam iron illustrated in the two photographs above has a separate steam attachment. You snap this attachment on to the dry iron for steam ironing. When you've finished, just remove the attachment and put it away. The lip around the filler opening makes it easy to fill. Close water compartment with screw cap, lock the iron in place, and you're all ready to go. Most of the other types of steam irons which have built-in water tanks can be used with equal ease for dry ironing. It's simply a matter of emptying the water remaining in the tank or flipping a switch to turn off the steam.

In the dining area we use simple furnishings to give the room a restful look. It is furnished with pine furniture slipcovered with the same drapery material used for a slipcover and curtain in the living area. We decorated the room as a unit

Cooking area is walled off with a physical barrier that makes the kitchen keep its place. The partition, with shelves in the end for table linens, glass, and silver, can be removed whenever we rearrange the room. Sansevieria in plant boxes requires little care, and helps screen the area. Our sleeping area is in a separate room

How to get more living from one room

By Robert Cottington

GETTING more living out of one room is often a matter of determining what you want the room to do and budgeting an area to each activity. But the problem is how to do that without sacrificing the over-all appearance of the room. We have found that you can combine living, eating, and cooking in one room and do it with comfort and dignity if you do three things:

▸ Separate the room into living, eating, and cooking areas and keep them separate, but decorate all three areas the same way.

▸ Put a physical barrier between the living and kitchen sections. Unless there is a barrier the kitchen equipment will loom out at you.

The photographs show how we are using these principles to get more living from one room that is only 13 by 20 feet in size.

Photographs: Suter, Hedrich-Blessing

Room, 13 by 20, is separated into areas for different purposes. Our dining space (right) is out of living area. Kitchen (left) is well screened This is a behind-the-scenes view you don't get from the dining area. To give all the areas one mellow background I paneled the walls, and finished the paneling in a driftwood color. You'll find it helpful to have a center of interest around which to group your living area—a large window, a fireplace, a radio-phonograph, something to build around We built a stone fireplace where there had been a small window, and used a raised hearth that doesn't take floor space

at your service

THIS column is devoted each month to answering your questions about the homemaking problems which at some time face every family. The responses below are taken direct from the pages of Better Homes & Gardens books.

Q We're all ready to plan a new color scheme for our home. What is the first step?

A Every color scheme is built on one backbone color. Your first step is to choose this color. Before you do, consider two things: (1) What color do you like and feel at home with? If you choose colors you all like, your scheme will soothe the family temperament. (2) What direction does your room face? If your room faces north or east, make your backbone color a warm one. If south or west, you'll be more comfortable with a cooler basic color. (From the Better Homes & Gardens Home Furnishings Ideas book.)

Q Is there anything we can do to keep our baby from spitting up after a feeding?

A Spitting up may be due to overfeeding. Try giving a little less milk.

If baby's head is raised a little by slipping a small pillow under the mattress, he'll probably spit up less in bed. The condition usually stops when a baby begins taking solid food. Repeated or constant vomiting should be investigated. (From the Better Homes & Gardens Baby Book.)

Q Can all-purpose flour be used satisfactorily for cake baking?

A Cake flour has a more tender gluten and is best for delicate cakes made with shortening and for angel and sponge cakes. General-purpose flour may be substituted in some recipes, but the texture will not be as fine. (From the Better Homes & Gardens Cook Book.)

THE books from which these answers are taken are published by Better Homes & Gardens. They are an extension of the editorial service Better Homes & Gardens offers.

You can buy them at newsstands, infants' wear, book, and department stores everywhere. Or send your order direct to Better Homes & Gardens, 8301 Meredith Building, Des Moines 3, Iowa.

. . . Frigidaire's 10-year Protection Plan will still be guarding this water heater!

Yes, a special Frigidaire Protection Plan guards the new Frigidaire Electric Water Heaters for 10 full years—longer than this girl will need to grow from hair-bows to best beaux. And these dependable water heaters are built to last for many years beyond that!

A wonder-working magnesium rod is the secret of these added years of usefulness. Whether the water where you live is hard, soft or in-between, this rod diverts corrosive elements from tank walls to itself, thus checking "pitting," rust and "red water."

What's more, the completely immersed Radiantube Heating Unit is most economical—it delivers all its heat right into the water. There's no flame to tend, no soot to clean. You needn't so much as look at your Frigidaire Water Heater for months on end!

Pineapple-Peach Sandwich. Spread a layer of tart crabapple or currant jelly between a pineapple slice and peach half, placed cut side up. The fluffy top is cream cheese whipped with mayonnaise

Cranberry Squares. Try this new variation of your old favorite—cranberries. Recipe is at the right. Salad is cherry-flavored gelatine, cranberries, pineapple, orange, celery, walnuts. Garnish with endive

Black Cherry Salad. Big Bing cherries, pecans, and stuffed olives are molded in orange-flavored gelatine. It's a salad that's unusual, and delicious. Recipe at right. Snip shiny leaves from your Christmas greens

Cinnamon Stars

6 apples
½ cup red cinnamon candies
¼ cup sugar
2 cups water

Pare and core apples. Cook candies and sugar in water until dissolved; add whole apples and cook slowly until transparent but not soft. Chill. Cut apple in sixths to within ½ inch of bottom. Combine cream cheese with chopped California walnuts and celery, and add enough mayonnaise to moisten. Top with chopped nuts.

Tangy Fruit-Cocktail Ring

Soften 1 tablespoon (1 envelope) unflavored gelatine in 2 tablespoons water. Drain a No. 2 can (2½ cups) fruit cocktail. Heat syrup to boiling; pour over gelatine and stir until dissolved. Cool. Add 1 cup ginger ale. Chill until partially set. Add drained fruit cocktail. Pour into oiled individual ring molds and chill until firm. Serves 6 to 8.

Cranberry Squares

1 package cherry-flavored gelatine
1 cup hot water
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup pineapple syrup
1 cup ground raw cranberries
1 orange, ground
1 cup drained, crushed pineapple
1 cup chopped celery
½ cup chopped California walnuts

Dissolve gelatine in hot water. Add sugar, lemon juice, and pineapple syrup. Stir to dissolve. Chill until partially set. Add remaining ingredients. Chill in oiled individual molds as shown at left, or in shallow pan. Serve squares on lettuce; pass mayonnaise. Serves 8.

Black Cherry Salad

1 No. 2½ can (3½ cups) pitted Bing cherries
⅓ cup lemon juice
1 package orange-flavored gelatine
¾ cup chopped pecans
1 3-ounce bottle stuffed olives, sliced

Drain cherries; add water to cherry syrup and lemon juice to make 1¾ cups liquid. Heat; pour over gelatine and stir until dissolved. Chill until partially set; add cherries, nuts, and olives. Pour into individual molds or shallow pans; chill until firm. Serve on lettuce with mayonnaise or salad dressing. Serves 6 to 8.

Fruit-Salad Mayonnaise

½ cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons lemon juice
¼ cup confectioners' sugar
½ cup heavy cream, whipped

Combine mayonnaise, lemon juice, and sifted sugar. Fold in whipped cream. Serve at once. Makes about 1½ cups.

Lamb Stew — Hunt Style

2 lbs. lamb shanks, cut in small pieces
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. chili powder, if desired
2 cans Hunt's Tomato Sauce
2 cups water
½ tsp. salt
4 carrots cut in pieces
½ lb. string beans, cut in pieces
2 tbsp. flour
⅛ tsp. pepper
1 bay leaf
8 small onions
Mashed potatoes

Wipe meat with damp cloth. Mix flour, salt, chili powder, and pepper. Roll meat in seasoned flour. Brown on both sides in fat. Drain off excess fat. Then add that rich, kettle-simmered Hunt's Tomato Sauce — and the water, bay leaf, and salt. Simmer for 1¼ hours or until meat is tender. Add vegetables and cook for 35 minutes more or until tender. Pour mixture into greased casserole. Place potatoes around outside rim. Bake in 375°F. oven 15 minutes, or until potatoes are lightly browned. Makes 4 generous servings. Hunt's is the quality tomato sauce for a few cents a can!

At rear of the house, gravel covers children's play space and drying yard. Path leads to compact flower garden and living terrace. Windows consist only of frame and one pane of glass. Eaves cast broad shadows to Adele Faulkner, A.I.D., the problem of interior decoration.

The flat, 50-foot lot faces east. As a buffer against street noise, garage and entrance are close to the street, and linked by a path of concrete blocks. To avoid the forbidding appearance of a windowless front exterior, the entrance porch was made as inviting as possible.

Outside space is divided into three areas: driveway and court, brick terrace and garden outside the living area, and a fenced-in play area and laundry yard. These last two areas are private and secluded not only from the street but from each other.

Only nursery and kitchen are on the north. All other rooms face south to get full benefit of sun and breeze. The high ceiling in the living-dining area runs up from south to north, with transom windows high on both walls for ventilation. A wide cantilevered lighting trough runs the full length of the north wall, helping to conceal these windows and to provide soft, indirect lighting.

MAKING a jog in the glass wall in the dining area put the terrace door on the west, leaving an unbroken line of glass on the south. The kitchen door is a redwood slab. A sliding door isolates the bedroom wing from the living room.

Use of proper color both inside and out is important in making the interior and exterior of a house flow together. Because of the sunny exposure, a rich gray-brown was chosen as background color in the living area, slightly darker than the redwood ceiling and trim. As Mrs. Eisenbach likes green, it was made the basic color on furnishings—used plain as covering for two lounges, and picked up in a bold South African motif fabric on two chairs. Lounge pillows repeat the flowered pattern.

A black lacquered coffee table and touches of pink, gray, lime, and white contrast with the oatmeal-color rugs and the dark brown background. The lamp is a wallpaper roller with an antique gold drum shade. Around the fireplace green couches stand out from the wood and brick. The coffee table is an old-fashioned round table, cut down.

DRAPERIES for south wall are unlined white casement cloth in a Shantung weave—practical as well as an effective contrast between the wood inside and the green outside. And there is no problem of fading to worry about.

Tho each room has distinctive touches and color accents all its own, the gray-brown and green of the living-dining area are carried thru the bedrooms to give a sense of continuity when you look from one room to another. This flow of color furthers the 'indoor-outdoor relationship, and makes the house appear larger than it actually is.

Tho house turns its back on the street, its entrance porch is inviting. Light for porch comes from spotlight recessed in ceiling, while spotlights in bottom of hanging ivy box illuminate color in the planting box push. Moreover, it is heartening to know that the backward boy or girl frequently responds to the extra help so beautifully that he outstrips the smart one. It is statistically true that the dull youth, who was given the extra push, becomes the adult success, the boss who hires the one-time brilliant show-offs of the classroom. Because the dull one usually isn't truly dull, but is just shy, retiring, quiet by nature. Such a person can become a rock of greatness. Usually he triumphs by sheer persistence—the greatest gift any person can have, and which parents can help him develop.

What kind of success do we

"Nothing in the world can take the place of persistence. Talent will not—nothing is more common than unsuccessful men with talent. Genius will not—unrewarded genius is almost a proverb. Education will not—the world is full of educated derelicts. Persistence and determination alone are omnipotent."

Former President Calvin Coolidge said that years ago, and it is among the most profound utterances ever made by an American.

For older children some good work is being done now in vocational guidance. Schools and other agencies have so-called aptitude tests, an outgrowth in part of army experiments. But do not lean heavily on these outside-the-home helps. The best that vocational guidance can possibly do is to lay before your child some of the good and bad in the respective occupations. The best that an aptitude test can do is to catalog what the child has already achieved, then draw some generalized recommendations for his future.

"But I don't know how!" you cry. "I have had no training for parenthood."

Whoever has? It may be a thousand years before we reduce parenthood training to a science. And even then—if I judge my unpredictable daughters rightly—human nature will pop up at every hand to confound the scientists. Yet somehow or other I wouldn't have it different. I like human nature, as is. All in all, parenthood is the greatest adventure on earth. We are weaklings if we do not rise to it. The very least you can do, then, is to proceed by trial and error.

Another direct and reassuring action for you to take is recommended by every child-training expert in the field. It is—and this may surprise you—that you accompany your child to church school and worship.

THE truly successful men and women I know who seem to glow with a genuine happiness and who do the least bluffing, have some sort of religious philosophy.

Whenever we look for precedents to show our children, we invariably point out that a poverty-stricken lad like Lincoln can and did rise to the presidency. We realize that he is the very essence of the American legend, and of the good life everywhere. Sober analysis shows that he knew two things: hard work, and love.

Investigation of our adult failures today re-emphasizes the pricelessness of that Lincoln pattern; it is not old-fashioned; it is timeless, inescapable. In our courts, in our penitentiaries, men sob bitterly that they knew no love as children. It is not easy to supply a constant love for our own; life is too demanding, too harassing. Only last week in a moment of masculine meanness I bawled out my family about 8 p.m. But within the hour baby Gail in pajamas edged open the door of my study cautiously and poked a nose in. "Mother says you still love us anyway, Daddy," said she. "Do you?"

LOVE for the child, then, must be demonstrated day by day, so that awareness of it can be sustaining. Yet love is never synonymous with gushing endearments and pampering. I think it is more nearly synonymous with the demand for steady, reasonable work—especially a sharing of the home duties. "I never knew what work meant," said a man of 35 in a courtroom of our city recently. "I grew up thinking it was smart to get by without working. And now I have come to this." In his case "this" was a 10-year stretch in prison. In many another case it is simply that which we call failure: inadequacy, frustration, inability—as the English say—to cope.

The time comes in almost every adult life when we have to knuckle down for days or months or years and work like the deuce, with our hands or with our minds, or both. We can do that—and like it—if we have been conditioned for it as children, if the thought of it has been undergirded with love. Most brilliant facet on the American gem is that of a young man working hard for wife and babies when he could, like the male animals, merely take the pleasure of mating then go his own lordly way. If you and your children analyze success together, all will discover that it comes most often during home-making, where years of challenging work are done. And we make two homes in our lives: one in which we are reared, and one in which we do the rearing.

want for our children?

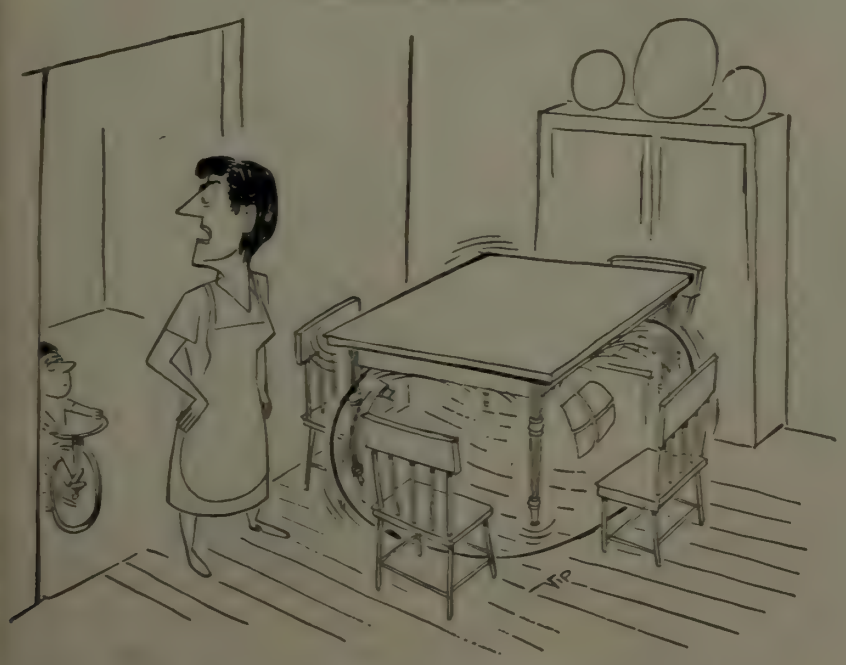
OUR youngsters see on every hand the lure of easy luxury, the featherbedding in some trade unions, the philosophy which says get all you can for as little as you can. We must counteract that with a respect for sacred time. Sacred time—I quote The Reverend Dewey Temple here—is the 8 to 12 hours a day during which you earn your right to be on earth at all. You need not do money-earning work, if you need no more money; but it had better be unselfish occupation or it will not suffice at all. "Success," we must teach our youngsters, can come only with honor; but it can be dollar-a-year service in the high-up halls of government, or it can be wrapping bandages for the Red Cross. Whenever the individual, child or adult, discovers the incomparable satisfaction of regular, honest endeavor—there lies the dawning of achievement.



But when shall we start applying that doctrine of work? How much actual physical and/or mental labor, how much of responsibility, shall we saddle onto a 6-year-old, a 12-year-old, a college youth?

I hold that it had better begin by age 6. Truth is, the 4-year-old can help pick up the scattered toys. An hour a day, plus school, seems to me fair enough for a child of 12, and two to four hours during vacation. The rule of course must be flexible, and certainly the value of play must not be forgotten.

If you have servants, "made work" may be necessary. I know that the wealthy Wilsons in our city require their daughters to do some cooking, meal-planning, bed-making, ironing, cleaning. I remember, too, how John C. Lincoln's son Joe got a success lesson. This Mr. Lincoln—no kin to Abe, tho he might well be—is one of America's wealthiest men: he founded the great Lincoln Electric Company in Cleveland, owns vast properties there and elsewhere. But when little Joe in high school wanted $15 for a typewriter, Dad said, "Yes, a student needs a typewriter nowadays, son. But go out somewhere and earn the money for it, on your own." Joe did.

PRIDE in keeping a lawn mowed can be instilled in a boy, all our cartoonists to the contrary notwithstanding. The sheer satisfaction of creative endeavor in making rather than buying a dress can be taught a girl even tho Mom be a duchess. Daily responsibility, started early and gradually increased, is the most practical training routine. But it must be built thru comradeship, not commands.

In the end we may not guide our child to fame and riches, but he will invariably reach some high station of happiness if we but give him a parental star to steer by. We give him the star by working with rather than at him. Yes, surely, I, too, despair sometimes of raising a child by the book. Yet we must have some sort of thought-out ideals; and while we cannot always achieve them, we are failures only if we do not eternally try.

We furnish the most popular Five Star

By Lenore Kent Kiefer

WHEN The Washington Post asked the Hecht Company of Washington, D. C., to furnish a model home for the Post's program dedicated to progress in home construction and better furnishings, the Hecht Company chose Five Star Home No. 1602. It is the home architects Atlee B. and Robert M. Ayres of San Antonio, Texas, designed for the pocketbook as well as the everyday space needs of an American family.

Since the war, we have received more orders for plans of this home than any other. The photographs show how we decorated and furnished the most popular of Five Stars.

Photographs: Wm Howland

For the living-dining room we planned an ideal grouping of furniture around the living end of the room, providing a line of division between the living end and the dining end. For the mellow wood of the Traditional furniture, we chose deep green paint for the walls and woodwork. Red sofa, fawn carpet accent color motif

Guest room or den is furnished for day-to-day living. Sturdy felt cover of studio couch can stand hard use by youngsters. Felt makes a cornice that is easily cleaned. Guest room can be used when one generation of the family wishes to entertain apart from the other

Kitchen cupboards provide ample storage space; electrical equipment—range, refrigerator, dishwasher, and garbage disposal unit—lightens homemaker's job. Kitchen has plastic wallpaper with strawberries and green leaves on white ground

Dining end of the living room gets console table that can be expanded by means of two additional leaves. Butler's table is a practical help. It's handy for extra dinner dishes or buffet style

THIS home was built from Five Star Home Plan No. 1602 by Sydney Weinberg & Sons. They added air conditioning, telephone jacks—so you can use the phone in any part of the house—and a radio in every room, with a central control system. Weinberg & Sons also added a compartmented bathroom. One compartment contains a shower, tub, and washstand; the other has a toilet and lavatory.

Otherwise, this home is exactly as designed by Better Homes & Gardens for you, a home that is hard to beat for arrangement and practical home living.

One bedroom is furnished in maple for a young man. The corner alcove is made for a desk, an idea that illustrates the double use many bedrooms are suited for. Three walls are painted in beige. Plaid ceiling paper is carried down other wall behind the bed. The textured deep green curtains and bedspread give pleasing contrast with beige walls

Master bedroom is furnished in bone white French Provincial. To conserve space, a double bed is used; a chest is used instead of a dressing table. The color scheme inspired by a green-and-white floral rug: walls and woodwork pale green (to give a feeling of added size to the room); color notes are yellow-and-white-striped bedspread and valances and raspberry slipcover on the easy chair. Curtains are white dotted net

How to fasten two boards together

First of two articles:

How to use nails and screws

Next month: Simple joints, and how to use glue and metal fasteners

By Ken Murray and Bob Jones

KNOW-HOW makes any job easier, even a job as simple as driving a nail or a screw. If your handy-man skill is of the trial-and-error variety, you may be surprised how much work you can save with better techniques.

The pictures here and on following pages show 27 tricks that make working with nails and screws easier, faster, and more satisfactory. Try them the next time you fasten two boards together; you'll find they make many a handy-man job easier.

Right way to drive a nail. As shown in this stroboscopic picture, your hand should be level with the hammer head at the moment of impact. Hold the hammer near the handle's end. Swing with an easy motion, using a series of sharp taps

How not to drive a nail. If your hand is lower than the head of the hammer at the moment of impact (as in the left picture), the nail will be bent backward. If your hand is higher than the hammer head (right picture), the nail will be bent forward

Photographs: Ken Murray

How to drive a screw. Screws give a more secure fastening than nails, and are easier to remove. To drive a screw, drill a hole (1) the diameter of the screw shank thru the top board. Put the board in position, and make a starter hole (2) in the bottom board, using a small drill or brad awl. Then twist in the screw (3), making sure screwdriver fits the slot

Lubricate the way. Both screws and nails will go in more easily if you first rub them across a piece of beeswax or paraffine, or dip them in powdered graphite. Soap will do, tho it may rust the nail or screw in place, making later removal difficult. Left: a neat trick is to bore a hole in hammer handle and fill it with a stick of beeswax for use on nails

What you should know

SHEER glass curtains, flouncy sash curtains, or tailored casement curtains play an important role in giving your home a well-furnished look. Glass curtains alone will soften sunlight in a too-bright room. Curtains plus draperies give a dressy look to your rooms. Even the sheerest glass curtains make your rooms more private or screen out an ugly view.

Here, in answer to questions we constantly receive from readers, are pointers in selecting the right curtains for your home.

How long should glass curtains be?

Glass curtains should be floor-length, or sill-length, or they should reach to the bottom of your window frames. Never let them end between frame and floor. When used with floor-length side draperies, curtains may be floor-length, too.

How wide should glass curtains be?

If tied back, sheer glass curtains should be at least twice the width of the window. If crisscrossed, each panel should be twice the width. If hung straight, curtains should be 2½ to 3 times window width. Coarse, heavy curtains need not be more than twice window width even if they're hung straight.

What type of heading should be used?

Glass curtains need a heading—shirred, pleated, or gathered—to give them a finished look.

Should glass curtains be tied back or hung straight?

Tiebacks are most often used in Colonial, Early American, Eighteenth Century English, or formal Victorian rooms. For Modern rooms, and rooms in which you want a tailored look, hang glass curtains straight and full.

At what height should curtains be tied back?

Below the center line of the window is usually the best height for tiebacks; tied above the center line the curtains will make a wide window look narrower; tied far below the center line they will widen a narrow window. If the window has small panes, place tiebacks even with one of the horizontal lines of the panes, so they won't cut it up any further.

When the ruffles on tieback draperies or curtains are very wide, cut a slit so that tiebacks can be pulled thru behind the heading of the ruffle. This leaves the ruffle free rather than bunching it together.

What kind of tiebacks should be used?

Most tiebacks are made of the same material as the curtains. Many of the new curtains have convenient, sewn-in tape that gathers the curtain as it is drawn up, leaving the ruffle uncrushed. For special effects try taffeta or grosgrain bows, artificial flower bouquets, or chintz tiebacks.

Photograph: George de Gennaro

Misty glass curtains, hung straight and full, soften the gaunt lines of the woodwork. A mirror links French doors or a pair of windows. One valance over doors and mirror gives the effect of a single window about glass curtains

Maynard Parker

Staccato accents of bright-colored trim perk up three-tiered kitchen curtains. Shelves edged with matching ruffles blend in with the curtains. Ruffled valance ties the windows together. Lorenz A. Hansen, decorator

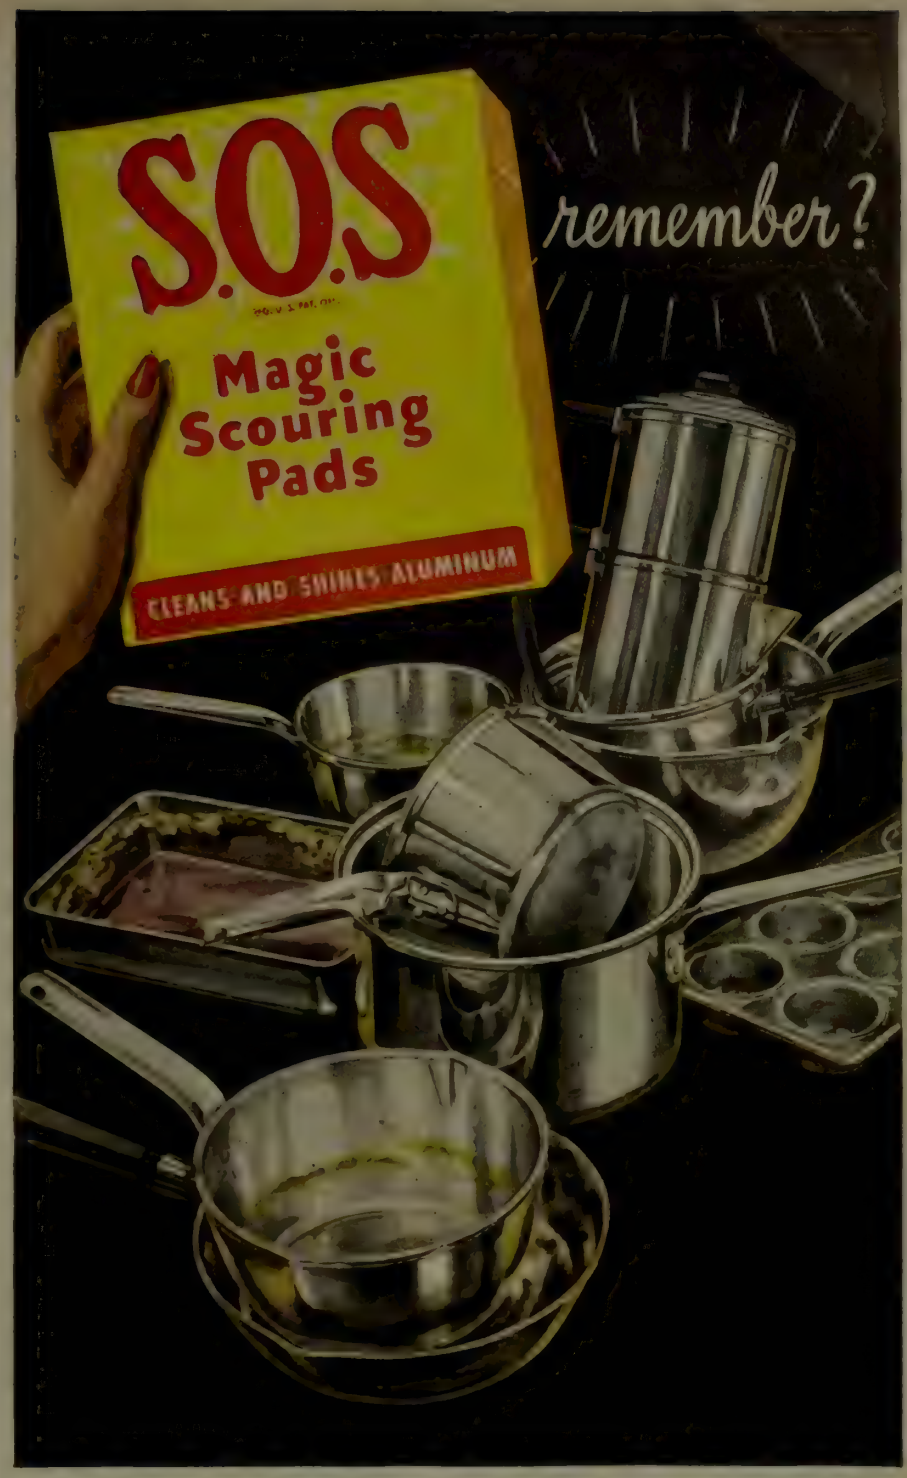
When are glass curtains correct without draperies?

Glass curtains without draperies can be used in any room where you want a light, airy, open feeling. Formal rooms, which have more than their share of rich fabrics and heavy furnishings, can often be helped by using sheer, full curtains at the windows in place of draperies. And many an extremely Modern room these days is being hung with sheer floor-length curtains of theatrical gauze, nylon, or netting in white, pastels, or deep colors.

How can you give glass curtains a finished look without draperies?

Painted or fabric-covered cornices or gathered ready-made fabric valances give glass-curtained windows a substantial, finished look. Make the gathered valances, or pad your valance, with curtain material, or with a contrasting plain or printed chintz, linen, or crash.

In an informal room, try hanging brackets filled with potted greens on each side of the curtained window. Or make a scalloped wood cornice to cover the top and sides of the window frame, and hang glass curtains inside it.



Crisscross curtains or new snap-across curtains come ready-made with finished ruffles at the top. And a swag of dark sheer material, cotton print, or chintz is always easy to use as a dress-up above plain glass curtains.

What materials are best for glass curtains?

Glass curtains are usually made of sheer fabrics in such light-reflecting tones as white, peach, yellow, or pink. Net and scrims are always good, but there are other weaves to consider, too: organdy, white and colored ninons, embroidered batiste and dimity, plain or dotted and white or colored marquisettes, sheer percales, coarse nets, theatrical gauzes. For more formal treatments, try fine organdies, silks, rayons, point d' esprit, and laces. Don't overlook nylon laces and the plain and figured spun-glass sheers which are treated to make them dustproof and moistureproof. Shop for next-to-nothing shrinkage and a permanent finish to help you in laundering.

Whatever material you choose, be sure it's in character with the room's furnishings and your drapery material. Informal chintz and linen draperies call for fluffy curtains of fine net, organdy, voile, lawn, or dotted swiss. With modern rough-textured cotton weaves, you'll want coarser nets. Damask draperies, of course, call for laces, sheer nets, silks, and nylons.

Better Homes & Gardens booklet, Well-Dressed Windows, sells for 25 cents; gives complete instructions for choosing and making curtains and draperies. Order from Better Homes & Gardens, Meredith Building, Des Moines 3, Iowa.

What you should know

DRAPERIES give you a chance to bring color—and brightness—into your rooms. If your walls and floor covering are plain, be bold with pattern in your draperies. If you already have plenty of pattern in upholstery and wallpaper, choose a plain, textured drapery that will highlight the background color of the paper.

Used with glass curtains, draperies give windows a finished look. Used without glass curtains, draperies act as a foil for showing your picture window to advantage. With a few simple hanging tricks, draperies can often change the size and shape of windows because their heavy fabric will hide the wall or window frame under them.

Here are points to consider before you invest in draperies.

How long should draperies be?

As a rule, draperies just clear the floor. For an informal, "cottage-y" effect they should come to the sill or the bottom of the window frame. Draperies long enough to pile up on the floor are "old-hat" now; besides, they're dust catchers. Drapery headings should come to the top molding of the windows.

How wide should draperies be?

Draperies should be twice as wide as the window they'll cover; any lesser width will give a skimpy look to the job. Draperies that hang on rings or traverse rods and are pulled across the window at night should be at least 2½ times window width.

What type of heading should be used?

Unless drapery headings are hidden under a cornice or valance, a tailored heading looks most finished and professional. The heading can be pinch-, cartridge-, or box-pleated. And you'll want crinoline stiffening on the backs of every drapery head. Two new types of heading material, which come in two- to five-inch widths, not only provide stiffening but also automatically form drapery tops into pinch or cartridge pleats. One of these has slits thru which the drapery rod is run, and pleats form automatically when the material is pushed together. The second type has snaps which form the pleats.

Must draperies be lined?

Linings help fabrics hang better and protect the material from dust and fading. Printed or hand-blocked linens, quality chintzes, loosely woven cotton weaves, and the like, tho, are at their loveliest with light filtering thru them. If your room has a south or east exposure, try hanging a piece of the fabric when the sun is pouring thru before you decide to leave the drapery unlined. Some weaves look sleazy and cheap with bright light behind them.

How should draperies be lined?

Lightweight cream or white sateen is standard drapery lining. If you want to use a colored lining, hold it up to the light with the drapery fabric to make sure it won't confuse the color of the drapery. If the colors conflict, the draperies must be interlined with cotton flannel.

What materials are best for draperies?

Since draperies are an integral part of your rooms, relate them—both in material and style—to your walls, rugs, and furniture. Bring fabric swatches home and try them on your windows before you decide.

For an informal Traditional room choose chintz, cretonne,

Traverse draperies across French doors pull back far enough to let you open the doors inward. Cornice over both pairs of doors and across the wall between makes a single window unit of the doors and wall about draperies

Maynard Parker

Rich folds of drapery topped with a cornice that's been covered in drapery material add dignity to a bay-window setting. Curtains under the draperies make the row of windows look like a single large window percale, or toile de Jouy. For more formal Traditional rooms use rich satins, silk brocades, damask, or moire. For Modern rooms, consider chintz, mohair, taffeta, linen, satin, plastic fabrics, raw silks, and novelty cotton. For Early American rooms and cottage settings, use small, quaint patterns in chintz, calico, or voile. Whatever material you pick, be sure it's pre-shrunk, colorfast, and sunfast.

Worried about your budget and your many windows? Buy brightly colored inexpensive material rather than an expensive fabric you'll feel obliged to keep for years. And don't overlook the new paper draperies that come in many designs for different type windows.

What colors are best for draperies?

In a very small room, use draperies in almost the same tone as the walls for a more "receding" background. If you want a large or colorful print, be sure the background matches the walls so the pattern won't jump at you.

In most average-sized or large rooms where plain draperies are used, a color picked up from the rug or the main upholstery fabric will have the best decorative effect. If you have a floral upholstery fabric, make draperies of the same floral pattern, a blending stripe, or a solid color.

When should trim be used?

Matching or contrasting heavy cotton fringe or other edge trim often adds a highly decorative note to plain draperies. Trims of this sort don't belong on figured material—they just take away from the effectiveness of the print.

Should draperies be weighted?

Weights sewn into the hems will give draperies a well-made look and help them hang straight. You can buy small weights by the yard, sewn on muslin tape, or by the dozen and baste into hems and corners.

What kind of fixtures are best?

Traverse rods are most convenient and lend the most tailored look to draperies you'll want to close at night. If there's a cornice or valance to cover the fixtures, simple brass rings and rods will do.

When draperies hang stationary, drapery pins—hooked over rods—will hold them nicely, but the pins must be set far enough down on the backs of the heading so that they'll hide the rod. To avoid a homely stretch of rod between drapery panels, use a swinging arm rod for each panel, or a stationary rod just long enough for the panel.

Bedrooms abound in storage space

The one small bedroom in original house now is a nursery for the baby, Lisa. Wall at left was marred by a useless little window, so Steges covered it with a large wardrobe and filled space under other windows with drawers for the baby's many clothes. This was Wally's first job, and he made some beginner's errors; so cost was about $75. Wall is painted green; wallpaper is used to get awning effect. Cutouts on wall are Wally's work

Bedroom the Steges added has redwood ceiling with exposed beams, concrete-block wall, wall of built-ins. Julie stores blankets in top cupboards. The built-ins also provide dressing table, and hanging space with sliding doors

Kitchen, now colorful,

BEFORE Original kitchen had, among other faults, insufficient storage space, poor light, and no work space around either the range or refrigerator. Flooring was in fair condition, but didn't fit the Steges' ideas of decorating. Steges found planning the new kitchen took almost as much time as building it

AFTER

Solid maple chopping block now is sandwiched between range and refrigerator where it's useful for preparing meats or cutting salad greens. Topmost cupboards hold least used utensils; pothooks hold favorite utensils chophouse style. Woodwork has two coats of shellac, one of light varnish has much work room

After—Kitchen has stainless steel hood over range, broom closet (right of stove) with top cupboard and bottom drawer. Wally put up steel panels himself, had hood installed. Ceiling beams cover seams in wallboard. To utility-room door Wally added catch that opens when you push on it

After—Wally built a spice rack on the back of cupboard door, above chopping block. He also arranged pull-out racks for hanging utensils in several of the cupboards, but Julie is making him take them out in favor of old-fashioned stacking

Rear of house will get a terrace

Dutch back door came from a friend's home and fits perfectly. A mason charged a staggering $1,000 for his work on the concrete-block bedroom addition at the rear (right above); that strengthened the Steges' determination to do the rest of the work on the house themselves. This spring, when they've recovered sufficiently, the Steges plan to add a dining terrace and landscape

JULIE and Wally Stege lightheartedly moved into their new home and began Operation Homesteading a week before Christmas, 1945, and came to a stop just 33 months later. Only Baby Lisa, the addition to the family, came thru with uncalloused hands. The senior members of the family added to strong backs an unquenchable enthusiasm for new adventures.

Their work on the house has taught them that they can do almost anything if they set their minds and hands to it. Julie and Wally feel they could, and would, tackle any job and somehow struggle thru it to success. The house has given them assurance in themselves.

Our own conclusion is that it takes more than high costs, strikes, and shortages to stand between people like the Steges and a home. They pick up the nearest hammer and nail and build their own.

Mrs. Stege at her front door today, watering plants in entrance patio as dog looks on. Patio wall is continuation of the new living-room wall; new front cost $450. Scallop trim and frame around front door tie new construction to old

Venetian blind hides the gas-fired heater which fits into a closet off the hall back of the kitchen. Blind was used instead of a door to save space and allow the free circulation of air required around any heating plant architectural features. Here are some of them:

Foundation is a five-inch concrete slab of the floating type (resting on the ground, not supported on the foundation walls), reinforced with a mat of three-eighths-inch steel bars. The slab is surrounded by concrete beams poured to become part of the slab.

Walls: Exterior end walls are concrete block, making a solid, load-bearing wall which strengthens the roof. Front and rear walls are brick veneer to window sills, board and batten above. Combining the two types of wall construction makes it possible to put up exterior walls, interior walls, and roof simultaneously to save time.

Roof: Almost flat. It has a deep overhang, supported by extensions of the concrete block walls, that lets in sunlight without glare, aids in winter heating, and affords protection from sudden rainstorms. The 2x8 ceiling joists also act as roof rafters, eliminating considerable material. They are covered with tongue-and-groove sheathing and a four-ply tar and gravel roof. Above that ceiling is four inches of insulation.

Heating: Location of the heating plant—in a closet off the hall in the center of the house—makes it possible for one large duct to supply the entire house.

Ventilation: Exhaust fan is installed in one corner of the house near the front door so it can pull the prevailing summer breeze thru the house. It has automatic louvers that close when the fan is off, keeping out insects and cold.

Wiring: Six electric circuits, instead of the usual two or three, using No. 10 wire in the kitchen and No. 12 elsewhere, allow sufficient electrical capacity to carry the load of any added appliances.

Plumbing: All piping is concentrated in one inner wall between the kitchen and bath. Main lines and soil pipe were laid one foot deeper than the frost line to avoid any possibility of having to dig into the concrete slab in case of frozen pipes.

These features answer your need for a good house at a reasonable price. The first two "musts," low maintenance cost and ease of maintenance, tie in together.

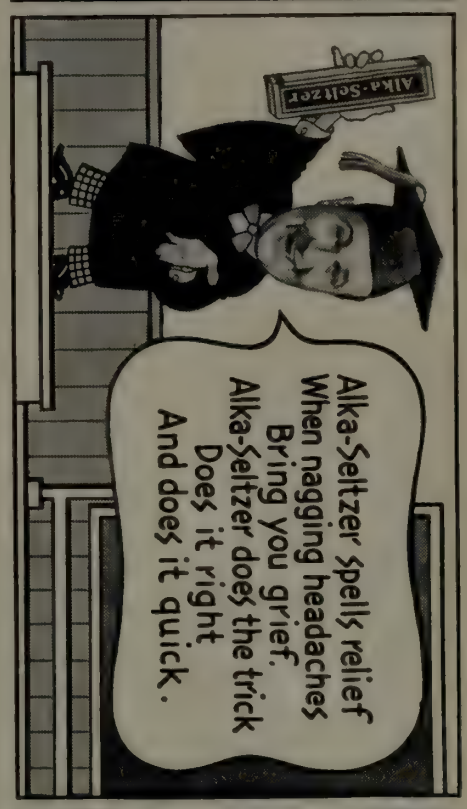
Exterior materials: The rose-hued bricks that form the lower part of the front and rear walls and the dark red pavers around the entrance door require no maintenance except an occasional mortar repair job every few years. Concrete blocks are painted a gray-green that blends well with the yellow-green of the siding. All windows are steel casements.

Interior materials: The kitchen floor is asphalt tile, bathroom floor ceramic tile, and the garage floor concrete. All other floors are designed to take carpeting tacked to one-inch plywood strips attached to concrete floors under base moldings. Doors are solid slab doors with a fir veneer. The garage door was left off entirely, but one can easily be installed if necessary.

Designing the interior to harmonize with either Traditional or Modern furnishings was accomplished by use of simple backgrounds and subdued colors. The interior architecture is Traditional held to the principles of Modern. Use of rounded baseboards and half-round moldings, for instance, reduced the Modern background to such simplicity that Traditional furniture complements it.

The basic interior colors—gray, green in varying shades, yellow, and ruby-red—give a unified spacious feeling. Since the ventilating fan cools the house, windows are not important for ventilation and can be concentrated in one wall, leaving others free for furniture.

All lighting fixtures are of the simple box type, set flush in the ceiling with plain, frosted glass panels and the molding painted to match the ceiling.



Style of architecture isn't what makes this a lot of house for the money. It's livability. Maintenance cost is practically nothing. Heating costs, thanks to the central location of the heater and a minimum of ductwork, are rock-bottom. Bands of windows let in plenty of light and air, yet leave three walls in every room free for furniture. Leaving side walls windowless affords complete privacy from neighbors; the ventilating fan takes care of cross ventilation.

All these points contribute to livability, but cleanness of lines of the exterior and thoughtfulness of planning are the basic ingredients that make this an excellent house.

Suiting the house to your way of life—"must" No. 4—is largely a matter of planning and organiza-

New plan, new equipment

They changed this kitchen to a model of efficiency and beauty. This is what can happen to a kitchen if you write the winning last line to a contest jingle

BEFORE . . .

THE Raymond Terhaars, of Mount Angel, Oregon, entered a nationwide contest—one of those in which you write the last line to a verse. The grand prize awarded by Swift and Company was a $5,000 kitchen to be installed by General Electric Company. The kitchen's plan was to be drawn by experts and executed with no fuss, muss, or bother on the part of the winner.

Mrs. Terhaar was notified two months later that she was the winner. Her turn-of-the-century kitchen would be advanced 50 years in design and equipment.

Kitchen designers, plumbers, carpenters, and electricians swarmed over the Terhaars' old kitchen. And when they left, the family had a kitchen completely new in every detail. New appliances, new cabinets, new lighting add up to one of the most fabulous kitchens in the region—see below.

How do you measure a bargain in towels?

BY price alone? Certainly not. If you're a good housekeeper and careful shopper, you know that a bargain in towels (or anything else, for that matter) depends just as much on satisfactory service and pride of ownership as on a low price tag.

Of course, you do look for savings. That's why you like to shop during January White Sales. But even in White Sales you look for quality first. You want towels you know will wear well, stay pretty . . . towels you'll be proud of for years. Chances are you look for Martex quality towels because you know you can always depend on the name Martex as your guarantee of the utmost in value—whatever grade towel you buy.

Yes, any towel with the famous Martex label has extra wear and extra service woven right into its thick, thirsty terry. And the colors stay lovely after years of wear and washing. So this January, when you shop during the White Sales be sure to ask for Martex! That's the surest way of getting a real "bargain" in towels.

You get only one chance to save ⅔ on insulation!

Make sure your new home is insulated throughout at the time it's built. You'll save ⅔! For it costs 3 times as much to insulate walls once a new home is finished.

Be sure, too, that you choose many-layer KIMSUL* insulation. You'll enjoy more comfort than you ever imagined! For KIMSUL provides lasting protection against the extremes of winter's cold and summer's heat. What's more, it pays for itself out of fuel savings. Installed in walls and ceiling of your new home, KIMSUL may save up to 44% on fuel. Installed in the attic of your present home, it may cut your fuel bill as much as ⅓.

KIMSUL is uniformly efficient – no heat-leaking thin spots, no money-wasting thick spots. Resists moisture, vermin, fungus. And it's fire-resistant through and through . . . including the exclusive PYROGARD* cover.

A better way to insulate side walls.
Builders will tell you – the correct way to insulate a wall is with air space on both sides of the insulation. That's why they recommend insulation of the blanket type. See how KIMSUL, the only many-layer stitched blanket insulation, permits scientific wall construction. KIMSUL is permanent; keeps its insulating properties for the life of your home.

It stores things where

THE kitchen now is the gathering spot for the Terhaar family—including all six children. There's less work done and more fun in the pleasant, livable kitchen—now the most popular room in the house.

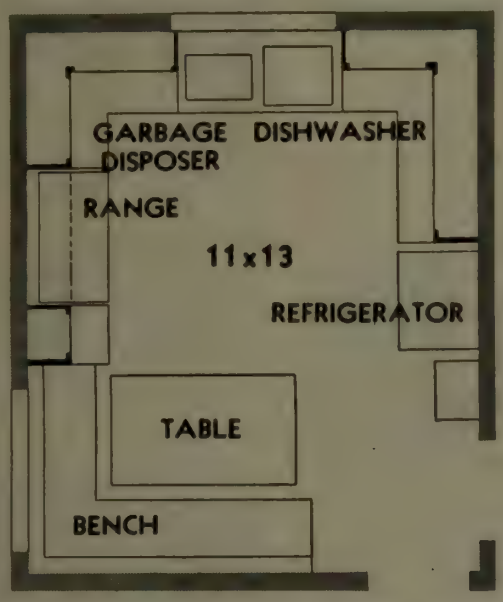
Metal cabinets lining walls provide storage for kitchen and food supplies. Storage space is planned to keep tools for each job near the job. Cabinets around range, for example, hold cooking utensils, seasonings, and serving plates.

Cleanliness is easy to maintain because of the smooth walls, ceiling, and work surfaces. Large window and excellent light save eyestrain. A ventilator over the sink draws away steam and cooking odors to keep air fresh and clear.

Here's where things are in Mrs. Terhaar's new kitchen—match the numbers to the pictures:

1. Electrical appliances and table condiments
2. Platter and plates (near range)
3. Seasonings needed at range
4. Baby food, coffee, tea, and canned goods
5. Everyday dishes (near dishwasher)
6. Range-side tools, paper napkins, and silver
7. Metal bread and cake bin (near table)
8. Pan-cover file (near range)
9. Skillets, roasting pans, and pressure saucepan
10. Paring knives, cutting board (near sink)
11. Dish towels
12. Catchall drawer
13. Dry-vegetable supply
14. Ventilator fan
15. Soffit light (over sink).

In photograph at right:



16. Tumblers and cup racks (near sink)
17. Dishes
18. Flour, sugar, spices, and extracts (mixing and baking area)
19. Storage, canned food, and staples
20. Cleaning supplies, soaps, and starch
21. Broom, vacuum cleaner, and dust mop
22. Electric mixer
23. Casseroles, baking equipment, large kettles, molds, and cooky sheets
24. Sink-side vegetable pans
25. Radio.

they are used

The plan, drawn by kitchen designers, provides for the most efficient use of time and energy. All of the Terhaars' kitchen tasks are easier. Meals that used to be prepared in hours are ready now in minutes.

Work after meals is speedy. Food waste is cleared into the garbage disposer and removed. Dishes and silverware are put in the dishwasher. The unit is turned on and the Terhaars forget about dishes until the lid jumps open automatically. Everyday dishes stay clean and dry in the washer rack until the next meal. A new automatic washer and dryer speed up Mrs. Terhaar's washday chores. They're in a room adjoining the kitchen.

New equipment makes every job easier

Before: Exposed sink plumbing, no storage at the sink. And this was Mrs. Terhaar's "view" in the old kitchen. Sink working area was small

After: New cabinet sink unit conceals plumbing and is bordered by ample storage space. Counters alongside provide uncrowded working area

Before: Mrs. Terhaar cooked daily meals for eight and did the weekly baking on this outmoded range. The oven had no automatic control

After: New electric range is clean, fast, and accurate. Automatic oven control helps Mrs. Terhaar obtain perfect pie, cake, cookies every time

Before: The single electric dangler worked overtime. It provided the only light at night. Electric appliances were plugged into the same fixture

After: Lights under cabinets and fluorescent ceiling fixture give abundant light. Appliances are plugged into electric outlets under cabinets

Before: Dishes and linens were jammed into one storage area. Doors divided working centers. This made needless steps for Mrs. Terhaar

After: Open the door of the new cabinets and a light comes on—automatically. Narrow wire cup rack built especially to fit under the dust-free wire shelf, utilizes waste space. Cups can be reached easily

After: Stair-step shelves for spices are a special feature of this wall cabinet. Mrs. Terhaar finds it handy for storing baby food as well as condiments. It's easy to read labels of cans stored in back rows

Plans and Home Plan Book

Better Homes & Gardens Five Star Home 1901, featured in this issue, is one of the series of one- to four-bedroom homes which make up the Five Star Home Plan Service. These homes, designed by America's foremost architects, range in style from Cape Cod to Contemporary, Traditional to Ranch-type. These are homes planned to give you maximum comfort, convenience, and beauty—at minimum building cost. Better Homes & Gardens Five Star service includes:

★ Designs by skilled architects

★ Detailed working drawings

★ Cost-finding materials lists

★ Complete specifications

Working Drawings are detailed architect's drawings, from which your builder or contractor will build your home. They are complete in every way. Cost is $5 per set. Included with each set of working drawings are: 1) specification form outlining the quality of materials and workmanship you'll want in order to insure sound construction; 2) contractor-owner agreement form—a suggested legal contract to assure your home will be built as specified.

Lists of Materials—priced at 10 cents—are available separately for each Five Star home. With this list, your architect, building materials dealer, or builder can compute in advance the building cost of your home in your community.

These complete home-planning aids may be purchased at firms listed above or ordered direct from Better Homes & Gardens, Des Moines 3, Iowa.

When mailing your order, be sure to specify the Five Star home number. Enclose a postal money order, bank draft, or check, payable to Better Homes & Gardens.

Home Plan Book: If you haven't selected a specific Five Star home plan as the home you want to build, Better Homes & Gardens new book, Five Star Homes, will help you make a choice. This 76-page book brings you photographs and floor plans of 66 Five Star homes. Price —50 cents. You can buy your copy at firms listed above or order direct from Better Homes & Gardens.

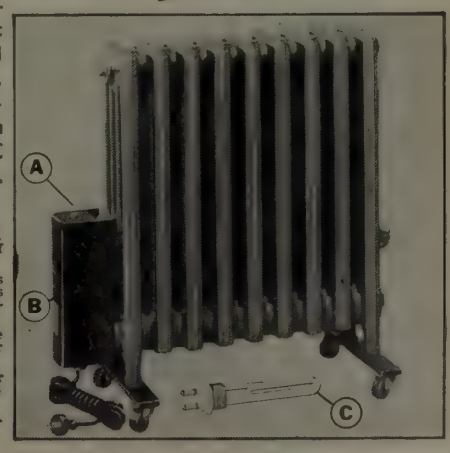
Keep Baby's Room WARM AS TOAST



...with a

BURNHAM PORTABLE ELECTRIC STEAM RADIATOR

Is your baby's room always warm enough for bathing and floor play? It can be—even on the coldest and windiest days if you have a Burnham PORTABLE Electric Steam Radiator.

Here's extra heat—reliable STEAM heat—for ANY room that's wired for electricity. This famous radiator is not a "gadget" but a complete, thoroughly dependable, fully automatic heating unit. Rust-resistant cast iron. Used since 1932 by thousands of satisfied owners. Clean. Odorless. Safe. Approved by Underwriters' Laboratories. Costs only a few cents a day to operate. 3 different sizes... AC or DC—110 or 220 volts—$57 to $78 FOB Factory. Get the whole story. Mail coupon below.

A. Sentinel Light—Glows only when current is ON. Shows how radiator uses electricity only 75% of the time it's plugged in.

B. 2-Way Thermostatic Control—Automatically keeps steam pressure within safe range at all times—turns radiator on and off to keep room temperature at desired point.

C. Calrod Heating Element—Famous immersion-type coil—built to deliver 15-20 years of service under ordinary use.

High Efficiency—This modern "slenderized" radiator heats as efficiently as the old-time type with a 40% reduction in size and weight.

Easy to Move—Equipped with easy-rolling, ball bearing Atlasite casters. Won't mar floors.

Ideal for

Bedrooms · Bathrooms · Nurseries · Sick Rooms · Rumpus Rooms · Work Shops · Sun Porches · Camps · Offices

and for use in any room where you occasionally need quick extra heat.

JANUARY GARDEN GUIDE

In all sections:

- Seed catalog time—make your planting plans.
- Raise coldframe sashes a few inches when temperature goes above 45 degrees.
- Put cable supports on tree forks which are starting to split.
- Turn compost heap to hasten breakdown.
- Drain standing water on lawns and gardens.
- Control insects on house plants.

SOUTH

Plant bulbs in the Lower South: Easter lilies, Guernsey lilies, hemerocallis, rain lily, and zephyranthes. In south Florida plant gladioli.

Move nursery stock—while plants are dormant. Since nursery stock often remains for years with (unfortunately) limited feeding, it should be planted with excellent preparation, including long-lasting food. Winter-prune shrubs, but only those which flower in the summer. Broad-leaved evergreens and conifers may also be shaped by pruning now.

Spray broad-leaved evergreens with lime-sulfur at dormant strength to prevent scale damage. Plant roses as weather permits—the sooner the better. Prune in south Florida only. A light feeding with a complete plant food, two pounds for each 100 square feet of bed, will provide food at the first awakening of the plant.

Keep the winter lawn trimmed. A light feeding of 25 pounds complete plant food for each 1,000 square feet is beneficial.

—W. Elbridge Freeborn

TEXAS-SOUTHWEST

Sow seeds in flats indoors for early-spring bloom of calliopsis, coreopsis, calendula, marigolds, dianthus, ageratum. Plant dahlia seed for June flowering. Make cuttings of geraniums, poinsettias, coleus.

Out of doors, sow stocks, sweetwilliam, wallflowers, cornflowers, annual chrysanthemum seed, annual hollyhocks, and any other of the fall-planted annuals that were frost-killed.

Feed shade trees this month, preferably the last week. Prune and spray trees and shrubs with dormant sprays. Don't prune the early-spring-flowering unless absolutely necessary.

Prepare the strawberry bed. Blackmore variety is recommended for the "black-waxy" area soil belt.

Tomato, cabbage, pepper, and eggplant seed planted indoors the first part of January will usually be ready for transplanting by the time the weather permits.

—Marian Price Scruggs

CENTRAL-EAST

Fertilize potted plants occasionally at the rate of a teaspoonful to a 4-inch pot. Cultivate the surface with a table fork, spread the fertilizer, then water it in. A mulch of humus will help hold moisture.

Move large trees. Those larger than 6 inches in diameter measured 1 foot above ground should be moved with a ball of earth. Put a tile drain under trees planted in clay soil and make sure it drains to an outlet. Avoid mixing ice and snow with the fill soil; it would melt later and leave air pockets.

Guy up small trees that are starting to grow crooked or are bent over by the wind. Straighten a crooked trunk by tying a stake to it. For tying, use soft jute string so the bark won't be injured.

Burn all brush piles containing elm branches and make sure that no dead elms come thru the winter. The elm-bark beetle, which spreads spores of Dutch elm disease, lives over winter in diseased elm wood.

Put sand on icy walks and steps instead of salt. Salt may be injurious to plants beside the walk.

—Harvey Bicknell

PACIFIC NORTHWEST

Sow petunias and lobelias by the end of January, as they need a long, cool growing season. Sow seeds of lilies, irises, gladioli, alstroemerias, tigridias, anomathecas, and other bulbous plants in flats or pots, and place in a coldframe.

Move ferns now when they are dormant. Mix plenty of leafmold into the ground, and top-dress the crowns with compost or leaves after planting.

Prune grapevines early in January. Fasten stems and branches securely to the supports. Thin out branches of shrubs now that the leaves have fallen, as a first step in pruning. Spray shrubs and rose bushes with lime-sulfur or oil-copper spray when there have been a few days of dry weather.

Cut sprays of yellow jasmine, pussy willow, and forsythia in bud. Placed in lukewarm water in a sunny window, the buds will promptly open.

—Ada V. Turner

CALIFORNIA

Prune fruit trees to thin the fruit of trees which have a tendency to overbear.

Now is the time when strong solutions of spray oils can be used for controlling scale. They penetrate the shells better than the weaker solutions can do later.

Sow tomatoes, peppers, and other warm-season crops in a protected place. They will be ready to plant out when danger of cold weather is past.

Provide wind and sun protection for newly transplanted trees. Avocados are especially susceptible to burning.

—Alfred C. Hottes

Amazing new developments make it possible for families throughout America to raise their own fruit—to raise fruit in less time—to begin picking fruit in fewer years—to raise fruit of gorgeous color, mammoth size and breath-taking flavor.

Imagine being able to feed an entire family with fruit produced in a vest-pocket orchard—an orchard taking little more space than the ground covered by a double garage.

Imagine stepping a few feet from your doorstep to pick at will genuine Stark Golden Delicious or Starking Delicious apples that would cost 10c to 15c each at a store. Yes, pick n generous abundance—give them freely ir health benefits to your entire family. is the new promise held forth by recent oments of Stark and Burbank . . . to real- your own home yard the thrill of tree- l fruit . . . and all you have to do is plant . Yes, only 8 trees of the miracle varieties tch the fanciest prices on the market— e Stark Golden Delicious and genuine d Starking Delicious apples.

Bearing Age Now Accelerated of trees to plant is extremely important e these are the trees propagated from "Record-Bearing" (Trade Mark) strains ed with greater vitality, endowed with ous young bearing characteristics so that of them bear fruit in 3 or 4 years. These accelerated in bearing by grafting on heavy root systems by Stark Bro's ex- Trade-Mark Old Oak Process whole root —and by "fattening" in selected soils digging. This practically eliminates set- rom transplanting. As a result, anyone can shortcut bearing age astoundingly. Fruit is ready to pick almost before you realize it.

Many So Different U. S. Patents Have Been Awarded

But whatever you do, don't confuse this advanced fruit growing with the fruit growing of your father's time. Don't confuse it with the fruit growing of recent years on ordinary varieties of trees because Stark patented or trademarked varieties are so superior that they are actually like a new race of fruits. Don't confuse these gorgeous big apples with the puny fruit that comes from ordinary unimproved varieties.

Investigate today the opportunity to "own your own" vest-pocket orchard for only $17.60. Why, the fruit from each one of these 8 trees should be worth far more than that.

Gorgeous NEW Book Shows Wonder Fruits in Life Color, Life Size

Take this new opportunity to beautify your home and to make it fruitful. Take this opportunity to give your family the health benefits of fruit without stint, and to save in one year, when these fruit trees grow to maturity, more than you pay for the entire orchard now. See your trees grow in value year after year. Act quickly. Plant this season and gain a year. Pick and enjoy fruit a whole year sooner.

Let early thaws and rains soak VIGORO into your lawn

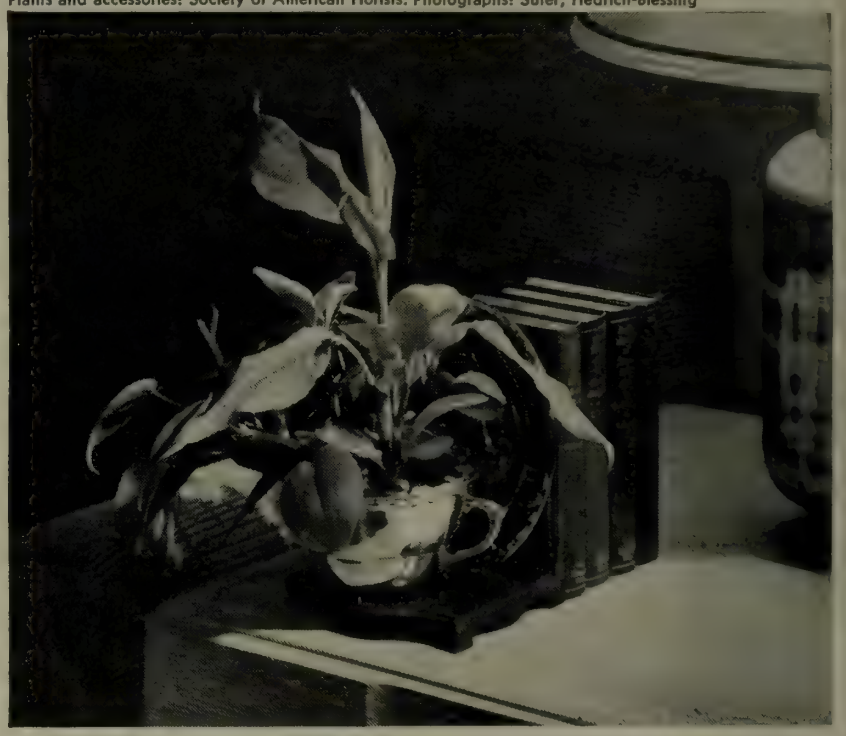
—even the deepest roots will be nourished!

Lawn experts strongly advise early feeding—even when snow is still on the ground. Applied now, early thaws and rains work Vigoro down deep ... to the base of the roots where it does the entire plant the most good.

Vigoro . . . complete, balanced plant food, is the result of scientific laboratory research . . . a combination of food elements growing things must have from the soil for the best possible nutrition, growth and reproduction.

So feed Vigoro now—just 4 pounds to every 100 square feet of lawn area. Give your lawn an early beauty treatment. It will come up healthier, thicker, greener . . . more weed-free. Ask your garden supply dealer for Vigoro today.

*VIGORO is the trade-mark for Swift & Company's complete, balanced plant food.

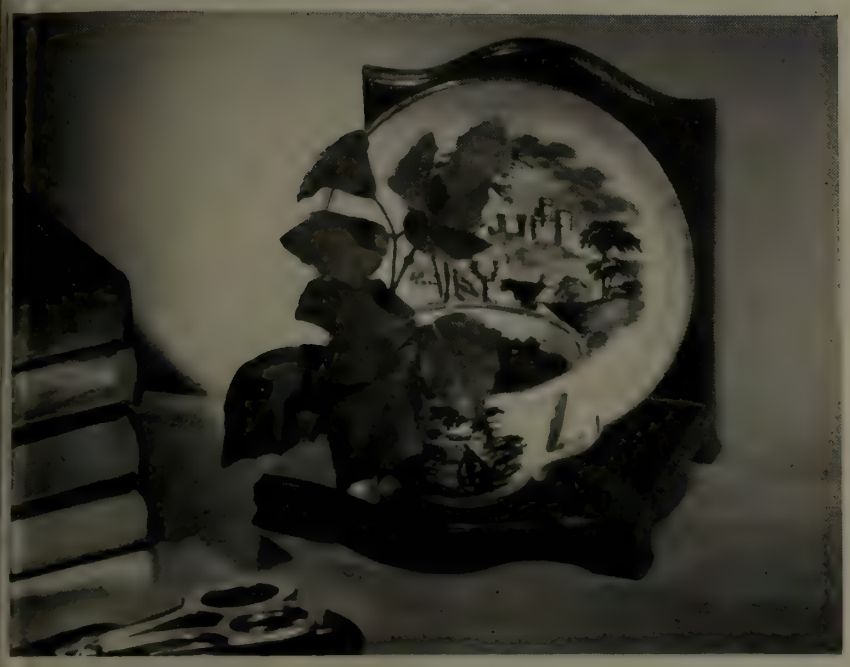


Use cups and mugs for your house plants

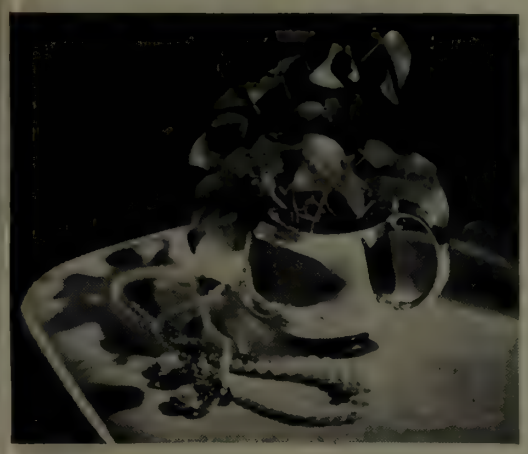
By Inez Catherine Dean

HERE are ideas for displaying your fine pieces of china and at the same time getting welcome bits of greenery into your rooms this winter. All plants we show are easy to come by, and inexpensive.

Because cups and mugs have no drainage holes, do not drown roots of plants requiring soil by keeping soil constantly soggy. Sun your plants for two hours weekly.



Plants and accessories: Society of American Florists. Photographs: Suter, Hedrich-Blessing



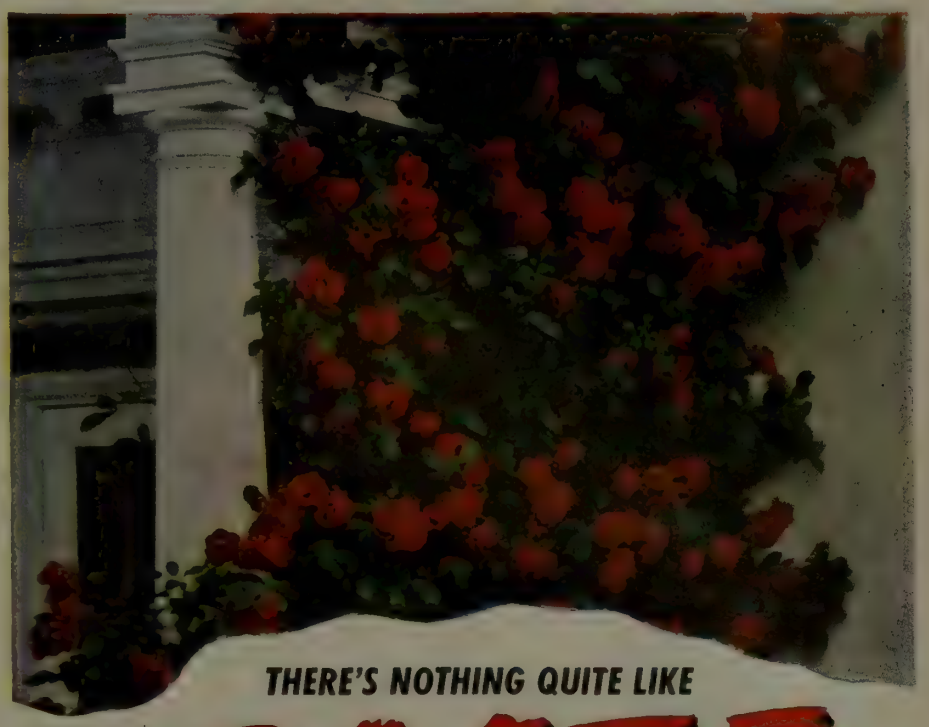
Philodendron and Chinese evergreen in a gilt king-size cup and saucer on base serve as book end. Use soil or water, but water may spill

Pick-a-back plant is of perennial interest, especially where it gets a shaving mug like this as outer pot. Dust leaves with soft brush

Grape-ivy tips grown in soil or water decorate, without hiding, a handsome cup and saucer. The antique china on a simple modern wood base makes ornament adaptable to many uses

Short ends of miniature-leaf ivy are just the thing to tuck into Baby's outgrown silver mug. Grow them in either soil or water. If in water, use marbles or pebbles to hold roots down

Gold-splashed pothos, or hunters-robe, always looks well growing in something tall like this handsome antique beer mug. Keep soil one inch below rim of mug to make watering easier



Short sprays of philodendron (right), ivy (front), and peperomia (left) in delicate china cups make an interesting coffee-table group. Renew often to keep in scale with cups. Use sandy soil to hold stems in place

CLIMBING ROSES!

THERE'S NOTHING QUITE LIKE

BLAZE

Plant Pat. No. 10

TO DRAPE ON FENCES, PILLARS, PORCHES

WANT to make yours the most admired garden in the neighborhood? Add the magic touch of BLAZE—America's most popular climbing rose!

Just picture this glorious, hardy, double-red beauty blanketing your pillars, trellis, walls, fences! It grows 10 to 12 feet high, produces scores of 2" to 3" flowers in dramatic red-red clusters. And, as the plants become firmly established, the sturdy canes of "old wood" add their own flood of vivid scarlet blooms. The lovely cascades of blazing red roses start early in June and repeat all Summer long!

Easy to Grow—Very Hardy

BLAZE needs no special attention. It is exceptionally hardy and prolific. GUARANTEED TO LIVE AND BLOOM in your garden. Only $1.50 per plant. SAVE 75¢ by ordering 3 for $3.75; SAVE $3 by ordering 12 for $15.

SPECIAL MONEY-SAVING COMBINATIONS

Order Blaze, with outstanding Floribunda Roses

Enliven your garden all Summer long with dramatic flashes of lovely color; other graceful rose cascades in white, pink, red. Floribundas make wonderful continuous-blooming color masses at the base of climbers. Also good for hedges, borders, formal settings—wherever color is constantly desired.

COLOR GROUP NO. 559

1 Blaze, flag red climber; 3 Summer Snow, cascading white floribundas; 3 World's Fair, deep red All-America Floribunda Prize Winners. Value $8.25. All seven for only $6.85. (You save $1.40.)

COLOR GROUP NO. 569

3 Blaze, flag red climbers; 2 Summer Snow, white floribundas; 2 World's Fair, deep red All-America Floribunda Prize Winners; 2 Betty Prior, continuous-blooming pink. Value $12.00. All 9 for only $10. (You save $2.)

Cups and mugs for house plants

Begins on page 118

Philodendron for graceful sprays and green peperomia next the handles of twin mugs of brown glaze make a fitting decoration for a rumpus room. Hang from 4-inch "square hooks." Leave room in mugs for watering

Ruddy pellionia ends make the low sweep and a small striped draecena the high side here—a hat for Old Charlie. Since insides of Toby jug are irregular, the plants are left in a pot which rests on rim of jug

Short leaves of the often-seen sansevieria take on new smartness when grown in a big cup with gold roses. Cup stands on feet, so no saucer is needed to avoid water marks on table

Arrowhead, or nephthytis, gets more than the usual attention when set down on a coffee table in a mustache cup from the Gay Nineties. Arrowhead does unusually well in water

Tallyho

1949 ALL-AMERICA WINNER—New in its unique coloring yet charming with its wealth of old-fashioned fragrance . . .Tallyho was judged the finest for 1949 by experts from coast to coast. The soft pink on the inside of the petals blends pleasingly with the deep Cardinal Red of the outside. Long, tight buds open slowly into large full blooms. An easy-to-grow plant. $2.50 each . . . 3 for $6.30.

Forty-niner

1949 ALL-AMERICA WINNER—There's a thrill in store for you when you see the first flower of this spectacular new bi-color in your garden. Startlingly brilliant in its contrast, the inside of the petals is a vivid red, while outside they are Chrome to Straw Yellow. Blending beautifully, the vivid colors retain their richness until the last petal falls. $2.50 each . . . 3 for $6.30.

Nocturne

1948 ALL-AMERICA WINNER—The most talked about All-America rose introduced in 1948 . . . its beauty has been praised in every part of the nation. Nocturne is a velvety deep crimson splashed with intriguing pools of deep maroon. A vigorous, easy-to-grow plant producing lovely streamlined buds atop long sturdy stems. $2.00 each . . . 3 for $5.10.

Charlotte Armstrong

1941 ALL-AMERICA WINNER—"Queen of them All," say rose growers everywhere . . ."this is the finest All-America rose ever introduced!" The beauty of the long, streamlined, blood-red bud is unbelievable . . . they're always so perfect! The open flowers of gorgeous cerise-pink are produced in lavish quantities on a big sturdy plant. $1.50 each . . . 3 for $3.75.

When You Plant Armstrong Rose Bushes, You Plant the Best—HERE'S PROOF: In recent years, Armstrong-originated roses have won more All-America and International Awards than those of any other rose grower in the world. All-America roses are tested in all parts of the U.S. and judged on their performance. Every plant guaranteed to grow and bloom.

The most

Compact as a kitchen, but still uncrowded. Outdoor fireplace backed up to a house chimney needs its own flue with lining and brick separation

Photographs: Maynard L. Parker

House vacations during summer. Evening meals are served on this porch, bright with painted-on lemon trees. Breakfasts are on the sunny east-side porch, seen thru the dining-room double doors. Informal parties are held on the lawn at right. Result of so much outside living? Less house cleaning. Idea: If your porch is small, make every inch usable by fitting a substantial railing around edge. Design should be in keeping with house from a tiny yard

There's room for outdoor living like this in the smallest places

By Martha B. Darbyshire

YOU want more room outside? Why not use what you have oftener? Amounts to about the same thing.

Make that little spot of back yard so pleasant that it draws you like a magnet.

Give it more chairs, for instance. They needn't be expensive. You can muster out your castoffs, give them a coat of exterior paint or enamel, and leave them out, rain or shine. Having plenty of chairs on hand—chairs you don't need to lug around—is the best way of getting more out of a bantam-sized back yard.

Set your porch up in business, too. Deck it out in comfortable furniture you can't resist.

One thing more. Can you go out in the yard in your oldest clothes—or stripped to the minimum during hot weather—without feeling self-conscious? Whether inside or out, home is a place where you shouldn't have to worry over appearances. Screen yourself in with shrubs, walls, or a fence with vines. See how Bob Brown of Los Angeles did all this.

Freedom and fresh air of all outdoors in a spot little bigger than an ordinary room. Bob Brown's back yard (above) is just a 12-foot shelf that drops off sharply at the left. But the screen of quick-growing trees (helped out in early life by a picket fence) lets furniture be used up to the very edge. You can do the same where a neighbor, street, or alleyway cramps your space. Where walls are close, cover them with vines

Garden on the cover

You probably can't boast of a view like this from your living-room window. But even without the ocean this home offers you many ideas for getting the most from a tiny garden

By Frederick Lang
Landscape designer

THE garden on the cover is proof that a lot of garden can be put into a small space. It is the M. Chaffin garden on Emerald Bay near Laguna Beach, California, and was designed to combine easy care with year-around brightness and color.

The easy care is typified by the Dichondra repens lawn which needs no mowing. Almost-constant bloom is supplied by roses, with just a few iris, daylilies, and geraniums for variety. Upkeep amounts to little more than a few snips with a pruning shears and supplying a bit of plant food from time to time.

The garden is a narrow shelf 18 feet at its widest point between the house and a steep bank. Nevertheless, smart planning provides enough room for terrace, lawn, flowers, and trees

Photographs: Maynard Parker

A porch sheltered from the wind is the heart of the garden. The corner fireplace is in constant use, keeping coffee hot and muffins warm. The three plates on the wall are the same deep blue as the umbrella just outside and the sea beyond. And for glamour there's the giant honeysuckle which twines around the porch post and spreads out across the roof above

The service area is tucked into a strip only 4 feet wide between sidewalk and bank. A trellis makes one clothesline post part of the garden, while flowers and trees take some of the harshness from the incinerator

New! EARL MAY PRESENTS Rose of Freedom

(PLANT PATENT NO. 791)

AMERICA'S FINEST LONG-STEMMED RED ROSE

1947 Winner, City of Portland Award. Highest scoring red rose in the 1946-47 nation-wide trials. A beautiful 60- to 70-petaled, long-stemmed, ever-blooming hybrid tea rose. Does your tree need support? I

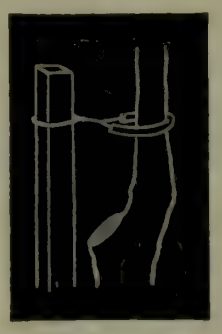
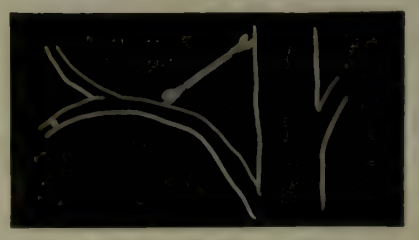
The line of weakness where this apple tree is starting to split to the ground is cause for worry and action. Such unsupported V-crotches are always invitations to trouble. You may have a huge lawn tree with a similar weak crotch which has stood for generations. It may stand for generations more . . .

Photographs· Stanley, Walter H. Flaig



. . . and then again it may not. A sleet storm showed up every weak crotch in this tree, but it's too late to do much about it now. Cabling wouldn't have saved all the small branches on this battered elm, but it would have preserved the large limbs and the appearance of the tree.

Here's the "why" of supporting weak limbs



These cross sections show why some crotches are weak, some strong. The V-shaped crotch at the right is weak because the wood structure is poorly united. On the other hand, the structure of the U-shaped fork at the left is such that the two limbs support each other.

You can do two things to correct a weak fork. In a very young tree cut off one of the branches cleanly and stake or guy the other upright. Be sure to paint the surface of the cut to prevent infection, but don't get paint on the exposed edges of the bark or healing may not occur.

Or if the tree is too large for such pruning, use cable to support the weak crotch. Put a galvanized lag screw hook into each branch and tie a taut wire cable between them. If the tree is large, you'll be wise to call a tree expert to do the job because it's no project for amateurs.

Does your tree need support? II

Photograph: Bartlett Tree Expert Co.

Any broken limb, however small, needs attention. The owner of this tree apparently thinks loss of a few branches is no cause for worry; he may soon have to worry about losing an entire tree. Insects and fungi are at work in wounds left by broken limbs; twigs are dying back

Davey Tree Expert Co.

You can sometimes save a tree even after it splits. Tree experts have done a skillful restoration job on this magnificent oak, but such first aid isn't always possible. You'll save money and probably a tree if you call in experts to cable weak crotches before they have split wide open

Clivia, indoor beauty queen

Q A year ago I was given a gorgeous orange-blossomed plant called Clivia. It is still growing. Can it be made to bloom again? T. R. C., Connecticut.

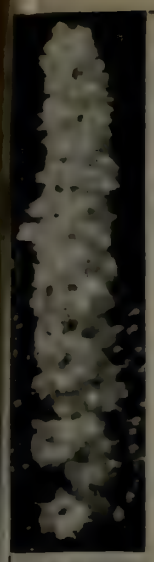
Photograph: McFarland

YOUR plant is the beautiful Clivia miniata whose early-spring clusters of orange-red blossoms make it an unexcelled house plant. You can make it bloom again, and this is the time of year to start forcing it. Here's your year-around schedule of clivia culture:

Winter. In December or January move the plant to a cool spot in poor light. Water only enough to prevent the leaves from wilting.



Early spring. About late February, growth will start. Move your clivia to a moist, warm spot. Step up the humidity by daily spraying if necessary. Start feeding (see below), give plenty of water—and you'll get masses of bloom so heavy as to need inconspicuous staking.

Summer and fall. When the last bloom is gone, reduce the watering a little but continue feeding. Move your clivia into a bright spot outdoors during summer.

Feeding. Clivia needs heavy feeding. So, except for the winter resting period, each month give yours a tablespoonful of complete plant food dissolved in water. Feed a cupful of the solution at a time.

Repotting. Keep in the same pot without disturbing for several years even tho roots are severely crowded. When necessary to repot, use a rich soil mixture containing one-third peatmoss. If you want another clivia, you can grow it from a bulb, altho it's wiser to get an established plant from a florist.

How to wreck a tree

There are more ways to ruin a fine tree than chopping it down. Mutilating part of the root system is almost as dangerous since it deprives the tree of roots needed for support and for gathering food and water. This is what not to do:

Don't expose the roots. A grade change did this. You can't repair all the damage, but a low retaining wall filled with soil around the roots will improve the looks, while liberal feeding will strengthen the tree

Photographs: Stanley

Don't chop off "just a few" roots. Branches on the side of the tree above the mutilated roots probably will starve gradually and become easy victims of insects and fungi. The only possible treatment now is to feed the remaining roots liberally—and hope the tree escapes high winds restricts the flow of saliva which neutralizes mouth acids that cause tooth decay. Tests also show that worry can seriously impair our vision, heighten our susceptibility to colds, and—by impairing blood circulation—make us lose our hair.

How not to worry

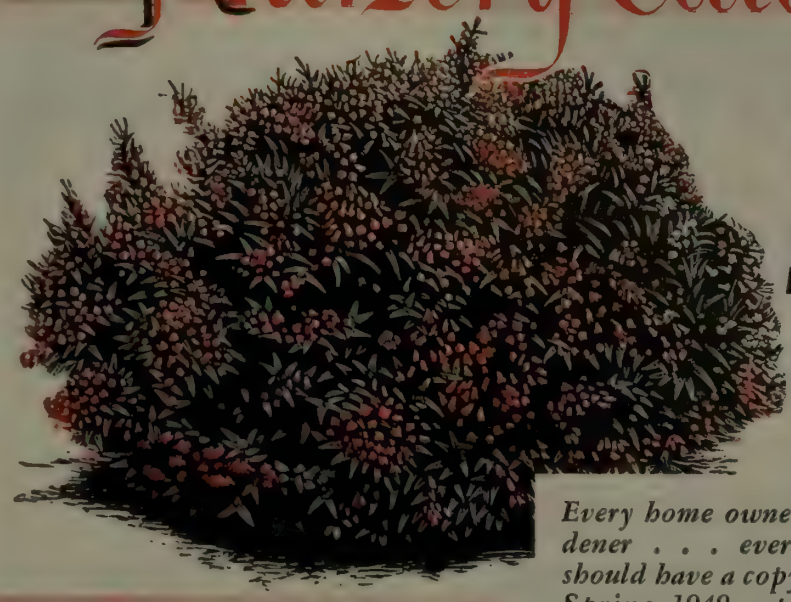
Furthermore, a group of New York Academy of Medicine scientists have discovered that worry releases a mysterious chemical into the blood which causes serious contraction of our internal organs. Small wonder that Massachusetts General Hospital studies showed 96 percent of a group of colitis sufferers to be victims of chronic worry, anxiety, and resentment. Or that 35 percent of the patients treated by a leading medical clinic were found to be suffering from ailments caused solely by worry.

THO science has long suspected what clinical findings now bear out—that worry is mankind's Enemy No. 1—their most difficult task has been to find out what actually makes worry tick. That is (1) to determine its basic cause, and (2) to provide an effective cure for it. Preliminary research into the mysterious dynamics of worry showed that it had a great deal in common with the common cold. It couldn't be effectively dealt with until its cause had been isolated. It had been clearly demonstrated that the chronic worrier could not be cured simply by giving him a psychological pill of good advice and telling him that worry was simply a vicious habit which he must break—before it broke him. Case histories show that these and similar methods had approximately the same effect on the worrier as giving vaccines and vitamins to the cold-sufferer. In some instances they gave the victim temporary relief, but they provided no real cure.



Psychologists and psychiatrists who specialize in the study of the anxiety neurosis (the technical term for pure, unadulterated

The diary of a

Plain dirt gardener

Our old dog, faithful for nigh unto 15 years, plain refused to go thru the snow to get the morning paper

By Harry R. O'Brien

Jan. 1 For one day in this new year, I aim to be happy. I've just been figurin' up my gross income for last year. Why bless my soul. I had taken in a bit more than the year before last. So today I go about with a smile.

I firmly vow I won't add up last year's expenses nor inventory our net family resources until tomorrow. Thus I'll have one day of happiness before I can work out from the account book the sad details of how much poorer we really are.

Might as well report right off that this year I aim to grow garden sass, along with the posies. Which is what I've been doing now for a good many years.

So on one side of the bushes there will be peonies and iris and roses and marigolds and what not growing. But on the other side there will still be the asparagus and rhubarb and strawberries and grapes and dwarf apples. If the fates are willing, in due time there will be a new strawberry bed and ample plantings of peas, spinach, beans, sweet corn, and the rest of what we like to eat.

David's news, related at the supper table, is that last Monday he ordered some new parts for our power mower. He intends to overhaul it this winter.

Jan. 5 Just between us, today was the real beginning of the New Year. I sorta slipped into high gear and began to tackle work—in spite of huge snow over all outdoors. Stopped at the grocery in late afternoon and says to Clyde, the grocer, "Do you have any old peanut butter you can sell to me as a bargain for bird feeding?"

Well sir, he had 10 jars of such that were on sale, and he made me a rare bargain to take them all. At the meat counter I renewed my supply of suet. At the hardware store I bought a new putty knife—the old one having disappeared.

Home, I brought in the suet racks. Some I filled with plain suet. Two others, which hang on twigs too small for cats to crawl on, I filled with suet on one side. With the putty knife, I filled the other sides with peanut butter.

To hang one of these racks, I have to pull down a branch of the big bush of Aronia arbutifolia growing against the east chimney wall.

This year I aim to grow garden sass along with the posies, just as I've been doing for a good many years

As I pulled down the frozen branch, it broke plumb off about four feet from the ground. So I had to hang the rack on a twig of President Grevy lilac at the corner of the house.

Jan. 8 Color slides of flowers were the main item at our men's rose club tonight. To me the most interesting were some shown by members who were just learning to take color pictures. It's amazing how taking flower pictures in color has spread.

Harold Bach showed especially interesting pictures of his large collection of climbing roses, a good many being the more uncommon sorts. He told us that one of his best is Climbing Summer Snow—a white, of course.

At lunch today, questions as usual. One was whether tulips can still be planted. This man has some he didn't get in. I told him that if not planted, they would undoubtedly be worthless by next fall. So take a chance and see what happens. I planted some in February once in a dry sunny spot and had good bloom, come spring.

Jan. 9 Don't tell anybody, but I'm at it again. Several nursery and seed catalogs have come. And

Several nursery and seed catalogs have come in, and I have put aside my detective stories of an evening

I've been reading 'em. In fact, I have firmly put aside detective stories of an evening. It is just as thrilling to hunt for items to buy as to find out "who done it."

Jan. 23 All day long the snow fell. And more birds around than any day all winter, as our eating guests—jays, cardinals, titmice, chickadees, nuthatches, grackles, and 37,337 English sparrows—more or less. But nary a junco. I don't know why these little critters don't come around.

Evening came and the noisy sparrows departed. Then I saw a sight which sorta brought a lump into my throat. Outside our windows, at the feeders and on our shrubbery, I counted 14 cardinals having their evening meal. It was worth all the work and expense of days and days of feeding.

Jan. 25 Down to zero outdoors when I got up belatedly this Sunday morning and shivered downstairs. And met rebellion in my household.

Our old dog, who for nigh unto 15 years has faithfully brought us in the papers mornings and evenings, plain refused to go out thru that snow. He just whined and barked apology and wouldn't budge from the front steps.

So I told him to go back to his bed on the cellar stair landing. Put on four-buckle arctics, overcoat, farmer chore cap with eartabs and waded out myself for the paper.

Here's news. After weeks and weeks of watering, that amaryllis bulb of Maggie's has begun to grow. Green ribbon is coming up in center. She has been giving it a lot more water than she did at first.

Wayside Gardens

Horticulture's NEWEST GARDEN SUBJECTS come from WAYSIDE GARDENS

GAILLARDIA "GEN. GEORGE PATTON"

Year after year, garden lovers look to Wayside for the world's finest new introductions. This year there are many outstandingly beautiful new offerings. See them in full color in the new Wayside Gardens' catalog for 1949 spring planting.

New ROSES

Among the one hundred and fifty rose offerings are two superb new "All America Rose Winners for 1949", TALLYHO and FORTY-NINER, both truly worthy of "All-America" selection.

Tallyho is a large, lovely, pink tea-rose of exceptional substance—perfectly hardy in any section of the country.

Forty-Niner. Brilliant bi-color tea-rose with the outside of petals a rich chrome-yellow and the inside a vivid orient-red.

New PERENNIALS

Three New Hardy English Asters. "Peace", "Plenty" and "Prosperity". These magnificent new Asters produce thousands of flowers fully 2 inches across in charming pink-lavender, soft blue and rose-pink. Easy to grow anywhere and excellent for cutting.

Two New Border Pinks. Dianthus Evangeline (soft persian rose) and Dinah (deep persian rose with maroon center). Both of these enchanting perennials flower profusely spring and fall. They exude a spicy, clove fragrance and grow 8 to 10 inches tall.

New Giant Gaillardia "General George Patton". Enormous flowers measuring 4 inches in diameter. Petals are a brilliant, dark red with fluted golden tips. Averaging 3½ feet in height, this exceptional perennial blooms all summer producing 60 or more huge flowers on a single plant. Will grow anywhere, even in poor soil.

New TREES and SHRUBS

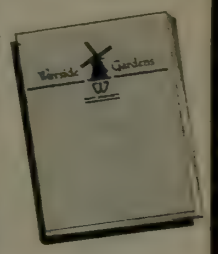
Bronze Leaved Smoke Tree. (Rhus Cotinus Rubrifolius). Handsome bronze tinted foliage with a bronze colored plume giving the illusion of smoke encircling this fine, rare garden shrub.



Lilac, Esther Staley. The only truly Pink Lilac. Flowers are single, moderately large and bloom in mid-season. Healthy plants with remarkable vigor. Only a few available this spring.

Lilac, Clarke's Giant. The largest and best Lilac in existence. Huge clusters of soft gentian-blue flowers attaining a length of 12 inches or more.

ALL AMERICA ROSE WINNER "TALLYHO"

The diary of a plain dirt gardener

finished their blooming some days since and Maggie threw them away. After they have been forced into bloom, they are worthless, at least in this part of the country. They have rewarded us and given us our money's worth already.

Jan. 27 Furnace had been fired. Dog had obliged and brought in the paper. I settled down in my easy chair for a pre-breakfast reverie and to find out what is news. Then from the kitchen came a clarion call.

So I had to get up and go out to see. Maggie was struggling with a coffee can, one of those you open with a little dingus which rolls up a ribbon of metal as it is unpeeled. The danged thing had jammed, and Maggie couldn't make it work. Some other tool was needed—pair of pliers maybe. So I went exploring in a kitchen drawer where

My best pair of pruning shears! In the drawer Maggie has been stuffing with surplus gadgets for 20 years

Maggie has been stuffing surplus hardware and gadgets for the last 20 years. And glory be—I found it.

I mean I found my pair of best pruning shears—the large-sized ones which had been lost for about a year now. And two pairs of small pruning shears. Evidently Maggie had used them, one by one, to snip-snip roses or zinnias or something, then stuck them in that drawer. I didn't dare make a snooty remark, because last summer I lost her pair of special cutting scissors.

The moral is that all men who read should promptly search thru kitchen storage space. Goodness

Jan. 28 Old man Zero is getting to be that man who came to breakfast. Funny how he can hit the mark on the thermometer right on the beam, at exactly the time I get up.

Jan. 31 As month ends, I'm trying to catch another bad cold. Been to doctor's for more of same old reliable pills. Home again and began to enjoy said cold.

Even then, I had my troubles, for Maggie came in with the vacuum cleaner and hustled me around. Poor old P.D.G. can't even relax of a Saturday afternoon, when he has the sneezles and sniffles.

News Notes: Don't overlook the new annuals; they'll look purty in your summer garden. Put some of these on your list:

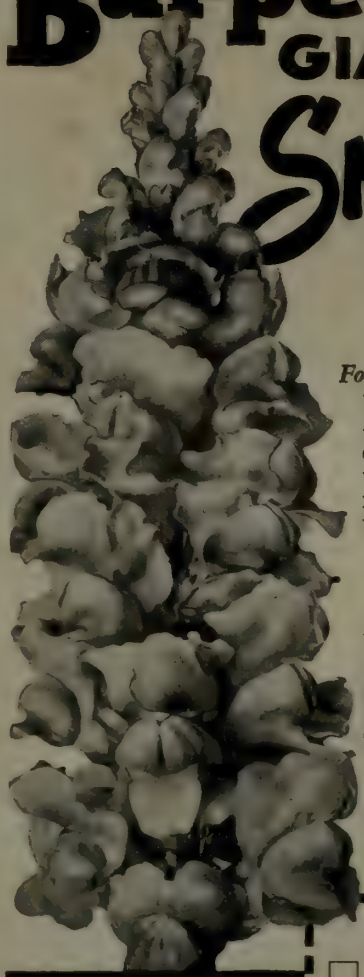
Calendula Pacific Golden Giant—a new strain with bigger flowers, longer straighter stems. Resists midsummer heat, too.

Aster Princess Linda—clear rose color and plumb new in the popular wilt-resistant Princess family.

Early-blooming sweetpeas—you'll like Avalon, a clear blue; Miss Santa Maria, light rose with a salmon blush; Snow Drop, a pure paper-white husky.



Scabiosa Oxford Blue—giant size and deeper blue than any scabiosa you've ever seen before.

Verbena bush type—Starlight, bright blue with a creamy-white eye. Bushy plants 8 to 10 inches high and a foot or more across are mighty nice in bloom.

"We just decided to postpone our snowball fight till next July."

New! CLIMBING Out of the Ordinary Everblooming PILLAR ROSE

"PILLAR STRATFORD," Plant Patent No. 784 Blooms so extremely double there scarcely seems to be room for all the petals. Buds are flesh-pink opening into creamy pink blooms having odd Cactus-like look of the Cactus Dahlias. Canes grow about 10 feet high, erect and sturdy. Excellent foliage. In bloom almost constantly from June until freezing weather. Pictured in color on front of our new catalog. Ask for FREE copy now.

and spicily sweet. Evangeline and Dinah are two new border-type pinks, nice for edging a walk, a rock garden, or to sweeten the edge of your flower bed.

To dress up your late-summer border, there are at least three new hardy asters. The dwarf Aster Dumosus Little Red Boy, so good for a dwarf hedge, is available again. For backgrounds, look for Aster Peace—soft blue, 2-inch flowers on 3½- to 4-foot stems, and for Aster Plenty—pinkish-lavender semidouble flowers, 2 inches across and produced in prodigal quantities.

Three new and superior garden chrysanthemums are Tribute—a deep but mellow coral red; Loveliness—a large-flowered double pink; and Governor Duff—a bright orange-bronze pompon.

All of these perennials from the anthemis to the chrysanthemums are sold only as plants and do best when set in the spring. Give them spots where they will get sun fully half the day.

A pink lilac. If you've been wanting a true pink lilac, your search is over if you can get a plant of the new Lilac Esther Staley. This is a charming companion for last season's spectacular introduction, the blue Lilac Clarke's Giant.

Allow fully 7 feet between lilacs and remember they do best when they have full sun, a limey soil, and a great deal of water up to and thru their blooming season.

For your rose bed. Besides those pictured, do consider the handsome hybrid teas—California Centennial, a new and special red rose with thick petals and glossy foliage, and Sleigh Bells. This is as lovely as it sounds, a fine new white with a high ivory-tinted center and foliage far better than average.

Ask for size No. 1 plants and set them as early as possible in a sunny spot.

Among the new annuals. By no means should you overlook the new annual Hollyhock Indian Summer. It will give you real spikes of real hollyhock flowers this very summer.

Ipomea Blue Mound is the formal name of the new blue morning-glory that has flowers just like the favorite Heavenly Blue, but on short stems that never try to roam.

The new Petticoat four-o'clocks all wear extra ruffles, and in the giant-flowered annual phlox family there's a newcomer—Mellow Moon. It has delightfully soft, yellow florets, some as much as 1½ inches across.

And, to end on high C, the brilliant Sweetpea Margaret O'Brien is quite the liveliest orange-colored garden sweetpea you can buy. It's a color that stands up and yodels.

Start the seeds of all these annual flowers early; you'll get more and better flowers.

worry) realized that no psychological vaccine could be developed until the worry virus had been isolated. They must, in effect, put worry under the most powerful clinical microscopes, completely dissect it, and find out what lay at the center of its stubborn core.

CASE histories of chronic worriers were gone over with fine-toothed combs. Victims were subjected to exhaustive psychological tests—and the findings carefully tabulated and analyzed.

A consensus of these studies showed that the real cause of worry lies not in the things we worry about, but in a lack of an inner sense of security. In every instance, case histories showed that the more well developed a person's sense of security is, the less he is disposed to worry—and vice versa. Psychologists have yet to find a non-worrier who didn't have a strong inner security sense; but with confirmed worriers this quality was found to be invariably lacking. It was also found that a person who lacks this inner confidence, transfers his attitude to outside things. Just as he lacks confidence in himself, he lacks confidence in the outcome of situations—and consequently he worries about them.

YOU can't cure a disease by treating only its symptoms. And worry is purely a symptom—an expression of the insecurity sense. For a person suffering from a lack of inner confidence to admit consciously the fact would be ego deflating, so he seeks to rationalize it by shifting the blame for his anxiety feelings to things outside himself. He chooses the most convenient and most socially acceptable scapegoats, such as anxiety over money matters, fear of failure in undertakings. If the person who feels inwardly insecure happens to have been born with a silver spoon in his mouth--and has everything—he'll simply invent things to worry about. For a sense of insecurity produces such terrific emotional tensions within the personality that it demands a con-

Changing grade around a tree

I'm building a new house and wonder if tree wells really are necessary. n only going to change the grade of my lot a couple of feet. I'd like to oid the cost, but I don't want to take any chances on injuring my trees.
W. F., Rhode Island.

Trees Magazine

Few trees can stand having the soil level changed faster than three inches a year. If you must make the two-foot change at one time, you should use a tree well and a root-aerating system made like that shown above. You can use a grill to cover the opening between the wall and the tree. The ring of tile circling the tree should be at the drip line of the longest branches.

tinual worry outlet of some sort.

Obviously, the only way to cure a worrier is to remove the underlying cause—the worry virus—or inner lack of security. Your first step, if you are a worrier, is to admit candidly to yourself that your condition is not caused by the things you worry about; but that it stems from the fact that deep inside yourself you feel bewilderingly lost and totally insecure. You must realize also that as long as that condition exists, it's impossible for you to stop worrying continually about one thing or another. For the turbulence caused by your inner anxiety cannot be bottled up. It must have an outlet; it must seek expression thru the worry processes.

As soon as you've accepted this fact, you're ready for the next step: developing an adequate inner sense of security.

FIRST, however, you should understand why you feel basically insecure. Psychologists agree that the insecurity complex results from thinking too much without putting the thoughts into action. Innermost thoughts, wishes, and desires—unless powered by action and given concrete expression—become automatically frustrated. If this occurs consistently, you soon come to doubt that your aims and goals will ever be translated into action and made realities. Finally you lose confidence entirely, and begin to feel a deep and basic insecurity. You are much like the driver of a powerful car who races the motor continually, without putting the car in gear. If the car had feelings and sensibilities it would react exactly as you do. It would soon develop feelings of self-doubt and inadequacy. Tho the roar of its racing motor made a reassuring sound, the consistent failure of the driver to put the car in gear—to translate its power into action—would soon make the automobile seriously doubt that it could compete with other cars in speed and performance. Faced suddenly with a steep hill, the car would certainly lack confidence in its ability to climb it.

When you dream of accomplishment but don't take steps to translate those dreams into action, you commit the cruelest kind of self-frustration. The result is corroding self-doubt, which saps your inner confidence. Repeatedly thwarted and denied its natural expression, the inner self writhes in bewildered defeat and anguish. The ensuing conflict is that of a personality divided against itself. Fear, frustration, and anxiety are commingled

Q Monthly directions in the garden guide often say, "Ventilate your coldframe." What's the best temperature to try to keep?—I.B.D., Virginia.

Photograph: Richard W. Hufnagle

▶ Sixty degrees inside is the hottest you can trust in a closed coldframe. Sunny days in the low 30's can shoot the inside temperature to this point before noon. Ventilate plants by propping up the sash on the side away from the direction of the wind.

Q What's a good shrub to plant at my doorway (photograph attached)?—G.C.H., Iowa.

Stanley

▶ Spreading Japanese yew would be effective, as above. You can buy an old plant, or put several young ones a few feet apart to grow into a clump. If you have a wall like this, try Boston ivy on it next spring. More clinic on page 141

with feelings of morbid guilt and self-distrust. Under these conditions the individual's sense of security—which must have its roots in inner peace—can't help withering and dying on the vine.

GOETHE said 150 years ago what modern psychiatry confirms: "Thought without action is a disease." It most certainly is—a disease of the personality which destroys the inner sense of security and expresses itself in chronic worry. Modern doctors of the mind concur. The famed psychiatrist, Dr. William S. Sadler, terms worry a kind of psychic dyspepsia, brought on by self-frustration and the resultant inner conflict of personality. And the noted psychologist, Dr. Henry C. Link, cites chronic worry as the result of the individual's consistent failure to express his inner energies in terms of action: "Too much energy churning the higher brain centers in vicious circles, and not enough energy driving the body in action." In other words, the worrier has formed the habit of racing his mental engine while keeping his physical energies in neutral—and neither cars nor people are built to run that way.

What a man knows must find full expression in what he does—if he is to live at peace within himself. And you can achieve a real sense of security only when you express your inner energies instead of frustrating them by inaction.

HARDY Chinese DATE (Jujube)

A Beautiful Ornamental

Cultivated Centuries Before the Christian Era

This hardy tree withstands zero temperatures and is adapted to all kinds of soil, bears at an early age, and is a constant producer of delicious chocolate-colored fruit which tastes like dates or figs. Delicious when eaten fresh or cured like dates, and excellent for preserves, jams, desserts or confections. Blooms very late, highly ornamental. Fully explained in our catalog. Write now.

on your tastes and the kind of room in which you're using the piece.

For a natural effect, use clear lacquer, shellac, or clear synthetic resin. Both pine and plywood will take paint nicely; colorful enamels will give an attractive finish. The dealer who sells you the paint will have folders telling you how to use it most effectively.

One attractive treatment is to use artificial leather on the top of the base cupboard and on the inside of the door on the upper section. This makes a durable and handsome desk top.

Hanging the cabinet

Hang the upper section on a wall, fastening it to the studding of of the house by using about nine screws, 2½ inches or so in length, driven thru the back and into the studs. The trick is to locate the studs behind the plaster of the wall. They are vertical 2x4's, with their centers 16 inches apart.

You find them by tapping the wall lightly with a hammer until you find a spot that sounds solid. Verify the position of the stud by drilling a very small hole. If you are wrong, the drill will tell you so by turning easily after it is thru the plaster and lath. The small hole won't do any harm. The other two studs you'll use are 16 inches to the right and to the left of the first one. Make sure of them the same way.

Put the base cupboard against the wall under the chosen studs, and lay a piece of ¾-inch board on it, so there will be some clearance when you have fastened the upper section to the wall.

Now stand the wall section on the loose board, measure carefully the positions on the back for fastening into the studs, drill the holes and countersink them, and set the screws. Remove the board, and the job is done.

Some variations

You don't have to follow these instructions to the letter. You can make changes to fit special conditions, tastes, or materials—and that's half the fun. You can make the whole thing wider, or the upper section taller, for more desk space.

If you have the skill and the tools, the lower piece could be made with drawers instead of doors. One of them could be file-folder size. You can mount a portable typewriter on the desk top, so it folds into the wall.

For a de luxe desk or dining table, you might mount a fluorescent light fixture on the underside of the lowest shelf. One of the shelves could easily become a set of pigeonholes for compact storage of stationery and envelopes.

When used to convert a kitchen corner into a dinette, this piece will provide storage space for dishes. The upper section can be used for glasses, saucers, and small plates, with hooks for cups on undersides of shelves. Plates, platters, and large bowls and pans will fit into the base cupboard.

Q What do the nursery catalogs mean by B&B? P. G. H., Oregon.

B&B means balled and burlapped, as above. All evergreens must be treated this way when they are moved. Other trees and shrubs need this care if they are moved when they are in leaf.

Photographs: Stanley

Q My new house won't be done early enough to get the ground graded and seeded until early spring. What's the best thing to do to keep the soil from washing onto the paths? M. B. N., Wisconsin.

Seed the lawn as soon as possible, but put strips of sod along all paths. This will keep the soil on the lawn. Seedling grass develops best during cool, damp weather so it can be sown even when ground is still frozen.

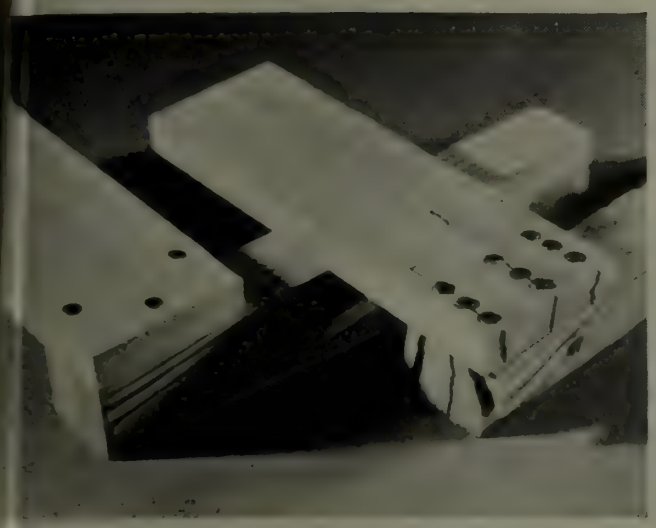
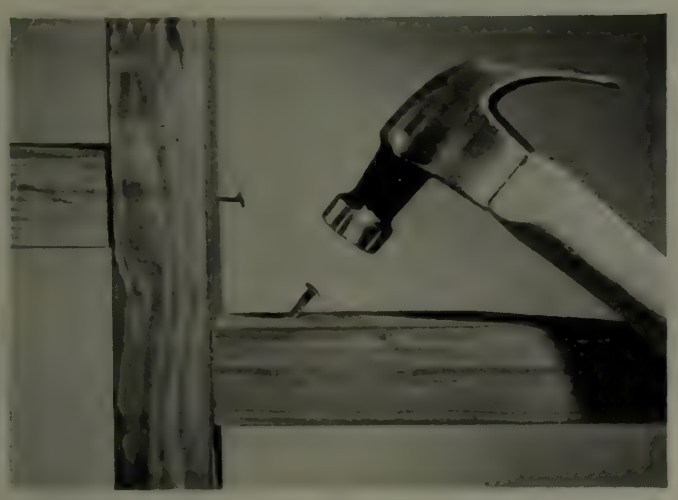
How to fasten

What size screws should you use? The length of the screws you'll need depends on the thickness of the bottom board and the strength needed in the joint. Be sure to select screws with an unthreaded shank just long enough to reach thru top board. With flat-head screws, drill countersink holes so heads will be flush. The screw at left will be concealed beneath the wood plug, glued and sanded smooth. The screw at right has a groove filed in threads, a trick to make screws enter hardwood easily



What size nails should you use? Nails must be long enough to hold, but not so long they split the wood. A good rule: Use nails three times as long as the board being nailed is thick (left). Blunting the nail point (right) reduces the danger of splitting. Nail lengths run from 1 inch (2d) to 4 inches (20d)



To avoid splitting. With most woods, you can reduce the danger of splitting by staggering the nails, as shown in the picture above. Driving the nails in at an angle will give you a much stronger joint than straight nailing whenever you fasten two flat surfaces together. Some kinds of wood, such as maple and chestnut, split easily unless you drill pilot holes for nails wo boards together

Use nails sparingly. A few nails, properly spaced and staggered as shown at the left, will give you a strong, neat joint. The effect of using too many nails (right), in an amateurish effort to strengthen the joint, shouldn't happen to any man

Angle nailing is good. Whenever you find it possible, drive nails on a slant for greater strength. Here, the joint to the right is almost twice as strong as the one to the left, where the nail is driven straight into weak end-grain. With care, long screws can be driven into end-grain to serve as dowels

To straighten a bent nail. If a nail bends as you drive it into hardwood, straighten it with your pliers. Then hold the straightened part with the pliers as you continue driving. When you drive a nail into a narrow or thin piece of wood (right) or near the end of a larger board, you can reduce the danger of splitting by holding sides with a C-clamp

The clinch nails. For comparative smoothness, clinch nails with the grain of the wood (top). But if you want maximum strength, clinch them across the grain (bottom). In both cases, be sure the points are buried. Special clinching nails with tapered points are available

In tight quarters. You can start a nail in an inaccessible place, as in an overhead rafter, by holding the nail head against the cheek of your hammer and tapping lightly. Similarly, the nail can be held between first and second fingers instead of between finger and thumb

How to remove hammer tracks. If you mar a finished surface as you hammer, sometimes you can raise the grain of the wood back into place. Try covering the area with several sheets of damp wrapping paper and pressing with a hot iron

How to use a nail set. To keep from marring wood with your hammer, a nail set is invaluable. Use it to finish driving nails, and to set heads of finishing nails beneath the wood's surface. To position the nail set, rest your little finger against the side of the nail head. When a nail set is being used frequently, it is convenient to tie it to a cord looped around your wrist

how to make a happy home for your dog

Give him proper care and his coat shines, his tail wags in appreciation. Train him to know his place and there are no problems of unruly barking, car chasing.

Better Homes & Gardens dog book, "Your Dog and Mine," covers the care, training, and feeding of your dog. Tells you how to recognize diseases, get rid of parasites, give first aid treatment. Written by an expert in the field.

Order your copy today from 6801 Meredith Bldg., Des Moines 3, Iowa. Only $1.

How to steer a nail. Throw away old, bent nails; when straightened they lose much of their holding power. But occasionally a bent nail is best for a job—for butt-nailing, for some kinds of toenailing. Bend the nail near point by placing point between hammer claws and pulling sideways (top). You can then steer it in the right direction as indicated by cutaway sections. Or file the point to a long bevel so the nail will be deflected

o control rust. Unless they are brass, screws used in outdoor ork may be attacked by rust. o protect them, dip them in a ick paste made by stirring owdered graphite in linseed il. Mix only enough for imediate use; it will thicken like aint when left exposed to air

Invisible nailing. It is not difficult to conceal a nail completely if you buy a curved woodworker's chisel. Use the chisel (1) to raise a chip of wood where the nail will be placed. Drive the nail (2) and set it below the surface of the cut. Apply a drop of glue and press the chip back into place (3). When the glue is dry, a light sanding before the finish is applied will make the chip invisible

The handy man

Electrified ironing board

To ease the job of ironing, install an electrical outlet in the ironing board. Between wall outlet and ironing board, use a cord similar to an extension cord, but with the "plug-into" end screwed tight to the top of the board. The cord to the iron can then be plugged in at the board, giving much more freedom to the iron.—R. Allen Pelton, Pasadena.

To paint putty

When you replace a broken pane, paint putty as soon as possible to keep it from drying too hard and cracking. Dust a coating of lamp black onto the putty first. It absorbs the oil in the putty and forms a good glazed surface that takes paint easily.—Dick Hutchinson, Alhambra, California.

Warm it up

You can cut and handle linoleum more easily if you warm it in the sun for a few hours before laying.—Helen D. Kramer, R.N., Baltimore.

Miniature clamps

Dont let your wife throw away old screw-type earrings. They are ideal as C-clamps for gluing tiny pieces, as in model airplanes.—Rita M. Bodenstab, Medford, Oregon.

Win a prize with your best recipe

RECIPE contest this month asks for tomato recipes or ice creams and sherbets. If yours is the best recipe, you will earn $10 and Cook-of-the-Month honors. And there are 20 additional prizes of $3 each.

Tomato recipes include salads, main dishes, appetizers, canned tomato specials—anything extra good made from fresh tomatoes. Is your tomato-canning triumph tomato relish, green-tomato pickles, chili sauce, tomato butter, or catsup? For appetizer, do you serve bacon and tomato canapés or tomato-juice cocktail? For part of your main course, do you scallop, stuff, fry, or grill tomatoes? Or serve a surprise vegetable combination like tomatoes with eggplant or squash?

What's your favorite tomato salad? It may be a tossed salad, a stackup, or a gelatine aspic. Write down the makings of your salad and the dressing you serve with it.

Ice creams and sherbets are also wanted for August's cool eating. You may make them in the refrigerator or in a hand-turned freezer. They may be any flavor from vanilla to peppermint. You may fold in chocolate chips, grated lemon peel, mashed bananas or peaches, crushed berries or pineapple. Just write down your most delicious ice cream or sherbet recipe according to the rules below.

And remember, the winners of these 21 prizes will receive the Better Homes & Gardens Certificate of Endorsement, and six copies of the endorsed recipe.

1. Write your recipe clearly on one side of the paper. Send but one recipe at a time and mark it "August Tomato Recipes" or "August Ice Creams and Sherbets."
2. Give measurements in level cups, tablespoons, and teaspoons, never in heaping or scant measurements.
3. Be sure to specify in your recipe the brand names of the nationally known food products you use as ingredients—products available everywhere. We must know them so we can test your recipe with the same brands you use.
4. Include 50 to 100 words about the history or origin of your recipe.
5. All recipes submitted become the property of Better Homes & Gardens.
6. Entries must be postmarked by midnight, January 31.
7. Address the recipes you enter to 5401 Tasting-Test Kitchen, Better Homes & Gardens, Des Moines 3, Iowa.

This month's winners

Cook-of-the-Month is Mrs. William F. Goetter of Liverpool, New York. Her Chess Tarts are rich raisin-filled desserts for January dinners and January hearty appetites.

Date-Nut Dessert, another extra-special dish, was sent by Jackie Marshall. Only 17 years old, Jackie says cooking is her hobby.

Prunes are transformed to a glamour dessert in Mrs. Workman's Prune Spice Cake. Tender and spicy, it's served with a whipped cream topper.

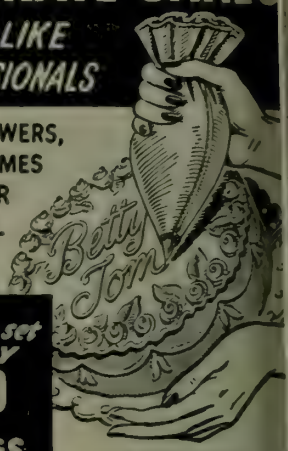
A new version of an old favorite is Mrs. Somer's Apricot-Marshmallow Betty. It's flavored with lemon and topped with crunchy toast cubes.

Baked-beans winner is Mrs. Neyland Hester's Pork 'n' Bean Bake. The tomato-molasses sauce is delightfully flavored with brown sugar, spices, and onion.

Mrs. Ted Boye won a prize for her Kidney Bean Rarebit. It's quick to make, has a cheese sauce that is pepped up with catsup and Worcestershire.

For 20-Minute Baked Limas try Mrs. Boileau's recipe on page 73 and see how she achieves distinction with a cheese-flavored mushroom sauce.

Like old-fashioned long-baked Boston Brown Beans with a rich caramel color and molasses flavor? Then you'll be delighted with Mrs. Hutchins' streamlined version, made in a pressure saucepan.



The names of the 20 contenders for first place appear below. The eight best recipes are pictured on pages 73 and 74.

Small Comfort

One morning, a man traveling on a fast express to Chicago, walked into the diner for breakfast.

He promptly ordered Grape-Nuts Wheat-Meal, his favorite hot cereal.

Just as the waiter was setting the bowl in front of him, the train lurched, and the Grape-Nuts Wheat-Meal landed squarely in the man's lap.

"Don't you fret, sir," consoled the waiter. "It'll only take 3½ minutes to cook you another bowl!"

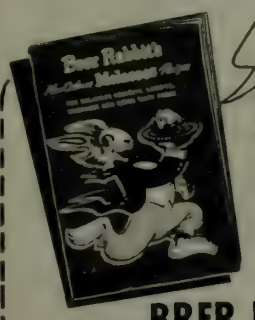
Leftovers can save food and money

FOOD saving means dollar saving these days. So if your food budget is looking forlorn, make second-day meat, vegetables, or cereals work for you. Check the table below. When you have these leftovers, here is what to do with them:



Leftover	How to use
Cooked cereal	Pour into a glass rinsed with water. Chill. Tip cereal out of glass. Slice and fry—crisp rings for lunch or, with syrup, for tomorrow's breakfast. Or mix cereal with leftover meat and seasoning and mold into old-fashioned scrapple.
Sandwiches	Spread outside of sandwiches with soft butter or fortified margarine. Brown in a skillet or griddle until hot and crusty.
Canned vegetable liquor	Save liquids from canned or home-canned vegetables. Try mixing them with tomato juice. Or add them to condensed soups. When you serve canned peas or beans, drain off liquor and simmer it to reduce amount one-half. Add vegetable, heat, season, and serve.
Cake	Pin bread slices to cut ends of cake with toothpicks. This keeps cake fresh longer.
Meat, vegetables	Chop leftover meat or vegetables. Add to scrambled eggs for a tasty luncheon dish.
Cheese	Grate pieces of cheese that grow hard before you get around to using them. Store in jelly dish. Use in vegetable salads, soups, or casseroles.
Canned fruit	To vanilla cornstarch pudding, add leftover canned fruit. Use fruit syrup for part of the milk. When pudding is thick, cool slightly. Add fruit. Canned cherries give the pudding a dainty pink color. Add a lift to a gelatine salad or dessert with leftover canned fruit and syrup.
Egg yolks	Sieve onto spinach and creamed vegetables. Use for making French toast or in the filling of a cream pie.
Baked beans	Make into sandwich filling. Mash beans, add a little catsup, onions, chopped celery, pickle or whatever seasoning you wish.
Semi-dry bread	Cube for crispy toppings on scalloped dishes, for bread puddings, or croutons for the soup. Use the slices whole for French toast, to top with gravy and a bit of meat, fry for sandwich. Food chopper grinds dry bread for crumbs—tie a paper sack over the end to catch them quickly and neatly.
Biscuits and muffins	Split, butter, and toast in oven. Or sprinkle muffins with sugar and cinnamon, and toast. Serve creamed meats or vegetables on toasted biscuits.

By Russell K. Lowry

I have a beautiful female English Setter puppy, but we are undecided about raising puppies later on. Are they much bother? Can an amateur raise a healthy litter?—J. F. Z., Maryland.

English Setter mothers have between 6 and 10 puppies in an average litter. With only eight places at the table, big litters may call for bottle feeding of a formula (as you'd care for a baby). Unless you help her out, too many pups penalize the entire litter and put a handicap on the good condition of the mother. Aside from this one problem, an amateur can raise a fine, healthy litter—just as easily as the professional breeder can.

The neighbors have complained about our dog roaming about, and we have tied his leash to a stretched wire clothesline so that it slides along and gives him lots of exercising room. Will this make him vicious? He refuses to eat and perform his evacuations.—Mrs. W. H. C., Pennsylvania.

Tying up the dog is the right thing to do. It won't make him mean or vicious, unless he's teased and taunted by strangers. He'll eat and perform his duties all right when he sees you mean business. Don't let him bully you by his sit-down strike.

When we lost our 16-year-old dog recently, we were happy that the good care we had given him help him live so many years. But friend pooh-poohed it as being no ing out of the ordinary. What is t average life span of dogs?—M. F. C. P., Vermont.

of injections covering several weeks. The drug is very potent, but your veterinarian probably figured your pet's condition incurable since a heavy heartworm infestation is considered fatal. I'd advise the same treatment for your other dog. If you act quickly, chances are you can save him. Apparently humans are entirely immune from invasion by heartworms.

At what age do female dogs mature? We don't want puppies. Is it necessary to put our dog in a kennel during her season?—G. M. Mc., Michigan.

Small breeds mature at one year or sooner. A dachshund recently bore a litter after being mated at the age of 4 months, 11 days (tho this is extraordinary). Large breeds mature more slowly, sometimes taking two years. Actually, there is no such thing as a definite maturing date for dogs. It's not necessary to send your female away for best protection. Keep her at home. Exercise her on a leash and be vigilant. Male Romeos are easily driven off by a harsh command or a threatening gesture.

Tell Better Homes & Gardens readers about your project

WHAT are you doing these weekends and evenings? Many Better Homes & Gardens readers are adding extra rooms to their houses, remodeling kitchens and garages, putting up porches or laying terraces. They have found out they can have better homes for less money by doing this work themselves. Are you one of them? If so, tell us about it.

Better Homes & Gardens will pay regular editorial rates for manuscripts accepted. But we do want photographs—before and after shots (from the same angle) of remodelings, action pictures of new construction—and an estimate of how much money you are saving by doing the work yourself.

Your project needn't be a big one: Our readers are interested in finishing attics, as well as building new houses. Dig out your family album. You may have a picture story in it!

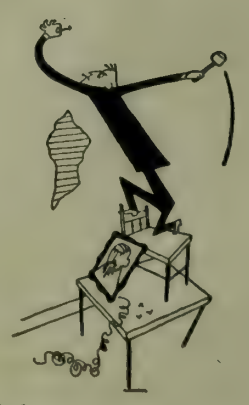
How long before building costs drop substantially?

No immediate sharp drop is in sight, barring a major depression. The price trend in building materials is stable or up; building labor is expecting wages at present levels or above. Without sharp wage reductions, there can be no corresponding drop in costs. (Wenzlick believes there will be a substantial drop within four or five years, however.)

What advice would you give a potential home buyer or builder?

A home isn't an investment: Your own needs, desires, and means will, in the final analysis, determine whether you will build or buy a new house, or remodel your present one. But if you buy or build, make sure the payments are within your capabilities. One rule of thumb is that the price you pay shouldn't exceed 2½ times your stabilized annual income: in other words, if you earn $5,000 and expect to continue to make that much, your top limit should be $12,500.

Another formula is to total all your payments (amortization, taxes, insurance, etc.), plus an adequate reserve for maintenance. Be sure you can keep up those payments despite a cut in income. Make a down payment large enough so a drop in the market won't leave you owing more than the house will sell for.



If you can meet those requirements, go ahead and build. The satisfaction your family will have the additional four or five years in a home tailored to its needs may well outweigh the risk of a shrinkage in value. Giving your children a proper start in life and getting more out of life yourself can't be measured in dollars.

Will an old house be a good or a bad buy in 1949?

Old houses can give you space, livability, and location in an established community, tho they may need streamlining and modern equipment. Despite many spotty exceptions, old houses will cost less to buy in 1949 than they did in 1948. They may cost even less in 1950 and 1951. The individual house will provide much of the

Memo to a man with a sore nose

Congratulations, sir! Your bandaged beak is a badge of honor!

It's a symbol of service . . . a sure sign that you, like most of us these days, have been keeping your nose to the grindstone—working to keep your family living the way you want them to live.

But what of the future? Your nose can't take it forever. Someday you'll want to retire, to follow the hobbies and take the trips and do the things that you've always dreamed of doing.

That's going to take just one thing—MONEY! And will you have it when you want it?

You will if you're buying U. S. Savings Bonds automatically—on the Payroll Savings Plan where you work, or on the Bond-A-Month Plan at your bank.

With either plan, you're heading for real financial security. Month after month, regularly as clockwork, your money is saved for you. All you have to do is sit back and watch the Bonds pile up.

It's just about the easiest, surest, fastest way of building financial security that anyone ever dreamed up. And with U. S. Savings Bonds, you make money while you save it. Every $75 Bond you buy today will be worth $100 in just 10 years!

Of course, you can always buy Bonds at any bank or post office. But the best way, the sure and steady way, is to buy 'em automatically!

Start doing it now! Keep on doing it! And in no time flat, you'll find that you're well on your way to a permanent separation of nose and grindstone!

"Upton was saying only yesterday that if we ever build another home . . ."

answer. If it's one you really want, and is for sale at a price reflecting the downward trend, chances are good it will give you relatively economical housing. (Matthews says, "I believe an old house will be a better buy in the future than in the recent past.") However, if the house still is wearing a 1948 price tag, don't buy (comments Wenzlick: "Older houses, in my opinion, will be bad buys in 1949 and for the next couple of years").

Is it advisable to sell an old house now and build a new one?

Here, again, you must balance your own needs and those of your family, and your family finances, against your present house. If you're the one-in-a-million homeowner who has another place to live for the next few years, you may be financially ahead to sell your old home now, and build a new one later. Generally, however, if you own a good old house, hold onto it. If your house is too big, a smaller modern home may have some compensations not reflected in building costs—and the "trade-in" value of your old house still is relatively high.

(Miller emphasizes that here, too, you must ask yourself these questions: Can I keep up the payments on the home I would like to build or buy? Is my down payment large enough? Can I afford to take a loss on the market value of my new home?)

How long will present old-house values hold?

Values are starting to taper off now, as the scarcity premium fades. (Matthews and Miller expect the price drop to be gradual, with prices perhaps 10 percent less in 1949, 20 or 25 percent less by 1955.)

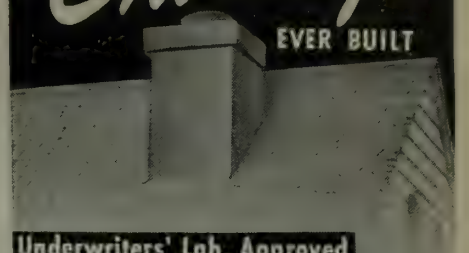
What will happen to interest rates?

There's no question but that interest rates will rise, and they may drift slowly upward for the next several years. Slightly higher rates are innocuous for a year, but multiplied by long retirement periods they become serious.

What about availability of credit?

Credits already have tightened. Builders and buyers find it more difficult to arrange financing at better than 60 to 70 percent of appraised value. That means larger down payments.

What will happen to appraisals?



Lending agencies will view appraisals much more carefully. Banks and loan companies are trying to avoid a recurrence of the middle thirties, when they were loaded with foreclosures on property valued at boom levels of the twenties. There's a tendency to chop 30 or 40 percent off today's appraised market values.

What about veterans' loans?

The veterans' opportunities for loans at a low interest rate are less than in the past; in some areas 4 percent loans are practically nonexistent. (Wenzlick forecasts: "A 4½ percent rate will be minimum for any type of loan.") The Veterans Administration is using cost allowances somewhat below what house price tags indicate—in line with local realities. However, the veteran still is in a favored position, and is likely to remain so.

Bamboo planters bring a breath of the tropics into your home. The clear gold of natural bamboo is preserved by colorless lacquer to prevent splitting or discoloration. Plant vines in china or glass container and insert in cutouts. Tall planter, about 18", holds 2 plants; $3.95, ppd.; small single planter is $1.25. Bamboo Craft, Box 2513, Boynton Beach, Florida.

The family's clothes get so dirty, especially when it's a favorite doll family. So the little mother really needs the latest thing in washers. A windup motor keeps the insert swishing back and forth for several minutes to get doll clothes clean. Wringer squeezes some water out. Of clear plastic trimmed with pink and blue, the Snow White Washer is 8" tall; $2.25, ppd. Herald House, 505 Fifth Ave., New York 17, New York.

Rings of metal, fastened to cupboard walls add storage space for dishes, reduce breakage, and make dishes more accessible. Fastened to wooden sides or behind center post of cupboard, each Dishelf will support plates, bowls, or dishes of almost any shape, or will hold flowerpots indoors or out. Set of three 4½", 5", and 5½" in diameter, in a package; 50c, in stores or ppd. Vinkemulder Mfg. Co., 1039 Walsh, S. E., Grand Rapids 7, Michigan.

Delicately etched letter paper brings peaceful New England scenes to accompany your notes. Shown are Harbor Reflections, The Sleigh Ride, Pastoral, and The First Snowfall, in shades of gray on fine white paper. Flat sheets, $7\frac{1}{4}$"x$10\frac{1}{2}$", with envelopes, are $1 for box of 12, all one design plus 6 plain sheets. In stores or add 25c per order for postage. Folded notes, 4"x5", are 15 for $1, ppd. The Cyr Studio, 217 Elm St., Amesbury, Massachusetts.

A ring for bathroom or kitchen is a convenient way to hang up a towel —just loop it thru whether it's a small kitchen towel or the big turkish kind. The ring is plastic in porcelain white. Lies flat against the wall or may be tilted outward to let the towel dry faster. In two sizes, 6" or 8" across; either size Solo-Taire Towel Ring is $1.25, ppd. The Lyon Sales Co., Broad St. Bank Bldg., Trenton, New Jersey.

Aluminum mailbox, 16″x11½″, is big enough to hold magazines and papers. Hinged lid overhangs to protect mail from rain. An "Outgoing Mail" clip suspends letters inside box in bad weather. Luminous numerals attach without tools. Nor-Gee Mail and Newspaper Box, bronze, gray, white, or brass finish, $5.95, in stores or ppd. Nor-Gee Corporation, 323B Chandler St., Jamestown, New York.

THE MAN NEXT DOOR

My friends like to brag mournfully how much it costs to send their sons and daughters off to college. They forget to mention that it cuts the grocery bill in half, and makes possible an extra hour of sleep, four nights out of five.

Hint to husbands who like to cook: If you keep nails and screws around the kitchen in an old jar top, one of 'em is certain to show up in a pie or beef stew and give it a novel texture and flavor.

I'm told it's become old-fashioned not to spank unruly sons, but there are better ways: to lock up the electric train, to confiscate the bicycle, to insist on frequent washings of the car, and finally to enforce weekly scouring of the garbage cans, on grounds of sanitation.

I'm alarmed to observe how garrulous my friends are getting as they mature. (I hope they overlook the same tendency in me.) But those who were strong silent men at 30 seem to become incipient chatterboxes in their 40's.

"It takes all sorts of women to make a world," muses Phyllis Gowan. "Including women who listen to soap serials when they could enjoy Don McNeil, Fred Waring, or Art Godfrey, without tears."

Another important distinction between the sexes: It's rude for a man to interrupt a woman in a monologue on clothes or pressure cookery, but it's cute, whimsical, and fetching for a woman to block a man nine times in the midst of his favorite story about the Boston spinster and the Portuguese sailor.

⬆ Pertinent observation on fathers: It's queer how a man who has never had a pair of skis on his feet in his life feels perfectly competent to teach his children how to ski. (I'm afraid this overconfidence seeps into more vital realms, too.)

You can (furtively) just about size up the caliber of a friend's housekeeping by a glance at the uncleaned cutting edge of the can opener on the kitchen wall and the patina on her rubber washbowl stoppers. At least those are the clues my Aunt Cornelia always relies on.

Soon after I took my marriage vows I swore (as a fugitive from a bachelor's turmoil) to read at least one book a week, amid the serene quietude of family life. Now I'm lucky if I even get a look at the daily paper.

I've studied the programs of all six radio stations which my machine reaches easily, and now I've evolved my own weekly program. By skillful dialing I can get thru several hours at a time without being browbeaten, excruciated, harangued, wheedled, intimidated, or bored.

One of the wisest men in our town thinks he has the perfect formula for keeping on amiable terms with his in-laws.

"I simply treat them as formally as if they were college professors," he says. But you can't quite do that with all in-laws!

When a man's taking a dim view of his teen-agers' magnified romances, nothing irks him more than to be reminded that Romeo and Juliet were teen-agers, too. ➡

My wonder girl still thinks it's a piece of masculine unfairness when I argue that the milk, egg, bakeshop, and dining-out bills ought to be included in the monthly food bill. And (like the heroine of Life With Father) she's gentled me into a defensive corner where I'm almost willing to admit she's right.

Further definition of a modern father: When he finds his 8-year-old has drilled holes in the table-tennis table, he blames himself for leaving the tool chest unlocked.

One cherished illusion that creates a faint almost invisible chill among neighbors: The erroneous belief that their children's antics are as adorable to others as to their own parents.

Our official joker at the club says he knows a married couple who haven't had a quarrel in more than 10 years.

"They've been separated that long," he explains.

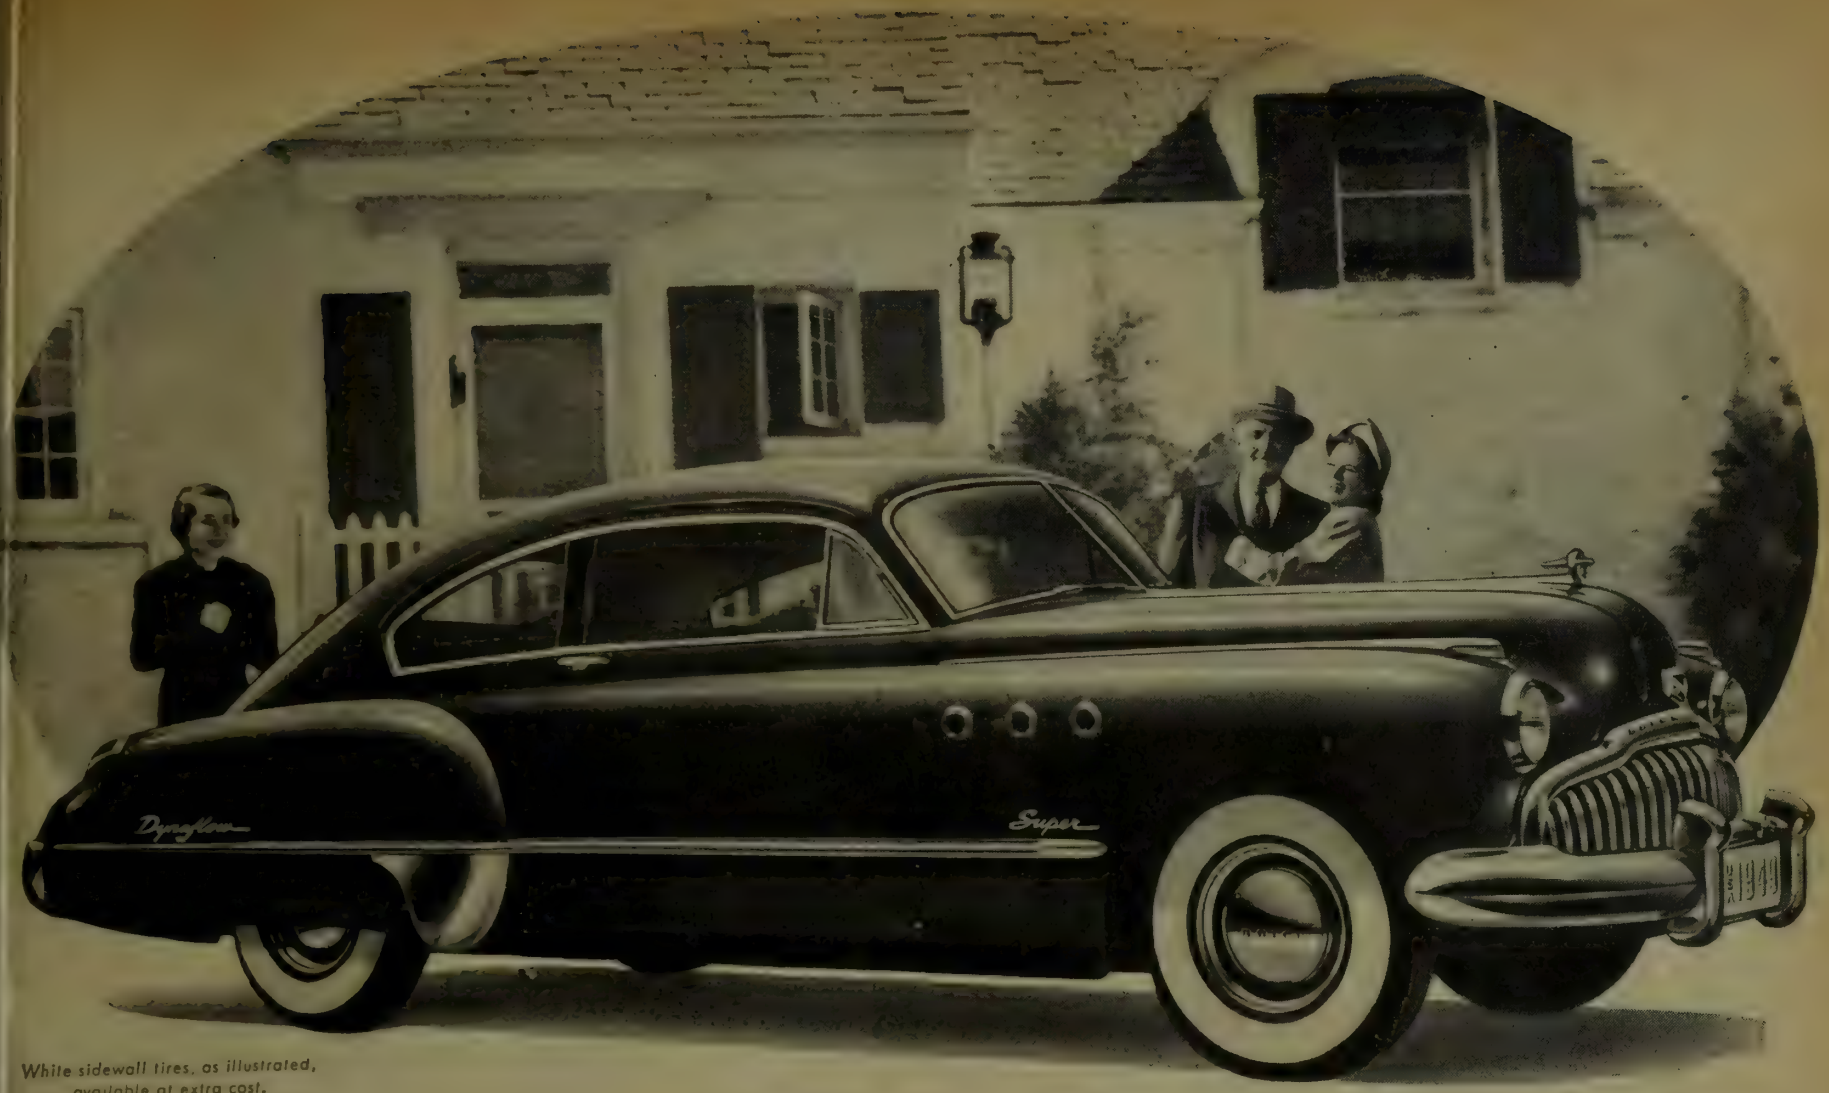
Our youngest has an appetite like a migratory bird.

At 5:30 he'll announce, "I'm starved, when do we eat!"



At a quarter to 6 we have to ring a bell, phone everyone in the neighborhood, and go around the block twice to summon him for dinner.

More reasons why our young moderns apparently can't improve on marriage: Your wife's cheery wave from the window as you shovel the snow. . . .A child's voice answering out of the darkness when you say "Dinner's ready!" . . . Secret discovery that two heads are better than one—a maxim you've always doubted. . . . Bedtime discussions when you learn you've both independently reached exactly the same caustic or indulgent conclusions about the latest gossip. . . . Hollowness of the house when you're alone in it, and the festive music of the car in the driveway or the thump of feet shaking off snow on the doorstep.

Makes the family's Beams come through

YOU can picture the first part easily enough — the bubbling excitement of your Lady and the youngsters as they see this spanking new Buick arriving at the door.

But — there's no containing the cheers when they sample the liquid-smoothness this big beauty gets from Dynaflow Drive†.

...When they see the room for you and your friends that's in gracious new interiors where even the softness of the seats adds appreciably to room overhead for hats and hairdos.

...When they discover they're sightseeing every foot of the way through greater glass area all round and a huge windshield curving into narrower corner posts for safer visibility for you.

...When they learn how much Fireball power means to effortless travel — how Hi-Poised engine mountings lull away vibration — what a wonderful ride is produced by coil springs at each wheel plus oversize tires on the industry's widest rims.

Fact is, there will be no end to your cheers either when you learn how much this Buick offers — at such surprising price-tag figures.

Check those now. Match Buick against the field for style and comfort and safety and sound value — and you'll get your firm order in.

The right answers can mean money in your pocket

. How much does insulation save on fuel bills?

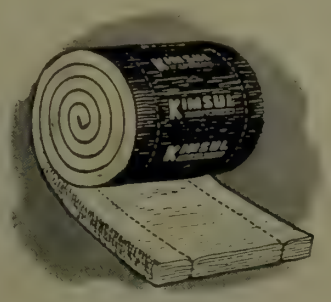
☐ Up to 10% ☐ Up to 44% ☐ Up to 22%

An efficient insulation, such as KIMSUL*, in-lled in the ceilings and sidewalls of your new me, can save up to 44% each year on fuel ls. These savings will usually equal the cost of ur insulation within four years. Thus KIMSUL ickly pays for itself.

. Who installs insulation?

☐ Skilled workmen ☐ Anyone ☐ Plumbers

. Anyone can install KIMSUL in an existing home. You simply ex-nd the blanket and fasten it in place. However, your dealer can range for professional installation in either your present or new home.



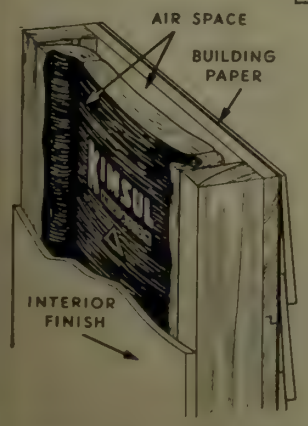
. How much does insulation add to the cost of build-ing an average 6-room house?

☐ $600 ☐ $50 ☐ $150

. Insulating throughout with KIMSUL is estimated at about 1% of he building cost. In the average 6-room house the cost is usually 100 to $150, or less than you'd pay for a new refrigerator.

Q. How long will insulation last?

☐ About 20 yrs. ☐ For life ☐ 10 yrs.



A. KIMSUL will last for the life of your house—won't sag, sift or settle. It is permanently resistant to moisture, in-sects, vermin and mold. Each of its many layers—even its Pyrogard* cover—is individually treated to be fire-resistant.

Q. Where should a new house be insulated?

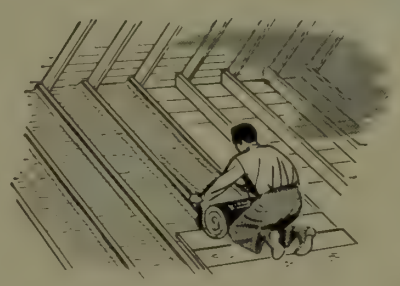
☐ Walls and basement ☐ Walls and attic

☐ Depends on how cold the winters are

A. The outside walls and attic of a new house should be insulated (also floors over basementless areas). The illustration shows how many-layer stitched KIMSUL, installed in the center of the wall space, provides scientific wall construction. Builders will tell you this is the most efficient way to insulate the walls—with air spaces on both sides of the insulation.

Q. When should a new house be insulated?

☐ In the summer ☐ When it's being built



☐ After it's a year old

A. Be sure to insulate your house at the time you build. If it's a choice between insulation and some special luxury equipment, choose the insulation. You can install the other equipment later at the same cost. But it costs 3 times as much to insulate the sidewalls of a house if you wait till it's built!

Q. Can an old house be efficiently insulated?

☐ No ☐ Yes ☐ If it's not over 18 years old

A. Yes. A blanket of Double Thick KIMSUL, installed in the roof or attic spaces of your present house will make it a healthier, more comfortable place to live. The KIMSUL blanket in your attic alone can provide substantial fuel savings—often as much as 33%! Unlike loose-fill or blown-in types of insulation, the many-layer stitched design of KIMSUL provides uniform coverage over every inch of insulated area. No money-wasting thick spots, no thin spots where heat can leak out!

Q. What other benefits can I expect from insulation?

☐ Summer heat reduction ☐ Increased radiant warmth

☐ Winter draft reduction

A. You're right if you checked all three answers. With Double Thick KIMSUL in your attic, on hottest summer days your house will be appreciably cooler—possibly as much as 15°. In cold weather, walls, ceilings, and floors insulated with KIMSUL, have higher inside-surface temperatures, and thus contribute to radiant warmth within the house. In addition, these warmer surfaces do not create cold drafts.

The ultimate family

I KNOW a man, who, as a boy, lived for a while in Mexico. Too young to excite the prejudices of the people among whom he was living, but old enough to form valid judgments, he lived—not with the charming, cultivated classes of that misunderstood country—but with illiterate Indians.

These people took him willingly into their homes. He slept the moon-drenched nights through on a petate unrolled on the earthen floors of their mud houses. He ate the tortillas and frijoles cooked by their women on open fires in chimneyless kitchens. He saw their contentment with little; their willingness to share the simple possessions of their poverty with any needy person; their unfailing courtesy; their kindness to children and to old people; their willingness to accept the hardships and evils of the day along with its blessings. He discovered them as persons, and he respected what he found. He has been incredulous ever since that any people may be inferior just because they are different.

▸ IN A SENSE, THIS MAN had the opportunity to apply the experimental method of science to the study of an alien people. We're often told, nowadays, that we have had too much of science; that it's driving us straight down the road to destruction. Perhaps it is, but certainly not in the field of human relations.

The method of science is: Before dogmatizing, first find out the facts. Is it a fact that the Japanese are an intrinsically stupid people, capable of clever copying, but without capacity for original thought? Ask any California educator! Let him produce his grade sheets, while he tells of the work of Ogura in navigation, of Noguchi in medical research, or of that unknown Japanese who discovered the method of the calculus centuries before Newton and Leibnitz were born. Is it a fact that Jews are crooks, that the Pope is anti-Christ, that the Protestant Church is the ally of the devil and the apostle of anarchy in morals? Is it a fact that Negroes are stupid, irresponsible children, interested only in merriment?

▸ IF THESE QUESTIONS are shocking, that is more reason to face the fact that each of them is being asked and answered affirmatively today in many dark corners of private discussion. They are being answered without first discovering the facts; answered emotionally on the basis of the ancient savage assumption that he who differs is a potential enemy.

The world has become too small for this sort of thing to be endured longer. The world, alas, grew up that way; but if we are to survive, it will have to reform; and that reform must begin with the individual, with the family, in the home. For today the world is like a family into whose membership all sorts of strange people have been suddenly and permanently introduced. If that were done in your own family, wouldn't you try to make the best of it, to discover virtues in these strangers, and, if possible, to enlist their loyalty? Of course you would. We as citizens of a jostling world can do no less.

▸ SCIENCE TELLS US that people everywhere, under the surface of custom, are fundamentally much alike. Everywhere, some are good, some bad, and the great majority are in the middle, just as they are in the family. They are weak, just as we ourselves are. They are kind, as we prefer to be. They are the prey of evil impulses, as are we all. They are sheep following leaders who make them do things they couldn't bring themselves to do singly.

Why must the world become a family? Simply because there is no other way out. It's as simple as that. Most of us have listened to scientists who worked on the atomic bomb. They are appalled. They are pleading for a revolution; not one of guns and barricades, but an ethical revolution. Force, they tell us, may no longer be the arbiter of destiny. If it's used once more, in all its present appalling power, civilization will disappear. More, it's possible that the earth may become uninhabitable in all its most fruitful parts.

They wish it were all undone, but that can't be. They see but one great shining hope: That fear and practical necessity may bring to practical application the truth that every great moralist through the ages has preached in futility—that men are brothers. At last, they hope, Cain may be answered.

▸ WE DON'T EXPECT perfection in the family. Somebody is always getting into trouble, and policemen are found in our streets. Sometimes we hurt those who love us, with an irrationally fiendish impulse to do or to say the thing that will cause the most pain. But all this doesn't, most of the time, destroy the family. In this new, tiny world, we must expect similar things among nations; but they must never again be allowed to disrupt our unity. If one of a family insists on sowing his solitary patch of wild oats, the rest are seldom able to stop him. But they maintain the family, and when the prodigal returns, as he usually does, he finds a welcome.

▸ SO LET IT BE ALWAYS, among men and among the nations, not just through Brotherhood Week (February 20-27), but through all the weeks through all the years to come.

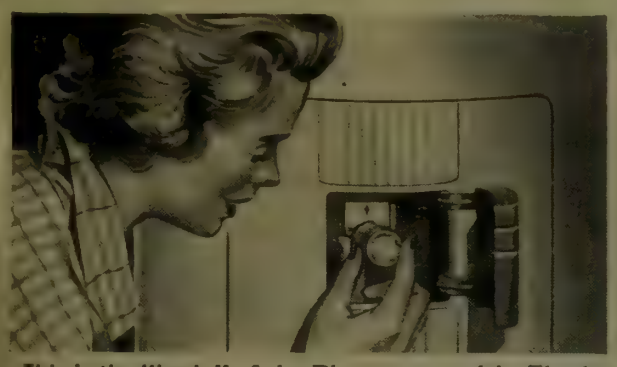
Automatic laundry machines give you whiter wash with real hot water. The automatic Rheem can be dialed up to 180° on washdays, flicked back to normal for day to day needs.

"Meet Your New Servant"



An automatic water heater requires no attention—will serve you round the clock if your needs are diagnosed before you buy.

By R. E. James
Rheem Engineering Consultant

Today, you no longer simply buy a water heater. You call in an expert to help you select an automatic appliance in exactly the right size, and fuel, that will anticipate every need for hot water in your home.

Then you won't run the risk of running out when washing machines, tubs and taps need hot water most. Neither will you have fears when you're away from home because an automatic water heater shuts itself off when hot water is not in use—goes on again only to keep the full tank ready for your taps, and at the temperature you want.

Two precautions will keep your hot water flowing for years to come without trouble or expense. Have a competent plumber carefully determine your maximum hot water requirements—and be sure to get a reliable water heater—RHEEM . . . brand name of the world's largest maker.

This is the "brain" of the Rheem gas models. The dependable Grayson Unitrol. You set the thermostat for the water temperature you want. The control automatically feeds gas as required to maintain the preset temperature. Goes on and off by itself. Even shuts off all fuel if the pilot light should go out.

And this is the "heart" of the Rheem. A long-life warranted steel tank, evenly fused with zinc by the patented* Rheem-Process. Prevents tiny pinholes that lead to leaks and corrosion. It is being sheathed in a thick blanket of Fiberglas insulation to keep the water hot when the burner is off. *Pat. No. 2444833

All Fuels, All Automatic, All Guaranteed. The Rheem comes in many sizes and models for gas, including "bottled," oil and electricity. Rheem automatic water heaters and other home comfort appliances are merchandised through selected wholesale distributors to your plumbing and heating dealer.

FREE For everything you should know about a reliable new water heater, just fill in, clip and mail. A handsome, descriptive booklet will be rushed.

to keep telephone wires

BEHIND THE SCENES...

After carefully planning lovely settings for your new home, you'll want to be sure that nothing mars their beauty. You'll want telephone wires concealed. And that's easy to arrange, if you act before you build.

Simply mark on your plans the places where you'll want to have a telephone. Call them to the attention of your builder or architect. Then, while construction is going on, a few sections of pipe or tubing can be run inside the walls to carry telephone wires to built-in outlets. Later, when telephones are installed, the wires can be run through these raceways to each telephone installed.

Finger-tip control button regulates speed of closing. Yoke Model Brake-O-Matic closer for screen, storm, or inside doors, $2.95; Torpedo Model for heavy outside doors, $3.95; at dealers or direct from The Mitchell-White Corporation, 12 E. 22nd St., New York 10, New York.

Spring holders clamp to sides of ironing board to hold cover and pad taut and wrinkle-free. Springs release readily when cover is removed for laundering. Holders eliminate tiresome job of tacking cover in place. Holders are nickel-plated steel, graduated in length to fit slope of board. Set of 5 Covertite Holders, 75c, in stores or ppd. Wenson Products Co., 1647 Rockwell Ave., Cleveland 14, Ohio.

Two-step ladder fastens on closet door or wall to make top shelves readily available. Ladder is ivory-finished wood; 12" x 3¾" steps are rubber treaded. Steps fold flat against door or wall when not in use (right), are firm and steady when unfolded. On-A-Dor Ladder, Model L for doors with left-hand knob, Model R for right-hand; $3.95, in stores or ppd. On-A-Dor Company, 43-23 42nd St., Long Island City 4, New York.

The Dot Snapper family now includes Wood Snappers to fasten dressing-table skirts, bed skirts, closet trimming, or valance-board covers in place. Stud of snapper is fastened to wood with attaching tools from regular Dot Snapper Kit; no nails or screws are used. Socket of snapper attaches to skirt or ruffling. Snap trimming on in a hurry, unsnap for laundering. Dot Snapper Kit, with tools, $1; refill pack of 12 Dot Wood Snappers is 50c; in stores only. John Dritz & Sons, 1115 Broadway, New York 10, New York.

Beater for those hand-whipping jobs has all gears enclosed in a red plastic housing so no food can splatter into the works to slow up motion or throw gears out of alignment. Ease of action is maintained even after repeated washings. Whip-R-Well Mixer, $1.98, in stores. Thos. J. White Plastics Co., Inc., 7818 Weaver Ave., St. Louis 17, Missouri.

Tree protector lets young trees grow unmolested by rabbits or other rodents. Waterproof-plastic protector, 12″ high, is made in two sections that interlock to form complete circle of safety around tree trunk. Units may be placed one on top of the other to carry protection as high as needed; keeps trunk growing straight, protects against sunscald and winter-burn. Cee-Tee Tree Protector, 49c each or 6 for $2.94, at dealers. Como-Tex Co., Board of Trade Bldg., Chicago 4, Illinois.

Laundry cart helps in every phase of laundry work, saves steps and labor. Aluminum frame supports canvas hamper. Chain on legs keeps them from spreading and tipping. Wring clothes directly into hamper, then fold frame to carry clothes to line. Carries like a suitcase so you see where you're stepping, even up and down stairs. Just as useful for bringing laundry in, or holding ironing. Wash Day Maid with 4 rubber-tipped feet, $4.95, in stores or ppd. Wheels available, 2 for 50c. Allied Industries, 1220 Grand Ave., Des Moines, Iowa.

Training steps for the toddler add 10½″ to his height, provide a hand-hold at each side to steady his feet. All aluminum, the steps are feather-light to carry, but support up to 100 lbs. weight. Steps are grooved to prevent skids. Over-all height, 22″. All-Tot Two-Step Trainer, in stores or ppd., $3.95. All-Tot Sales Co., 1398 E. Ninth So., Salt Lake City 5, Utah.

Tool holder for garage or basement wall supports 7 standard tools up off the floor where they stay clean and dry. Holder is heavy steel, finished in green enamel. It is designed to let tools hang straight without interfering with each other in storage or when removed or replaced. Garden Tool Holder, $2.50, in stores or ppd. from Burger Forge, P. O. Box 488, Elgin, Illinois.

Hypodermic needle injects new life into old furniture joints. A small drill at one end of the tool bores a tiny hole in the heart of a joint to be mended. The other end of the tool is a syringe that forces glue through the tube and into the joint. Any standard furniture glue will work, to strengthen shaky table legs or loose chair rungs. Glue Injector, $1.25, in stores or ppd. Duplicon Company, Inc., 37 Saddle Hill Road, Hopkinton, Massachusetts.

Drying space is provided behind the shower curtain where washbowl laundry can drip into the tub and dry out of sight. Or the bar can hold towels, or swing the shower curtains outside tub for faster drying. Heavy chrome-plated bar adjusts from 36″ to 72″ to fit stall or tub showers; clamps to curtain bar with wing bolt. Need not be removed when not in use. Handi-Arm, $2.69, in stores or ppd. Flynn-Carson, 2514 W. Shakespeare Ave., Chicago 47, Illinois.

More than 2

In the old "Monitor Top" model (at right) General Electric developed the sealed-in refrigerating system that has set an unsurpassed record for dependable performance. Shown above is the latest General Electric model—the new 1949 Refrigerator-Home Freezer Combination. Your friendly General Electric retailer will be glad to show you the different models and sizes in General Electric's complete new 1949 line.

2 million in use 10 years or longer!

• If you are thinking of buying a refrigerator, the statement above has a significance for you far beyond the manufacturer's justifiable pride in a well-made product.

Your investment in any refrigerator is a major one . . . and here is assurance that you invest wisely when you choose a General Electric. For a refrigerator's most important advantage—one that cannot be demonstrated on the showroom floor—is trustworthy service . . . every minute of every day, for years and years to come.

No other refrigerator can excel General Electric's record for dependable, economical performance!

Read what users say:

"The reason for my writing this letter is to tell you about our electric refrigerator which we bought in 1931. We have never had anything repaired on it in the 17 years that we have had it. The General Electric Company really must take great care and use good materials in their products."

MRS. WILLIAM D. ZINK
141 West Oley St., Reading, Pa.

"A G-E Refrigerator has given 20 years of continuous and efficient service in three households—in the kitchens of a mother and two of her daughters as they became married—now back in mother's kitchen after an absence of fifteen years, where it is serving as well as it did when new in 1928.

"During all these years it has not cost any of the three families a single cent for service or repairs, except 95 cents for a new rubber door-sealing gasket."

HENRY B. GOODMAN
New London, Conn.

"I feel that the General Electric Company would like to know that I have had a General Electric Refrigerator for 20 years. It is in good condition and still running night and day. Maybe you would also like to know that it has never had a service call."

MRS. A. J. HETTRICK
Oswego, Ill.

"On June 10th, 1930 I purchased a General Electric Refrigerator. It has run continuously since then and is still going strong. It has never caused me one bit of trouble and the motor is as quiet as the day I bought it. I think this is a wonderful record and I wanted you to know about it. You may be sure I shall always buy General Electric products."

MRS. AGNES D. EY
West Warren, Mass.

"In April 1929, we bought one of the coil-type (Monitor Top) models and it has been running continuously for 19 years and so far we have not spent one cent on it."

MRS. HARRY W. WOMACK
Havana, Fla.

"We have a General Electric Refrigerator bought in 1926 . . . in constant use all these years. It has never been serviced. This is a record I think even General Electric can be proud of."

MRS. H. BADER, Puyallup, Wash.

"Seventeen years ago this month my husband presented me with a G-E refrigerator as a birthday gift. Since then, summer and winter, it has served us continuously and during all that time our only expense on it was a new gasket for the door."

MRS. W. H. FOSTER, Eureka, Ill.

The Basic Reason:

The basic reason for the long and faithful service record of General Electric Refrigerators lies in the famous G-E "sealed-in" refrigerating system. This type of oiltight, airtight system, developed by General Electric, is recognized as the greatest of all contributions to dependable, efficient, economical performance in household refrigerators. General Electric Company, Bridgeport 2, Conn.

How we retired with $200 a month

ANN WAS DRESSING for the theatre, and while I waited that night I leafed through a magazine. I remember the date—August 17, 1926—because it was my 40th birthday, and we were getting ready to celebrate it.

As I turned the pages, my eyes rested on an ad. Maybe the reason it stopped me was that just that evening at dinner Ann and I had been talking about the same thing . . . our hopes for the future.

After all, we were pretty much like a lot of married couples. We found it hard to save. Money seemed to go out as fast as it came in. So, even in our happiest moments, there was always the worrisome thought that this couldn't last forever. I was getting older. Someday I might not be able to keep on working so hard. What then?

There on the page was the answer. There was just what we needed. I read the ad through to the very end. It told about Phoenix Mutual Retirement Income Plans, and how we could get a guaranteed income of $200 a month or more, beginning when I reached 60. And it wasn't just an income for myself alone. The Plan actually provided an income as long as either my wife or I lived!

When Ann came down, I was tearing a corner off the page. First coupon in my life I'd ever torn out. I stuck it in an envelope and mailed it on our way to the show.

Twenty years go mighty fast! The crash . . . the depression . . . the war. I couldn't foresee them. But I never had to worry about my Phoenix Mutual Plan.

A few years ago, Ann and I celebrated my sixtieth birthday. And it was a celebration! For, soon after, I got my first Phoenix Mutual check—and retired! Those checks will keep coming in —as long as either Ann or I live!

Now we can relax and enjoy our home and garden as never before. All because I started my Phoenix Mutual Plan—in time—while my best earning years were still ahead. You can do it, too.

Send for Free Booklet

This story is typical. Assuming you qualify at a young enough age, you can get any income you want—up to $200 a month and more—starting at age 55, 60, 65 or 70. Send the coupon and receive—by mail and without charge—a booklet that tells about Phoenix Mutual Plans. There are similar plans for women. Don't delay. Send for your copy now!

Shelved cabinet adds extra storage space on kitchen, bathroom, or bedroom door. Cabinet is 22-gauge steel, enameled white or ivory; 20¾″ x 68″; shelves are 3⅜″ deep and adjust to any arrangement you need. Three pin-type hinges hold cabinet in place over door paneling, while a latch at front keeps it shut. Dor-Cab shown is $24.95; de luxe model with full-length mirror, $39.95; in stores only. Dor-Cab Corporation, 516 Manheim St., Philadelphia 44, Pennsylvania.

Flexible long-arm reaches into inaccessible spots for you, retrieves objects dropped down a drain. It also sets and starts screws in hard-to-reach places. Pressure on plunger at top forces four spring-steel fingers out at the bottom; as pressure is lessened, the fingers close on the object and grasp it firmly. Magic Fingers, $1.59, in stores or ppd. G & D Products, Box 1074 U. P. Sta., Des Moines, Iowa.

Remove ice-cube trays from freezing unit without damage to trays or unit. Trays-Out was designed primarily to pry frozen trays out of place, but is equally as effective in scraping frost from home freezers during defrosting. Tool is alloy aluminum, smoothly finished. In stores only, Trays-Out is 39c. Porter Brothers, 264 W. Pike St., Covington, Kentucky.

Boil water in just 3 minutes to make instant coffee or tea right at the table. Pint container is all aluminum, lined and insulated; plugs into electric socket. Thermostat brings contents to boiling, then holds heat just below that point indefinitely. Cof-Tea Electric Server is $9.95, in stores only. Welcamp Metal Products Co., 1952 Anthony Ave., Bronx, New York.

Front-porch light is combined with bell push, so when callers ring your doorbell, the entrance lights up. Light stays on 5 minutes, then turns itself off. Mounted on outside wall, the light connects with electric socket inside house, utilizes a 60-watt bulb. Cast aluminum finished in copper or antiqued bronze, Lynd-Lyte is 7½″x4″x3¼″ deep; $6.95, in stores or ppd. Lynd-Lyte Manufacturing Co., 5011 Clark Ave., Cleveland 2, Ohio.

Electric time in your kitchen can be decorative as well as accurate. This clock may be hung on wall or inset so perforated white-plastic numeral band is flush with wall. Color of wall behind band shows through. Dial is red, blue, gray, or tan with white minute markings and hands. Outside diameter is 7⅛″. The Telechron Decorator Clock, with 6-ft. cord, is $5.95 plus Federal tax, in stores only. Telechron Inc., Ashland, Massachusetts.

Floor-length windows

They make the most of sunlight or a terrace view

By Marguerite Cottington

RIPPING up one living-room wall to change the size of your windows won't be fun. And (unless you're a contractor) it won't be a spare-time job. But if your living room is dark and glum, or if you're missing a view of trees and lawn outside, changing windows may pay handsome dividends. The Earl Chalbergs of Glen Ellyn, Illinois, found that new floor-length windows gave them a bright, uncluttered, modern living room. Like this:

Photograph: Balzhiser

Before. Clever drapery or curtain treatment couldn't make these windows look attractive or well spaced. And even in summer the windows were too high and small to let much sunlight into the living room

Suter, Hedrich-Blessing, Ltd.

After. Window over the radiator at left was plastered up · now the wall has stopped looking cluttered. Then the small windows above the sofa were replaced with a glass door and flanking floor-length windows that take advantage of streaming sunlight and give depth to the room

How to fasten two

Second of two articles: Simple joints you can make, how to use glue and metal fasteners

By John Webster

To hold a butted upright. A toenailed joint (1) will be at its best if you are careful not to slant the nails at too great an angle. Angle plates (2) can be attached singly or in pairs, on one or both sides of the upright. Wood cleats (3) are easy to make and use, and have the advantage of the strength given by two-directional nailing. Nail the cleat to the bottom board first, then nail on the upright.

To make a lapped joint, first mark saw cut for depth. Use depth gauge, or make one by turning a screw into a wood scrap so it projects half the board's thickness. Saw to depth mark, make extra saw cuts in waste, then remove waste with chisel boards together

ON ROUGH or temporary jobs, you can fasten two boards together by butting them against each other and driving nails or screws (see page 94, January Better Homes & Gardens).

But to finish a job in a craftsman-like way, you'll want to strengthen joints and improve their appearance. With care and patience, you can do both, using ordinary hand tools.

Simple lapped joints can be made with a handsaw and a sharp chisel. Glue (page 176) will make any joint stronger. Metal fasteners often make a difficult job easy. Here are ways you can give your home carpentry a professional touch.

Metal plates. Among the joint-making aids at your hardware store are these metal plates. Each provides a quick, secure fastening. Pictured are a corner plate (1), a mending plate (2), and a screen corner brace (3). With metal plates, it is not essential that you miter right-angle corners, but mitering will give you a neater joint.

EAGLE-PICHER Combination Storm Windows and Screens

You'll be surprised at how quickly you'll change from screens to storm windows when you have these aluminum combination windows. No more lifting or lugging . . . no tools or ladders needed! You change 'em in minutes, from inside the house. Slide out the screen, slip in the storm sash — zip, it's done.

You'll be delighted with the beauty these streamlined windows add to your home. Their soft gray finish, narrow frames, blend in with any house-style and color.

You'll be pleased with the fuel savings you get. The extra pane of glass, the carefully engineered weather-tight fit, reduce your heat-loss through windows as much as 30% —cut your fuel bills by many dollars per year! Expertly installed, they can't warp. You get permanent service . . . fuel economy.

And now you can get combination storm and screen doors and removable sashes for picture windows of the same durable, beautiful aluminum!

Once a terrace . . .

Photographs: Harry Baskerville

Now a porch!

By Elizabeth Gilrain

The Craigs had a terrace at the rear of their house, but needed more useful living space. The concrete made an excellent subfloor. Now the Craigs still have enough terrace (far left) to enjoy, and a porch besides. Large glass areas are in scale with the rest of the house, are easy to see out of, and easy to keep clean. Getting an attractive pitch for the roof was the big problem, solved with a low shed roof

YOUR terrace can become another all-weather living room—without too much expense, and without spoiling the lines of the rest of your house.

Take the home of Mr. and Mrs. Talton R. Craig, Sr., in Canoga Park, California. There an odd-job room was needed—for reading, lounging, and entertaining guests. The designer, Cliff May of Los Angeles, solved the problem by planning a porch that enclosed most of the original terrace.

The porch is built from the same materials as the house itself, and is tied in so skillfully that it looks as if it had always been there. Its long glassed wall keeps out the weather without shutting out sunlight or view.

ow to get fine steaks every time ...

SWIFT'S

Just look for a Swift brand:

SWIFT'S PREMIUM,
SWIFT'S SELECT or

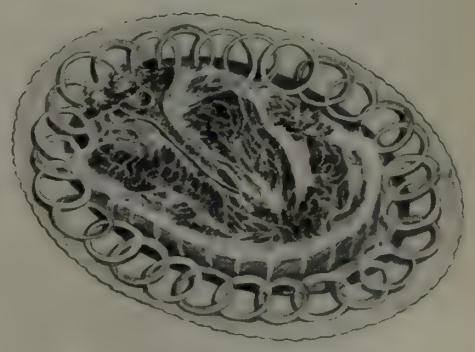
right on the meat!

YOU'LL ALWAYS GET FINE BEEF if you buy by a Swift brand name. Right on the meat, the brand name identifies beef selected by Swift experts for tenderness and flavor . . . the pick of all the vast amounts they see. Swift's Premium, Swift's Select, and Swift's Arrow—those are the three top brands. Look for them . . . on thrifty cuts or choice ones . . . whenever you buy beef. Now especially, when every morsel counts, your best buy is beef you can depend on, to the last tender tidbit!

Martha Logan



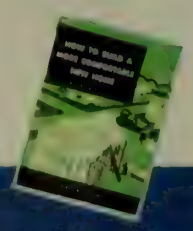
Swift's Home Economist, tells you

HOW TO GIVE A STEAK A BREAK

EVEN THOSE FINER Swift branded steaks are better for proper broiling: Slash fat along edge in several places to prevent curling. Preheat broiler. Place steak on broiler rack 3″ from heat source. A 1½″ steak takes 10 min. each side for rare, 12 min. for med., 13 min. for well done.

TURN STEAK CAREFULLY to avoid piercing—tongs are best. To test for doneness, cut along bone with a sharp knife and peek! Season each side of steak after it is browned, not before. And do serve the steak on a really hot platter. A garnish of rosy onion rings (marinated in pickled beet juice) is an epicurean touch.

NO NEED TO WASTE A BIT of that Swift branded steak. Leftover fat may be cut in bits and used in hash browned potatoes. The flank end (less tender than the other two muscles) can make another meal—sliced fine for meat pie, sandwiches, salad, or meat sauce for a noodle or rice casserole.



"This is my kind of a house, Mister!"

f you really want to find out about the materials that go into a ood house, it's not a bad idea to talk to one of the carpenters. One f the new materials he'll probably tell you about is Armstrong's Temlok®—the sheathing that adds so much strength to exterior valls and the lath that provides a strong base for plaster.

Armstrong's Temlok is made of wood, separated into fibers which re then formed into boards that are both strong and light in weight. There are millions of tiny still-air spaces between the fibers that eep heat from going through. That's why a house built with Temlok is warmer in winter and cooler in summer.

With all these advantages, Temlok costs no more than ordinary naterials. Actually, it saves you money. The big, convenient boards f Temlok Sheathing and Lath go up fast, cutting labor costs. And orever after, your fuel bills are smaller because Temlok stops heat oss. Ask your lumber dealer for samples and complete infor- nation about Armstrong's Temlok before you build or remodel.

Translucent glass in the bay window of the breakfast alcove permits light to enter, but provides privacy from the porch. Planting box at base of bay helps maintain the outdoorsy feeling on the porch. Interior walls are flush paneled; floor is asphalt tile; ceiling beams are exposed

Both ends of the porch taper into a V where the porch joins the house. At one end is a combination magazine rack, display shelf, and storage unit. Backs of the three racks are sloped so magazines stand upright. Note space heater which is built into storage unit between two cabinets

Crisco—the One and Only—Discovered this Better Baking Secret!

(Makes 2 nine-inch layers)

Follow directions carefully, be sure to use Crisco, and we promise you a lighter, richer, moister, more tender cake. The Crisco Cake Method is different—that's why it's sure-fire!

Measure into bowl (All measurements level):

2½ cups cake flour (sifted before measuring)
1⅔ cups sugar
⅔ cup Crisco
1 tsp. salt
¾ cup milk

Blend by hand or in mixer 2 mins. Now, stir in:

3½ tsps. double-acting baking powder*

Add: ½ cup milk • 3 eggs • 1 tsp. vanilla

Blend by hand or in mixer for 2 mins. Pour into 2 layer pans (9" x 1½" deep) rubbed with Crisco and lined with waxed paper. (For smaller pans, fill half full, bake cup cakes with remaining batter.) Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) for 30-35 mins. Cool; frost with creamy icing:—

2 tablespoons water
4½ tablespoons granulated sugar
2⅓ cups sifted confectioners sugar
1 egg • ⅔ cup Crisco • 1 tsp. vanilla

Boil water and granulated sugar together one min.; cool. Beat confectioners sugar with egg. Combine two mixtures. Add Crisco, vanilla; beat until creamy. Remove ⅓ cup of icing. Tint with a few drops of green coloring. Spread white icing between layers, on sides, and on top of cake. With knife or pastry tube place fine lines of icing one-half inch apart to make scale. Use candied cherries for notes.

With tartrate type use 4½ tsps.*

How to Shape their habits

Whether your child's habits are good or bad depends on you. You can make an ally of habit

By Daisy Jenney Clay

GOOD habits are like tomatoes. They're a fine thing but don't just happen. It's up to you to plant and cultivate them. Here's how.

1. Start with a limited goal. Your child can't learn a dozen points at once. Concentrate on one or two things. Attempt to cover the whole behavior at once and you'll fail. Your child will feel that no matter how hard he tries, he can never please you. There is always something wrong. So see that one goal is reached before going on to the next.

2. Look ahead and anticipate difficulties. As much as possible, keep ahead of the game—foresee situations and guide your child's reactions into the desired channels.

A friend of mine raises chickens. When her young chicks are graduated from brooder to coop, she spends several evenings seeing to it that they go to sleep in the proper roosting corner. They never get a chance to form the habit of sleeping in the wrong place. Chickens and children are different, but the principle holds. If you delay starting a good habit until its opposite is set, you have one strike against you to start with.

3. Take the positive approach in changing bad habits. If a poor habit is there to be dealt with, let's be, even here, positive. Don't break the bad habit, but replace it with a good one. Instead of "Don't come into the house with those muddy feet!", get a door mat and say cheerfully, "Wipe your feet!" It requires patience, time, and effort the first few days, but think of the time, effort, and unpleasantness you are saved afterwards.

4. Make good habits satisfying. We must remember that repetition alone will not do the trick.

It is repetition plus satisfaction that forms a habit. When we get Johnnie to do something we want to become habitual, we must see to it that he gets some kind of pleasant reaction from it. Virtue may be its own reward, but not to a child or a teen-ager. The least we can reward him with is a hearty "That's fine!" not an ungracious, "Well, you see you can do it when you want to!"

I'm not for paying our children to be good, but I strongly believe in giving them a reward in recognition—not a bribe, but a reward. We give rewards to our boy scouts, and to our soldiers, and we don't consider them bribes. They are like the grade of 100 on the examination paper. It wasn't much fun handing in papers when the teacher didn't mark them. Remember?

5. Keep your sense of humor. Let's not spoil the satisfaction end by lack of good humor. Take it for granted that habits are hard to break and hard to form. I had a lesson in this regard when I changed the place where I kept my reading glasses, and I reached mechanically for the old place several dozen times before I established the rhythm of using the new one. Their brakes and their self-starters are weak. "I forgot" and "I didn't think" are the stock alibis of our children—and perfectly justified.

So keep the understanding twinkle in your eye as you give needed reminders. A sense of humor helps immensely. One mother I know, observing the various places her young son dropped his coat and hat when he came into the house, put up "No Parking" signs in these spots. It worked—with laughter.

6. Teen-agers may backslide. At adolescence, so many good habits which we had thought were set into our children's character seem to melt away overnight. Our youngsters are trying their wings, evaluating the family attitudes and ways of living. But eventually they come back into the familiar groove. It helps if we parents do not become panic-stricken. In adolescence our children must, it seems, be like the others of their crowd. So if we are wise, we will bend every effort to see that they have friends whose pattern is a desirable one.

These teen years bring unfamiliar situations and new problems to our youngsters. Their inexperience and confusion make doubly necessary that we help them, without undue interference and direction, to form good life patterns.

It takes wisdom and it takes work, but that's what makes a parent's life rich.

A Better Homes & Gardens child care and training feature

"I put wings on breakfast —with this quick, can't-fail coffee!"

Lady, your husband will murmur "Strictly from heaven!"—when he gets his coffee pronto and just right every morning. That's the magic of Nescafé*...!

Magically convenient! Just measure Nescafé to suit taste—add piping hot water and stir. Coffee's ready—perfect coffee! No guesswork for strength you like. And as easy to make coffee for all as to make a single cup.

Magically fresh! With all the flavor and "lift" of freshly brewed coffee. Because Nescafé's choice, selected coffees are freshly brewed by experts. Then all the goodness is sealed into Nescafé by added carbohydrates until you release it fresh in the cup.

You'll spend less time in the kitchen when you serve Nescafé—for breakfast, lunch, dinner, or any time between. Always keep a jar on hand. Get Nescafé today—in the regular size or big economy size jar.

Weighted window shade. If the wind is blowing, you usually must close a window before you pull the window shade. Otherwise the shade will be battered and torn by the breeze. To control shade without sacrificing ventilation, substitute a length of narrow strap iron for the wood slat

Dustproofing a picture frame. The next time you fit a picture into a small frame, you can easily do a dustproof job. In addition to the glazier's points or brads, hold the picture or mat in place with rope-type weatherstripping compound, made for sealing openings around windows

Giving wood a metal surface. Aluminum foil, available in rolls for wrapping food, can be used to give wood a metal finish. Coat the wood (such as the picture frame) with shellac, then apply the foil while the shellac is still tacky. Rub down the surface with a dry cloth to get a burnished finish. Should you prefer a satin finish, finish by rubbing over the foil lightly with fine steel wool

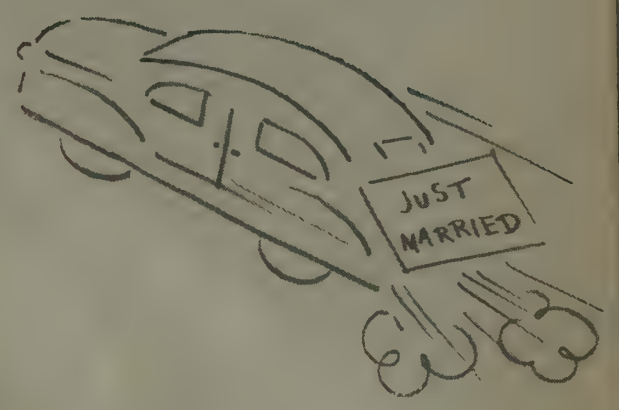
N.Y SERVEL

Stays Silent—Lasts Longer



(no moving parts in the freezing system)

th birthday party, in 1930, Mother made ice ur new Servel. "Can't ever get noisy," she told oudly. "Servel is the one different refrigerator."

Eighteen years later, Bob and I got engaged. Mother made ice cream in the same Servel! "And it's still silent—like my solitaire," I said to Bob. "It'll be Servel for us, too."

Yes—it was a beautiful new Servel for our kitchen when we fixed up the old house we bought after our wedding. For only Servel stays silent, lasts longer. The secret? Only Servel has no moving parts in its freezing system. No motor or machinery. Just a tiny gas flame does the work.

I love Servel's new conveniences, too. For fresh and frozen foods, it has every feature I want.

This story is typical. Writes Mrs. Floyd Buck of Middlebourne, W. Va., "Our son was a baby when we got our Servel. Now he's 20 and we've never had a thing wrong with our Servel."

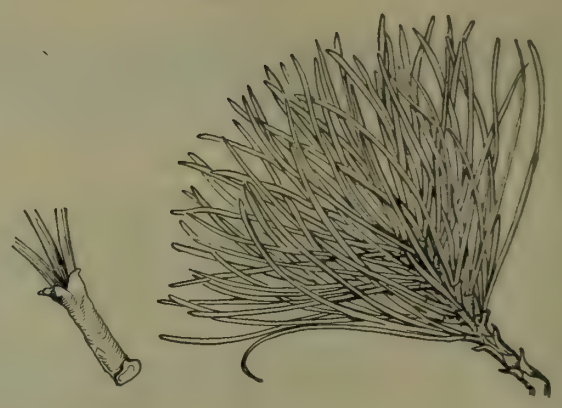
Know your evergreens



By Ralph K. Andrist

IF YOU can identify more than one or two of the cone-bearing evergreens without the help of a nurseryman's tag, you're an exceptional person. Most of us never get beyond the stage of referring to them all indiscriminately as Christmas trees.

It's easy enough to get discouraged when one tries to learn about evergreens. Right at the beginning we are confused to discover that the common redcedar isn't a cedar at all but a juniper. And we give up the fight when we discover that some evergreens like the larches aren't evergreen at all, but lose their needles in the autumn.

Even the species within the same genus are often bewildering—pines, for instance, range all the way from the majestic white pine to the squatty Mugho.

But if you go about it right, you'll find it easy to know your evergreens, and you can make a good start by learning to identify these seven most common genera.

PINE (Pinus) trees make a good starting point because they're hard to confuse with any other evergreen. The long needles arranged in clusters make the twigs look like bushy brushes and are unmistakable. For a foolproof indentification, you'll find that the needles are bound together in bundles of two to five (one single species has only one needle to a bundle) and the bundles are fastened to the twig in a sheath.

YEW (Taxus) is probably our most valuable ornamental evergreen with its good looks, hardiness, and large variety of handsome forms. You can identify a yew by its blackish-green leaves with their shining, leathery appearance and pale-green undersides; they are usually arranged in two flat rows, one on each side of the stem. Unlike pines, firs, spruce, and hemlock, yew trees are either male or female, and a sure sign of identification is the soft, scarlet cup-shaped berries on the female tree.

The scene above is taken from the new color movie, "The Story of a House," soon to be shown in leading department stores throughout the country.*

"Good night, Sonny. You're off to see the Sandman . . . in a real dream room."

One feature that makes his room so nice, Mother, is the 7-ply Mengel Flush Door. Notice how exactly it matches your Weldwood-paneled walls. And isn't the crisp, clean beauty of birch just right for a young fellow's room?

Of course, these attractive doors are also made in other fine woods such as mahogany, walnut and rift oak.

And, if you want to match painted walls, there's the Mengel Flush Door faced with gum wood. This moderately-priced southern hardwood gives you a satin-smooth surface for paint.

So you see, 7-ply Mengel Flush Doors can fit your decorative scheme perfectly . . . all through the house.

You and Dad will be interested in the construction, too. Mengel's patented Insulok core holds warping, shrinking and swelling to an absolute minimum. It gives you a door that's finger-tip light and unbelievably easy to handle.

And when it comes to housekeeping, you're going to like your Mengel Doors more every day. The smooth, unbroken surface offers no place for dust and dirt to cling. A quick whisk with a damp cloth, and they're clean.

Whether you're building or remodeling, plan to have these beautiful doors in your home. For help in planning, send the coupon for our free booklet, "The Door to Charm." Learn how easy it is to make a graceful entrance for every room in your house.

Put empty corner space to work

By Pauline Graves

CORNER arrangement of chests, bookcases, or storage units may make the best use of your floor space. But to use the chests or shelves freely, you sometimes must leave the corner space between them empty. The result is a hole in the corner and wasted space. This shelf filler is one of the best and easiest ways to fill the space and put that corner to work.

Problem

Twin chests or bookcases often have to be placed in a corner spot to make the most of all the wall space in a room. But you'll find that when your chests are arranged this way there's a gaping corner hole

Photographs: Maynard Parker

Solution

Build a filler (like the one on top of the chest at right) to fit the corner, finish it to match the chests. Then drill screw holes in the side of one chest and in the brace of the filler

With the filler in place between the chests, you'll have a handsome, spacesaving corner counter for toiletries, flower arrangements, or books

Designed for air conditioning

By Frank Lopez

HOME air conditioning is here. It's no longer a dream, but something you should consider when remodeling or building, just as you do indoor plumbing and central heating.

Complete air conditioning should control temperature, humidity, air cleanliness, and air movement all 12 months of the year. But to provide that type of control, the system must be an integral part of house construction; space for it must be planned when your house is remodeled or built, even though you don't install the equipment immediately.

Air conditioning has gone a long way since its first introduction years ago. Now there are nearly as many types of air conditioners as there are heating devices, from portables for a single room to units built into homes to provide, automatically, coolness in summer, warmth in winter.

Present-day conditioners offer you not only cleaned air—but cleaned air sent at different temperatures to various parts of the house. With zoning controls, you can maintain one temperature in one part of the house, another elsewhere.

The conditioners clean the air by washing it in a water spray, by filtering it mechanically, or by precipitating the dirt electrically.

Some air conditioners fit in closets, others in kitchens; some rest on the attic floor; some hang from joists in the basement or rest on the basement floor. Portable air conditioners—used in summer only—fit single windows or can be connected to ducts to serve several rooms. Cabinet models can be fitted into a game room or laundry.

Air conditioners are run by gas, oil, coal, or electricity; gas-fired types especially come in several types.

If you're remodeling your house fairly extensively, air conditioning with a central system can be installed with reasonable economy. If you don't plan a major remodeling, it may be impossible to install an efficient system. Portable or room air conditioners may then be the answer.

IF YOU'RE building a new house, make sure the system is laid out by a heating man thoroughly familiar with air conditioning. Preliminary calculations and proper duct design are at least as important as the air conditioner's heating unit.

With some types, you get all the advantages of complete air conditioning only in the winter, when the heating plant is operating. However, you can use the blower, intended to circulate warm air in winter, to provide air circulation in summer also. If you use with that blower a fan to discharge warm air through the attic louvers, you can do much to cool your house in summer, as well.

THOUGH year-around air conditioning may cost more than a system that provides only heat, planning your house for air conditioning will make up much of the difference. And against that cost, measure the benefits derived. If yours is a hot and humid climate, you may want it for coolness alone. There's little doubt that properly designed air conditioning reduces the number and severity of colds. And with effective air cleaning, air conditioning is a boon to hay fever sufferers.

Because of the interest homeowners are expressing in air conditioning, Better Homes & Gardens has chosen as its Five Star Home 1902 a house in which air conditioning can be installed with efficiency and economy. Street side appears above; floor plan and more pictures are on the following pages.

Planned around an entrance hall

The living-dining room presents this dramatic view just before draperies are pulled for the evening. Deep overhang keeps the summer sun and rain off windows. On both sides of fixed windows are floor-to-ceiling casement windows. Door at left opens onto the terrace

Here's the way the heating and cooling system works

Red lines indicate flow of warm air in winter and cool air in summer through ducts above closets. Blue lines indicate return air ducts under floor. In houses planned for air conditioning, you can omit basement, screens, and movable sash to offset extra cost of equipment

End wall of living room, windows, and chimney form an eye-catching vertical composition at the side of house. Top-hinged windows project out when open to keep rain out. Double doors open from equipment room

Concealed from passers-by, rear of house contains big glass areas, presents a pleasing combination of long lines and broad planes. Fine texture of the brick contrasts with horizontal lines of redwood siding. Dark window trim doesn't detract from view

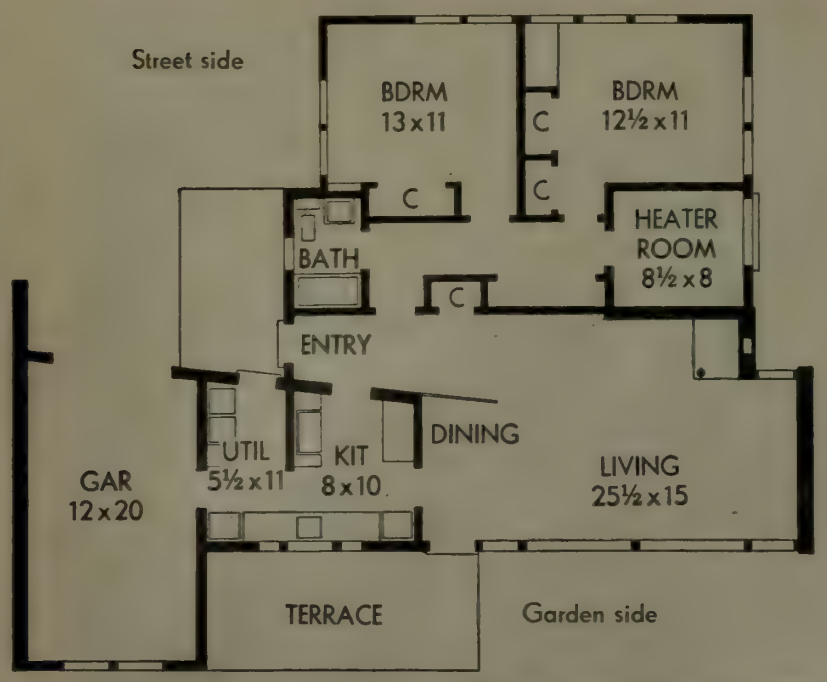
ALL too often these days, cost becomes a more important factor in building a house than does comfort. In looking for a place to cut costs, one of the best seems to be a hallway. Halls take up costly space that could be put to better use in other rooms.



Do they?

As proof that a properly placed hall can be one of the most important features of a house, Better Homes & Gardens presents Five Star Home No. 1902. Designed by David S. Barrow for Servel, Inc., the house as shown on these pages is furnished by Gimbel Brothers of Philadelphia and Better Homes & Gardens.

In this house, the entire room arrangement is centered on the entrance hall, which carries all traffic from room to room. And in many homes, especially those with children, traffic control is important.

Here's what the hall does:

- It carries you from the front door to any room in the house without going through any other room.
- It sets the living room off by itself, and makes it a room of quiet uninterrupted by members of the family passing through to other rooms.
- It lets you go quickly and directly [Turn to next page from the kitchen to the bathroom, and from the living room to the bedrooms.

Sound is controlled just as well as traffic. The two bedrooms are on the street side of the house, where they shield the living area and the terrace from street noises. Since noise from most streets is lightest at night, bedrooms, too, are quiet when you want to sleep. Two rows of closets and a hallway separate bedrooms from living-room noise, and closets help soundproof one bedroom from the other.

Arrangement of the rooms allows use of a minimum length of ducts in supplying air to rooms, and returning it to the heating plant. Warm air in winter (cool air in summer, too, if you install an air-conditioning unit) goes to rooms through a simple system of overhead ducts, is returned by passages under the floor.

The centrally placed kitchen-utility room is a U-shaped area, with a partition that divides one work space from the other. On one side you have your range and work counter, with your refrigerator across the aisle. On the back side you have solid cabinet space. The sink is under the windows where it is convenient to both the kitchen and utility areas.

The living-dining area is unusual. A translucent glass partition comes into it as a continuation of the entrance hall, to shield the dining area. The corner fireplace has a raised hearth, and is opposite the glass wall overlooking the garden. The fireplace catches your eye as soon as you enter the front door. The only windows in the room are on the rear, except for a bank of them that stretches toward the ceiling next the fireplace. The ceiling, incidentally, follows the slope of the roof above it to add visually to the size of the room.

Numbers on plan correspond with views across the top of these pages

Like many other good homes being built today, the house has long, low lines. The exterior, however, is unusual in many ways. The front door and utility-room door are side by side; by painting the front door an eye-catching yellow and giving it a distinctive design, as in the photograph above, you can make it clear which door is which. The utility door is a [Turn to page 134

Red or yellow apples? Or both? You can grow several dwarf trees in small space

You don't need an acre to grow your own apples. Dwarf trees can be had which at bearing age require no more space than lilacs, altheas, or snowball bushes do. They can be planted as foundation shrubs wherever there's sun. Pansies and tulips are at their prettiest below apple blossoms, and marigolds are gay by the time the apples are ripe. This dwarf Starking tree was photographed at the home of Dr. Robert L. Andrae of Louisiana, Missouri

You can grow fruit on a 50-foot lot

By Fleeta Brownell Woodroffe

WHAT could be more fun than picking fruit from your own trees? Flavor-filled fruit that's not been picked while still hard so it will ship well, but perfect fruit that's ripened on your trees getting sweeter and sweeter.

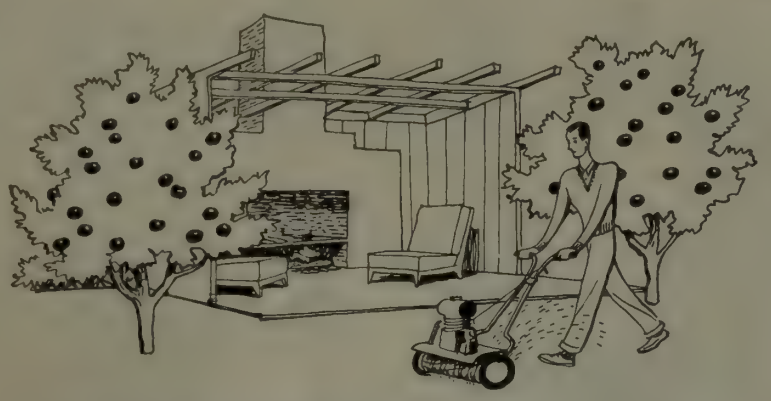
What could be more satisfactory than growing summer, fall, and winter apples this way? And your choice of pears?

Plant dwarf trees, and you can have all this fun. Big juicy apples and pears on little trees you can fit into half a dozen spots without trouble. Plant several varieties of dwarf apples instead of one standard-size tree, and you get—not every second year more apples than you can use, but each year family-size crops and a variety ripening over several months.

It's amazing, but the apples and pears grown on these modern dwarf trees are just as large and fine in every way as the same varieties produced on standard orchard trees.

The size of the dwarf trees now offered commercially is controlled in two ways. The wanted variety of apple or pear is grafted on a root which limits the size of the top. For pears, this is usually quince roots. Or, for all areas with wind and rigorous winters, there's a new race of dwarf apple trees grown with strong roots and a potent section of the hardy Clark dwarfing understock set into the trunk.

Both methods produce early-bearing trees—a few varieties will give you some fruit their second year.



Another plus—you pick your fruit without a ladder!

No perfect fruit is grown today without the trees being sprayed or dusted to control pests and diseases. But with these dwarf trees you can take all these necessary precautions using the same sprayer or duster you use for your roses or vegetables. All-purpose combinations containing both insecticides and fungicides are being developed to make this protective program still easier.

Care needed for dwarf apple trees. Trees not on an understock with strong brace roots, such as the Virginia Crab has, will have to be firmly staked to avoid upset by wind when loaded with fruit.

All dwarfs need an annual pruning and feeding to keep them at peak performance. This pruning is nothing that cannot be done with a pair of good hand pruners. It consists of removing the brushy center growth and heading back all branches a fourth to a third. This is best done in late winter. Nipping back extra-long shoots twice during the summer is also beneficial. [Turn to page 219

Three good places to plant dwarf trees

As partial screen for barbecue. A pair of dwarf trees—apples or pears—gives balance without the danger of crowding later. Set outside the line of daily traffic and lay mulch over root areas

As frame for doorway. Well-shaped dwarf apple trees can successfully rival the finest flowering shrubs. To keep them balanced and symmetrical, and to increase the crop, cut back long shoots

Combined with a flower border. Dwarf trees set across the end and the sides dress up an open lawn. Leave space about each tree for foot room while you spray the trees and pick the fruit

We thought we were going to build it for $8,500!

We enclose space

By Louise Randall Pierson

BEST-SELLER author Louise Randall Pierson ("Roughly Speaking") here tells how she and her husband, Harold C. Pierson, planned their home with a ball of string—then built it. You already know ("Pay Yourself Those High Wages," December, and "You Can Nail Down Building Costs With Your Own Hammer," January) that thousands of us are saving money by building or remodeling our own homes. You may not realize that families working on their own homes are getting a lot of laughs, as well as calluses. Mrs. Pierson fills you in on that department.

WHEN my husband and I decided to build a house with our own, then uncallused hands, people said we couldn't do it.

They were wrong, because here it is, only about a year later, and we expect to get the last of the windows in any day now. Then, as soon as we finish slamming the wallboard up, we can get the stove and refrigerator out of storage. And I won't have to cook on the impromptu brick barbecue I tossed so lightly together on what is going to be the patio when and if we get to it.

We undoubtedly would have made even greater speed if we had settled for a little prefab, bandbox deal instead of going all out on a 113-foot-long Modern. For, though a Modern looks as simple to throw together as a chicken roost, the trouble is that it looks like a chicken roost unless you dress it up with a lot of booby traps like furred down ceilings, soffits, offsets, and angles that would set Frank Lloyd Wright back on his heels.

We chose Modern for two reasons.

Our site in Big Rock Mesas, Malibu, California, is a small, flat plateau which hangs precariously 400 feet above, out, and over the blue Pacific. It fairly cried out for plate-glass walls through which you could see the surf and the circling gulls and the broad silver rippling beam the moon makes on the water at night.

Then for a long time I have had a sneaking desire to prove to my children that I am not as they regard me, an old party left over mysteriously from the Civil War. You are not really old, I had read somewhere, if you are still able to grasp something new. If I could pry myself loose from Colonial to which I had clung like a limpet for the last 58 years, I would be proving something. It was now or never unless I wanted to be buried with my feet on the cobbler's bench, wrapped securely in the old Paisley shawl.

Our first step was to get books on Modern and study them carefully.

I could see at once the Big Step was going to be harder than I thought.

It was some time before I could control my resentment at the authors' sneering tone toward the sacred [Turn to page 152

"This is where we want to sleep," we said as we trailed our ball of string behind us in laying out our home. And this is where we will sleep when we get some doors on and a bed in. The way the house is designed, every room has a view of the ocean. Of course, people who live in glass houses have to undress in the dark

In a moment of enthusiasm I personally poured the cement for the utility-room floor to surprise my husband. According to the plan, the plumbing cleanout from the bathroom next door I inadvertently buried is about there: The cement should give with a hollow sound over it. Just a few hours with a hammer and a star drill

REMODELING: The best way to get a home?

Here are the stories of two couples who are sure it is

THERE is no sign that building costs are going to drop much in the near future. But that needn't stop you from having a home of your own.

One good way is to buy an old building and remodel it. Not any old building, though—it must be structurally sound and capable of being renovated. Chances are that you will end up with as good a home at less cost than if you bought a house or built a new one. When you want to sell, you will probably be as well off financially, too.

It takes a lot of nerve and hard work, though, to start with a structural shell and create a home. Yet it's being done all the time, and done well. On this and the next three pages are the stories of two couples who got their homes that way—the hard way. Their stories may give you that last ounce of courage needed to make you take the final step toward obtaining your own home.

We chose a farmhouse

By Eunice C. Brandt

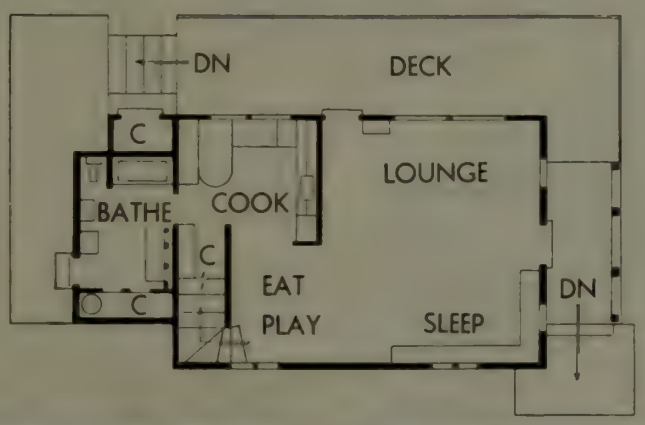
This is the farm we bought in '41

We intended to tear this building down

BEFORE Philip left for the army, we bought a small farm outside Salem, Oregon —a beautiful wooded tract with a house and barn we considered liabilities, to be torn down when we built our permanent home.

Our dream of a permanent home went up in smoke with building costs. So we took a second look at the sturdy logs and beams of the farmhouse, and planned to spend $1,000 on remodeling it into a temporary home. That dream was also shattered when we spent that much alone for a well and pump (the springs we had counted on vanished to a summer trickle). Our bathroom and kitchen spent the $1,000 all over again. But though our hopes and finances changed, our aims in remodeling did not.

Two ideas predominated: first, to have a feeling of spaciousness in our 20x30-foot home, and to have an interlocking of indoors with outdoors.



To give us the feeling of space, we removed all inside partitions downstairs. To bring the country landscape in, we cut 12 large windows and two doors in walls of the 20x30 room that [Turn to page 194

This is our house—almost all of it. Here are our living area (left), sleeping area (right), and dining space. Kitchen is off to left. Floors are vertical-grained fir covered with gymnasium floor varnish to resist marking and wear. Walls are hemlock finished with rose-gray filler and clear lacquer

Dining area is link between kitchen and living area, doubles as a play area. Since unity of plan demands unity of color, we used three colors throughout as a foil for hemlock: copper, (light fixture), yellow (draperies), and aqua (table base). Puerto Rican matting absorbs sound, shows little wear

Now that same building is our home. Unexpected costs and resulting changes in plans account for some of the paradoxes you see: roll roofing and log construction along with native hemlock and insulation in walls and roof. Wood is stained forest brown, crisply trimmed in white. Porch floor is red

We chose a barn

This is the way the barn looked when we bought it

We turned it 90° and dropped it on a new foundation

By Jean Day Bousquet

OUR housing problem was the same as that of many other people—dreams well beyond our pocketbook.

We wanted a place of our own to hang our hats, but we also wanted the hatrack to be original, and with character. Our job was to do all that on an average budget.

After John was discharged from the army, we secured plans for the dream home we had in mind, but found it way out of our reach because of the building situation.

We had a piece of land 100 by 228 feet in Amityville, New York, and on it was a 40-year-old barn. The more we learned about conditions, the closer we studied the barn. We found it sound—and that decided us.

The first step was to have the barn moved forward on the lot and turned halfway around. Then we pitched hay out of the loft and rummaged through old-fashioned tools and antiques we later used for furnishings.

Studying the floor plan, we found that only one partition was needed downstairs to make a hall and large living room out of the main carriage room. The tool room now is our dining room, and the two stalls our kitchen. Three partitions were put in the loft to form two bedrooms and a bath.

Our contractors, Kennedy and Becht, found that the original roof, siding and floors were in good condition and could be re-used to keep the total cost down. We made no additions, and [Turn to page 196

High blood pressure—

You don't have to let it kill you

By Don Cooley

THEY took Henry to the hospital last week. Henry was always the first man off the 5:25 from Grand Central. By the time the rest of us commuters had trudged up on the station steps to the suburban bus, there was Henry triumphantly occupying his favorite corner seat. One evening Henry wasn't there. His next-door neighbor told us why.

"Doctor wants to run some tests on him. His wife says they're considering some new kind of surgery. High blood pressure."

That led to some pretty sobering conversation. We were a reasonably well-informed, middle-class group with mortgages, taxes, and kids in school. We knew that the No. 1 killer of men like us is cardio-vascular disease, which we thought of, correctly, as heart failure, stroke, and failing kidneys with which high blood pressure so often goes hand in glove. Most of the information that stuck in our minds was the kind that feeds the jitters.

Just what were we afraid of?

I know the case I was thinking of. You can probably match it among your own acquaintances. Call him Bob. He knew he had high blood pressure, all right. But for two years he ducked his doctor's orders. He kept up his 36 holes of week-end golf, his double-thick steaks, his all-night poker sessions.

Then he went hunting near the Canadian border. A blood vessel ruptured, and he had a nosebleed that didn't want to stop. Worse, something strange in his chest kept him from getting a satisfying breath. When Bob got home, his own doctor read him the riot act:

"No trips to the office. Stay close to home where you can lie down when you feel peculiar. Daytime naps and early to bed. A thousand-calorie salt-free diet, and no fooling. Your heart shows damage but has a good chance to repair itself if you follow orders."

That, I think, was high blood pressure as most of us viewed it on that glum bus ride.

At the time it simply never occurred to me that I was seeing the other side of the picture every morning when I walked past Daddy Traynor's little acreage. You'd see him swinging a scythe—not furiously, but effectively—or digging a leisurely posthole or trimming his grapevines. Yes, Daddy has a blood pressure reading higher than normal. But I am sure he has never gone into a tailspin of worry that it will shorten his life. Daddy was 86 last December.

Which of these cases is "true high blood pressure"? Both of them. High blood pressure can mean many different things as far as life expectancy or way of living is concerned. Let's clear up these meanings and take some of the scariness out of them. Rare cases of high blood pressure can be caused by tumors and other unusual conditions, but in 9 out of 10 cases no specific cause can be determined. In medical language, the nine have "essential hypertension," and since hypertension means the same as high blood pressure, let's use the more familiar term.

How common is high blood pressure?

Everybody has blood pressure. If yours is consistently higher than normal, you have high blood pressure. However, even if your blood pressure is generally normal, it shoots up when you get excited or angry. Your blood pressure varies from day to day, and even during the day.

It's generally agreed that anywhere from 25 to 40 percent of people past 40 have high blood pressure. Chances are a little less than even that you will have it by the time you reach the age when life begins. But raw statistics do not distinguish between kinds of high blood pressure. The so-called malignant variety advances swiftly, is associated with grave damage to vital organs, and is thoroughly vicious. But less than 5 percent of persons who have high blood pressure have the malignant type. The chances are 20 to 1 that if you do develop high blood pressure it will be the common kind which allows you to live an essentially normal life to practically your full life expectancy, or even beyond.

What causes high blood pressure?

The basic cause or causes are completely unknown, but the mechanism is better understood. Your arteries with their elastic walls divide into smaller and smaller branches as they get farther away from the heart. The tiniest branches of all are the arterioles, barely visible to the naked eye. When for unknown reasons these tiny pipes get into a chronic state of constriction, your heart has to pump harder and increase its pressure to push blood through.

Hardening of the arteries is not the same thing as high blood pressure. Hardening and thickening of a few large arteries, especially the aorta leading from the heart, can cause the heart to pump harder and yet rest at normal pressure during the time between beats. Many persons with hardening of the arteries have normal blood pressures.

Who gets high blood pressure?

Doctors generally agree that more than half their hypertensive patients have blood relatives with similar histories. Perhaps what is inherited is an over-responsive circulatory system and its sensitive nerve-control mechanism.

More women than men have high blood pressure, but it doesn't seem to bother them as much. Perhaps they aren't so battered by the job of making a living. Fear, anger, worry, and ambition are often linked with high blood pressure—emotions that may give a man drive, make him accept heavy responsibilities, lead him to burn his candle at both ends so he doesn't know the meaning of taking it easy. Turn to page 214

A man's rose has to have vigor. Typical of what men look for when they select roses is Charlotte Armstrong (above), a very popular hybrid-tea variety. The recent Better Homes & Gardens poll brought out that men insist on plants that look well all summer long, and bear big crops of roses

Voted the dozen favorite roses

of American men

IF YOU want to plant a dozen roses this spring, you can't do better than consider this list of hybrid teas. Here are the top 12, the favorites named by members of the Men's Garden Clubs of America, Inc., in a recent Better Homes & Gardens poll.

The men voting also told what they look for, the qualities they've found most important in garden roses. They stress disease resistance, vigor, fragrance, freedom of bloom, shape and quality of buds and open flowers, color, and strong stems.

The 12 roses selected:

Peace. This great rose has everything. On stout stems clothed with glossy, leathery foliage, the buds swell into 5- and 6-inch flowers. The colors of Peace are pale gold to a full yellow delicately washed with rose-pink. Though unfailingly beautiful, no two Peace blooms are alike.

Crimson Glory. The rich, fruity perfume and the velvety petals of this deep and glowing crimson rose [Turn to page 212

Grow roses where you want them

JUST name the spot where you want to grow it, and there's a rose for the place. Unless the spot is shaded. Roses need sun for at least four hours a day. More is better.

But for lamppost, garage wall, fence, or a bank too steep to mow, and to loop over a wall that's bare and unneighborly, there's a wide choice in climbing roses. Some are stiff enough to stand by themselves, some limber and pliable. And what a lift we get from their reds, and pinks, and yellows!

Want a gay spot in a green border of shrubs, a hedge for your terrace, and eye-filling bed of color from early June till frost? For these you choose varieties from the shrubby, hardy polyantha and floribunda classes.

Plant the aristocratic hybrid teas where you can enjoy every change from sleek buds to perfect half-open blooms. Plant miniatures in pots, or in a rock wall. And early-blooming shrubby types to back up your irises.

Dining-room wall was broken by two pint-size windows. They gave little air, less light, plenty of trouble

Here you see the two small windows from the inside. Window at right was larger, but still a problem to solve

From the street it's still bungalow style 1920, but here's the inside story

IF YOU think with Ed and Laura Killingsworth, of Long Beach, California, you're willing to make an old house do until the day when you can build the home you really want. You'd like to remodel your windows, but you don't want to get in too deep with your present setup.

If you're like the Killingsworths, you want your home to be comfortable; you like to entertain in pleasant surroundings. You can do one of two things: You can call a carpenter to relocate your windows. Or you can dodge all that and stay within the budget. Here you see how the Killingsworths solved their window problems without knocking out a piece of plaster or relocating a single window. The Killingsworths are living comfortably within their budget, but meanwhile their home is as attractive as the pictures shown here.

On the outside, small living-room windows look like this. They are a problem in many older homes, interfere with furniture arrangement

Inside, living-room windows looked like this. Windows would have been expensive to relocate; opposite page shows the problem solved

Wildlife . . . You'll meet it unmolested: bears and buffalo in Yellowstone, deer in nearly every park—like these at Grand Canyon

HOW would you like to own an 11-million-acre estate, practically tax-free?

Well, you do. And your property includes the finest scenery in the world. It's all yours in 28 national parks—a precious heritage of towering trees, massive mountains, roaring waterfalls, and placid lakes. Because you own these national parks, you can drive to them or travel by train, bus, or plane to their gates this summer with the assurance that your vacation will be unequaled as a bargain in travel.

Let's say that you'd like to visit Yellowstone Park. Most Americans do. Nearly a million of them made the grand tour of the geysers last summer.

In your family, there are four persons—a husband, a wife, and two children under 8. You have 10 days to spend in the park, excluding travel time. What will it cost you?

If you don't mind living simply, it can cost you $108.50. For that sum, you'll stay in a canvas and frame cabin, eat three meals a day in a nearby coffee shop, and depart for home having spent $27.13 apiece—$2.71 a day. At how many summer hotels outside of a national park can you vacation as reasonably?

Perhaps you're an Easterner, and something closer at hand appeals to you. In that case, you may choose to motor down into the Great Smoky Mountains National Park, which includes the highest peaks east of the Mississippi. A family of four—if the children are under 8—can sleep in a government-supervised hotel during the summer for 10 days and eat three meals a day for $105. If the youngsters are over 8, then 10 days will cost $140. Year-round accommodations just outside the park are somewhat higher, but still popularly priced.

Wherever you live, you can't be far from a national park. At most, it is a 600- to 800-mile trip, possible in two days no matter how you travel. If you're lucky—a resident of the Mountain states, the Pacific Coast, Maine, or the southern Appalachian states—there's a national park within a day of you.

The 10 million Americans who visited the parks last summer went there first of all for scenery. To wake in the morning to the rumble of Old Faithful, to look out the window at snow-clad Mt. Rainier, to stroll before breakfast on the rim of the Grand Canyon—those are experiences most families cherish.

But with the scenery comes something you may not have anticipated. There's a ranger to take you on free hikes to the most dramatic points of interest. There's a trained naturalist to tell you, without charge, about the plants and animals. At night, there are campfire lectures under the trees. And, if you travel guideless, there are always well-marked paths (some 15,000 miles of them) and complete facilities for your comfort.

Everything you buy is regulated in price. There is no profiteering. Uncle Sam sets the prices for such dissimilar services as changing a tire, developing a roll of film, serving a meal, or taking a mineral bath. Package tours by motorbus are controlled so that you can figure in advance what this easy way to see the parks will cost you. Pack trips into the back [Turn to page 126

Your garage

A teen-age activity room

A space for storage

A hobby sho

By Herbert Yahraes

A RECENT cartoon showed a man putting his car away. He had no trouble. He simply folded back the sides of his garage.

To people who must cram a 1948 car into a garage that gagged on even a 1938, this is no joke. But if you are a prospective builder, you have more important problems that you can't size up with a measuring tape. One good way to learn what these problems are would be to ask 20 families what they like and what they don't like about their present garages.

I did.

Nineteen of the families had at least one major complaint.

Their various troubles arose from one simple fact: Most of us still don't think of a garage as a basic part of a comfortable home. Sure, we've moved our cars in out of the stable, which odors and flies made us place as far away from the house as possible. We've even succeeded in making the garage architecturally a part of the house. But after we've spent long evenings planning our new heating system or our kitchen, we're likely to toss off the equally important garage with the remark, "Let's try to have a two-car garage." Not until we've moved in do we realize how much annoyance a little more forethought would have saved.

I can't tell you how to plan your garage. The most satisfactory car shelter for you, like the most satisfactory house, is designed to fit your needs. You have to figure out for yourself what you want. I can give you some suggestions, though, that can keep you from ending up like my 19 unhappy friends. Start off by asking yourself and your family some questions.

1. Do we really want a garage?

Maybe you don't, particularly if you live in a warm climate. Today's cars don't really need shelter except in very severe weather. So how about a carport?

A carport is essentially a garage without walls. It affords protection from rain but not from cold. One of the newest examples —in New England, incidentally—is merely a sheet of corrugated cement asbestos, supported by a wood frame and stretching out from the main doorway like an old-fashioned carriage porch. I've seen one carport that was even simpler—a strip of canvas on four poles.

Most new carports, though, are built as part of the house. They either extend out from it like a covered porch, or they are niched into it, like a [Turn to page 160

So good meat pies

By Myrna Johnston

SAVORY meat pie, an old-fashioned dish that satisfies even the biggest appetites, is a perfect supper on a blustery day.

You add a tender crust or topping to the juicy meat and vegetables in the baking dish. And while the top of the pie is browning to a turn in the oven, you're free to put the finishing touches on the meal. Make a crisp salad or plate of cold, crunchy relishes. Then call the folks to supper.

The pie at the upper left of the photograph is a Tuna Pie—in it are meaty pieces of tuna, chopped onion and celery, and green peas. Its top is pin-wheel cheese biscuits. The baker at lower left holds Shepherd's Pie. The meat is veal; the vegetables are onions, carrots, and green beans. The frame for the bubbly meat mixture is fluffy mashed potatoes, oven-browned.

Roast Beef Pies, center, in the bakers with the handles, are seasoned to suit a chef. To make the trim you simply cut an X in the center and fold back the corners made by the cut. (An X of pimiento marks the spot.)

The meat pie, upper right, that got the bird is Chicken Pie with a rich pastry top. The pastry cutouts were baked separately, then put on the baked pie. The stripes on the Hot Tamale Pie, lower right, are crusty corn bread. You can make your own or stir it up from a mix.

Meat Pies—all plain, good eating. Steaming hot, crusty-topped. Each a delicious supper, easy to make and bake and serve. Let's have meat pie.

Hawaiian sunshine for winter meals

By Trader Vic

YOU'VE had the idea that food from the Islands is much too exotic for your own table? We'll agree that it's out of this world in flavor but not out of this world when it comes to your being able to cook it.

Look at the page opposite—all familiar foods—spareribs, green beans, rice, pineapple. It's the flavor tricks in the Hawaiian recipes that make the difference.

Here's February—the most difficult month of the year to plan meals. Spruce up your family's appetites and your own interest in the fun of cooking by trying a brand-new recipe from Hawaii.

Below are the photographs and directions for making Banana Fritters and Meat on a Stick. The recipes for all the foods shown in color and other Hawaiian recipes are on page 94.

Meat on a Stick

Cut 1½ pounds beef, veal, or lamb in 1½-inch cubes. Combine 1 teaspoon dry mustard, 1 teaspoon chili powder, ½ teaspoon ground ginger, ½ cup finely chopped onion, ¼ teaspoon finely chopped garlic, 1 teaspoon turmeric, 1½ teaspoons salt, ½ teaspoon coriander, 3 to 4 tablespoons lemon juice and 1 teaspoon honey. Mix thoroughly. Pour over meat. Let stand 10 minutes. Thread meat on metal skewers or split bamboo sticks. Broil till browned, or roast over open fire or charcoal.

Photographs: L. C. Beringer

Banana Fritters

Select 10 to 12 firm ripe bananas. Cut in 2-inch diagonal pieces. Roll in flour. Then make a batter: Sift together 3 cups enriched flour, 2 tablespoons baking powder, 3½ teaspoons salt, and ¾ cup sugar. Combine 3 well-beaten eggs, 1¼ cups milk, and 2 tablespoons melted shortening. Add to dry ingredients; mix smooth. Dip bananas into batter. Fry in hot fat (400°) until golden brown. Serves 12. Fritters stay crisp 15 to 20 minutes. Serve with tart apricot marmalade and whipped cream. Toasted coconut chips, upper left of picture, are available in cans now.

It's FUN to cook in these kit

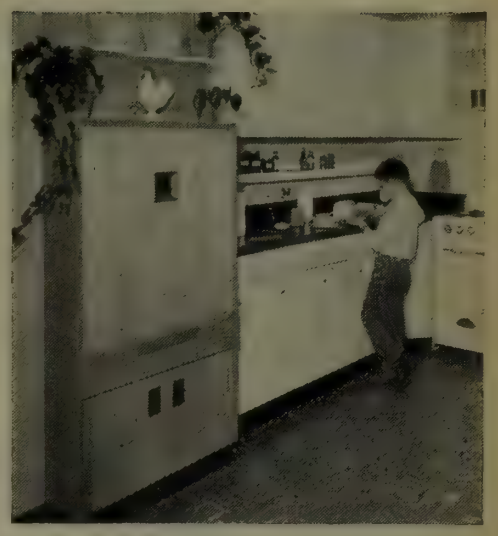
kitchens

A REALLY modern kitchen recognizes that life, even in the kitchen, isn't necessarily all work and no play.

A kitchen, of course, is first of all a workroom. The two kitchens shown here are just that, workrooms—but they're equipped to lend a hand with every job, arranged to make every step count. Then, having shown respect for the sober side of life, these kitchens tell you to have fun.

Look at the old rocking chair in the kitchen at the left—who's to say you can't sit there and peel the apples. Look at the sleek, white kitchen. It has a magic table that drops down from the wall for a lightning lunch. Look again—at the clever shelves, the chintz trim on the furring.



Now look carefully at your own kitchen. Does it need a new shelf, a fresh green plant, a gay-cushioned rocker? What can you add to make your job more fun?

Tip-down kitchen snack table provides open shelves for things you want to show off; closed shelves below. Electric appliance outlet is handy for plugging in toaster, waffle baker, or coffee maker. Table has composition top to resist spills, wipes off easily. Running the full length of cabinet wall, utility shelf holds often-used staples within convenient reach. Fluorescent tubes underneath shelf light the work counter

The best-dressed shelf, these days, frankly admits its purpose. Glamour shelves above the range combine old-fashioned curves with modern plexiglass uprights. When neighbors are too close for comfort, try a central panel of glass blocks for corner windows. This window is curved for a more gentle line. Sink is placed to light your dishwashing scientifically from left. Peoples Gas Light & Coke Company, Chicago

When cabinets don't quite fill the space, consider an open tray file—easy to use and especially convenient if located, as here, next to refrigerator to make serving easy

Cherry desserts and

Whether it's a party dessert, a birthday cake, or just something new for the family, you'll find an idea here

Latticed Cherry Pie Traditional February dessert appears with a crinkly lattice top. The strips are cut with a pastry cutter. For the top crust, weave the lattice on waxed paper on a cooky sheet. Then slide lattice onto top of filling

Ham Logs With Cherry Sauce A mixture of brown sugar and a dash of mustard glazes the ham logs. The sauce is quick and easy to make. You mix cornstarch and sugar; add the whole can of cherries, and cook mixture till thick

Mount Vernon Jelly Roll Spread some of your favorite cherry jelly or cherry preserves on tender sponge cake; roll. For a decorative touch, use maraschino cherries with long stems, tuck in a couple of shiny leaves. Slice at the table

GEORGE WASHINGTON started it—this linking of cherries and February—when he cut down his father's cherry tree. And we're for keeping up the custom. Cherries, either canned or frozen, give a meal the lift it needs in February—a lift both in tart, fruity flavor and in cheery color.

For February, the month of holidays, there are delicate pink-tinted Maraschino Cherry Cake for Valentine's Day and perky Cherry Hats for Washington's Birthday. In fact, choose any of these and your meal will be a festive occasion—whether it's a holiday or one of the days in between.

Cherry-Side-Up Cake

Grated orange peel, bran, and plump red cherries give distinctive flavor to this variation of an old favorite. While cake is still warm, cut it in squares and top each piece with a fluff of whipped cream

Maraschino Cherry Cake

This delicate, pink-tinted cake gets its good flavor from the maraschino cherries and California walnuts. It takes just five minutes of mixing time, uses only one bowl. For tinted frosting, add maraschino cherry juice

KNOW WHAT A

Dryer ⇨

CAN DO FOR YOU?

By Elaine Knowles Weaver and Jessie Prather

DRYERS are energy- and timesavers. With a dryer there need be no more waiting for a clear day to dry the family wash; no more toting and hanging of heavy wet clothes. You can slip clothes from washer directly into dryer beside. It's so convenient to use a dryer that with one you'll wash oftener, need fewer clothes and linens. Here are questions you'll have about dryers, and the answers to the questions.

How does a dryer work?

Clothes are placed in a perforated drum or basket which revolves to tumble and fluff them. A fan blows hot air at about 200 degrees through perforations in drum; thermostat regulates heat. Moisture evaporates from clothes, and passes as steam through exhaust. You set a timer; a few minutes before the drying period's up, heat shuts off to let most of steam escape before you open door.

Will it save work?

The biggest jobs on washday are lifting and carrying heavy baskets of wet clothes, hanging and taking down the clothes piece by piece. Instead, you can just bundle clothes from washer into dryer in 20 seconds. Nor do stormy days upset your washday when you have a dryer. No longer do you hang out your clothes, then have to take them down still wet, and rehang them in the basement as a shower blows up. A dryer saves you that trouble. And when a dryer is used, there's no clothesline to become sooty, or to break just as the last garment is hung.

Will it save steps?

Yes, definitely. Number of steps varies with each person. But according to one survey the average woman walks about 40 miles a year while carrying and hanging clothes. Turn to page 70

Dry your twist rugs, bath mats so they come out soft and luxurious

Reuse quilts and mattress pads as tumbling Duffs padding

Make slipcovers fit glove-tight if taken from the dryer a bit damp

Eliminate ironing of corduroys, flannels, jerseys, seersuckers

Cut diapers needed to number at right. Reduce linens you need

Let you iron right from dryer. Damp sheets, clothes need no sprinkling

Cut Down Food Bills with this Second-Helping Heinz Dish-

Romany Steak Pie—Brown 1 lb. ground round steak in skillet. Add contents of a tin of Heinz Condensed Cream of Tomato Soup, undiluted, and 4 strips bacon, sautéed and broken into pieces. Place in a casserole. Top with biscuits and bake in a very hot oven (450° F.) 15 minutes or until biscuits are a rich golden brown.

Taste the WONDERFUL DIFFERENCE in Heinz 57 Soups

You've probably enjoyed Heinz Soups for lunch or supper. But have you tried these old favorites in thrifty casserole dishes? Heinz Soups have flavor to spare! Careful cooking brews in the flavors of homemade noodles, fresh vegetables, chicken and other choice things. Ask for Heinz Cream of Tomato, Cream of Mushroom or other favorites. They taste homemade!

What a dryer can do for you

How long to dry my family wash?

Lightweight cottons and rayons will dry in 5 or 10 minutes, sheets in 25 or 30 minutes, terry towels or bedspreads in 30 to 40; rugs in a somewhat longer time; a mixed load from 30 to 60 minutes.

Can I partly dry items?

Yes, this is a dryer plus. You won't need to sprinkle clothes if you take them out of dryer when at just-right dampness, and iron them on the spot. You can set timer for any number of minutes to an h and you can stop dryer any to test or take out clothing. make of dryer has dial that you select the exact degree of ness needed, and automatic stops when garments are at desired dryness. Take sheets tablecloths out of dryer slig damp so tiny wrinkles won't in. If you iron them while they still steamy you'll be amazed h fast they smooth out and under your iron.

Golden Cheese and Rice

Relishes and hot bread are all you need to serve with it—

2 cups cooked rice
3 cups shredded carrots
2 cups grated American cheese
2 beaten eggs
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons minced onion
½ cup milk

Combine ingredients; reserve ½ cup cheese. Pour into 1-quart greased casserole. Sprinkle with remaining ½ cup cheese. Bake in moderate oven (350°) 35 to 40 minutes.—Miss Mary Shipp Sanders, Denton, Texas.

Club Chicken Casserole

It's elegant enough for company, makes your company dinner easier to manage—

4 tablespoons butter or fortified margarine
5 tablespoons enriched flour
1 cup chicken stock
1½ cups evaporated milk
1 teaspoon salt
3 cups cooked rice
1½ cups diced cooked chicken
1 3-ounce can (¾ cup) broiled mushrooms, sliced
¼ cup chopped pimiento
⅓ cup chopped green pepper
½ cup slivered blanched almonds

Melt butter; add flour and blend. Add stock and milk and cook over low heat until thick, stirring constantly. Add salt. Alternate layers of rice, chicken, and vegetables in greased 6- by 10-inch baking dish. Pour over the sauce. Top with slivered almonds. Bake in moderate oven (350°) 30 minutes. Serves 8 to 10.—Mrs. Uel P. McCullough, Goodyear, Arizona.

Shrimp Curry

You can have it ready in just 30 minutes—

1 cup rice
1 teaspoon salt
2½ cups boiling water
1 10½- or 11-ounce can cream of chicken soup
¼ cup light cream or top milk
1 teaspoon curry powder
1 pound fresh shrimp cooked and cleaned

Wash rice; drain. Add salt to boiling water. Add rice. Cook till tender, 20 to 30 minutes. Drain. Combine chicken soup, cream, and curry powder. Add shrimp and heat thoroughly. Serve over hot, fluffy rice. Serves 4 to 5.—Mrs. Leo M. Davis, Dallas, Texas.

Desserts

Orange Upside-Down Cake

The cake itself has the flavor of fresh oranges, too—

¼ cup butter or fortified margarine
½ cup brown sugar
½ cup granulated sugar
2 or 3 oranges, peeled and sliced
½ cup California walnut halves
½ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
2 well-beaten eggs
1 teaspoon grated orange peel
2 cups cake flour
½ teaspoon salt
2½ teaspoons baking powder
¾ cup milk

Melt butter in 9-inch square pan. Add sugars; heat slightly and blend. Arrange orange slices and nuts in pan. Thoroughly cream shortening and sugar. Add eggs and orange peel; beat well. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with milk. Pour batter over oranges. Bake in moderately hot oven (375°) 30 minutes. Let stand 2 or 3 minutes; invert on plate. Serves 8.—Mrs. D. C. Linden, Madison, Wisconsin.

Cake is quick, eggless. Cut orange sections and make hot orange sauce for the top—

3 tablespoons shortening
1 cup sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla
2 cups cake flour
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 cup milk
3 or 4 oranges, sectioned

Thoroughly cream shortening, sugar, and vanilla. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with milk. Beat smooth. Pour into greased 6- by 10-inch cake pan. Bake in moderate oven (350°) 40 minutes. Cut in squares. Split and fill with orange sections. Serve hot with Orange Sauce: Mix ¾ cup sugar, 2 tablespoons cornstarch, and ¼ teaspoon salt. Add 1 cup orange juice. Cook until thick and clear, stirring constantly. Add 2 teaspoons grated orange peel; blend. Makes 1¼ cups.—Norma McCoy, Des Moines.

Orange Sunshine Dessert

Fluffy, whipped-cream dessert—delicate orange flavor. The kind of treat you like to serve at bridge—

1 cup orange juice
1 teaspoon grated orange peel
24 marshmallows, cut in half
2 tablespoons sugar
1 cup heavy cream, whipped
2½ dozen vanilla wafers
1 orange, peeled and divided in sections

Combine orange juice and peel; heat to boiling; add marshmallows and stir until dissolved. Cool. Add sugar to whipped cream. Fold into orange mixture. Chill. Line bottom and sides of 5- by 9-inch pan with whole vanilla wafers. Pour in filling. Chill thoroughly. Garnish with orange sections before serving; unmold, if desired. Serves 8 to 10.—Mrs. Malcolm Pierson, Tampa, Florida. Note: To unmold, line pan with strips of waxed paper; lift dessert from pan.

Fruit Ambrosia

A beauty to serve at the table. Arrange fruits as shown in the photograph—

3 oranges
1 grapefruit
1 cup mixed fruit cocktail, drained
2 bananas, sliced
2 to 3 tablespoons lemon juice
½ cup strained honey
½ cup moist, shredded coconut

Segment oranges and grapefruit. Arrange fruit in large bowl; combine lemon juice and honey. Sprinkle over fruit. Top with coconut. Chill. Serves 6.—Mrs. J. B. Lundgren, Brooklyn, New York.

Contest for good cooks

Cash for your pressure-pan ideas and rolled-cooky recipes

RECIPE contest this month pays $70 for Pressure-Pan Specials and Rolled Cookies. If you send us the best recipe, you'll receive $10; if you are one of 20 others sending prize recipes you'll get $3. All you do is mail your recipe to us. Here are some tips:

Pressure-Pan Specials include all except desserts. Your trick may be a whole-meal combination, like pork chops or stuffed flank steak with potatoes, onions, and carrots. Or you may have a single-dish specialty such as Italian Spaghetti, Chili Con Carne, or Baked Beans. And don't forget your pressure-pan vegetable dinners and stews. Also send us your ways with meat in a pressure pan—how you fix a pot roast, fry a chicken, barbecue ribs, or pressure-cook Swiss Steak. We want to know the way you tenderize and glamorize the thrifty meat cuts, how you cut cooking hours to minutes in your pressure saucepan.

Rolled Cookies include all the delicious kinds you make, from big old-fashioned sugar or ginger cookies to dainty chocolate crispies or vanilla wafers. Come September, you'll be getting out your rolling pin and cooky sheet to fill up that cooky jar for husky fall appetites. To publish your cooky favorites in next September's Cooks' Round Table, we need your recipes to test and judge now.

And remember, the winners of these 21 prizes will receive the Better Homes & Gardens Certificate of Endorsement, and six copies of the endorsed recipe.

1. Write your recipe clearly on one side of the paper. Send but one recipe at a time and mark it, "September Pressure-Pan Specials" or "September Rolled Cookies."
2. Print your full name and address clearly in upper right corner of recipe page.
3. Give measurements in level cups, tablespoons, and teaspoons, never in heaping or scant measurements.
4. Be sure to specify in your recipe the brand names of the nationally known food products you use as ingredients—products available everywhere. We must know them so we can test your recipe with the same brands you use.
5. Include 50 to 100 words about the history or origin of your recipe.
6. All recipes submitted become the property of Better Homes & Gardens.
7. Entries must be postmarked by midnight, February 28.
8. Address the recipes you enter to 5402 Tasting-Test Kitchen, Better Homes & Gardens, Des Moines 3, Iowa.

This month's winners

Cook-of-the-Month is Mrs. M. H. Lax of St. Paul, Minnesota. Her Spanish Rice is a 1-hour oven meal. You can get it ready in the morning.

Another unusual way to serve rice is Mrs. McCullough's Club Chicken Casserole, just right to serve when you have luncheon guests. Mrs. McCullough was given the recipe by a Swedish friend. Or try Mrs. Davis' Shrimp Curry with rice. You can fix it in 30 minutes.

Mary Sanders' Golden Cheese and Rice, flecked with shredded carrots, is as colorful as a burst of sunshine. Ideal for lunch with a green salad.

Orange dessert star is Mrs. Lindin's Orange Upside-Down Cake. Feathery cake is crowned with orange slices and sauce.

Mrs. Malcolm Pierson's Orange Sunshine Dessert is a marshmallow-whipped cream mixture, delicately flavored with orange juice and chilled in a vanilla-wafer shell.

For an economical dessert that's super special, try Norma McCoy's Cottage Pudding With Orange Sauce. Tender eggless cake is cut, filled with orange sections, and topped with a tangy orange sauce.

A refreshing ending to a filling February dinner is Mrs. Lundgren's Fruit Ambrosia, tingling with orange, grapefruit, and lemon flavors. Turn to page 73 to find these recipes. Look below to find the names of other winning cooks.

Hot Rolls, yes!

and with Bisquick

Easy Betty Crocker method almost like making Bisquick biscuits, except that you add a little yeast to the liquid. Simple directions on Bisquick package. You're sure to succeed, even if you've never tried yeast dough before.

Your rolls are ready for the oven in a little over an hour. And how proud you'll be when you take them out . . . feathery light and fragrant, with a tender golden crust! So delicious with jam or jelly. Thrifty. Enough Bisquick in the big box for 4 to 6 dozen rolls. Why not serve these Bisquick Hurry-Up Rolls tonight?

CLOVERLEAF ROLLS: Form bits of dough into balls of 1-in. diameter. Place 3 balls in each of 18 greased medium-sized muffin cups. Let rise and bake as for other rolls.

Are you helping your daughter to be popular?

By Marjorie Holmes

JINNY is a pretty girl of 17. Jinny has a nice home, nice family, and nice clothes, but surprisingly few friends. "Jinny likes Mother and Daddy best," her mother eagerly explains. "Aren't we lucky? She isn't always running around with boy friends and girl friends, and we don't have to worry about her."

But Jinny's mother is worried—you can see it in her eyes. Mothers (barring unduly possessive ones) just naturally want their daughters to be popular. Partly for the girl's own happiness, partly for their own. When you see your darling float off to a prom, you go, in a sense, yourself. If she's had a lovely time, your heart echoes the happy music of her voice. And if she's suffered, if her young eyes appeal to you, big and wet and bewildered over the hunched-up bed covers, if she begs, "Why, Mummy, why don't the boys dance with me?" your heart bleeds. It seems as if you've failed to show her the way.

Of course, the business of trying to make your daughter popular can be overdone. I remember Mrs. Webster, so frantic to see that her Betty had more clothes and more beaux than anyone else that she only succeeded in making both herself and Betty thoroughly detested. And often the most retiring youngsters lead happier, more successful lives when they grow up than the former butterflies.

EVEN so, the days of youth are brief and precious. At no time in anyone's life are the possibilities for ecstasy or utter heartbreak greater. And both depend to a large extent on so-called popularity.

I believe that parents ought to help their daughters have fun and friends. That when girls don't it is frequently our fault. Here are some of the ways you can help your daughter to popularity and self-confidence. [Turn to page 82

Start with the sweet country-cream flavor of

Del Monte Corn

BRAND

This is DEL MONTE Golden Cream Style Corn in the thrifty casserole below. Its sweet, hearty flavor is so rich it holds up in made-up dishes like this. And goes over just as big when you serve it plain.

You ought to know DEL MONTE Golden Whole Kernel Corn, too. Same remarkable flavor—in bright, plump, tender kernels.

All DEL MONTE Brand Corn is specially bred for higher natural sugar content and very thin-skinned kernels. Ask for it!

HARLEQUIN CASSEROLE

- 4 slices bacon, cut in ½-in. pieces
- ¾ cup chopped onion
- 2 tbsps. flour
- 1 can DEL MONTE Tomato Sauce
- 1 cup water
- ¼ cup finely cut parsley
- 1 No. 2 can DEL MONTE Golden Cream Style Corn
- ½ large head cabbage
- ¼ lb. American cheese, grated

Fry bacon till golden brown. Add onion; cook slowly till limp. Stir in flour; then tomato sauce and water, stirring constantly. Simmer 8 min. Add parsley, ½ cup of the corn, salt and pepper to taste. Cut cabbage in thin wedges; remove core and heavy ribs. Lay wedges in greased, shallow 6-cup casserole; pour sauce over cabbage; sprinkle with cheese. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) 45 min. or till cabbage is just tender. Arrange rest of corn, drained, heated and seasoned, on casserole and garnish with parsley as shown. Serves 4-6.

Her personal appearance

BEAUTY isn't everything; but to feel attractive gives a girl that self-confidence so necessary to social balance.

Teach her the principles of beauty care. Equip her with the proper beauty aids. Until she has established the habit, see that she uses them. Give her some of the excellent girls' magazines abounding in beauty advice—they will help to inspire her, and will save you considerable nagging.

Correct any physical defects she may have, such as a bad skin or crooked teeth. It simply isn't fair to a girl to allow her to grow up so handicapped. Dental braces or the services of a good dermatologist are worth every penny they cost, even if they mean sacrifices.

Allow her to wear her hair the way the other girls do. Keeping a girl of 14 or 15 in curls or pigtails is nonsense.

Her clothes are important. Shopping with girl friends sometimes instead of with you will give her confidence and deepen friendships

Her clothes

Don't insist that she wear outmoded or hated clothes. My own mother tells how a year of her life was almost ruined by having to wear high buckle overshoes instead of rubbers. "Papa was so afraid I'd get pneumonia. He couldn't see that those horrible clumping boots kept me [Turn to page 85 out of a lot of things. They branded me as queer and made me feel inferior."

Nearly everyone has had some similar experience. Yet, when it concerns our offspring, how often we insist upon "sensible" clothes instead of current fads! True, we families of average means cannot afford to grant every whim, but we can at least help our child's longing to conform.

Let her shop with girl friends sometimes instead of with you. Girls love helping each other select what to wear, and often such excursions cement the bonds between them.

Encourage her to make her own clothes if she has a flair for sewing. And don't stint her on materials. Even if she has a few failures, she'll make up for it in money saved later on. Furthermore, she'll be able to have that undeniable aid to popularity, an ample wardrobe.

Give her honest advice on how she gets herself up. The continual chant, "How do I look?" may be a nuisance, but it's also a real opportunity to help. Don't brush it off with a preoccupied "Fine." Look her over. If there's a jarring note, point it out. And if she looks extra sweet, or if the new sweater does things for her figure, say so. Compliments give confidence, even when they come from a mother.

Her privileges should be clearly defined. Be reasonable, neither too strict nor too lenient. When she's old enough and can drive carefully, occasional use of the family car is a lift to her poise and confidence

Her privileges

Don't be too strict. If your daughter can't share the general hours and privileges of her crowd, she will quickly lose out with them. True, she can't always go along with the majority. Sometimes you must insist that she stand alone. But be sure that your rules are reasonable.

Don't be too lenient. Strangely enough, this, too, can be a handicap. The girl who enjoys late hours and other freedom her associates can't have is resented and talked about.

Her friends

Make an effort to remember their names. Children are just as pleased at this as adults are. And you can certainly embarrass the new boy friend as well as your daughter by calling him Joe when he's really George. [Turn to next page

Watch your telephone manners. The tones of your voice as you take a message can determine whether or not they will call back for Mary. Chat a minute or two if you have time. Never be guilty of jokes at their expense.

Don't outshine your daughter with her friends. "The kids come to see me as much as they do Dotty," is the ironic boast of a woman acquaintance. And she is witty, gay, a good dancer, in a way that puts poor Dotty in the background. Yet when prom times come she wonders why Dotty seldom has a date. Set your daughter the example of a pleasant, attractive personality. Use it to help her with her friends. But not to crash her crowd or become her rival.

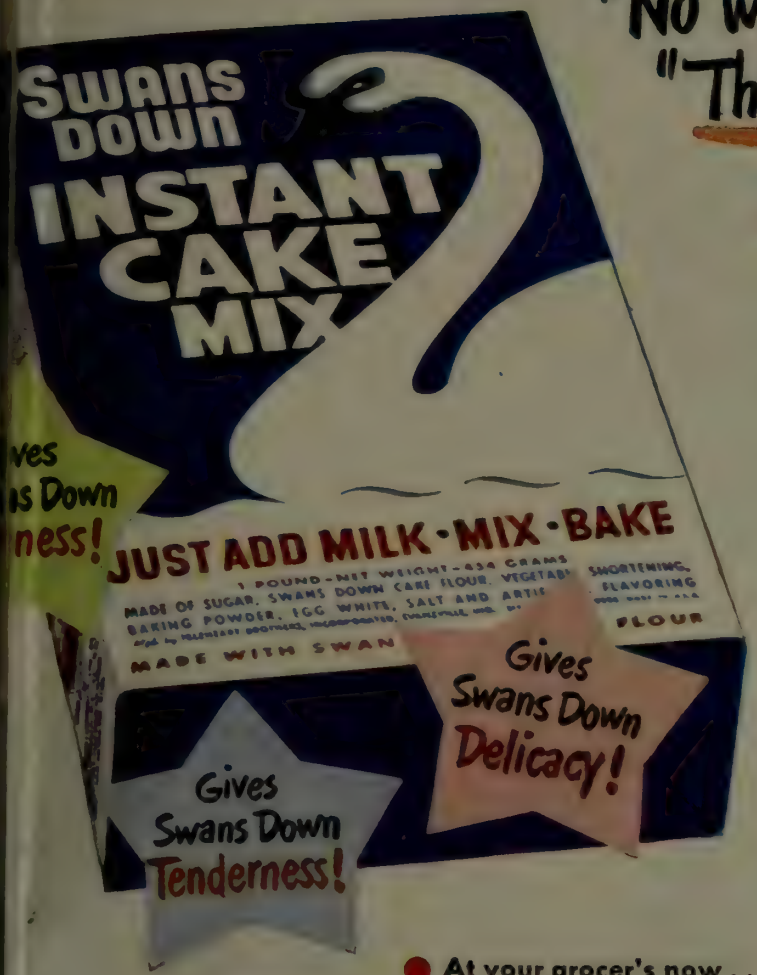
Never brag about her to her friends or to their mothers. It is quick poison to popularity. Keep still about how beautiful she is, how smart, how many boys rush her.

Never interfere in times of trouble. Resist the temptation to scold those catty girls for what they said about Nancy, or to tell Mrs. Gordon how her John has treated your Jean! Such tactics only ruin your child's standing.

Her personality will develop through public contacts. She'll learn the value of a friendly smile in youth organization activities and community work

Her personality

TOO many parents give their daughters pretty clothes and permanents, liberal allowances and dancing lessons, but neglect any instruction in what is far more important to popularity—an attractive personality. Does your daughter have these character traits which are vital to her charm?



A happy disposition. People just naturally like others who are cheerful, rather than glum.

Agreeability. Can she get along with other people?

Generosity. Not only with material possessions, but with admiration and praise, particularly when someone else enjoys success.

Kindness. The simple elemental decency [Turn to page 89

"No wonder!" says Frances Barton. "This new cake mix is made with Swans Down Cake Flour!"

FRANCES BARTON, of General Foods Consumer Service

WOMEN have been excited about cake mixes ever since they appeared. So simple, so easy, so quick! And yet . . .

. . . many experienced cakemakers have hesitated. Mixes would do, they thought, for hurry-up cakes—not for festive occasions.

But now that Swans Down Instant Cake Mix is here—what a hubbub! Phones buzzing with the news . . . bridge hands forgotten . . . stores "all sold out". . .

"You can see why it's entirely different," women are telling each other. "It's made with Swans Down Cake Flour! Swans Down fineness, of course.

"And taste your piece again! Isn't that tenderness and delicacy just like the best cake you ever made?"

All the other ingredients in this new mix are worthy of Swans Down. That means the very best.

Two high layers of softest white cake slip proudly out of your pans. Yet all you do is add milk, beat and bake!

Yellow cake . . . devil's food, spice cake, orange cake, cookies, brownies . . . you make them all just by adding an extra ingredient or so.

And they all turn out with Swans Down perfection. Recipes with every box!

which ought to prevent human beings from knowingly hurting each other, through word or act.

Charity. The refusal to gossip or be catty.

Whatever a child's temperament, these traits can be developed. And these simple old-fashioned virtues have far more to do with that glamorous achievement, popularity, than anything else.

Her home

Is it a place she can be proud of? Not elegant, necessarily, but cheerful, reasonably clean and tidy? I know a girl who seldom takes her friends home because her mother is always in club meetings and the housework never gets done. Kids don't object to unmade beds and a sink full of dishes once in a while, but they do have a pride in the decencies of living.

Are her friends always welcome in it? Last Christmas Eve four boys came to the door asking for Mickie. She was out caroling; we were frantically busy; but what mother can afford to overlook a haul of four boys! Despite her absence, we asked them in, let them help with wrapping and trimming, and paid them off in scrambled eggs and sausages. Singly or in groups they've been coming to the house ever since.

Are they really free to enjoy it? The living room and the kitchen, as well as the basement game room? Personally, I don't believe in continually shooing the younger set to the lower regions. They're noisy, sure, on occasion even destructive, but I've noticed that they come oftener to the home where they're treated like civilized human beings—and in general they live up to the treatment.

Is there a place where you can retreat while the crowd takes over? A chaperon on the premises is necessary, and you should feel free to circulate freely. But young people's spirits dampen when an adult must do his reading or knitting in their midst. If necessary, fix up your own cushion corner in the breakfast room, the sun porch, or the kitchen.

Have you a good stock of games with which a girl can entertain a boy friend when she doesn't know what else to do with him? Have you a table-tennis table?

Have you soft drinks in the refrigerator, pretzels and cookies in the cupboard? The girl who can always feed her friends will usually have a lot of them.

Does your home have a musical instrument? A radio, of course; a record player, a piano? Not all homes can afford all three, but some manner of music is a must for dancing. A piano is wonderful, since it forms a focal point around which to gather, on which to play those infinite varieties of chopsticks and boogie-woogie. I've noticed an increased swarm of youngsters since we bought ours a year ago.

Resign yourself to the noise, however. Nothing is gained by having your child's friends in, and then yelling at them.

Do you ever give your daughter a party? It's the best way in the world to win and influence friends for a daughter. It brings them to your home and often forms the nucleus of a crowd, if she doesn't already have one. It sometimes heals little breaches that may have sprung up in her group. Like anything else, parties can be overdone, but they are effective maternal aids, and are worth the effort.

There are, of course, rare instances where a girl has neither the flair nor desire for friendships. A girl so shy or self-sufficient that she honestly longs only to be let alone. In such cases it would be sheer folly as well as cruelty to press the issue. But to the average fun-loving girl, popularity is important. And rightly so, and you can help.

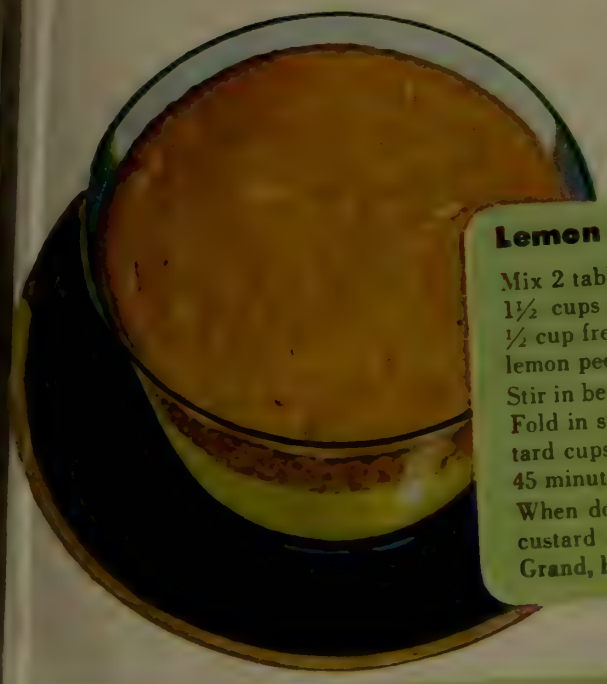
Latticed Cherry Pie

2 No. 2 cans cherries, drained (4 cups)
1 cup sugar
¼ cup enriched flour
⅛ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter or fortified margarine
1 recipe Plain Pastry



Line a 9-inch piepan with pastry. Trim ½ inch beyond rim. Roll remaining pastry 1 inch larger than pan. Cut in ½-inch strips for lattice. Weave lattice on waxed paper. Combine cherries, sugar, flour, and salt; fill pie; dot with butter. Top with pastry lattice. Flute edge. Bake in hot oven (450°) 40 minutes.

Plain Pastry: Sift 1½ cups enriched flour and ½ teaspoon salt; cut in ½ cup shortening until pieces are size of small peas. Slowly add 4 to 5 tablespoons cold water.

3 welcome budget-saving desserts

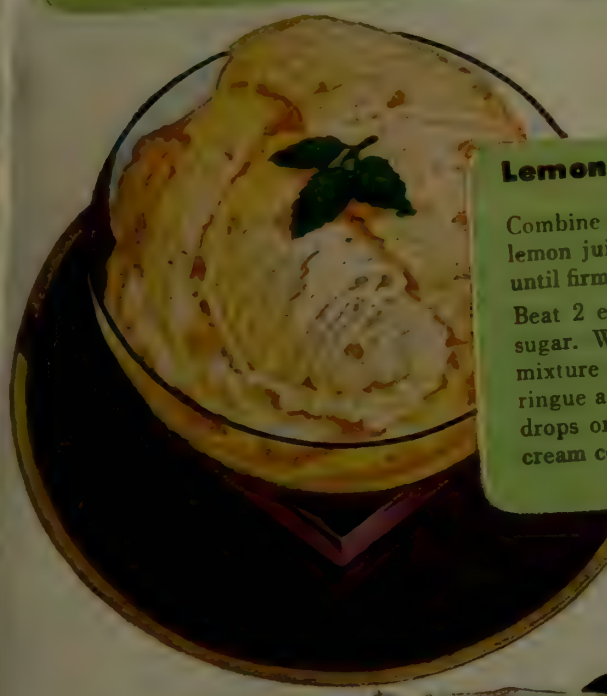
Whip them up in a jiffy, serve and prepare to take a bow! They're delicious, easy and inexpensive. They have the satisfying tang that only fresh Sunkist Lemons can give desserts. (Lots more in the wonderful Sunkist Recipe Book. See below.)

Lemon Cake Top Pudding

Mix 2 tablespoons softened butter (or margarine) and 1½ cups sugar. Add ⅓ cup flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ cup fresh Sunkist lemon juice and 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel.

Stir in beaten yolks of 3 eggs, mixed with 1¼ cups milk. Fold in stiffly beaten whites of the eggs. Pour into custard cups or single dish. Set in pan of water and bake 45 minutes in moderate oven (375°).

When done, each serving will contain delicious lemon custard at bottom, tender lemon spongecake at top! Grand, hot or cold. Serves 6.



Apple Dumplings with Lemon Sauce

Peel and core 4 large or 6 small apples. Place on squares of rolled pie crust dough made with prepared mix. Follow instructions on package.

In center of apples put 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, ¼ teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon grated lemon peel and ½ teaspoon butter. Moisten edges of dough. Fold over apple. Pinch seams together. Bake in hot oven (450°) for 10 minutes and 350° for 30 minutes longer or until apples are done.

LEMON CLEAR SAUCE: Mix 3 tablespoons cornstarch, 1 cup sugar. Add 2 teaspoons grated lemon peel, 2 cups cold water. Cook over direct heat, stirring constantly, until clear and slightly thickened. Remove from heat. Add ½ cup fresh Sunkist lemon juice, 4 tablespoons butter. Serve hot over dumplings. (Swell, too, over gingerbread or cupcakes!)

Lemon Crunch Ice Cream

Combine 2 cups milk, 1 cup sugar, ½ cup fresh Sunkist lemon juice and 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel. Freeze until firm.

Beat 2 egg whites to a meringue with 2 tablespoons sugar. Whip 1 cup whipping cream. Remove frozen mixture to a chilled bowl. Beat until fluffy. Fold in meringue and whipped cream. Add ½ cup crushed lemon drops or peanut brittle. Return to tray. Freeze to ice cream consistency. Serves 6.

Fresh California
Sunkist Lemons

Good ideas from the Sunkist Kitchen

BE KIND TO VEGETABLES!

They respond to good treatment. Don't drown them in a lot of water! Cook only until tender. Then recapture their fresh taste by squeezing a little fresh lemon juice over them, in the kitchen or at the table.

Lemon juice gives a magic lift to almost all vegetables, and especially carrots, beets, cabbage, spinach, broccoli, cauliflower, asparagus.

Try it on the vegetables you serve tonight.

KNOW WHY TEA NEEDS LEMON?

Next cup you drink you can see. As you add the lemon, the tea will turn from brown to clearest amber. That change means any bitterness is gone and the true tea flavor has come to life!

FRESH LEMONS PROVIDE VERY SPECIAL HEALTH VALUES

Fresh lemons not only supply valuable amounts of vitamin B_1 but also the rare vitamin P, and are among the richest known sources of vitamin C. Essential for youthful energy, sound teeth and gums, vitamin C is absent from most foods, scarce in most others. You need it daily. Fresh lemons are important to health.

LIKE PRUNES—DRIED FRUITS?

If you do, you will like them better, cooked this way. If you don't—cooked this way you'll like them!—

Simmer prunes and other dried fruits slowly until tender, in a small amount of water, with three or four slices of fresh Sunkist Lemon.

Slow simmering brings out the fruit sugars of dried fruits (you won't need to add sugar). The lemon makes them remember their tree-ripe flavor.

French-Fried Liver. One of the easiest ways to fix liver. You cut it in strips, shake it in a sack of seasoned flour. Then fry in deep hot fat

IVER often enough?

By Mary Lawton Wright

NUTRITIONISTS suggest you serve liver once a week. Here's why:

Liver is the richest of all foods in iron. A serving of beef liver gives you nine-tenths of your day's requirement. Pork liver has almost twice the daily need, calves' liver one-third.

Liver gives you more Vitamin A in a serving than you require for a day. Liver scores well in Vitamin B_1, too. And it furnishes the new Vitamin B_{12}, just discovered last year. Vitamin B_{12} is the substance essential to preventing and curing anemia.

The question: How to fix liver so your family will eat it and ask for seconds because it tastes so good. Here are five answers. Each answer is a main dish for dinner.

FIRST CHOICE for FLAVOR and ENERGY

"It is SO more sanitary to let the air dry the dishes!"

Serve liver

Begins on page 92

Spanish Liver

3 slices bacon
1 pound liver
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 cups thinly sliced onion
¾ cup diced green pepper
1 No. 2 can (2½ cups) tomatoes

Dice the bacon and fry until crisp. Season the liver with salt and pepper, dredge with flour, if desired, and brown in the bacon fat; turn several times. Remove liver from the skillet; add the thinly sliced onions and green pepper, and cook until tender. Add tomatoes and liver. Cover; cook over low heat about 45 minutes. Uncover, increase heat, and evaporate the liquid until a consistency of a thick gravy; or add enough flour, if desired, to thicken the liquid slightly. Add salt and pepper to taste. Serves 5. It's the long, slow cooking that makes the liver so deliciously tender.

Dinner Ring

1 pound liver (beef, calves', pork, or lamb)
1 pound well-seasoned pork sausage
2 tablespoons chili sauce
2 tablespoons horse-radish
1 tablespoon grated onion
2 beaten eggs
2 cups dry bread crumbs
1 cup water

Cover liver with hot water; cover and simmer 5 minutes. Put through food grinder, using fine plate. Add remaining ingredients; mix thoroughly. Fill well-oiled 8½-inch ring mold. Bake in moderate oven (350°) 1 hour. Serve with chili sauce. Serves 8.

French-Fried Liver

1 pound calves' liver, sliced ⅜ inch thick
½ cup enriched flour
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper

Cut liver into strips ⅜ to ½ inch wide. Combine flour, salt, and pepper, and place in a paper sack. Add liver strips, a few at a time, and shake gently to coat liver thoroughly with flour. Fry in deep hot fat (360°) until browned. Drain on paper towels. Serve with chili sauce. Serves 5.

TUNA FONDUE

Easy to Make... Easy to Take!

You can put this tasty main dish together in just 10 minutes ... pop it into your oven for an hour ... and it's ready! For milder, more delicate flavor, be sure to use Star-Kist Tuna — either New Chunk Style Grated or Fancy Solid Pack. Such delicious flavor is found only in the smaller, better-tasting tuna — the only kind packed under the Star-Kist brand!

TUNA FONDUE

5 slices bread
1 7-oz. can Star-Kist Fancy Solid Pack (or New Chunk Style Grated) Tuna
½ cup (¼ lb.) grated Cheddar cheese
3 eggs
2 cups milk
1 teaspoon salt

Trim crusts off bread and cube. Cover bottom of greased 1½ quart casserole with a layer of bread cubes. Drain oil off tuna and flake on top of bread layer. Sprinkle with cheese. Add the remaining bread cubes. Beat eggs, add milk and salt. Pour over the tuna mixture. Bake in 325° F. oven for one hour, or until done. Serve with mushroom sauce if desired. Serves 6.

Liver Patties

1½ pounds liver
½ cup minced onion
2 well-beaten eggs
¾ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons enriched flour
8 slices bacon, partially cooked

Cover liver with boiling water and simmer 5 minutes. Grind and combine thoroughly with all ingredients except bacon. Shape into cakes and wrap a slice of partially cooked bacon around each; fasten with a toothpick. Cook in a skillet over low heat or in broiler until brown on both sides. Makes cakes.

Liver and Vegetable Casserole

4 slices bacon
1 pound liver, thinly sliced
1½ cups sliced onions
¾ cup sliced celery
2 cups cooked rice (½ cup uncooked)
1 10½- or 11-ounce can cream of mushroom soup
½ cup peas or Lima beans
1 cup milk
1 cup grated American cheese
½ cup buttered crumbs

Cut bacon in small pieces; fry to a delicate brown and remove from pan. Dredge liver in seasoned flour (½ cup flour, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper); brown in the bacon fat and remove. Cook onion and celery in the fat until golden. Add bacon, liver, rice, soup, peas, and milk. Mix well and heat to boiling. Stir in ⅔ cup of the grated cheese and add salt to taste. Pour into a well-oiled 2-quart casserole. Top with buttered crumbs. Sprinkle with remaining ⅓ cup grated cheese. Bake in moderate oven (350°) 20 minutes. Serves 6.

Recipes from Hawaii

Let's start with the shrimp you saw served in the big clamshell on page 62. They can be prepared a little ahead of time and kept hot in the oven. They're better served immediately; but unless you have someone to stay in the kitchen and cook them, you'd better resort to the oven treatment. Be sure to put them right into a hot oven, and don't cover them. So they won't steam and lose their crispness.

French-Fried Shrimp

1 cup enriched flour
½ teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 egg
1 cup ice water
2 tablespoons melted fat or salad oil
2 pounds fresh uncooked shrimp

Combine all ingredients, except shrimp; beat well. Peel shell from shrimp, leaving last section and tail intact. Cut slit through center back, without severing either end; remove black line. Dry shrimp thoroughly; dip in batter, holding the shrimp by the tail. Fry in deep hot fat (375°) until golden brown. Drain on absorbent paper. Serves 6 to 8 as a main course or 12 to 16 as hors d'oeuvres.

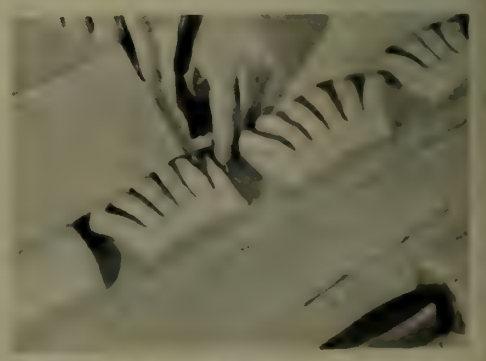
Rolls—

ROLLS sweet and spicy, piping hot—folks just can't resist them. Bring them to the table hot as the oven.

Have a hard time keeping up with your family's appetite? These rolls are quick and easy to make. They take only half as long to make as ordinary rolls. You don't knead them at all. Just combine, roll out, shape, let rise once, and bake. Recipe is on page 98. Pictures show three kinds of rolls that are simple to do and fun to serve.

Butterfly Rolls

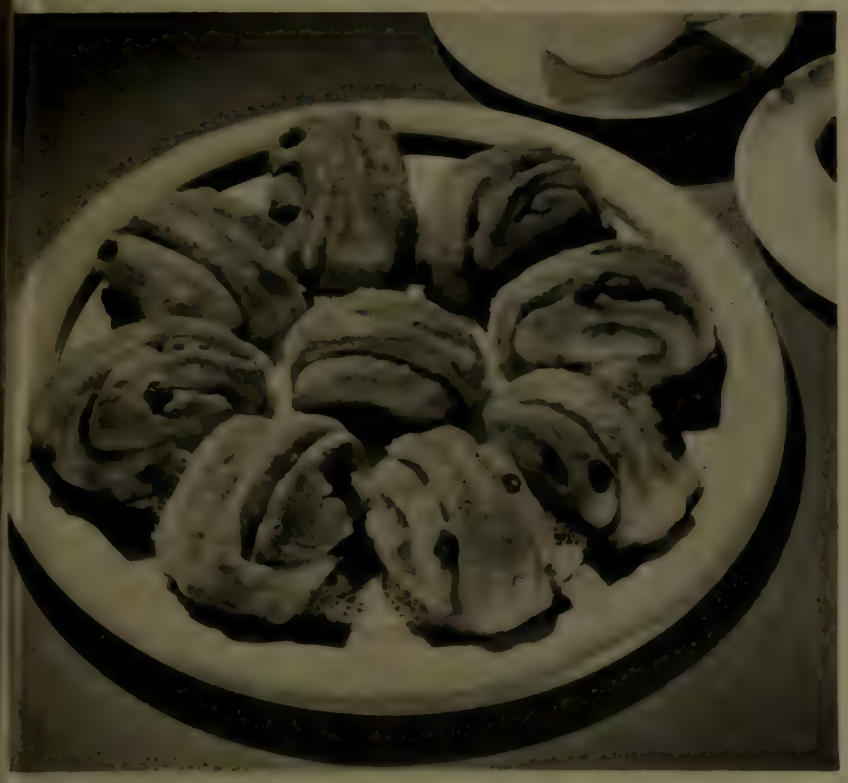
1 Let dough rest 10 minutes. Then roll into 10- by 15-inch rectangle. Brush with 2 tablespoons softened butter. Sprinkle with ½ cup brown sugar, 1 or 2 teaspoons cinnamon, and ¼ cup raisins. Roll. Cut in 1- to 1½-inch slices. Press handle of spoon down center of roll



2 Place rolls, creased side up, in greased 8-inch baking pan so they nearly touch. Cover and let rise in warm place till double. Bake in moderate oven (350°) 25 minutes. Remove from pan. Spread rolls with this icing—¼ cup sifted confectioners' sugar blended with 2 to 3 tablespoons cream

Fan Rolls

1 Let dough rest 10 minutes. Roll into a 12- by 16-inch rectangle. Cut in half lengthwise to make two 6- by 16-inch strips, as shown in picture. Spread filling down the center of each strip. Filling: ½ cup sugar, 1 slightly beaten egg, and 1 cup finely chopped almonds. Fold edges of dough over the filling. Pat to flatten



2 Cut each long roll into four 4-inch rolls. Cut 5 gashes in each roll, as we have in photograph. Spread sections apart to form fans. Brush tops with egg white. Sprinkle with 2 tablespoons chopped almonds. Press nuts into dough. Cover and let rise in warm place till double. Bake in moderate oven (350°) 25 minutes

New rolls that take no kneading

By Tasting-Test Kitchen Staff

3 Hot Butterfly Rolls, topped with creamy icing, filled with raisins, sugar, and spice. They call for coffee. So make a big pot and have it ready the minute the rolls come out of the oven. These would be a good idea for a party luncheon—serve them with a fresh-fruit salad plate

3 Fan Rolls, golden brown, a little crusty, dotted with toasted almonds. Wonderful for breakfast, with a big salad at lunch, or with tea or coffee

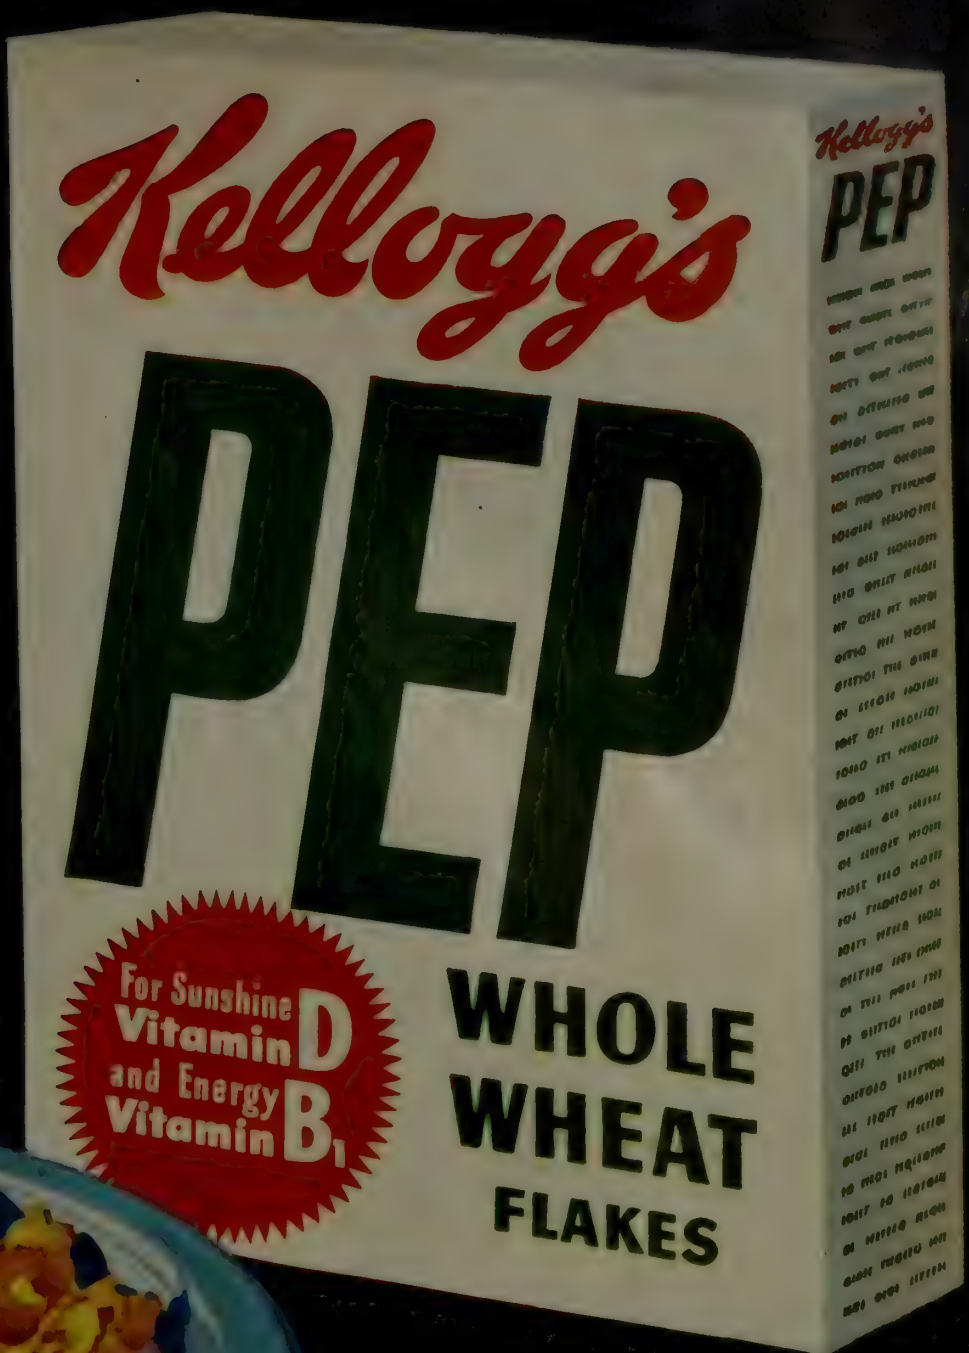
Basic No-Knead Roll Recipe



- ½ cup milk, scalded
- 2 tablespoons shortening
- ¼ cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 cake fresh or 1 package granular yeast
- ¼ cup lukewarm water
- 1 beaten egg
- ½ teaspoon grated lemon peel
- 2½ cups enriched flour

Combine milk, shortening, sugar, and salt; cool to lukewarm. Add yeast softened in lukewarm water; add egg and grated lemon peel. Gradually stir in flour to form soft dough; beat vigorously. Do not expect a stiff dough. If desired, place dough in greased bowl, cover, and store in refrigerator 2 or more hours. Or turn out on well-floured surface. Let rise 10 minutes. Shape rolls according to step-by-step picture direction on page 96 and above. Cover and let rise in warm place (80° to 85° until double. (Allow about 1 hour rising time for unchilled dough and about 1½ to 2 hours for chilled dough.) Bake in moderate oven (350°) 25 minutes. Makes 8 to 10 rolls.

Twice-cooked—that's the trick

THERE'S a trick to fixing French fries, to making extra-creamy Divinity, fancy Soufflé Potatoes, Crème Brulée (the famous French dessert), and main-dish Eggs Mollet. The trick is double-cooking. Watch us make these five recipes in the pictures below and on pages 102 and 104.

Cook tender, cook crisp—French Fries

1 Fry potatoes first in deep fat heated to 350°. Cook till tender but not brown. Drain on paper towels. This step can be done hours ahead. To prepare potatoes for frying: Cut lengthwise in ⅜-inch-thick strips. Dry between paper towels

2 Just before serving time, have fat heated to 390°. Fry potatoes from Step 1, above, till crisp and golden brown. Drain on paper towels; salt. Two-step French fries save time when it's needed most—in the last flurry of meal-getting

Mix together lightly ⅔ cup milk and 3 cups prepared biscuit mix; roll into rectangle ⅛ inch thick. Spread with filling made with 2 tablespoons each melted butter, and sugar, and 2 teaspoons grated orange rind. Roll as for jelly roll; cut into 12 slices. Place each slice, cut side up, in muffin or cup-cake pans. Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) about 30 to 35 minutes. Remove from pans immediately. Serve hot.

Cook soft-ball, then hard-ball—Divinity

1 Syrup's cooked first to soft-ball stage; part is added to egg whites; rest is cooked to hard-ball stage. Here's how: Put 2 cups sugar, ½ cup corn syrup, ½ cup water, and a few grains salt in saucepan. Stir. Boil gently to 240°. Gradually pour one-third of syrup over 2 stiff-beaten egg whites, beating constantly

2 Cook the rest of the syrup to 265°. Wipe off any sugar crystals on the sides of the pan. Beat syrup into candy mixture. Beat until mixture holds its shape. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla. Drop from teaspoon onto oiled cooky sheet. You make the peak with a swirl of the spoon. This double-cooked method of making divinity takes longer but it makes an extra creamy, fluffy candy

Longer life for your home motors

Keep them clean and lubricated, inspect them regularly. That's how to avoid high repair bills By Ken Murray

DO YOU take care of the small motors in your home? Or do you let them run until they break down, then have costly repair jobs done?

There are three basic rules for care of home motors:

1) Keep them clean.

2) Keep them lubricated.

3) Inspect them regularly, so you can spot trouble before it grows.

How often should you inspect motors? Motors receiving only periodic use, as on a vacuum cleaner or a mixer, need a complete annual inspection. Motors of electric fans, heating units, and refrigerators (except those sealed at the factory) can benefit from partial inspection once a month while in use, with a full inspection every year.

Watch any fixed motor's surroundings. Clean up trash that might fall into moving parts.

Most of the tips given here apply to small motors generally. As you check any motor, run through the entire group of photographs and disregard points which may not apply.

Cleaning of home motors is essential; this is what happens in a neglected refrigerator. Dust almost clogs ventilating ducts. This cuts efficiency, and dust drawn inside the motor will cause rapid wear

Photographs: Murray

Oiling of an open-type compressor motor in a refrigerator should be done twice a year, usually with lubricating oil of No. 10 viscosity. Fill oil cup or hole on front bearing (arrow) and oil tube leading to rear bearing. Clean motors with a dry cloth with a few drops of furniture polish on it. Dust condenser (right) every two months. You can clean or oil refrigerator motor without removing it from cabinet

Oiling of small motors, as in this mixer, should be done at regular intervals with just one drop of oil in each oil hole (left). Don't squirt the oil from a can; use a medicine dropper. Inspect carbon brushes (arrow, right) which supply current to a revolving part. They gradually wear down. Usually there are two plugs, one on each side, which you can unscrew to inspect brushes. When a brush wears down near the spring, have serviceman put in new brushes

To check a motor, turn it on and look inside through ventilating holes (left). If you see sparks, the brushes and rotating commutator need to be adjusted. Also sniff for odor of scorched insulation (right). And listen for unusual noise. Either is a sign motor is in need of a thorough overhauling by a serviceman

If your fan won't run, disconnect it and try turning blades by hand. If they turn easily, the trouble is probably electrical. Check the brushes for wear. A break in the cord may be responsible. Have a frayed cord replaced at once. If the fan is of the brushless, induction type, have a serviceman inspect the starting mechanism fan blades are difficult to rn by hand, a bearing probbly needs oil. Also check to ee, if gears in oscillating echanism are jammed; the earbox cover (right) usually easy to take off. Add gear rease recommended by the anufacturer when it is needed

Temperature of a motor working properly usually will not rise more than 100 degrees above temperature of the surrounding air. To check temperature, use a lump of putty to hold bulb of a cooking thermometer against hottest part of the motor you are checking

Check to see if there is up-and-down or side play of motor shaft. If there is, it may indicate worn bearings which need replacing. Worn bearings reduce the air gap between moving and stationary parts, and eventually will cause damage

Motors with sealed bearings have no oil holes or cups. While such a motor is running, place your hand as pictured on the bearing housing. If there is vibration, it likely indicates damage which should be taken care of at once by an expert lso look for the creeping of rease on the outside of sealed- earing housings. Such leak- ge must be corrected before ne bearing runs dry and is lamaged by lack of lubricant

On a brush-type motor, loosening one screw will let you lift off a plate and examine a rotating part which the brushes contact. This part (arrow), the commutator, should be smooth and have a high polish. But the color need not be that of copper; it may range from copper to straw or even to a dark chocolate color. If commutator is grooved or pitted, however, you will need an overhaul job

If you see black discoloration on the commutator, tie a piece of clean, grit-free, lintless canvas to the end of a wooden stick. Use it to wipe off the discoloration while the motor is running. Keeping this part clean is essential for efficiency

THIS is a glamour dessert. You slice down through four layers of tender sponge cake and four layers of the same creamy chocolate frosting you see on the top and sides of the torte. Sides are crusty with nuts. Serve a cup of steaming coffee with each big wedge of Chocolate Nut Torte.

Cake:

5 eggs
2½ cups sugar
1 tablespoon butter or fortified margarine
1¼ cups milk, scalded
2½ cups cake flour
⅛ teaspoon salt
2½ teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon vanilla

Beat eggs until light. Gradually add 1 cup sugar, and continue beating; add remaining sugar and beat until light-colored and fluffy. Combine butter and hot milk; gradually add to egg mixture. Add sifted dry ingredients and vanilla. Mix well. Bake in two waxed-paper-lined 9-inch layer pans in moderate oven (350°) 30 minutes. Cool. Cut layers in half.

Frosting:

2 cups milk
½ cup granulated sugar
½ cup enriched flour
¼ cup cocoa
⅓ cup cold milk
1 cup butter or fortified margarine
1 cup confectioners' sugar
2 teaspoons vanilla
1½ cups chopped California walnuts

Heat milk in double boiler. Combine granulated sugar, flour, cocoa, and ⅓ cup cold milk. Add to hot milk and cook over hot water until thickened, about 20 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from heat; cover and cool to room temperature. Thoroughly cream butter and confectioners' sugar. Add to cooked, cooled mixture. Beat smooth. Spread between layers and on top and sides of torte. Decorate with chopped California walnuts.

It's easy to grow African-violets

The African-violet's simple, unobtrusive beauty fits perfectly into any type of surrounding

Your African-violet has simple likes and dislikes. Follow these rules for certain success

By Ferne Kellar
President, African-Violet Society of America, Inc.

THERE'S a good reason for the amazing popularity of the African-violet or saintpaulia. It gives you a wealth of delicate bloom over a long period, it doesn't need a sunny window, and it gives you a wide choice of varieties whose colors range from plum red through purple to blue, pink, and white.

Best of all, it's easy to grow. Follow these simple rules and you'll be assured of beautiful bloom.

Watering. Contrary to what you might have heard, water doesn't hurt an African-violet, although cold water or anything else cold can cause brown leaf spots. Use water at room temperature and you'll have no trouble even if you water from the top. Another good method is to set the entire pot into a pan containing an inch or two of water until moisture has seeped up to the surface. Water when the soil surface feels dry, but don't keep it soggy.

Feeding. Your violet won't need much feeding if it is potted in good soil. But during and after a period of heavy blooming it will appreciate about a level teaspoonful of complete plant food dissolved in a quart of water every two weeks or so. If you add soil or repot, use a soil rich in humus such as the kind you find in an undisturbed spot under a hedge. Or mix equal parts of sand, compost, and heavy, rich black soil —or buy potting mixture from your nurseryman.

Light. Your plant needs good light but doesn't like direct sunlight. A north or east window is best; in a south window shade from strong sun rays.

Temperature. Room temperature, about 72 degrees, is just right. Below 60 degrees may harm plant. Avoid chilly drafts.

Handling. The leaves are brittle, so treat them gently. Don't let leaves touch cold glass because cold causes brown spots. Pick off faded flowers and seed pods.

Cleaning. The fuzzy leaves catch dust, but you can remove it by brushing gently with a soft pastry brush or a baby's hairbrush as you support the leaf underneath with your finger tips. A careful syringing in your kitchen sink with water at room temperature every two weeks or so will also keep leaves clean.

NATION-WIDE DISTRIBUTION THROUGH BRANCHES, WHOLESALERS, PLUMBING AND HEATING DEALERS

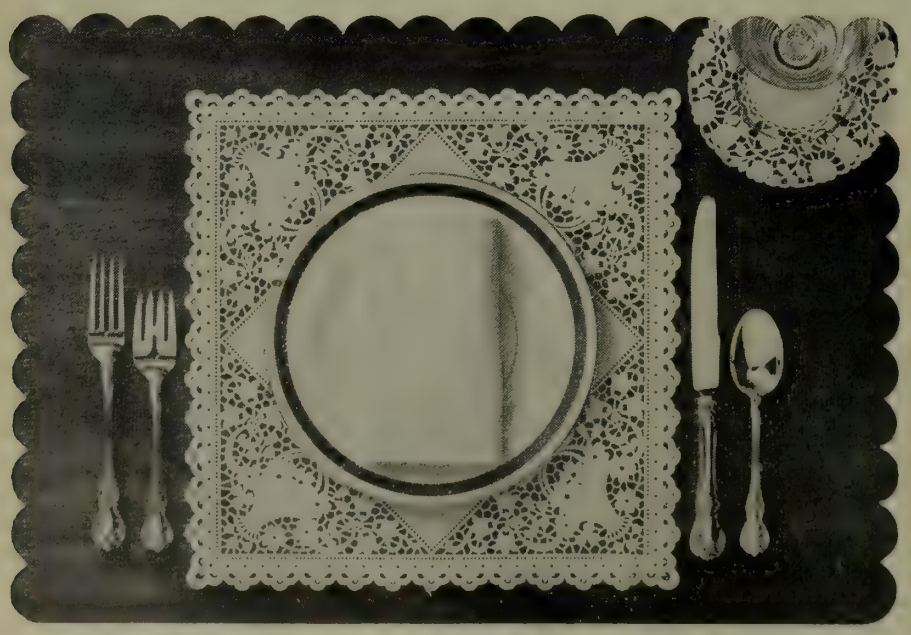
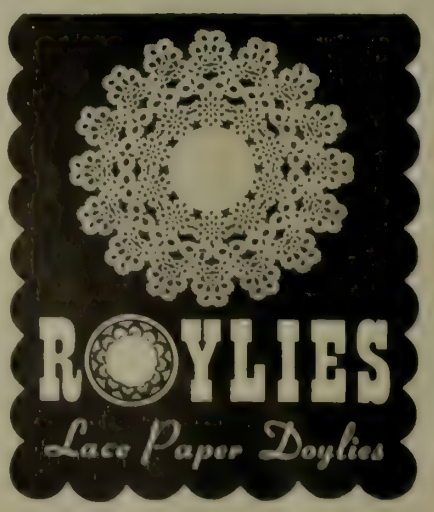
You can grow new African-violets by plant division. Here's a plant which has spread out into several crowns and is ripe for division. Work a knife down carefully between main plant and side crown; dig out the extra crowns. If roots are too tangled, you may have to remove plant from pot and carefully work the crowns apart with your fingers. Then repot in good soil



Or you can start African-violet leaves in sand, vermiculite, or soil. Poke a hole in the soil with a pencil, set the leaf stem about 1 inch deep. Put a leaf into an individual pot or put several leaves into a big pot. The important thing is to keep the soil moist but not soggy

There's no trick to getting a new violet from a leaf. One method is to put the stem in water. A good idea for supporting the leaf is to stick it through a hole punched in waxed paper stretched over a glass of water as shown. Roots will appear in 2 to 4 weeks. Then transplant into sandy soil until leaves appear; transplant a final time to potting soil



There'll come a day when a leaf cutting will look like this. The parent leaf can be cut off near the soil surface, while the baby plant should be repotted into proper soil. If the parent leaf is of a choice variety, and if some stem remains, you can root the leaf all over again

Father moored his straw hat to his coat lapel. Mother thrust her murderous looking butterfly hatpin through her bonnet into her upswept hair. And Buster had the elastic of his sailor firmly under his chin. The family had tired of seeing distorted scenery through small windows of wavy glass and decided to brave the rigors of the observation platform.

It was a thrill . . . frightened longhorns running awkwardly from the tracks, the race with a buckboard. It was an ordeal, too. Wind tore at clothing. Soot covered the gay awning, the carpeted flooring, the clothes of the hardy travelers. They would taste coal smoke long after they retreated inside. The inevitable cinder lodged in Buster's eye because in the excitement he forgot to squint.

All this to get a view! But that was before trains had large, clear windows of plate glass . . . laminated plate glass for safety, and before the genius of American production had brought the luxury of polished plate glass within reach of us all.

IN A CHAIR CUSHIONED WITH

Firestone FOAMEX*

HERE's a warm welcome... an invitation to take it easy—in your Foamex-cushioned chair. Deeper and deeper you rest, yielding to blissful Foamex comfort. You're firmly supported—cradled in baby-skin softness—at peace with the world.

Yet there's not an ounce of "over-stuffiness" in your air-cooled, air-cleaned Foamex easy chair. Foamex trims furniture down to a new loveliness of line, shape and form.

Foamex keeps the shape of your upholstered furniture, despite years of punishing wear. It can never sag, lump or pack down. That's why the best furniture in your favorite department or furniture store proudly features Foamex. In mattresses, too, at these same fine furniture departments, Foamex is another word for sleep.

See what we mean!

FREE A sample of Foamex. Use it for a complexion or make-up sponge. Caress your cheek with it—softness and imagine what it's like to relax in a whole chair cushioned with Foamex. Go to the furniture department of your favorite store or write Firestone, Akron for your free complexion sponge, now.

I use the cleanser that's FAST! EASY! SAFE!

Why dull bathtub shine with dirt-catching scratches — when Bon Ami cleans so fast without scratchy grit? This fine, white cleanser lifts dirt off so quickly and with so little work. No hard rubbing and scrubbing. No harsh caustics to redden and roughen your pretty hands.

And Bon Ami polishes as it cleans. Sinks, bathtubs, basins, tiling are left with a brilliant luster. Try Bon Ami today. Give your bathtub and kitchen sink a real sparkle with the cleanser that's fast, easy, safe.

Bon Ami Cake cleans windows cleaner. No streaks. No oily film. Polishes as it cleans—and costs so little.

WHAT! YOU CAN SAVE ME 40% ON FUEL?

SURE!

JUST INSULATE WITH FIRE-PROOF Gold Bond ROCK WOOL!

● Last year over 100,000 thrifty homeowners insulated with Fireproof Gold Bond Rock Wool. Fuel savings up to 40% soon pay the cost and these savings continue for the life of the house.

Besides lower heating costs and complete winter comfort, homes insulated the Gold Bond way have three more big advantages:

- They are as much as 15° cooler in summer.
- They are more firesafe. Fireproof Gold Bond Rock Wool in the walls and roof provides a permanent fire barrier.
- They have a higher resale value.

Does this sound good to you? Then call in your Gold Bond Rock Wool Applicator. He's an insulation specialist, factory-trained in Gold Bond's tested methods of application, to give you the very best insulation job, without muss or fuss. He uses only Fireproof Gold Bond Rock Wool. Made by National Gypsum Company, it is the finest insulation money can buy.

Get the full facts now about insulation . . . the one home improvement that actually pays for itself. Your Gold Bond Applicator's name is listed in the classified section of your phone book under "Insulation". Phone him today for an estimate for your home without charge or obligation.

NEW DISCOVERY about HOT WATER

Sizes to meet all needs
Fully automatic, gas or electric

IT MEANS cleaner, purer hot water all the time and always all you want . . . because it's Hot Water "Packaged-in-Glass"!

NO RUSTING • NO CORRODING

Remember this one thing about a Permaglas Water Heater: it CANNOT rust or corrode . . . under any water condition.

The reason, a remarkable development by A. O. Smith scientists, is the glass-lined tank—sanitary as a clean drinking glass! Banished is tank rust that ruins laundry, corrosion dirt that discolors water and fixtures.

Proved in hundreds of thousands of homes all over America, Permaglas Water Heaters assure you a new, economical kind of hot-water convenience. All the hot water you want for every home use, all you need for the newest automatic washers and dishwashers . . . and always clean.

You no longer need to replace your water heater every few years . . . when you install a "Permaglas"! At leading public utilities, merchant plumbers, better appliance dealers.

FOR DRAMATIC PROOF visit your nearest dealer who displays this emblem.

See for yourself this amazing new discovery, Hot Water "Packaged-in-Glass."

New EASY Spindrier

loves your pocketbook— protects it 3 ways!

1. MORE FOR YOUR MONEY! Two tubs working at once do an average week's wash in less than an hour! One tub washes while the other super-rinses, then spins clothes up to 25% drier! Clothes dry faster, are lighter to hang up.

2. EASY ON CLOTHES...SAVES ON "EXTRAS"! Gentle roll-over action washes all clothes in all parts of tub. Cleans grimiest overalls. Yet safe for sheerest undies! No wringer wrinkles to iron out. No broken buttons. Saves cleaning bills by doing "washable" drapes, slipcovers, at home!

3. SAVES SOAP AND HOT WATER! Uses hot suds over and over. And Easy is portable! Just wheel to any sink. No set tubs needed! Dollar for dollar, it's America's greatest washer value!

ONLY EASY HAS AUTOMATIC SPIN-RINSE! Just turn a tap, and fresh water surges up through cone in spinning basket, double-rinsing a full load of clothes whiter, brighter in 3 minutes ...with only 3 gallons of warm water! country, off the roads, are far cheaper inside the parks than out of them.

Because the parks, by act of Congress, are dedicated to public use, the Department of the Interior has provided for every type of visitor. By pitching a tent and cooking your own food, you can live for as little as $1.50 a day per person. Or, if you want luxury, you can pay up to $25 a day for each member of your family and revel in an elegant suite.

What kind of park do you prefer? You have an almost unlimited choice.

Does rugged, coastal country appeal to you? Then take a trip to the granite headlands of Mt. Desert Island in Maine, overlooking Bar Harbor and the Atlantic.

Subtropical scenery? Then try Everglades National Park, in Florida, where snowy egrets rise from the waters and alligators lie on the banks.

The Rocky Mountain country? Choose, then, between the snow fields and lakes of Glacier National Park and the 2-mile-high Trail Ridge Road through Rocky Mountain National Park, with its 65 peaks more than 10,000 feet high.

The world's largest trees (Sequoia National Park) . . . the greatest glaciers in the United States (Mt. Rainier National Park) . . . the largest cave yet discovered (Carlsbad Caverns National Park) . . . the greatest and most beautiful canyon known (Grand Canyon National Park) . . . these are some

LUMINESS — AMAZING NEW

COMPOUND ADDS WHITENESS, BRIGHTNESS TO CLOTHES!

YES, LUMINESS, amazing new whitening compound now in La France Bluing Flakes, will actually add whiteness and brightness to your clothes!

Here's the amazing reason why: All white clothes are white and all colored clothes are bright . . . because they reflect light.

Luminess increases the amount of light clothes reflect...actually making white clothes WHITER and colored things BRIGHTER each and every time you wash!

What's more—La France isn't a regular bluing . . . it can't possibly streak or spot! And it isn't a bleach either . . . so it can't weaken or harm any fabric.

You can wash fast-color and white things in the same washer load or tubful. New La France with Luminess will whiten the white things and brighten the colored things at the same time.

Try new La France with Luminess next time you wash! See the wonderful, wonderful difference La France makes!

The price is amazingly low . . . all it costs is two to three cents a week.

Your own private Alps . . . Switzerland has nothing on parks like Grand Teton, Kings Canyon, Mt. Rainier. This is Glacier's Mt. Oberlin of the best known of our public preserves. All of them are yours, and all of them offer the most economical vacations anywhere on this continent.

This year, the national park system is 76 years old. It was in 1872, after explorers plumbed the mysteries of Yellowstone, that Congress established the area as a national park, "a pleasuring ground for the benefit and enjoyment of the people." Since then, its trees, its wild animals, its waterfalls, and its geysers have been preserved so that you may enjoy them.

If you ask the average American what national park he'd choose to visit first, odds are he'll answer: "Yellowstone, of course." And, if you ask him what geyser he'll go to see first, he'll answer: "Old Faithful."

Old Faithful is the most spectacular of the Yellowstone phenomena, so regular in spouting its column of boiling water that tourists set their watches by it. It is, however, only 1 of 10,000 thermal features in the Park—geysers, hot springs, mud volcanoes.

Even without these impressive displays of hot-water activity, Yellowstone would be a travel must. The Grand Canyon of the Yellowstone, the calm waters of Yellowstone Lake, and the wild animals, ranging from bear to bighorn sheep, combine to provide a 2-million-acre scenic package unequaled in the world.

The official Yellowstone season begins June 20 and ends September 10. By car, you can enter from Gardiner, Red Lodge, or Gallatin, Montana; from Cody and Jackson Hole, Wyoming; and from West Yellowstone, Idaho. By train, there is another wide choice: Gardiner or Red Lodge via Northern Pacific; Gallatin via the Milwaukee; West Yellowstone by Union Pacific, and Cody via the Burlington. Motor coach lines serve all entrances; United Airlines and Northwest Airlines connect with Western Airlines to drop you at the West Yellowstone airport.

In your own town, once you start talking about that trip to Yellowstone, others will want to go. You may well find three different families, with three different notions on how to make the trip.

Perhaps your own choice, if you have two growing youngsters in your family, is to stay in a canvas-frame cabin, thus holding your total cost to $108.50.

The Smiths, however, have relatives on the Coast whom they want to visit. They prefer a quick, escorted tour of the park. It's theirs—for $44.75 each, or $179 for the whole family, including meals, lodging, and transportation. In 2½ days they'll see all the principal sights.

The Joneses have two weeks, but they're saving for a new house. Their decision is to pitch a tent in one of the 15 principal public camp sites. It costs them nothing for this privilege, and water, sanitary facilities, and cooking grates are at hand. The only expense is food, cooked over an open fire—about $6 a day for the four of them, or $60 for 10 days in the park.

The Browns can't quite make up their minds. Should they stay in a comfortable cabin at one of the four lodges within the park? If so, by eating at the coffee shops, their total bill for 10 days will be $151. Both of their children are older than 8, or the cost of lodging would be a little less.

An alternate choice for the Browns is to stay at Old Faithful Inn, Canyon Hotel, or Mammoth Springs Hotel, luxurious establishments with massive lounges and all metropolitan comforts. Here rate for the four in the family ll run from $320 (in two rooms thout bath, but with meals inded) to $370 in two rooms with bath between them.

UNCLE SAM makes only one arge on motorists entering Yelwstone. That is a flat fee of $3 for tos, plus an extra dollar if a iler is carried. For this figure, ou have the run of 300 miles of proved roads, among them the 2-mile Grand Loop which carries you from Mammoth Hot prings past the Norris Geyser asin alongside obsidian cliffs to ld Faithful, past Yellowstone ake to the brink of the Yellowone Canyon over the summit of 0.317-foot Mt. Washburn and ongside a petrified forest to your tarting point.

Every visitor to Yellowstone is scinated by the bears. Brown and lack, they stroll along the roads, ay even stop your car to beg for andy or food. A word of advice: Don't feed the bears. It's a dangerous astime. Park officials warn you to bserve the bears from a distance.

ONCE you've gotten over the urprise of seeing wild animals lose at hand, you'll want to learn nore about the park. Ranger naturalists are on hand to help you. Parties are conducted through ight of the most scenic areas, and here are campfire talks most every evening. More than that, the park has five museums, which also serve as official information offices.

Do you hike, or ride horseback? There are more than 500 miles of trails, leading back from the crowded highways to wilderness areas. Guided trips on horseback may be made for as low as $2. A horse for a day, with a guide, will cost you $12. The Yellowstone Park Company maintains a motorbus service for park tours, with rates from a dollar up.

EVEN the price of fishing trips is regulated at Yellowstone. Launches, with fishing tackle included, cost $3.50 an hour. A rod, reel, and landing net may be rented for 50 cents a day. Half-hour speedboat trips on Yellowstone Lake cost a dollar a person. There's swimming at beaches along the shore, and there also are natural hot-water pools at Mammoth Hot Springs and Old Faithful.

A small army of rangers watches over Yellowstone's million visitors annually. At Mammoth Hot Springs, there is a hospital; there are trained nurses at each hotel and lodge; and physicians are on call to treat injuries or illnesses anywhere in the park. Catholic, Protestant, and Morman services are conducted each Sunday at convenient points.

And that's Yellowstone—unique, but no more so than just about any other national park. However, if your taste runs to less grandeur, if you prefer the softer scenery of the Eastern hills, then you may find just what you want in Great Smoky Mountains National Park, a wilderness oasis in the East.

Last year, nearly a million and a half persons converged on the Smokies. Most of them came down through Virginia and North Carolina over the Skyline Drive (Shenandoah National Park) and the Blue Ridge Parkway, a scenic ridge-top roadway interrupted at four points, but linked by adequate standard roads. Eventually, there will be a skyline drive all the way from the Virginia-Maryland border to the Smokies, a distance of 470 miles.

This largest of the eastern national parks, with a backbone ridge rising above 5,000 feet for 36 continuous miles, is also the most easily reached. Paved roads converge at Knoxville, Tennessee, and Asheville, North Carolina, on either side of the park. The Southern Railway, connecting with northern lines at Washington, serves both cities; the Louisville and Nashville from Chicago and New Orleans, runs into Knoxville. Major airlines reach both cities, and there are seven daily bus trips through the park between Asheville and Knoxville.

LET'S suppose you don't come in your own car, but still want to see the whole park. If so, the Smoky Mountain Tours Company provides for you. There are all-expense tours of the park proper covering 3 days. With rooms, meals, and federal transportation tax included, starting either from Asheville or Knoxville, it would cost $172.60 for a family of four. Longer tours, running all the way up to 10 days, and including sights outside the park, such as Mt. Mitchell (highest in the East) the Pisgah Forest, Fontana Dam, and the Blue Ridge Parkway, run all the way to $170 per person. A one-day trip across the park costs $8.05 per person, or $32.20 for a family of four.

One great virtue of the Smokies is that you can visit them comfortably any time from April to November. In spring, the azaleas and mountain laurel make a carpet of color. In summer, until August, the rhododendron is in bloom. In fall, there is the most spectacular autumn coloring to be found anywhere in the East.

A splendid trans-mountain highway winds through shadowy notches, clings to the timbered mountainside, climbs to almost a mile, and looks down on tiny clusters of cabins preserving a pioneer culture 100 years old. Ancient gristmills, handmade tools, and household objects picture a frontier life that still existed in some tiny valleys until the government stepped in 10 years ago.

A BLUE haze hangs over the peaks. From Clingman's Dome, 6,643 feet, (reached by auto) the mountains seem to stretch off endlessly into the distance. But to see them best, you must shoulder a pack to walk some of the 71 miles of the Appalachian Trail, or travel over some of the 653 miles of horse and foot trails.

As in Yellowstone, there are varied accommodations. At the Chimneys, six miles south of Gatlinburg, and on the North Carolina slope at Smokemont, there are

SPRUCE (Picea) looks like several other evergreens at first glance, but you can recognize it easily if you look at a twig from which the needles have fallen. The needles break off, leaving jagged projections which are a certain identification. The needles are arranged all around the twig making it bushy like the tail of a frightened cat; the cones hang downward; and the needles are generally sharp-pointed and stiff.

FIR (Abies) can easily be confused with spruce on first glance since the needles are arranged much the same way. However, when fir needles break off, they leave a smooth, round scar, flush with the twig surface. The needles also differ from those of spruce in being soft to the touch and blunt, while the cones hang downward.

HEMLOCK (Tsuga) is another of the evergreens you'll want to know. It's usually a graceful tree with branches which hang down in a flowing, pendulous growth habit. The needles are arranged in rows on each side of the twig, and cones are borne on twig ends.

Want all three cold zones larger in your new refrigerator?

Ask your Frigidaire Dealer to show them to you in America's No. 1 Refrigerator— the one that is different from all others!

You'll be amazed at all the extra room inside this new Frigidaire De Luxe!

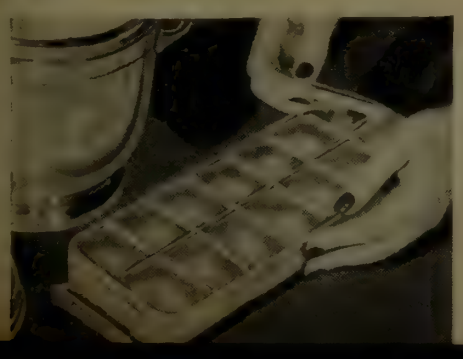
Yes, Your Frigidaire Dealer will show you there's all that extra space you've always needed—up to 50% more room than before!—in the 3 cold zones of the new Frigidaire Refrigerators.

This De Luxe model, for example, holds 50 lbs. of frozen foods in the freezing cold of its Super-Freezer Chest. Nearly 2/3 of a bushel of fruits and vegetables will stay fresher, crisper in its super-moist Hydrator—protected by an additional refrigerating system of its own. In between you'll see all kinds of space for everything from fresh eggs to tall cold bottles.

But you'll see far more than extra space—more than extra conveniences. There's one thing that only a Frigidaire Dealer can show you—the difference between a Frigidaire and any other refrigerator you've ever owned or seen—the famous Meter-Miser! Look at it carefully for it's the key to the long, carefree life of your refrigerator—sealed in steel against dirt and moisture, oiled for life, so you won't have to look at it again for years and years. Yes, it's the simplest of all cold-making mechanisms—stingy in its use of current—the No. 1 reason why Frigidaire is America's No. 1 Refrigerator!

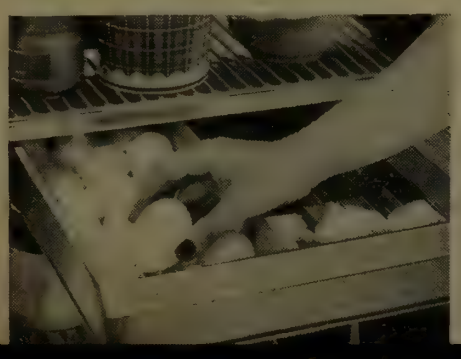
Your Frigidaire Dealer will demonstrate all 9 Frigidaire models—all backed by the experience of building 10 million refrigerating units. He will help you select the one that best fits your kitchen, your family, your eating habits. Also ask to see the Frigidaire electric ranges, automatic washer and other appliances for the home.

Look up the name of your Frigidaire Dealer today—in Classified Phone Directory: or write Frigidaire Division of General Motors, Dayton 1, O. In Canada, Leaside 12, Ont.



Listen to Frigidaire's New Lum and Abner show, Sunday nights CBS.

FRIGIDAIRE
Refrigerators



Look how the Meter-Miser works —without belts or gears, without oiling or any attention! It's the simplest cold-making mechanism of all—so easy on electric current!

Watch "Quickubes" pop right out of Frigidaire's exclusive Quickube trays. Cubes freeze fast—come out trigger-quick at the touch of a lever.

Put all your eggs in one Basket-Drawer—handy aluminum drawer that's so convenient for storing all small packages as well as eggs.

You'll like these streamlined shelves —rust-proof aluminum, clean and bright. Close-spaced bars support small items, tippy bottles.

Guard against

RUSTY WATER – LEAKY TANKS!

Be sure the new heater you buy is equipped with a Dow Magnesium Rod or have your present tank protected.

This rod protects the tank of your heater against rust simply, scientifically . . . gives you maximum protection against rusty water and leaky tanks at minimum cost. It adds years of useful life because the rod itself, by electro-chemical action, absorbs the brunt of the corrosive attack instead of the tank.

Leading manufacturers are equipping their heaters with Dow Magnesium Rods. They're taking advantage of this proved way to insure against failure due to corrosion. See your dealer today, and insist on a heater equipped with a Dow Magnesium Rod.

To protect your present tank, ask your dealer about the Link-type Rod for simple installation in existing heaters.

JUNIPER (Juniperus) is going to cause you trouble, because even the experts have trouble with its widely different varieties. Its new growth or juvenile foliage (left) is sharp and prickly and differs greatly from the soft, scalelike matured or adult foliage (right). You'll usually find both on the same tree, but to confuse matters still more, the juvenile foliage never matures on some species. However, you won't have any trouble identifying a female juniper when it bears its frosty, grey-blue berries which are actually small, pulpy cones.

ARBORVITAE (Thuja) has foliage as distinctive as any evergreen that grows. Its flat, lacy fernlike branches are already familiar to you even if you haven't known its name before now, and you've undoubtedly noticed the overlapping scales of its leaves and smelled their pungent odor. Arborvitae, like juniper, has both a prickly leaved juvenile form of foliage and a scalelike adult form.

However, the way the branches grow in flat sprays is so different from other evergreens that it's unmistakable, regardless of foliage form.

AFTER learning to recognize these seven, you'll want to get acquainted with some of the other evergreens which grow in your section of the country. Cedars, cypress, sequoia, and larches are all worth knowing, and every one of them has its own distinctive characteristics. But don't make the mistake of looking for any evergreen that looks exactly like the examples given, because they show just the general characteristics. You'll find wide variations in different varieties.

Nevertheless, a little practice should make it easy for you to recognize all of the evergreens in your area just as easily as you now tell an oak from an elm or maple.

Fixing loose chair legs

The next time you fix a loose leg or rung of a chair, use this method to make your repair permanent.

First, make a saw cut about 1 inch deep in the dowel end of each loose leg or rung. Then whittle a thin hardwood wedge for each slit. The tapered end should slip freely into the saw cut, and the butt end should be about ⅛ inch thick. Make this wedge a trifle shorter than the depth of the saw cut.

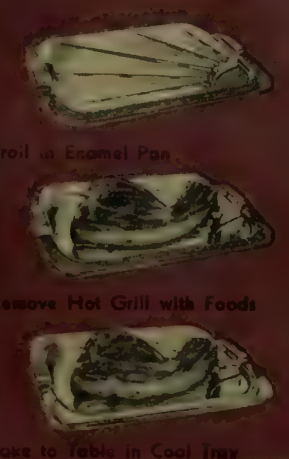
Smear glue on the wedge, the end of the dowel, and in the dowel hole. Then drive the dowel slowly into the hole with a wooden mallet. The wedge will spread the end to make a tight fit.

When you use this method to repair a chair leg, the wedge should be at right angles to the grain of the wood in the chair seat to reduce the danger of splitting. S. B. Major, Peninsula, Ohio.

Window opener

Do you have a window over your kitchen sink that is hard to open? Mine called for such a long reach that I had to stand on a chair to open it.

My husband solved the problem—and saved me many cases of frayed temper—with a simple gadget. To a 12-inch strip of wood, he nailed a 3-inch piece of half-round molding (a split broomstick would do). The molding was attached crossways about 1½ inches from the end of the stick.



To raise the window, I slip the stick under the window handle and press down. The molding rolls on the sill, and the window goes up easily. Mrs. Sam C. Mitchell, Kansas City, Kansas.

How old are you in your daughter's eyes?

Suppose a younger woman comes to you again and again full of enthusiasm for discoveries she has made. And you show that you are indifferent to almost all of her new ideas. Then don't be surprised if she thinks you "set in your ways"—and "old"... You are probably also missing some excellent suggestions.

To many girls Tampax is an important discovery indeed—a sensible, practical way to provide for monthly sanitary protection. Tampax discards belts, pins and external pads. It is worn internally and cannot be felt when in place. No hampering bulk or chafing. No odor—because odor cannot form. No need to remove before taking bath.

Tampax was invented by a doctor and is now used by millions. Made of compressed absorbent cotton, each Tampax is firmly stitched and enclosed in an efficient applicator. Changing is quick. Disposal easy (only 1/9 the size of external pad). Average month's supply slips into your purse. New baby? Send these useful gifts

By Fae Huttenlocher

THE happiest time to send a gift of flowers is to welcome the arrival of a new baby. Why not make your gift useful as well as beautiful? Then it will be appreciated long after the flowers are gone.

One of the flower arrangements is for the new dad's desk. The other two are for Mother.

Husky bouncer is an amusing gift to welcome a baby boy. The figure is made of weighted plaster and can be used later for book end or a nursery doorstop. Miniature boxing gloves add the masculine touch

For the new father—send it to his office. He has to be ready with a handout. There are buttonhole carnations for some friends, cigarettes for others. Match holders with "It's a boy" or "It's a girl" printed on cover are held in place by wire holders

Photographs: Pix, Inc.

Enamel basket or toilet tray holds frosted glass bowls for Baby's toilet needs. These will come in handy all during Baby's first year. Remove lids and tuck seasonal flowers into the bowls. Fasten a lovely camellia, gardenia, or rose with a bobby pin to base of the tray. Mother will take the flower off and put it in her hair

Is your child's future worth a Wurlitzer?

You want a Wurlitzer piano. You know it will make your home a happier one. Happier because it will be lovelier. Happier because a piano draws the family together. Happier because such a fine instrument is a home center for fun and relaxation.

These are good reasons, but there's a better one. A Wurlitzer in your home can help your children go further in life. Like a good education, a Wurlitzer is an investment in your child's future. An investment that pays rich dividends in poise and popularity and social success. In developing character and personality and, who knows?—a glowing career!

Is the size of the investment holding you back?

It needn't. For though a good piano is not cheap, the Wurlitzer costs less than you think! No piano made contains finer parts or costlier materials, yet the price is far below that of many other famous makes. Why is Wurlitzer able to bring you a quality instrument at a moderate price? The reason is simple:

More people buy Wurlitzer pianos than those of any other name!

WURLITZER pianos

THE RUDOLPH WURLITZER COMPANY, DE KALB, ILLINOIS

Wurlitzer pianos are available in a wide variety of styles, both modern and traditional, and in many beautiful finishes. $495 to $975.

WHEN SHE HAS DATES...
The girl who can play the piano is a more popular girl, more poised and more sure of herself. A Wurlitzer in her home encourages home entertaining, wholesome recreation.

WHEN SHE MARRIES...
Nowhere is a woman's charm and grace more evident than at the piano. A Wurlitzer contributes to the serenity and companionship that make for happy married life.

IF SHE HAS TALENT...
A Wurlitzer in the home may open the doors to a glorious career. But talent or no, playing the piano will be a source of satisfaction and pleasure for the rest of her life.

The Killingsworths

They cut costs with ideas

THE Killingsworths—whose window story is told on page 54—had other problems that might have meant costly remodeling. There was the problem of what to do for a living-room entry, and the problem of inexpensive carpeting for a temporary home. The Killingsworths solved those problems, too, and here's how they did it.

Killingsworths got the effect of an entry with grill made from inexpensive molding. Recessed lighting in plywood trough painted to match ceiling illuminates sofa, highlights papered wall. Coffee table topped with corrugated glass is homemade. "Island" tables were rare bargains

Unused drive becomes patio

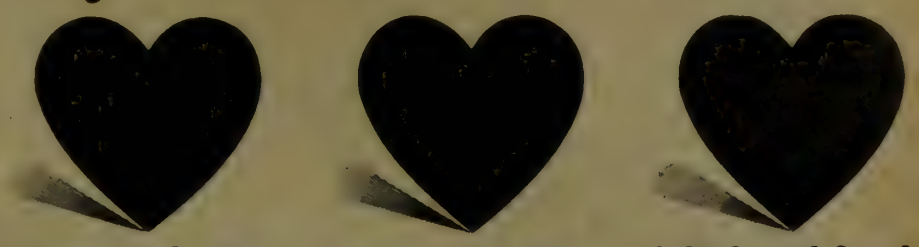
IF YOU'RE wondering what is behind the pergola and high board fence of the Killingsworths' home in the story on page 54, these pictures take you backstage. The Killingsworths wanted an outdoor living room and a place for their son Gregor to play. They enclosed an unused driveway outside the dining-room door with a tall redwood fence. Half of the patio was already paved with cement left over from the driveway, and Mr. Killingsworth covered the rest with brick laid in a basket-weave pattern. A sandbox for Gregor was added to one corner and shrubs and vines were set off by redwood planks. The Killingsworths have created a background for gracious living—outdoors as well as indoors—on a firm budget.

Killingsworths' patio is screened from the street by redwood fence and a pergola over the old driveway. Enclosed patio provides a protected play area for Gregor. At this end he has a sandbox built of redwood that fences patio. Planting box at right brings garden into patio. Fence is topped with plastic screening that looks like opaque glass

...ues on page 54

...ut you can use

...ura Killingsworth's large shag rug is three small rugs that she can put ... the washing machine, whipstitch together. The carpet in the living ...om—and throughout the house—is fiber matting, purchased in sec... ...ons and sewed together. It can be scrubbed with soap and water



...nd safe spot for a child

Patio is pleasant place for entertaining. Shade is provided by a bamboo blind stretched across yellow beams. Shade can be rolled back. Until they can buy more outdoor furniture to go with green canvas sofa, Killingsworths use webbed chairs and "island" table from living room. Bricks set in basket-weave pattern make inexpensive paving for patio

Bedroom windows become a wall of draperies

THE Killingsworth's window problems weren't limited to their living room and dining room. Their bedroom windows were another challenge. They were small, but they defied a deft touch. Tieback curtains wouldn't hide the heavy woodwork; sill-length glass curtains would only leave the wall with a well-chopped look. Laura and Ed Killingsworth decided to use the same strong treatment that had worked in the other part of the house. When they finished, they were glad their windows had forced them to be bold.

Bold treatment, again, turned the trick here

Killingsworths found that by draping entire wall they had given it unity. They used glass curtains to conceal the windows and woodwork. Both curtains and draperies were hung from the ceiling to give the windows luxurious height

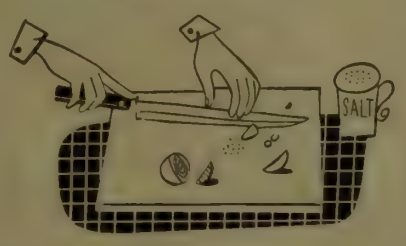
Cooking secrets

By Genevieve Callahan



To make crumbs stick to chops or croquettes, first roll the chops or croquettes in flour, then dip them into beaten egg, then into crumbs. Let stand a little while if possible. This lets coating dry slightly so fat won't spatter during frying.

For fluffier meat balls, soften bread crumbs in hot milk instead of in cold milk. This softens and fluffs the bread quickly and makes meat balls lighter and more tender. When you add the bread to the meat, mix lightly with a fork.

When you cool a cake, turn it onto a rack and put absorbent paper towels under the rack to absorb some of the steam. Otherwise the cake may get soggy on the underside.

Hot stuff. To make really hot mustard (the kind your husband gets at his favorite restaurant): Stir boiling water into dry mustard, about 3 tablespoons water to 1 of mustard. Cool, then add salt to taste, and a little salad oil to keep mustard from drying out. Let stand about 20 minutes before serving. Eat at your own risk with ham or corned beef. It's hot!

Garlic tips

Mash garlic with salt when you want garlic seasoning in a casserole. Put the peeled cloves of garlic on a small chopping board, slice them and sprinkle thickly with salt. Then, holding the blade of the knife almost flat, thoroughly mash the garlic with the salt.

To garlic a salad bowl, use a wooden potato masher (a toy one is fine) to mash and rub the garlic over the inside of the bowl. Discard what's left of the garlic.

How to cook garlic. Most spaghetti-sauce recipes that call for garlic and onion say to cook them in fat first. Garlic burns and blackens more quickly than onion does, so cook the onion first—until it's tender. Then stir in the garlic.

Your BASIC home to

THE more tools you own, the more money you can save by making home repairs. But where should you start?

The photograph shows the basic hand tools, together with supplies like nails and screws you should have. Tools that call for special skill are omitted. This is a good place to start, even if you hope to have a mechanized shop someday.

Tools	The best kind	Use
Metal measuring tape	Six-foot rule that rolls up in a case. Handy for carrying in pocket or in purse while shopping	Measuring sizes of objects or spaces
Hand drill and drill points	Get a small drill, about 12 inches long, and seven drill points, 1 16", 3 32", 1/8", 5 32", 3 16", 7 32", and 1/4"	Drill pilot holes for nails and pilot and anchor hole for screws
Hand ax or hatchet	Small, lightweight. Buy the best quality so it will hold a sharp edge	Splitting wood cutting kindling, pointing stakes
Handsaw	A 26-inch crosscut saw, 10 points to the inch. Quality really pays	Sawing wood
Coping saw	Steel frame, to take 6½-inch pin-end blades	Small cutting jobs on wood or soft metal
One-foot square (or try square)	Get one with clear, legible markings	Marking boards before sawing and testing results
Nail set	Best quality, with a machined point that won't slip	To finish driving nails, and to set finishing nails beneath the wood's surface
Putty knife	Blade about 1½ inches by 3¼ inches	Scraping flat surfaces, applying putty, wood plastic, calking compound tool shelf

By Richard R. Kyl

Note the compact, efficient storage board. It is built of plywood, held with screws. Each hanger fits a specific tool, which makes it easy to keep everything in perfect order.

Below is a tabulation of the tools pictured, identified from left to right starting at the top left-hand corner. Be sure to buy good tools; you'll save money in the end.

Tools	The best kind	Use
Pliers	Adjustable slip joint, 6 or 8 inches long	Cutting wire, holding nuts while inserting bolts, etc.
Glass cutter	With wheel and notched head. Best quality is inexpensive	For scoring glass before breaking
Screwdrivers	One with 4-inch blade and one with 6-inch blade for general use. Nest of small screwdrivers	Use the screwdriver that best fits the work you are doing
Magnet	Any kind will do	To keep tacks under control as you use them
Oil cans	One large, one small, and one with a flexible spout, each with a different grade of oil	Household oiling needs
Crescent wrench	Get a 10-inch wrench with a jaw wide enough to fit plumbing cleanouts	Minor plumbing repairs
Claw hammer	A 7-ounce, No. 12, Size 3, can be used for both tacks and nails. For heavy nailing, get a 16 unce hammer	Driving and pulling nails
File	Single-cut mill file, 10 or 12 inch	Filing off rough edges of metal

RADIANT HEATING AND ALL DOMESTIC HOT WATER NEEDS SERVED BY SINGLE

Janitrol

TRIPLE SERVICE UNIT

Radiant Heating With Circulated Hot Water.

Dishwasher and Laundry, High Temperature Hot Water.

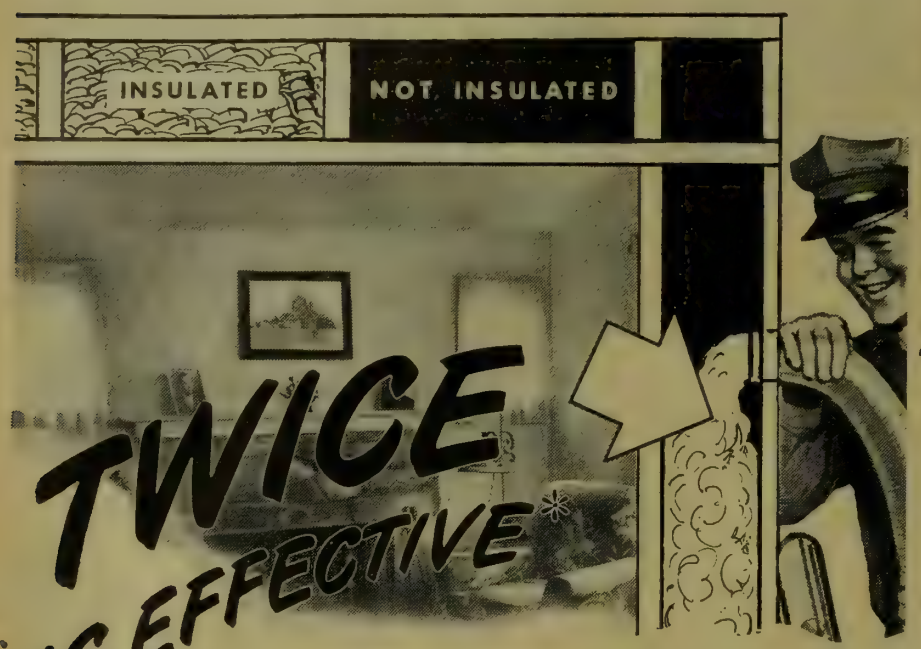
3 Bathrooms, Moderate Temperature Hot Water.

EVERY step in the planning of this beautiful ranch style home was made to secure the utmost in charm and distinction . . . every modern convenience was incorporated to assure ease and comfort.

Radiant heating was specified for its cleanliness, unvarying warmth and practicability for the single floor plan without basement.

Janitrol was selected as the most modern hot water heating system, also because a single unit provides ample hot water at the right temperature for the automatic dishwasher and the laundry, as well as a more moderate temperature hot water for the three bathrooms.

While Janitrol was selected for "Her Heart's Delight" because only the finest would do, its use is not confined to higher priced custom built homes . . . Janitrol Triple Service Systems are installed in hundreds of medium priced homes. These modern Janitrols, both gas and oil-fired, are also widely used with convectors, the new type, space-saving radiator . . . in these installations the temperature of each room is individually controlled.



For double assurance of dependable heating comfort and all your hot water needs, Janitrol is installed only by thoroughly experienced heating specialists. Call your local Janitrol dealer or write us for complete information.

bedroom homes which make up the Five Star Home Plan Service. These homes, designed by America's foremost architects, range in style from Cape Cod to Contemporary, Traditional to Ranch-type. These are homes planned to give you maximum comfort, convenience, and beauty—at minimum building cost. Better Homes & Gardens Five Star service includes:

- ★ Designs by skilled architects
- ★ Detailed working drawings
- ★ Cost-finding materials lists
- ★ Complete specifications
- ★ Contractor-owner agreements

Working Drawings are detailed architect's drawings, from which your builder or contractor will build your home. They are complete in every way. Cost is $5 per set. Included with each set of working drawings are: 1) specification form outlining the quality of materials and workmanship you'll want in order to insure sound construction; 2) contractor-owner agreement form—a suggested legal contract to assure your home will be built as specified.

Lists of Materials—priced at 10 cents—are available separately for each Five Star home. With this list, your architect, building materials dealer, or builder can compute in advance the building cost of your home in your community.

These complete home-planning aids may be purchased at firms listed above or ordered direct from Better Homes & Gardens, Des Moines 3, Iowa.

When mailing your order, be sure to specify the Five Star home number. Enclose a money order, bank draft, or check, payable to the firm to which you write.

Home Plan Book: If you haven't selected a specific Five Star home plan as the home you want to build, Better Homes & Gardens new book, Five Star Homes, will help you make a choice. This 76-page book brings you photographs and floor plans of 66 Five Star homes. Price —50 cents. You can buy your copy at firms listed above or order direct from Better Homes & Gardens.

What's in the cards for you in 1949?

A HAPPY AND PROSPEROUS YEAR, we hope. But just to make sure, let's take a look ahead. Set-backs do happen—might happen to you.

For instance, your house could burn or be damaged by windstorm. You could have an accident that would cost plenty for medical expenses and loss of income. Someone could be injured on your premises, sue you and collect damages that would sweep away your savings. Burglars could call on you. Or . . . ?

You can't foresee these troubles. But it's possible to protect against them through insurance—to pay a little so as not to lose a lot. That's what insurance is for!

Let your Hartford agent or insurance broker show you how Hartford service and Hartford policies can be adapted to the needs of your family or business.

THIS column is devoted each month to answering your questions about the homemaking problems which at some time face every family. The responses below are taken direct from the pages of Better Homes & Gardens books.

Q Does pregnancy really cause teeth to decay? I am expecting a baby and wonder if it is necessary to have a lot of dental work done.

A There does seem to be a tendency toward decay in the teeth of pregnant women, and you should be under the watchful eye of your dentist as well as of your doctor. It won't injure your baby in any way for the dentist to work on your teeth, and it's wise to arrest any decay that shows itself. (Taken from the Better Homes & Gardens Baby Book.)

Q I am considering radiant heating for my new home. How does it compare in cost to other heating systems?

A Radiant heating costs somewhat more than standard systems, but savings in operating costs may run as high as one-third. The system calls for expert design by experienced engineers; it's expensive to correct errors after the pipes are once buried in the building. (Taken from Better Homes & Gardens new Home Building Ideas book.)

The books from which these answers are taken are published by Better Homes & Gardens. They are an extension of the editorial service Better Homes & Gardens offers its readers.

traditions in which I was still steeped.

Statements like "pictures on the wall are another and particularly irritating way of cluttering up interiors" made me grind my teeth. How could I live without The Chariot Race and Blind Milton Dictating Paradise Lost to His Daughters?

Even the headings upset me. "Why Have Closets?" To put things in, of course. "Elimination of Furniture." Though fond of rice, I am no Chinese and won't sit on the floor.

The pictures were also confusing. There would be a picture of what I considered an ideal kitchen. Cat, rocking chair, geraniums in cans on the window sill and a center table big enough for the washbasket, the breadboard, and a few good books to browse through while the potatoes were boiling. Under this would be printed in 9 point Gothic type, "NO."

ON THE opposite page would be a picture of something that looked like a cross between a hospital laboratory and an operating room. White, shiny, impersonal, it could only be manned by someone who would test the potatoes with a stethoscope, probe the roast with a thermometer, and wear a mask while baking a cake. This was a big "YES," needless to say.

I would look sternly at the old-fashioned, homey kitchen where I could almost smell the mincemeat cooking and say sternly "No, no, no!" But it was some time before my tone carried conviction.

WHEN we felt that we had been sufficiently indoctrinated with the idea that "a house is a machine for living" so we could be trusted not to come up incontinently with a Cape Cod cottage, my husband and I worked out a ground plan. It did everything the books said about bringing the outdoors into the house, and we were very proud of it. The trouble was we brought more outdoors into the house than there was to bring. The thing we had designed wouldn't fit on the lot.

"I have always wanted to sail into Rio Harbor at night," I said to my husband. "Why don't we just take a trip, and by the time we get

Because this is the ocean side whence the rains come, we are particularly generous with the tar paper. And a good thing it is, too, as some of those lovely, lovely knots we so admired in the 1x12 redwood have fallen out. I'm thinking of cutting out rounds of redwood and gluing them into the knotholes. The window you don't see is made of louvers

When we started, there were 9,000 bricks in this pile. "Who's going to clean them bricks?" demanded the $40-a-day mason and helper as they walked briskly away. After the first 8,000 I got accustomed to having no skin on my knuckles. When I'm asked why I carry them in my hands, I explain that I'm too tired to put them in the wheelbarrow

This is the fourth time I've built this particular piece of wall. Once a truck backed into it; once my husband was watering, and the pressure got away from him and he blew it to hither and gone. The third time, they lowered the grade of the road two feet. There was nothing to do but sledge the wall down from its lofty eminence and start over again

for HOME or CAMP

THIS
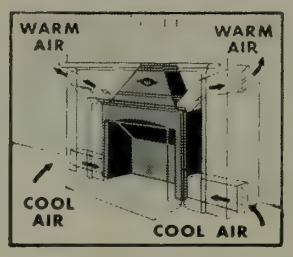
actually circulates heat!

Build a Heatilator* Fireplace in your new home or camp—choose any mantel style you like—and enjoy the comfort of this amazing fireplace that warms every corner of the room, uniformly and thoroughly.

The Heatilator Fireplace works on the warm-air furnace principle. It actually circulates heat—draws cool air from the floor level, heats it, and returns it to far corners, even into adjoining rooms. Gives you comfort and economy that no old-fashioned fireplace can give you.

You can use your Heatilator Fireplace to heat the entire house on cool spring and fall days, saving the waste and bother of furnace fires. It supplements furnace heat during extreme weather, and serves as an auxiliary heater in times of fuel shortages or furnace repair. In mild climates, it's the only heating equipment needed in many homes.



Will Not Smoke

The Heatilator Fireplace unit is a scientifically designed form around which the fireplace masonry is easily built. It assures correct construction, eliminates common faults that cause smoking. Substantial savings in labor and materials make the finished fireplace cost little, if any, more than you would pay for an old-fashioned fireplace.

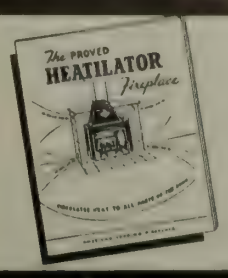
For complete and lasting satisfaction insist on this unit that has been proved for 21 years in homes and camps all over America. The Heatilator name on the dome and the damper handle is your protection—refuse substitutes. Sold by leading building material dealers. Mail the coupon today for complete information.

Heatilator Fireplace

*Heatilator is the registered trade mark of Heatilator, Inc.

Cool air from floor level is heated in the double-walled chamber around the fire—then circulated to far corners of the room.

Basement Rooms



The Heatilator Fireplace solves the difficult problem of heating basement rooms. Its circulated heat warms the entire room quickly and thoroughly.

Summer Camps

The Heatilator Fireplace makes camps and summer homes usable weeks longer every year. Provides real comfort even for winter weekends.

back maybe the housing shortage will have given way to bacteriological warfare?"

But he said he had wasted a lot of time boning up on Modern and he was going to live functionally if it killed him.

So I got some more books, and we saw at once where we had gone off the track. We had been stupidly trying to "build" a Modern when all the time we should have been "enclosing space."

To enclose space, you take a ball of string and some little iron spikes you buy at War Surplus and whip up to your site. Then you stroll around dreamily saying, "This is where I want to sit. This is where I want to eat. This is where I want to sleep." If you have had sense enough to drag the string along after you as you strolled and to drive in stakes from time to time, you now have a rough plan of your house. "Tailored to the lot," as the book phrased it.

At first, my husband said he wouldn't do it, it was too asinine. But when he got up to the lot, he got in the spirit of the thing.

As soon as we had enclosed space enough for our simple wants, we measured the results and took the figures to an architect who agreed to translate them into something which would pass the Department of Building and Safety for the modest sum of $5 an hour. It took him only 130 hours, which seemed surprisingly speedy to me considering the state the enclosed space was in when we gave it to him.

It wasn't until we started to do the actual enclosing that our troubles began.

When I said earlier that we planned to build the house with our bare hands, I was speaking figuratively. To build a Modern house you would naturally make use of the latest postwar world technological appliances and devices. Power saws, planing tables, spray painters were only a few of the up-to-date gadgets by which we planned to make the work easy and the heart light.

That was before we found out that the lighting company was allergic to running temporary lines.

I think we have made pretty fair progress considering we have been working with tools and methods devised and perfected by Paleolithic man.

My husband finds it difficult to accept the situation.

"I feel like a moronic Indian," he said, today, "trying to rip a 2x10 by hand."

But I tell him if we ever run out of money, I can always whip up a little brochure on "New and Dramatic Ways to Use an Adze."

Despite our increasing prowess with Late Stone Age tools, we have had to call in some outside help: We had the main floor slab poured, we had a carpenter for seven weeks, a mason for a week, and a plumber for six days. We planned on doing the rough plumbing ourselves, but the cesspool is at the extreme end of the lot and we had to run soil pipe 125 feet. The drop

This simple barbecue is cheap and easy to construct. It calls for 12 broken bricks, two tag ends of steel left over from an old swimming pool, and that half stove grate you've been saving because there is lots of good left in it yet. This is not only the simple life, it's practically the life primeval. Bacon and eggs taste like nectar, except when the low-hanging clouds drag on the ground. Then smoke gets in your eyes

Sheppy is at it again! He thinks he has a bone hidden in the plant box sunk in the living-room floor slab. We keep him to head the deer off our bougainvillea. If we had any sense, we'd teach him to herd the deer in was so slight from the bathrooms that the Goldberg contraptions we rigged up did not find favor with the inspector, and we had to hire a plumber to outwit regulations.

In a moment of enthusiasm I personally poured the utility-room floor to surprise my husband, who was away from the lot for a few hours. He was surprised, but not pleased. "Where is the cleanout from the bathroom next door?" he asked plaintively. Well, it is there; but if the inspector wants to see it again I shall have to tell him it may take me a few minutes to get to it.

One thing the inspector can't question is the water pressure. We get our water from wells far up in the hills above us. Everyone said we should put in a pressure reducer, but I am allergic to a thin trickle of water. When I turn on a faucet, I like to get results. And we do! When you flush the toilet, it sounds as if Niagara Falls had got loose. As the terrific whooshing

Here is our living room, with the dining room at the left. A 5-foot wall with a planting box (off the picture at left) separates the rooms. Because you can look right through the plate-glass windows, it seemed to us at times that we were building a bathhouse. The house is 113 feet—a lot of space to enclose—and that is why it took so much pipe, conduit, board, and batten. Everything had to go there and back

Then, you have to take the cover of the tank and pry ball up—it can't buck 170 unds! Putting in the reducer in-lves taking up the brick walkway ich I have laid with loving care, keep postponing it. It's been ken up once because conduit n't make a right angle turn and d to go under it. It's not that I ind laying bricks but I hate lay-g them over again.

We didn't have to keep books on e project—I know how deeply ngled that ball of string got us. he lot, three acres of goat land ith a flat place for a house, cost s $1,500. We bulldozed the road , graded the lot, and spent about 400 on planting the bank above e pool with Mermaid roses, ougainvillea, and some fruit ees which everybody said would ot live and they didn't. The pool ost us $1,400. Now, we have spent all, including lot, pool, road, rading, architect, and ball of tring we laid the house out with, 14,672. It could be finished with atios planted for $2,500 more, at most—probably less. But by doing our own work, we have saved a minimum of $5,000 on the house, and at least $1,500 on the pool.

We also saved on the doors. They are of Mexican mahogany which I took to the mill and had tongued and grooved. We then glued them, put them in a homemade press, screwed the battens on and that was that. They cost us about $12 apiece. Shellacked and varnished with a clear flat varnish, they withstand the weather very well.

WE SHOPPED for materials and found a terrific difference in cost at various places. We either hitched a trailer on our car or got a drive-it-yourself stake body truck and trucked the stuff in. Incidentally, we found that secondhand brick is the hardest thing to get and costs more than new brick.

I saw an ad in the Sunday paper (which comes out Saturday in Los Angeles) for secondhand brick at $6 a thousand, "Come and get it." So Sunday we sprang up at dawn and enlisted the services of an accomplice, hooked on a trailer and whizzed down to L. A. It was there, all right, in the cellar:

While the house proper has only 1,230 square feet of space, the roof has 3,600. Its aluminum cover reflects both heat and the ocean when the sun is at certain angles. Sometimes it's silver, sometimes dark blue

Nature note: That hole in the roof at the left (between the pool and the living room) was made for the tree to grow through. But the tree is too smart. It knows it is easier to go around something than to go through it foundations and chimney of an old house that had been demolished. My husband got down in the pit and pried the bricks loose with a crowbar, I tossed them up to our friend, and he stowed them in the trailer. By the time we got 550 in the trailer, the car was right on its haunches. We unloaded them at 1 p.m. on our lot and I said, "Let's get the stake body and really get a load." So back we went and by the time it was dusk we had 1,800 which we cast out of the truck in a dense fog at 9 p.m. When I went to step up the steps of the house we were then renting, my foot didn't move at all, and I had to be boosted in! Next day I said airily, "Who is going to help me clean these bricks?"

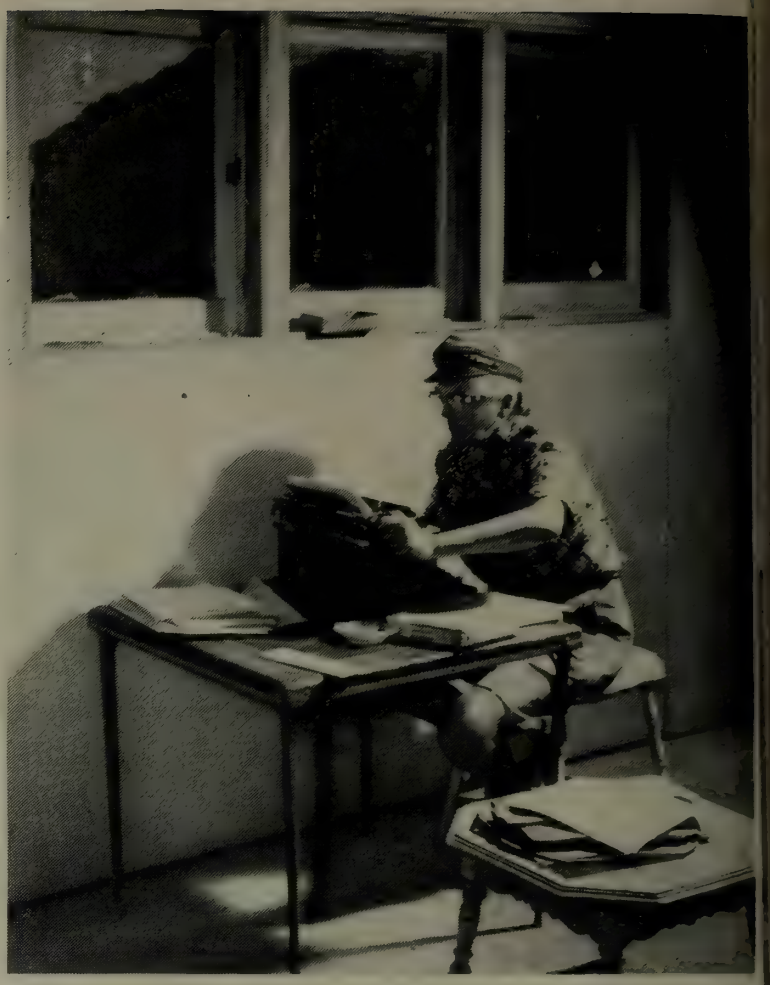
"Nobody!" said my husband, firmly. "They're all yours."



I FIGURE the bricks cost us $32 a thousand, counting the $1 an hour we paid our friend.

What surprises us is that as the house shapes up, we are really beginning to love the thing.

One or two angles have been a little disappointing. Sheppy is under the impression he has buried a bone in the plant box sunk in he concrete slab in the living room. And you wouldn't think gulls could tramp, but our aluminum roof is just a challenge to them.

OUR doubting friends are now betting even money that we can finish it. We've conquered the soffit in the overhang and don't think that wasn't something. We've won the good fight over the furred down ceiling in the writing room. Now, if we can only figure out how to construct the furred down soffit with flush lights that goes over the 5-foot brick wall with the plant box in it that separates the living room from the dining room. . . .

But we'll solve it. After all, anybody can build a house. It takes time to bring outdoors indoors. Tricky thing, enclosing space.

Windows of the writing room are planned so they can't be looked through. Ultimately, the wall will be lined with books which can be read by lamplight. A writer will do anything to escape writing

Our result so far—after more than a year of work. We treated the fence to get that gray, silvery look. The trouble with most new houses, especially Modern, is that they look so appallingly new. This looks lived in and it has been lived in! By us while building. We take time out occasionally to look at the view. It's then you realize that your dynamic Modern is worth all it has cost in money, muscle, and the two quarts you drew from the blood bank built-in garage without any doors or any enclosing walls.

Your garag

Planned storage space leaves yard and house space uncluttered.

There are three advantages to this kind of car shelter. (a) It is cheaper than a garage; (b) it doesn't shut off light or air; and, (c) it can't become a catchall. But now you're faced with another question.

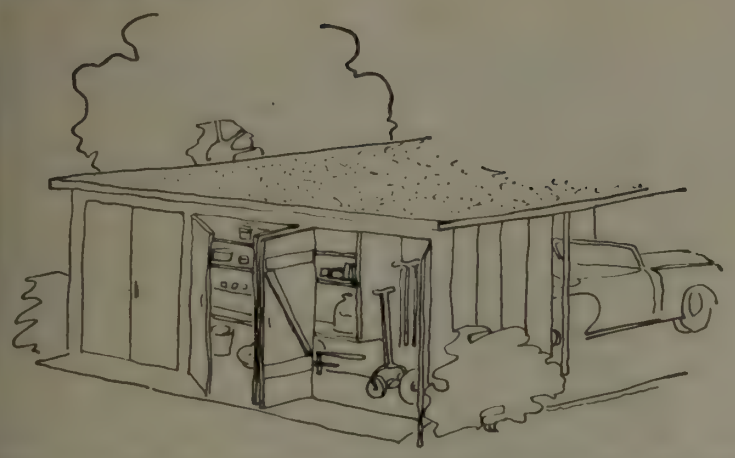
2. How much attention should we pay to weather?

If your winters are snowy and blowy, the answer is a lot. Maybe you know the direction of winter winds where you're going to build. If not, go over the site with a future neighbor. Ask where the bad storms come from and how deep the snowdrifts are.

The northwest corner is likely to be bad because of drifting. Eastern and southern exposures are usually better. They may even be protected enough to eliminate snow as an objection to a carport. But you may still have to contend with cold. If your car sits in a parking lot all day, keeping it out all night won't harm it any more. But the more protection you give your car, the better it will run in cold weather. But weather, too, is only one consideration. Before deciding on a type of car shelter, ask your family:

3. What do we want to store besides the car?

If your children are grown and you aren't interested in outdoor activities, perhaps your answer can be, "Nothing." Otherwise, you'd better ask yourself where you're going to stow your lawn mower, your hose, wheelbarrow, and other garden equipment; screens and storm windows; bicycles, fishing poles, sports equipment; paint cans and scraps of lumber; lawn and porch furniture.



Maybe you can afford plenty of storage space in the house itself. But chances are that someday you'll want space in the garage to put things because that's the most convenient place for them.

Here's an example. The shelves in the children's room are overflowing with toys. The built-in cabinets in the living room are bursting with magazines. What are you going to do? Maybe you will have the strength to tote them to basement or attic (if you have a basement or attic), or the will power to give them away. But most of the 20 people I talked to either pack them into the garage along with everything else, or wish their garage were big enough so they could.

Your garage doesn't have to be cluttered, but it probably is. One of my friends never fails to stumble over a shovel that has fallen to the floor. And another arrived home the other evening to find his garage taken over by a litter of cocker spaniels. This, of course, was an act of God, but if you didn't have a garage, where would you put the rascals?

A really working garage may have shelves for magazines,

Doors to convenient storage space for garden tools open onto yard newspapers, and paint cans; cabinets for toys; drawers for hand tools; benches for flowerpots and flats; wall clamps for shovels and rakes; recesses for wheelbarrows, and overhead racks for lumber.

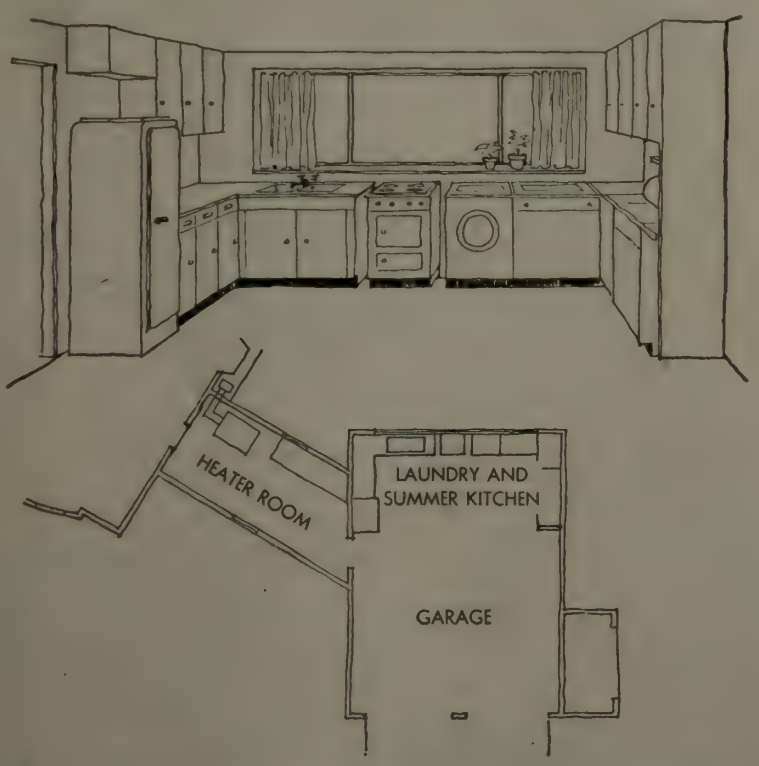
With a carport, on the other hand, you won't have much chance to be untidy. That's, in itself, a good argument for a carport. But, of course, you can have storage and work arrangements in a garage (like those you have in a kitchen) that will make you want to be neat.



But there's still another question to consider before making up your mind:

4. What else can we use the car shelter for?

If you build a carport, it can double as a covered porch and play space. That's about all, but maybe that's all you need. If it's a garage, possibilities are limited only by your needs and budget.

Lots of people use their garage as a laundry. Your wife probably carries more weight around when she's washing clothes than at any other household task. When your washing machine is in the basement, as it usually is if you have a small kitchen, her burden is increased. Would you rather climb stairs with a wet wash, or walk a few level steps from the garage? Allow enough space, though, so you don't step into the sink when you get out of the car.

Your garage can compensate for what is often a small house's biggest disadvantage—lack of space for hobbies and recreation. In a roomy garage you can [Turn to next page have a woodworking corner, a darkroom, a place for table tennis. If your house will be two stories high, perhaps you can have a small second floor over the garage for a playroom, clubroom, or extra bedroom. Or you can have a flat roof and use it as a sun deck.

Like a carport, a garage can also be a porch. If you have a pleasant view on one side, build that side with removable panels that you can replace with screens in summer. Or do the same with both sides, or a side and end, and let the breeze sweep through.

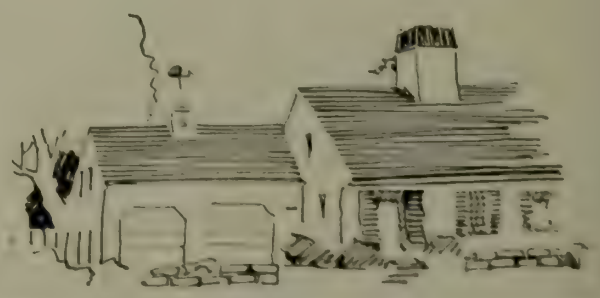
Don't think of the garage only as a place to keep a car. Think of it as a vital part of the house. You may have to squeeze some because of building costs. If the basement, game room, and porch have to go, a well-planned garage will make these losses easier to take.

That leads to another question, which you can skip if you've settled on a carport:

5. Where do we want garage in relation to house?

All the uses of a garage make it advisable to have it near the house, preferably attached. But make sure it isn't going to cut out too much light, too much air, too much view.

An attached garage saves you money because you can bring wiring and heating in directly from the house. It also saves you building at least one wall.

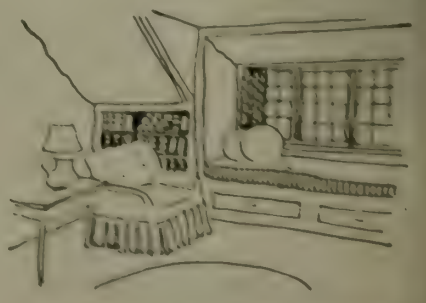


Check your local building code before you decide definitely. Attached garages ordinarily don't add to fire-insurance rates, but some old building codes require elaborate fireproofing. A common solution is a breezeway, which you may want anyway. It satisfies the fire laws, and gives you a service or living porch besides.

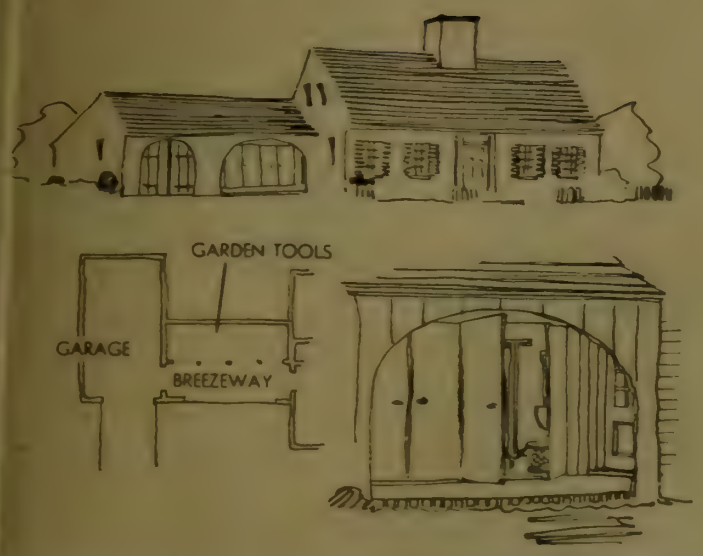
Maybe you'd rather tuck your garage in one corner of the lot—a good place if your family is going to use it as a garden workhouse, with benches for planting and potting, and storage for bulbs, fertilizer, and outdoor game equipment. Unless you're on an alley or corner lot, though, a rear location ignores a cardinal point in garage planning—ease of access.

Now for the final question, in some ways the most important of all:

6. What's the best place for entrance and drive?



The entrance should be at the front, unless you have plenty of space to work with. The chief objection—the unsightly appearance from the street of an open garage door—can be solved by keeping the doors closed.



Attached garage can give you an extra bedroom above

Over two-car garage, have a secluded 12 by 17 study

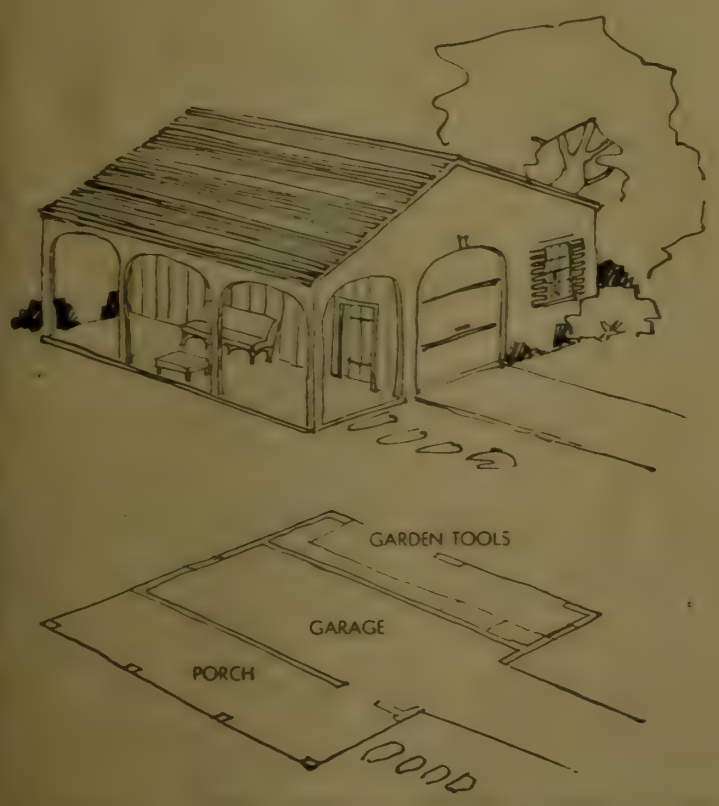
Keep tools and toys in breezeway between house and garage



A side or rear entrance may improve the looks of your house, but the driveway will eat into lawn, garden, and play space. But maybe you're like a guy I know who has only two faults to find with his place: too much grass to cut, and not enough turn-around room at the end of his driveway. He corrected both by adding concrete.

Here are some other entrance considerations:

The approach. A 15-percent grade gives even an expert driver trouble. And the combination of a curve and a grade can become a perpetual exasperation. Even a slight curve can be annoying at night or in snowy weather. Then it invites you to slip over the edge of the drive and squash ruts in your lawn.

How about guests and tradesmen? An ideal solution is to place the drive so it's near both front and kitchen doors. In one of the country's best-planned communities, Radburn, New Jersey, garages are just off the kitchen door, with a "motor entrance" a few feet up along the side of the house.

Safety. Despite its prevalence, the back-out drive is dangerous. The simplest solution is the drive-through garage, but it's practical only on a large lot. The best driveway has turn-around space, which cuts into your garden area, but lets you face the street. [Turn to next page

What's good about your garage... and what's ba

One builder has met the problem by placing the driveway and door at a 45-degree angle to the street, and providing a short apron near the street end. Drive and apron look like an L set on its point, with the stem leading straight into the garage. You can easily back onto the apron from the garage, then face traffic headfirst.

Whatever else you do, flare the street end of the driveway so you don't have to cut corners or swing wide when you enter or leave.

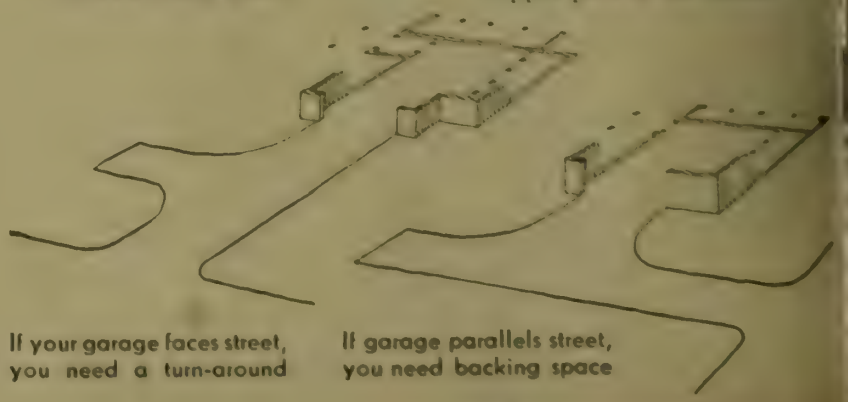
Size. How you use your car shelter will determine how big it will be, but there are minimums which dictate how small it can be. A one-car garage must be at least 9 feet wide. You can get in and out of a wide new car more easily if you make your garage at least 10 feet wide. For a two-car garage, 17 feet is a minimum; 19 to 20 feet is better. Length of any garage or carport should be at least 20 feet.

These sizes are just for space to keep your car. If you want space for other things, remember that sometimes you'll be using that space while the car is in the garage. Too much space is far better than too little.

As for me, I'd like to go along with one of my 20 friends, the only one who expressed any interest in a carport. "That's just what I aim to have," he said. "A carport alongside the house. Out back, though, where the barn used to be, I aim to have a garage, too."

Here are some of the answers Herbert Yahraes got from 20 homeowners he asked about their present garages:

What do you like most about your garage?



1. The good, broad doorway—3-foot clearance on each side.
2. The size: two cars and it only has to accommodate one.
3. The room it gives us to store household goods. We have no attic, and our basement is damp.
4. It's a good place for my workbench.
5. Plenty of light. We've a glass door in the rear and two windows.
6. My garage is in the basement; my car stays warm.
7. It's attached. We can load and unload under cover.
8. The width of the drivew just right at 9 feet.
9. It substitutes for the porch don't have. We can stand our garage and watch a thu derstorm.

What do you like least?

1. The driveway. It isn't wi enough to turn around.
2. Our garage is part of the ba ment. In icy weather I ca get out.
3. When the door is open, as usually is, the garage lo like heck.
4. The hinged doors take up t much room.
5. The sliding doors jam wi snow or come off the track.
6. The doorway's too narrow. we're not careful backing o —wham!
7. Our overhead doors. They' a swell idea but too heavy.
8. The grass that grows in t driveway. It's disappearin since I put a basketball hoo over the garage door.
9. The driveway goes along t side of the house, which is fu except that it gives me r place to shovel snow except o my neighbor's drive. Have carry it beyond the house.
10. It's a two-car garage, but it still too crowded.

What would you do if you wer building or remodeling?

1. Attach the garage to the hous Heat it and light it. Make th entrance 12 feet wide. Hav electrically operated, ove head door.
2. Connect it with the house by breezeway. Install heat, elec tricity, water, and a drain.
3. Place it closer to the street, s we could have a secluded yar in the back.
4. Put in plenty of shelves an cabinets.
5. Make a separate section in i for a garden tool house, witl its own door.
6. Plan it so we could have a play room.
7. Allow enough space for a work bench.
8. Eliminate the walk along the side, so we could have a green house or a woodshed built against the garage wall.
9. Have a study or playroom overhead, connected with the upper part of the house.

If your garage faces street, you need a turn-around

If garage parallels street, you need backing space

A weather-proof barbecue

Q I was forced to locate my garden barbecue in a spot with little shade. Can you suggest an attractive and easy-to-build sun shelter? R.G.T., Georgia.

HERE is one of the best barbecue shelters we have seen. It was included as part of the Peter Henderson & Co. exhibit at the International Flower Show in New York last year, and will do everything you want and more too. You'll find it just as effective in a shady spot as a sunny one because it provides not only sun shade but also shelter against rain and protection from wind on three sides.

The simple construction is fairly well explained by the picture. Lumber used was entirely butt-nailed 2x4's with the exception of the 1-inch boards used as part of the roof. The roof boards, of course, need roofing paper or other covering to make them rainproof. Use linseed oil, paint, or other preservative to protect the wood against weather.

The forward-extending eave or visor of the roof is covered with flexible glass substitute tacked on. It lets light through, but protects against glare and rain. The roof needs a pitch or slant; otherwise rain will cause the glass substitute to sag slightly so that water collects in little pockets instead of running off.

HEAVY canvas roll curtains at the side can be let down to protect against wind or slanting rain from two directions. The barbecue protects the third side. Be sure to use mildew-proof curtains.

You'll find other ideas in this shelter. On the left side a counter for food preparation and serving has been constructed. On the opposite side a very convenient bench has been built against the wall.

Your own ingenuity will suggest many variations such as training vines on the sides or fitting the shelter to your own barbecue in special ways. You don't have to wait for dry spring weather to go to work; much of the shelter can be constructed indoors so that all you have to do when good weather comes is set it up.

WITHIN the park proper, there are just two hotels. Wonderland Club Hotel, at Elkmont, can be reached by car. With meals, a family of four (if the children are under 8) can spend 10 days here for $105. If the children are over 8, the minimum cost with meals runs $140. Perhaps, however, there's adventure in your soul. Then you'll prefer to climb or ride a horse to the isolated top of Mt. Le Conte, to stay in the sky at Le Conte Lodge. Here the rate is naturally higher because of the difficulty of transporting food. If the youngsters are under 8, it will cost your family of four $225—or $300 if the children are over 8.

However, the capacity of both Wonderland and Le Conte are limited, and both are closed during the winter. Most of the visitors find themselves staying in one of the excellent hotels or tourist camps in Gatlinburg or other towns just outside the park, where a family of four—children under 8—can still eat and sleep for 10 days for approximately $200.50.

The advantage of Le Conte, once you get there, is that you are literally on top of the eastern world. Trails lead off in all directions—to waterfalls, to canyons, to flower-carpeted hillsides. Guided half-day trips on horseback will cost you $7 per person; full-day trips will cost you $14. If you bring your own horse from down in the valley, he'll be stabled for $2.50 a night, but it will cost you 75 cents extra for each feed of oats he's given. The Department of the Interior even regulates his diet. He gets one gallon of oats at each fueling.

IN THE Smokies, in addition to the unrivaled sense of isolation, is the largest unmatched stand of virgin timber in eastern America; more than 1,300 varieties of plants, and every kind of wildlife, and trout fishing in 600 miles of sparkling streams. If you like to look at flowers, remember these dates when they're at their best: late April for dogwood; May for mountain laurel; middle June for flame azalea and rose-purple rhododendron; middle July for white rhododendron; late October for autumn colors.

From June through October, there are free nature walks; and, at the camp sites, occasional evening lectures. Just to the west begins the series of T.V.A. dams, and to the east the Land of the Sky flanks the resort and health center of Asheville. The Everglades National Park, in southern Florida, is less than two days away by car. Thus a family living in the East or North can package three national parks into one vacation—Shenandoah, the Smokies, and the Everglades.

IT SHOULDN'T be necessary to remind you, but the national parks need to be treated with respect. Vandalism, year by year, is increasing. Names are carved in trees; precious historic relics are carried away for souvenirs; great natural phenomena are desecrated by trash and litter. We should cherish our parks. As Newton B. Drury, director of the National Park Service, puts it:

"In our parks, the people can become acquainted with the finest examples of the American natural scene, and with those historic places where American enterprise and patriotism have flowered most gloriously."

Tell Better Homes & Gardens readers about your project

WHAT are you doing these weekends and evenings? Many Better Homes & Gardens readers are adding extra rooms to their houses, remodeling kitchens and garages, putting up porches or laying terraces. They have found out they can have better homes for less money by doing this work themselves. Are you one of them? If so, tell us about it.

Better Homes & Gardens will pay regular editorial rates for manuscripts accepted. But we do want photographs—before and after shots (from the same angle) of remodelings, action pictures of new construction—and an estimate of how much money you are saving by doing the work yourself.

Your project needn't be a big one: Our readers are interested in finishing attics, as well as building new houses. Dig out your family album. You may have a picture story in it!

Berries to eat from your hedge

NO ONE has yet discovered a way to stretch the size o a yard or garden, but here is one way to stretch the return from a small space. Make your hedges grow berries b planting raspberries or blueberries instead of the traditiona hedging shrubs.

Both plants make excellent back and side boundar hedges. Blueberries will also surprise you by their goo looks as foundation shrubs or in spots where you need a extra bush.

Raspberries and blueberries will require no more car than other hedge plants. Follow the rules below for planting and pruning, and your hedges will pay you the extra divi dend of sun-ripened berries in season.

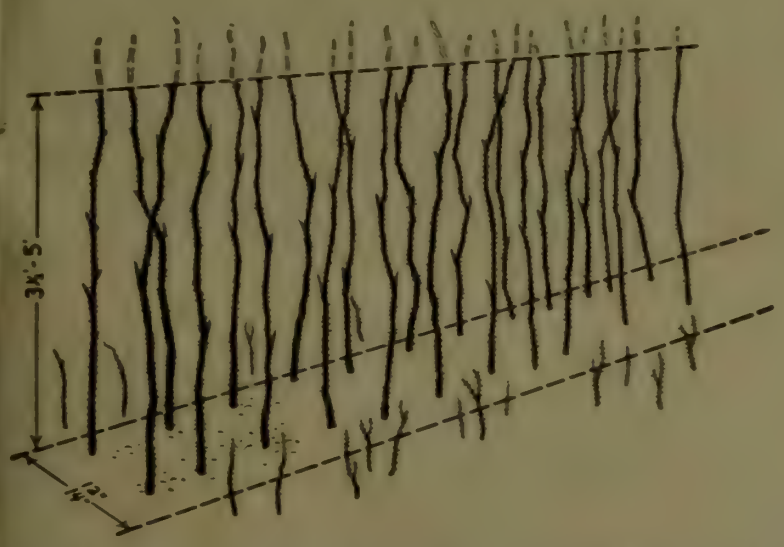
Blueberries

Blueberries should be used more often than they are for both hedge and foundation planting. They have a beautiful branch pattern; in spring they are filled with clusters of pink and white flowers; they are loaded with delicious berries in early summer; and they have beautiful scarlet and coppery leaves in autumn. In foundation plantings they combine well with evergreens.

Proper soil is the crux of blueberry growing. It must be fertile and moist, but well drained. It must also be somewhat acid, of the same type that will grow rhododendrons and similar sour-soil plants. If your own soil isn't acid, you can fix it up by digging in peat, sawdust (hardwood is best), or oak leaves. A quart of aluminum sulfate worked into the soil for each 50 feet of hedge will make the soil acid in a hurry until the peat or sawdust starts breaking down.

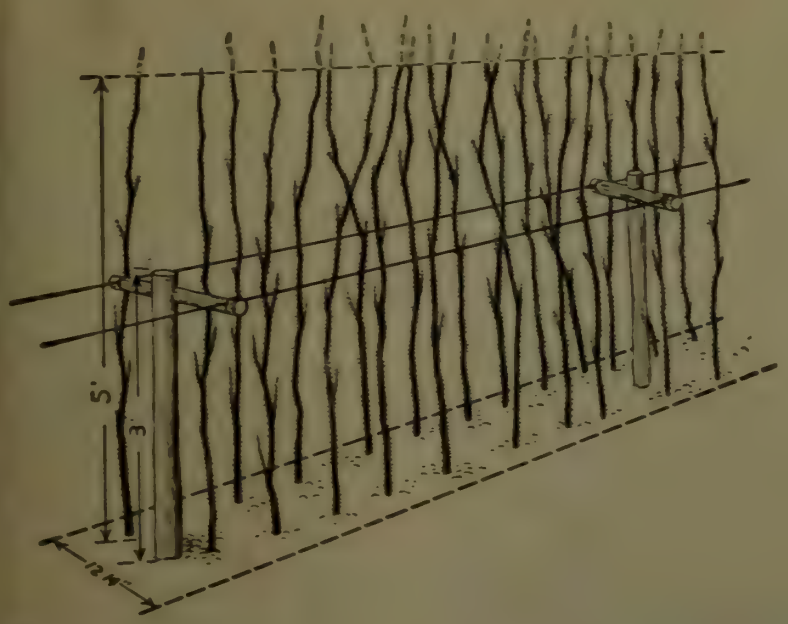
Plant about 2 feet apart for a hedge, 4 feet for foundation shrubs. Keep mulched and have at leas two varieties in the same hedge fo cross-pollination.

Raspberries



Raspberries, both blacks and reds, make a brambly hedge that children and even dogs find it hard to crawl through. Plant them in any fertile, well-drained soil in good sun—reds about 2 feet apart, blacks 30 to 36 inches—and cut canes to 6 inches after planting. Mulch, especially in winter.

Remember that red raspberries spread vigorously from root suckers and must be kept within bounds. For something new in reds, plant Indian Summer variety, which bears one crop in June and July, and a second one from mid-September until frost.



Raspberry canes, both reds and blacks, grow up one year, bear the next, and then die. Remove canes after bearing. An exception is Indian Summer, where the same canes bear in fall and again the next summer. So don't remove them until after the summer fruiting.

Prune black raspberries as above. In early spring before growth begins, cut side branches back 4 to 14 inches depending on their size and vigor, and remove weak canes to the ground. By end of May new shoots will be reaching hedge height (24 inches). Nip off top 3 inches as each cane reaches 27 inches to force strong side branch growth

For red raspberries, remove all weak canes and winterkilled wood in early spring. Top off canes to hedge height (see below). Remove excess strong canes so that there are only three or four to every running foot of hedge. During summer, only pruning is to pull up all young canes which are shooting up from suckers outside the 12- to 14-inch hedge width

Black raspberry hedges won't need any support if you keep them pruned back to 24 inches as recommended. Neither will reds pruned to 3½ feet. For a higher hedge and somewhat heavier yield of reds, prune at 5 feet and provide support about 3 feet from ground. Pictured is an inconspicuous support with wire. Bushes hide posts and crosspieces

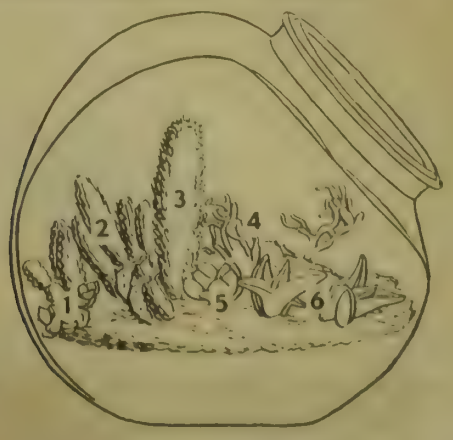
Grow cacti in table gardens

By Harry Johnson

FOR an inexpensive, good-looking table arrangement, grow cacti and other succulents. They are quite at home in roasting pans, cooky jars, or baking dishes (right and below). They ask only not to be coddled.

Plants like those shown here cost less than 30 cents each. Planting is easy. (Use your kitchen tongs for prickly sorts.) Keep the bases of all cacti near the surface. Shallow planting makes for healthy plants.

Never water when the soil looks moist. Cacti are desert plants. Too much water causes their roots to die. During the winter, give barely enough water to keep your plants plump.



What container? The kind you use is of no great importance to your cacti. Choose for ornamental effect, but get a 2-inch soil depth. Pottery, glass, metal—use any container your ingenuity suggests

Photographs: Stanley

What soil? Mix two parts sand with one part garden loam. This allows air to reach the roots, avoids sogginess

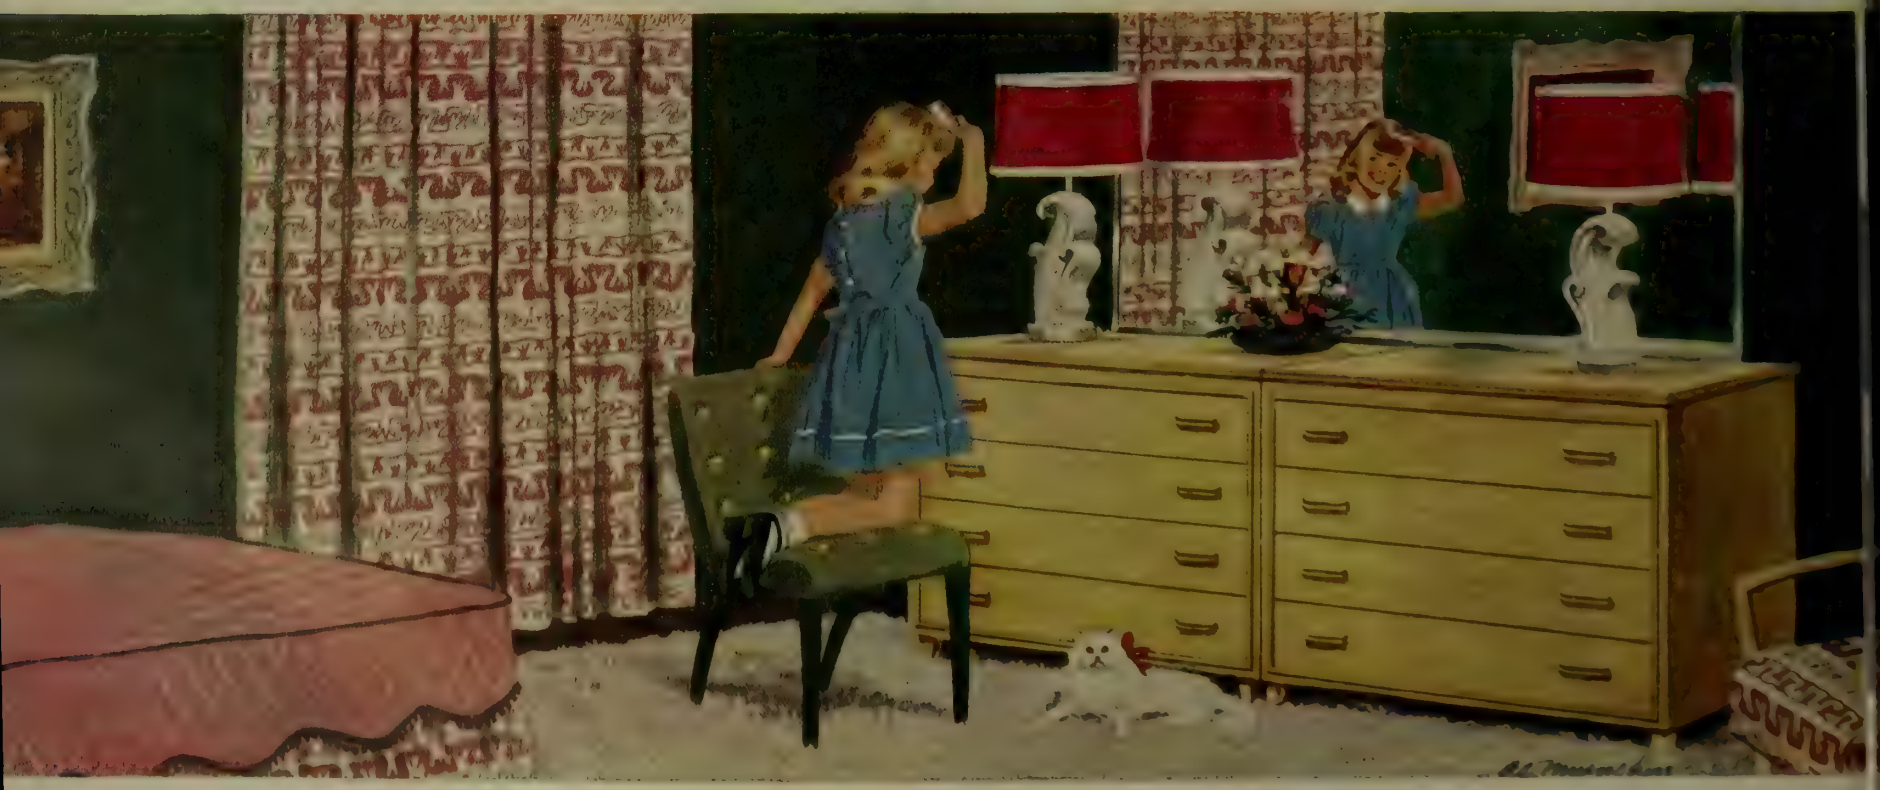
Masonite Presdwood is made from exploded trees—pressed into smooth, grainless, all-wood panels of uniform density, hardness, tremendous strength and stability.

Look for Presdwood furniture backs. They're one-piece, can't crack, split or splinter. They provide more strength to the product.

A thousand things are better—made

Look for Presdwood drawer bottoms. They can't splinter, won't snag your fine clothes. Presdwood dust-stops stay tight and true. They won't twist.



You can't see Presdwood when it's veneered for side panels. But it holds veneer flat permanently—adds strength and assures quality construction.

You can often recognize Presdwood on mirror backs by its natural color. It's smooth and strong, gives greater protection to glass and silvering.

d, but still good. The locked tenon joint is again coming into or, especially for decorative purposes. Such a joint can easily be en apart if left unglued. To make the joint, first draw and cut the jecting tenon (1). Drill a hole in it, and in the upright (2). Square se holes to size with a sharp chisel. Then cut the locking peg (3) n matching wood, with grain running lengthwise, and tap it in

Dowel joints. For accurate dowel joints, clamp the two wood members together (right). Mark a pencil line across both surfaces for each dowel. Use a try square (left) for marking. With a depth gauge (in hand) mark the spot on each line where dowel holes will be made. Use a prick punch to locate drilling points. When holes are drilled and dowels put in, members will line up perfectly. Glue and clamp

Using wood cleats. To join two flat surfaces, you can use a series of wood cleats (background). Attach them with nails, screws, or bolts, depending on how permanent you want the job to be. Cleats can also be used to make a fished splice (foreground) which is much stronger than a joint made by overlapping two boards and nailing. You can get the same effect in less space by substituting metal plates

Two corner joints. Not as strong as a true lapped joint, but stronger than a butted joint, is the simple rabbet joint pictured at the top, left. Its big advantage is that you can cut it quickly with a handsaw, skipping work with a chisel.

Below is a mitered joint reinforced with a corner block held by screws. If you use a corner block, make sure the grain of the wood runs in the direction shown. Otherwise the block will split under pressure

Two metal fasteners. A joint subject to little strain may be fastened in a hurry with corrugated fasteners (used on a miter joint, left, and on a butted joint, center). To draw the two members together into a tight fit, make sure that the middle section of each fastener straddles the joint. Drive the fasteners home with light hammer taps. Scotch fasteners (pictured at the right) are also easy to apply and quite strong. Both corrugated and Scotch fasteners draw a joint together as they are driven

Bolts and hinges. Bolts are useful for holding portable structures to be taken apart frequently. Drill a hole the size of the bolt through both members, and use a washer under the nut to protect the wood. Add a lock washer to prevent the nut from coming loose if there is much vibration.

In the background is a steel hinge with a loose pin. It can be used to fasten boards that must be taken apart and reassembled quickly. It takes only a moment to remove pin, disconnect members

How to glue joints

ANY joint is stronger if you use glue to help hold i Flake glue is mixed with hot water. Liquid animal an fish glues are ready for use. Powdered casein glue is mixe with water just before use, as are several of the new plast glues. A powder and a special liquid are mixed to mak one plastic glue that is waterproof and very durable. New est adhesive is of polyvinyl plastic, a creamy white liqui that sets quickly and does not stain.

Applying glue. Use enough glue to coat both members so a surplus will be squeezed out when clamps are applied. But remember that glue is used to bind parts together, not to separate them with a thick film. A good spreader is an old saw blade, which leaves the right amount of glue when used as pictured

Using glue blocks. To strengthen work joined at right angles, use glue blocks. The white block could be cut into shorter lengths and spaced over a larger area. Dark block serves to reinforce a frame

Emergency glue clamp. If you don't have a wood or metal clamp of the right size, cut a strip of rubber from an old inner tube. Wrap strip around joint, stretching it as much as possible, and you'll get a surprisingly strong clamping action.

Infrared heat lamp (top) can be used to speed setting of the new plastic glues. Don't use a heat lamp so near the surface that you blister it

RITZY-BUT EASY!

(IT'S REAL MINUTE TAPIOCA—FULL OF COUNTRY-KITCHEN GOODNESS)

Perfect Parfait—APRICOT TAPIOCA CREAM!

1 egg yolk
2 cups milk
3 tablespoons sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons Minute Tapioca
1 egg white
2 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla
1½ cups cooked apricot purée

Mix egg yolk with a small amount of the milk in saucepan. Add remaining milk, 3 tablespoons sugar, salt, and Minute Tapioca. Place over medium heat. Cook until mixture comes to a full boil, stirring constantly—this takes 5 to 8 minutes. (Do not overcook . . . mixture thickens as it cools.) Remove from heat.

Beat egg white until foamy throughout; add 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 tablespoon at a time. Continue beating with rotary egg beater until mixture will stand in soft peaks. Add hot tapioca mixture, stirring constantly. Add vanilla. Cool, stirring after 15 to 20 minutes. Chill. Turn into parfait glasses, alternating tapioca cream with apricot purée. Garnish with whipped cream. An elegant dessert for 6 people! So lavishly luscious—so full of homemade goodness—no one would ever dream it's so quick and easy to fix. And thrifty, too.

Ways to cook and serve onions

INSTEAD of reaching in the onion sack for one onion to season a salad or chop into the stew or into a casserole, get out enough onions to fill the vegetable dish for dinner tonight.

Fix a bowl of little creamed onions topped with parsley and a pat of butter, or pan-fry onion slices, or glaze small whole onions for the meat platter.

Or fix French Onion Soup—soup that has all the flavor of a chef's special—or Cream of Onion Soup, with crisp bacon bits and a topping of cheese.

There you have five ideas for serving onions. Recipes are below. For French-fried onion rings, look on page 112 of your October, 1948, issue of Better Homes & Gardens.

More on page 180

Liver 'n' Onions

Slice onions in fourths before peeling them. Then dry skin slips off easily (picture, left). While you're slicing the onions, melt fat in a skillet—it takes 5 or more tablespoons fat for 6 to 8 onions. Add onions to melted fat. Cover and simmer over low heat until tender, about 30 minutes. Add a little water if needed to prevent onions from browning too much. Turn once. Below: Serve with slices of pan-fried liver

Creamed Onions

Cook 2 pounds small, white onions in 3 quarts boiling, salted water until just tender, about 15 minutes. Drain (picture, right). Add onions to 2 cups medium white sauce. To make the white sauce: Melt 4 tablespoons butter; add 4 tablespoons enriched flour; blend. Gradually stir in 2 cups milk; cook over low heat until smooth and thick, stirring constantly. Season with salt and pepper. Below: Garnish creamed onions with parsley and a pat of butter. Serves 6

French Onion Soup

Simmer 2 cups thinly sliced onions in 2 tablespoons butter or fortified margarine until they're lightly browned. This takes about 15 minutes. Picture, right: Add 4 cups bouillon or consomme (make your own or use concentrated meat extract) and heat to boiling. Pour French Onion Soup into hot soup bowls. Below: Top the soup with rounds of dry toast and sprinkle with grated Parmesan cheese. Pass extra cheese at the table. Serves 4

Earning by eating

It takes a large part of the modern worker's income to buy "something to eat." But Johann Ketzler, an eighteenth-century German, made his living by eating!

A professional glutton, his only livelihood was from winning bets about eating. His first bid for fame was the consumption of three roast geese, weighing 19 pounds, in little more than two hours.

Ketzler's longest meal lasted 42 days—the time it took him to polish off a half-ton ox, roasted whole. But his most popular feat, which he repeated whenever he could get anyone to wager that he couldn't do it, was to eat three pounds of hay—dry—in an hour and a half! —Webb B. Garrison.

*Radiant Ray Heating

It will help you make your most important home-planning decision

I DISCOVERED why sunny radiant rays are so important to winter comfort—and why a Radiant Ray* Heating System keeps every inch of your home at a livable temperature—gives you all the essentials of good heating.

And not least, I found out how to have oceans of hot water, both Summer and Winter, from the same boiler that heats the house.

AND I WAS DELIGHTED TO LEARN how economical Radiant Ray* Heating could be. It can be so controlled that your home is neither over nor under-heated—fuel is used only as demanded by the weather. I never realized before that a hot water or steam heating system is virtually a lifetime installation, with amazingly little up-keep.

If you plan to build or modernize your home, my advice is—read "Enjoy Better Living with Radiant Sunny Warmth."

Your dog and mine

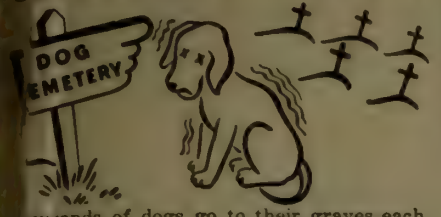
Act startled, excited when the doorbell rings; soon you'll have a watchdo

What is the best way to train our 6-months-old pup to be a good watch-dog?—E. R. L., California.

Well, all dogs are naturally suspicious of strange sounds. Play up to this trait by appearing excited, fearful, and startled when the doorbell rings. Rush forward and, by hoarsely whispered urgings, arouse your dog's attention. Then retreat furtively, as though in fear. This excites the dog, puts him on edge. Soon, he'll react with a sharp bark —and look at you questioningly. Pat him to encourage his alertness. Repeat this at every opportunity. Nothing much to it—just a little dramatic acting on your part. In fact, teaching a dog to be a good alarm clock is as easy as teaching him to eat.

Our community has had a plague of ticks for the past several years. Nothing seems to keep ticks off my dog. Is there anything we can do to avoid another tick plague this summer?—C. I. S., New York.

We receive many letters from dog owners in your area about the tick condition. You can't spray the entire outdoors. But you can try to get local authorities interested in a cleanup campaign. Do away with brush piles, refuse heaps, heavily weeded or grassy areas—all favorite breeding spots for ticks. DDT is effective against ticks. Spray it on your dog and around his living quarters. Be sure to use only a water-base (wettable) solution. But remember, if your dog roams, he'll bring home fresh ticks every night.



My 6-year-old dog has fits. He will suddenly topple over, wave his paws in the air, work his jaws and froth at the mouth. In a few minutes he will get up, shake himself, and appear none the worse for his experience. But his gait will be unsteady for an hour or so. What causes this condition and can it be cleared up?—E. W. C., New Hampshire.

Any number of things can cause fits—teething, worms, indigestion, improper or deficiency feeding, Bathing Your Dog Can Send Him To His Grave!

Thousands of dogs go to their graves each year because of catching cold after a bath. Don't risk your dog—use Sudbury Hygienic Cleaning Powder instead. It's better than water and leaves coat silky and clean.

A Dry Bath Is Better

No fuss! No splashing! This is the easy way to clean your dog—he'll like it, for instinct makes him fight water baths. Takes less time. Constant bathing with water also causes dry skin and shedding hair.

Easy to Use. Shake on, rub in, brush out! The powder goes right down to the skin, takes out dirt, helps prevent fleas, removes odor. Used and recommended by leading kennels.

Send No Money! Order Hygienic Cleaning Powder, big shaker pkg., C.O.D. $1. plus postage (or just enclose $1 bill at our risk and we will pay the postage).

approaching distemper. However, in an older dog, the condition is usually induced by intense pain, often from some liver or kidney disease. The best thing to do is have your dog checked by a veterinarian, one who has the tools to do the job, including X-ray. In every case, a fit calls for prompt attention.

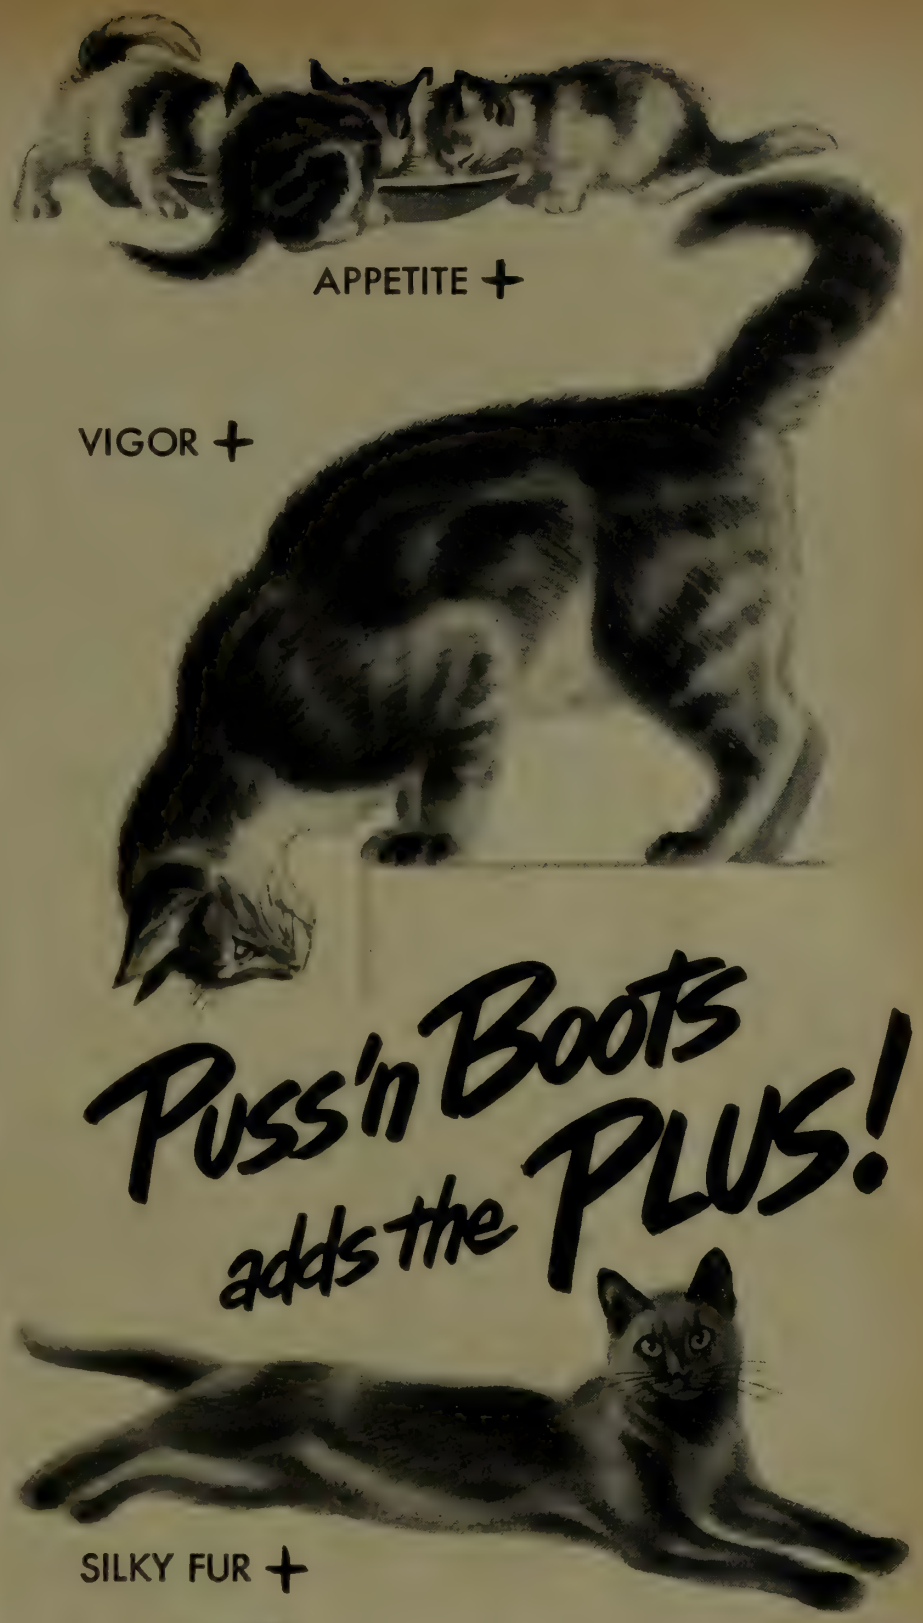
We have an 8-weeks-old puppy. What are the important points to follow in raising him?—J. F. W., Missouri.

The important principles of dog care parallel those that apply to men. They are (1) good, nourishing food; (2) fresh, clean water; (3) dry, comfortable sleeping quarters; (4) exercise and fresh air.

My cocker spaniel gets matted hair around his ears and on his legs. I can't seem to comb it out. How can I do so without hurting the coat?—Miss G. M. R., Virginia.

Try a steel comb. If this won't go through the mats, you'll have to cut them out with scissors. In the future, comb and brush your dog three times a week. All long-coated dogs develop hair mats if you neglect their grooming.

I want to give my daughter a puppy for her birthday. What are the things to look for and to look out for?—R. C. M., Ohio.



Pick a sturdy, robust-looking animal who's alert, full of life, and wants to bite the buttons off your coat. Teeth should be sparkling white, gums pink and glowing. Legs should be straight, with feet and pads of good size. Look on his stomach for fleas. Test his hearing by snapping your fingers or singing. Ask the seller to take the pup's temperature. Anything over 102 degrees is grounds for rejection. Avoid a pup with runny eyes or nose. After you take your pup home, remember that good food is 95 percent of good puppy care. And have the animal inoculated against distemper at three months.

We live on the edge of town, have a lot of ground, and want a dog for our children. We like a St. Bernard for its size, disposition, and looks. But a friend told us that St. Bernards have weak legs and that they don't live more than five or six years. —W. W. C., New Jersey.

There's nothing wrong with a St. Bernard. Buy a puppy, then include plenty of bonemeal, cod-liver oil, and a vitamin and mineral supplement in the daily food dish. All large breeds—St. Bernards, Great Danes, Great Pyrenees, Newfoundlands, wolfhounds and the rest—need an ample supply of these calcium sources to help grow their big bones and teeth. You can't beat a St. Bernard for well-balanced temperament, intelligence, companionship, and loyalty.

My dog is 8 years old and getting so fat she can hardly walk. How can I bring her weight down without endangering her health?—Mrs. H. G. P., Virginia.

Cut down on the amount of food a good 25 or 30 percent, and increase the ratio of meat slightly. Then, exercise your pet all you can.

Puss'n Boots adds the PLUS!

Feed this nutritionally complete cat food and see your cat grow healthier

What a dryer can d

fluffy from the dryer, you can cut your ironing in half. Supposing you save an hour and a half ironing time. That brings the total weekly time earned by your dryer to three hours. And, according to a study made by one of the dryer manufacturers, about half the women who own dryers estimate that they do save three or more hours every week. Or about 20 eight-hour days each year. Thus a dryer gives you a yearly two-weeks vacation—that leisure time you want.

Will a dryer kill germs?

Yes, its high moist heat kills many bacteria. And one manufacturer has added an ultraviolet-ray lamp which kills other bacteria resisting ordinary heat. Thus a dryer reduces the chance of passing around infections and colds.

Will my linens stay as white?

Yes, maybe more so. Contrary to popular notion, sunshine doesn't keep clothes white. Science tells us that soap curd left in clothes may be oxidized by the sun; this causes clothes to be more yellow than when they're dried in the shade. Thorough rinsing and an occasional mild bleach solution keep clothes white better than sunshine. And in the dryer, your clothes are protected from soot, dust, and smoke. Nor do you have a dirty clothesline or clothespins to leave marks.

As for colors, many fade in the sun and stay bright much longer in the dryer.

Will clothes smell fresh?

A group of women were asked to pick out from a mixed bunch of clothes those which had been line-dried and those which had been dryer-dried. They couldn't tell difference.

One manufacturer has adde device in his dryer which produ ozone, or purified air, which gi freshly dried clothes an outdo odor.

What types of dryers are the

There are both electric and models, heat provided by an el tric element or a gas flame. dryers are available for all ty of gas. Electric dryers require 3-wire 220- or 240-volt servi gas dryers need 110- or 120-v line for motor and light.

Both of these dryer types ha insulated cabinets of enamel bak on steel.

Will it dry everything?

Be careful about wool blank and wool garments. The agitati of tumbling in the dryer may ca woolen fibers to mat and shrink. there isn't sufficient breeze ou doors, you may put woolens in t dryer a few minutes before they a completely dry, to fluff them.

Where should I put it?

Place it near the washer a ironing equipment, so that y can wash, dry, and iron in 1-2 succession. If you have a first-flo utility room, or laundry unit your kitchen, you should install vent for carrying steam exhaust from dryer to outside of house. you put dryer in basement, a ve may not be necessary.

Is a dryer hard on clothes?

No. A study made at one un versity showed that terry towe dried in the dryer lost less weigh after 50 dryings than did an equ number dried on the line in th

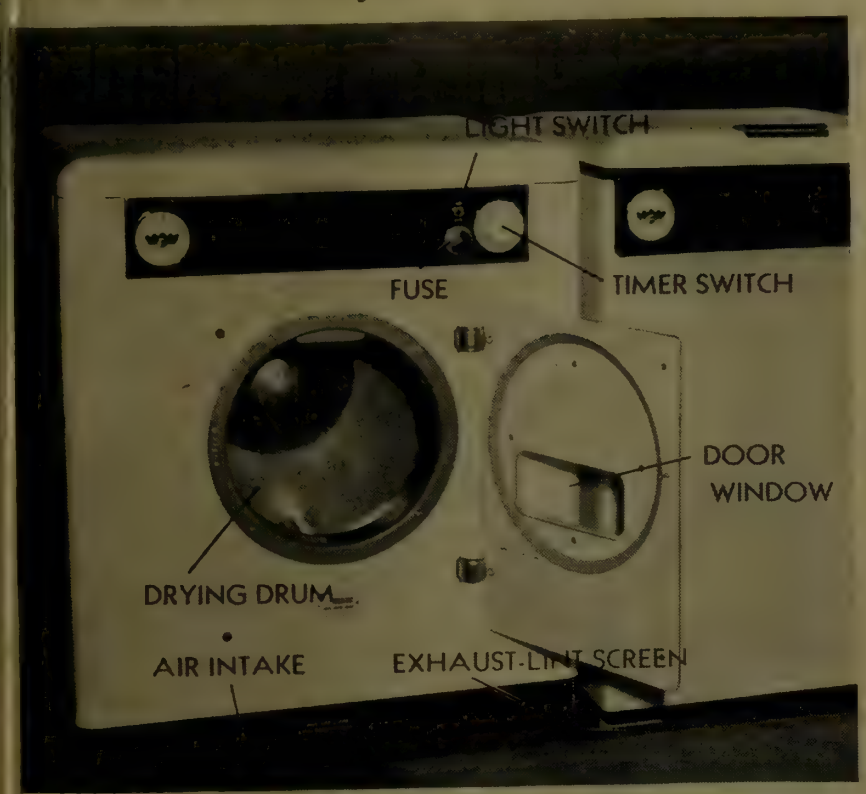
nd. Although the clothes tumble out in a heated basket for a ne, there is not the strain of ezing, the stretching caused by nging, and the whipping caused wind. You may worry when you lint from the clothes collecting the dryer's trap screen. Actually tumbling process only frees t loosened in washing. Clothes lose lint on the line, too, only you don't notice it.

What care does a dryer need?



Keep it clean the same way you clean your enameled refrigerator. After each use of the dryer, clean lint catcher and air intake with long-handled brush. No oiling is necessary. Note dryer designs below.

A LIFETIME OF Comfort AND Security IN A CONCRETE HOME

WHY CONCRETE MEANS LIFETIME SATISFACTION

A FIRESAFE ROOF of cement asbestos shingles or concrete tile affords protection against sparks and flames, resists weathering of sun, rain and snow.

CONCRETE SUBFLOORS keep fire from spreading within the house. They're rigid and won't warp, creak, sag or vibrate. They're a perfect base for any floor covering—terrazzo, hardwood, rugs, linoleum, tile.

CONCRETE WALLS are durable and firesafe. They can be finished attractively in many ways—patterned masonry, textured portland cement stucco, white or colored portland cement paint.

HOW TO GET A CONCRETE HOUSE
. . . and what will it cost?

Phone a local concrete masonry manufacturer for names of architects and builders experienced in concrete house construction. They know conditions in your community and can tell you about plans and costs.

Take any plans or sketches you have to an architect. Have him show you how your home—of any size, style or floor plan—can be economically built with concrete walls, subfloors and a firesafe roof.

Architect-Designed Houses Stay Young Longer

HOME! What dreams that word conjures—what visions of a charming haven of comfort and security for loved ones!

These visions come true when you build your house with concrete, for concrete walls and subfloors and a firesafe roof bring you—

LIFETIME COMFORT in a house that's warm and dry in winter, cool and dry in summer because it is weathertight and easy to insulate effectively with a wide variety of materials.

LIFETIME SECURITY in a house that protects your loved ones and cherished possessions because concrete can't burn. Concrete also defies wind, weather, decay and vermin.

LIFETIME HOUSING ECONOMY in a house that is moderate in first cost, that lasts a lifetime, that costs little to maintain. That's low-annual-cost shelter. Yes, it costs less to live in a concrete house.

LIFETIME CLEANLINESS in a house that makes housekeeping a pleasure because it's easier to keep clean.

You can build your concrete house in any architectural style, size or floor plan. Write today for free illustrated booklet, distributed only in the U. S. and Canada.

Repairing picture frames

You can easily and quickly repair old mirror and picture frames when they come apart at the corners.

Buy four identical L-shaped mending plates, or cut them from medium heavy tin. Then, with small screws, fasten one plate on each corner of the back of the frame.

Before fastening, drive the wood pieces together as tightly as possible. Be sure that your screws are short enough so they won't come through to mar the front side of the frame. Herbert E. Fey, New Braunfels, Texas.

Soldering copper

Copper, brass, and other copper-base alloys can be readily soldered either with an electric iron or a blowtorch. The capillary attraction of the melted solder causes it to flow into the joint spaces of non-ferrous metals to form a rigid joint on cooling. Tests at the United States Bureau of Standards show that soft solder with tin-lead (50-50) and tin-antimony (95-5) alloys are satisfactory to use for such soldering purposes. Copper and Brass Research Association, New York.

or in a wooden bowl or a basket, and group small shells or dishes of sauce around it. You'll want a good catsup or chili sauce, a dish of soya sauce, perhaps some Chinese mustard, and a Sweet and Sour Sauce. To make Chinese Mustard just stir 6 tablespoons boiling water into 2 tablespoons dry mustard. Add ½ teaspoon salt and 2 teaspoons salad oil; if it's not yellow enough add some turmeric.

Fried rice is another dish that takes day-before preparation. In fact you have to use cold, cooked rice. It isn't Chinese Fried Rice if you don't. A pretty way to serve this is to drop bits of pimiento and green pepper in the bottom of a small custard cup or Chinese teacup, press in the hot rice and turn out on a dinner plate or serving platter.

Chinese Fried Rice

- ½ cup finely diced ham, cooked chicken or pork
- 2 tablespoons peanut or salad oil
- 1 3-ounce can broiled mushrooms, sliced
- 1½ tablespoons finely chopped green onion
- 1 quart cold, cooked rice
- 2 to 3 tablespoons soya sauce
- 1 well-beaten egg

Fry meat lightly in oil, add mushrooms, green onion, rice, and soya sauce. Continue to cook over low heat 10 minutes. Add egg. Cook 5 minutes, stirring frequently. If darker color is wanted, add more soya sauce. Serves 6 to 8.

Sweet and Sour Sauce

- 1 cup sugar
- ½ cup distilled vinegar
- ½ cup water
- 1 tablespoon chopped green pepper
- 1 tablespoon chopped pimiento
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon paprika
- 2 teaspoons cornstarch
- 1 tablespoon cold water

Combine sugar, vinegar, ½ cup water, green pepper, pimiento, salt, and paprika. Boil 5 minutes. Blend cornstarch and water; add to syrup and cook until thickened. Cool and strain. Just before serving add a few bits of bright pimiento and a little finely chopped parsley for color.

No Hawaiian party is complete without a punch. The punch should have zip, good flavor, but not be too sweet. Here's a recipe guaranteed to quench thirst without slowing down anyone's capacity for good food. Fresh berries or sliced fruits can be added last, or small gardenias floated on top.

Trader Vic's Puka Punch
(pronounced pooka)

- 2 cups orange juice
- 2 cups lemon juice
- 2 cups grenadine
- 10 cups chilled ginger ale

Mix fruit juices and grenadine and pour over a block of ice to chill. Just before serving add ginger ale and fresh berries or sliced fruit in season.

Pineapple on Ice

For an easy Hawaiian appetizer or dessert—fill a bowl with crushed ice to hold cubes of pineapple. Stick pineapple on gay cocktail picks for easy handling. See photograph, page 62.

Aside from chow mein in its many forms, Chicken Almond is perhaps the most popular of all Oriental dishes.

Chicken Almond

- 2 cups finely sliced raw breast of chicken
- 4 tablespoons peanut or salad oil
- 2 cups diced bamboo shoots (¼-inch squares)
- 2 cups diced celery
- 1 cup diced bok choy (Chinese chard)
- 1 cup sliced water chestnuts
- ½ cup blanched almonds
- 2 tablespoons soya sauce
- Salt to taste
- 2 teaspoons Chinese flavoring powder
- 3 cups chicken stock
- 4 tablespoons cornstarch
- ½ cup cold water

Fry the chicken in the oil in a preheated, heavy, large pan; add rest of ingredients and mix thoroughly. Cover and steam 5 minutes, then remove lid and thicken mixture with the cornstarch blended with cold water, stirring constantly. Serve immediately, garnished with extra almonds. Note: High heat and quick stirring are essential. The secret is to avoid overcooking.

Pineapple Spareribs will make a big hit so better make plenty. You can precook the ribs the day before but the deep-fat frying and glazing should be done just before serving time.

Pineapple Spareribs

4 pounds spareribs (cut in 1½- to 2-inch pieces)
2 quarts water
½ cup vinegar

Heat water to boiling; add vinegar. Add ribs; cover until water begins to boil again; uncover; simmer 15 minutes. Drain. Cool. Mix the following paste in a large bowl, add ribs and rub around in sauce, so each is well coated.

Sauce

1 cup cornstarch
¼ cup soya sauce
¼ cup dark molasses

Fry ribs in deep hot fat (375°) until dark brown. Keep fat very hot while cooking ribs. Use large pan and fry only a few minutes. Set aside until ready to glaze with following syrup:

½ cup sugar
¾ cup vinegar
¾ cup water
¾ cup pineapple syrup
1½ green peppers, cut in 1-inch cubes
1 No. 2½ can sliced pineapple, cut in 1½-inch pieces

Combine ingredients in large pan and heat to boiling. Add meat to hot syrup, cover, and simmer 30 minutes, until meat is glazed and tender. Add green peppers and pineapple and serve.

Civilization

An aviator whose engine failed in the Arctic was fortunate enough to land without injury near an Eskimo village.

There he purchased a sledge and dog team and hired a guide to show him the way back to his base.

Wishing to look like a real sourdough, the aviator, remembering the movies he had seen, shouted loudly to the dogs, "Mush, mush, mush!"

The dogs didn't move.

Turning to the guide, the aviator said: "You guide feller, why husky no move when me say 'um 'Mush'?"

"My dear fellow," retorted the guide, "we Eskimos love our dogs and share our favorite hot cereal with them at breakfast. If you expect to interest them, you'll have to say 'hot Grape-Nuts Wheat-Meal!' "

Indoor travel

Try it for trying days

By Dorothy Dill Mason

I ALWAYS used to dread the coming of bad weather that confined the children to the house.

Then one morning I brought out an armful of old magazines, several pairs of scissors, and an inexpensive scrapbook.

"Why don't you go on a trip?" I asked my two disconsolate offspring.

"In this awful weather?" my daughter exclaimed.

"Weather doesn't bother a make-believe trip!" I said. And then I explained how they could "travel" via magazine pictures and keep a scrapbook of their adventures.

They started out with a new car. Gary took his time leafing through the magazines, gazing raptly at one shiny new dream after another. He finally settled on a luxurious station wagon, cut it out, and pasted it on the front page of the scrapbook.

Judy found an advertisement for camping equipment for the next page.

They couldn't resist a circus picture. "While we are driving through the country, we stop to see this circus in a small town."

AFTER the circus, they stopped at a restaurant and ate an excellent picture of strawberry shortcake (out of season). Brother got so interested in nourishment that he filled several pages with luscious apple pie, chili and tamales, and steaming baked ham.

Sister found a hotel just as it began to get dark. Its lobby was impressive.

A picture of a streamlined luxury train intrigued them, so they stored their car at a local garage (picture of the garage), and went on with their travels by rail. The deserts of Arizona unfolded before them, and that night they had an excellent view of the Grand Canyon from their window. As they studied this picture, they wanted more information. I got out our encyclopedia and read them the material on the Grand Canyon.

BEFORE we knew it, the dreary day was over. That night as they told their father about their trip, no onlooker could have guessed that it hadn't been real.

The next time the weather pinned them down, out came the magazines and scrapbook, and their "travels" continued.

More and more the encyclopedia has come into use as they journey through new cities, find places of scenic and historic interest.

"Chicago?" I heard my son say to an awed playmate one day. "We went through a big meat-packing plant there yesterday."

And the next time they "traveled," the playmate went along.

VOSS BROS. MFG. CO., DAVENPORT, IA., U.S.A.

Add to unbeaten egg white, beating constantly with rotary or electric beater until frosting is of spreading consistency. Add vanilla.

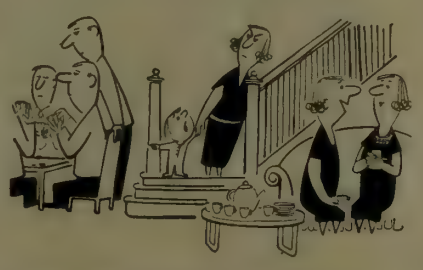
Cherry-Side-Up Cake

⅔ cup sugar
2½ tablespoons cornstarch
1 No. 2 can (2½ cups) red cherries, drained
⅓ cup shortening
½ cup sugar
1 egg
½ cup all-bran
1 teaspoon grated orange peel
1¾ cups enriched flour
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon soda
½ cup orange juice
¼ cup milk

Mix sugar and cornstarch; add cherry juice; cook till clear. Add cherries; pour into greased 8-inch pan. Cream shortening and sugar; add egg; beat. Add bran and orange peel. Alternately add sifted dry ingredients and liquids. Pour into pan. Bake in moderate oven (375°) 40 minutes.

Cherry Hats

2½ cups enriched flour
1 teaspoon salt
¾ cup shortening
5 to 6 tablespoons cold water



Sift together flour and salt; cut in shortening until mixture is size of small peas. Slowly add water, mixing and pressing ingredients together until dough just holds together. Roll on lightly floured surface. Cut in circles for hats. (See "How to make cherry hats," page 90.) Makes 8 hats. Fill tart shells with Cherry Filling: Combine 1 cup sugar, 6 tablespoons enriched flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, and 1 cup cherry juice. Cook until smooth and thick, stirring constantly. Add 2 No. 2 cans red sour cherries, drained. Remove from heat; add ¼ cup butter or fortified margarine. Cool. Pour into cooled, baked tart shells. Makes 8 tarts.

Mount Vernon Jelly Roll

4 egg yolks
¼ cup sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla
4 egg whites
½ cup sugar
¾ cup cake flour
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder

Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon-colored; gradually beat in ¼ cup sugar and vanilla. Beat egg whites until almost stiff; gradually add remaining ½ cup sugar and beat until very stiff. Fold yolks into whites, then add sifted dry ingredients, folding in carefully. Bake in waxed-paper-lined 10½- by 15-inch jelly-roll pan in moderate oven (375°) 12 minutes. Loosen sides and turn out onto towel sprinkled with confectioners' sugar. Remove waxed paper. Trim crusts. Roll quickly with fresh sheet waxed paper on inside of roll. Wrap in sugared towel; cool. Unroll, remove paper; spread with cherry jelly. Roll again—decorate with maraschino cherries.

TRADE YALE MARK

YALE HARDWARE—SIGN OF A WELL-BUILT HOUSE

We chose a farmhouse

replaced the three rooms on the first floor. And the big room was then designed into areas.

The indoor-outdoor feeling is enhanced by a glass door leading to a porch overlooking lawn and creek, which is dammed to form a wading pool for the children. The porch follows two sides of the house and is partly roofed to provide shade in summer and a sun trap in winter. The expanses of window eliminate any cramped feeling, but we can have coziness as soon as we pull the draperies.

AFTER analyzing our living habits we decided that a bedroom was a luxury for sleeping and dressing only. The function of sleeping combines with that of lounging, and the function of a dressing room combines with that of a bathroom. So we made twin beds into lounges in the living area, using linen compartments as back rests. The upstairs provides sleeping space and closets for three children and guests.

A lean-to that we added at the rear for the bathroom is large enough to serve as a dressing area for our family of five. All walls were adapted to storage, with a large double closet for our clothes, and three low cupboards for the children, the top of which forms a fine surface for folding laundry and changing the baby.

IT SEEMED logical to combine laundry with dressing also, especially with three small children, so our washer is in the 9x14 bathroom. Here we can undress, put our soiled clothes in the washer, bathe, and dress without leaving the room. An outside door from the bathroom opens directly into the laundry yard.

The kitchen is concealed from the living area by a projecting partition which forms an L-shaped work area. Here also is a nook that will seat five for breakfast and lunches. More formal meals take place in the dining area of the main room, offset far enough so diners don't have to look into the kitchen.

Play areas are in the loft upstairs, where the lower part of the walls is gray blackboard paint, and in the dining area where carpeting was omitted for freedom of movement. Play also is encouraged at the nook table

Sleeping and lounging take place in one corner. Back rests under the windows double as linen storage compartments and bookshelves. Windows are large barn sash; most are fixed, but some tilt out for ventilation where I can supervise painting, drawing, clay modeling, and pasting, and where children can supervise cooking without being underfoot.

Utility storage is provided by a large closet off the kitchen under the stairs. The old barn serves as garage, play shed, and workshop. The pump house holds garden tools and canned goods.

SOMEDAY we hope to go ahead with our original plans to build a fine house where our present home now stands. But if economic conditions keep us in our small home indefinitely, the upstairs will become a study and hobby center for the children, with beds turning into couches.

There are times when I feel I would never like to move to a brand-new house and leave our old intimacy behind. Small children deserve to feel they are a vital part of the family, and in our arrangement we are closely knit. Still we respect one another's interests. There are floor spaces for romping, and the children take pride in the neatness of our all-purpose room. They pigeonhole their toys and clothes routinely when dinner and bedtime approach. We parents can dine alone, yet still keep an eye on the young, so we feel no lack of privacy. And there is one great advantage in our open plan: we have a house that can adapt itself to the demands of our growing children.

Bath-dressing room has full-length closet for our clothes, low cabinets below counter for children's clothes. Copper-colored cabinets above counter are for bathroom supplies and linens. Rest of room is white

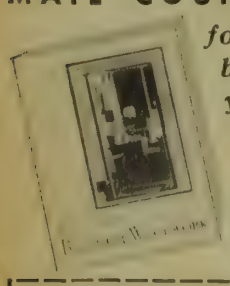
How to choose BEAUTIFUL WOODWORK THAT REFLECTS You!

For paint or enamel finish, wood texture must be soft and free from pitch. For stains or transparent finishes, you'll want attractive figure and grain. Because Arkansas Soft Pine Satin-like Interior Trim has all these characteristics in your choice of woodwork patterns, it's the inexpensive and simple answer to having your home interior as individual as yourself.

If you like quaint Cape Cod, you'll like this Paul Revere pattern in Arkansas Soft Pine paneling.



This semi-formal treatment uses stiles and rails with recessed panels, all painted in off-white.

Here the beautiful figure of Arkansas Soft Pine shows to advantage through transparent finish applied to paneling of smartly modern design.

We chose a barn

tried to keep it as much like a barn as possible—even to the red paint.

The original sliding barn door now is between the living room and the dining room. The drop-down serving bar between the dining room and kitchen is the panel through which feed was dropped to the horses. The floors are the original wide, two-inch-thick boards over which the carriages rolled.

WE BUILT an eight-foot fieldstone fireplace along the north wall of the living room; its mantel was cut from one of the main cypress beams. With the exception of the kitchen, the entire downstairs is finished in knotty pine.

We did all the interior decorating ourselves. It seemed like an endless, paint-spattered job, but we're proud of the results. Wallpapering and floor-sanding can be a pleasure when only a small dent is made in your pocketbook. We did the landscaping in our spare moments.

Our job is not finished—not by a long shot: We've a million ideas and extension plans. But we've achieved our primary purpose—a home for ourselves and 3-year-old "Butch"—John III. And we kept the cost under $8,000.

It can be done!

Original barn's sliding door now serves between living room and dining room. John's hobby is woodworking, and it paid off in the bookshelves (right) and corner cupboard (through the door) which he cut on his jigsaw

Low ceilings and stained knotty-pine walls lend a cozy atmosphere to the dining room. The original wide, two-inch-thick boards were left untouched as finished flooring. We painted old furniture bright yellow

Here's the loft from which we pitched hay to start remodeling. Slope of roof allows sliding-door closets along entire width of bedrooms—a homeowner's dream! We did the wallpapering and decoration ourselves

Sloping roof of the hayloft again came in handy in the bathroom, where it left room for a storage cabinet under the eaves. Like most of the downstairs rooms, the bath is paneled in knotty pine

FEBRUARY GARDEN GUIDE

In all sections:

- Test germination of seeds left from last year.
- Guy crooked evergreens.
- Install needed draintile.
- Plan your vegetable garden.
- Remove tree limbs that are obstructing window views.
- Force cut branches of flowering shrubs into bloom indoors.
- Repot root-bound house plants.

SOUTH

Feed roses heavily—at least 5 pounds of plant food for each 100 square feet of bed. Dust or spray roses at the first sign of new growth.

Plant shrubs, roses, and other nursery stock without delay; the planting season for them closes soon.

Feed trees and shrubs which are already established. The plug method is best for large shrubs and trees, broadcast and soaking for smaller shrubs.

Feed your lawn heavily—100 pounds pulverized sheep manure or 50 pounds complete plant food for each 1,000 square feet. Plant bluegrass and lawn-grass mixtures in the Middle and Upper South as weather and soil conditions permit; sow Bermuda grass only in southern Florida.

Plant annuals: tender ones in middle and southern Florida, half-hardy annuals along the Gulf and Atlantic coasts as far north as Charleston, hardy annuals in the Middle and Upper South.

—W. Elbridge Freeborn

TEXAS-SOUTHWEST

Spray fruit trees before buds start growing. Spray tulips for aphids as soon as they are well up.

Remove old canes and deadwood from berry bushes.

Divide Shasta daisies, daylilies, and perennial phlox if weather permits. Divide heleniums and salvias a little later, in late February or early March.

Feed crape myrtle heavily for abundant summer bloom.

Sow poppies, clarkia, snapdragon, and larkspur if you haven't already done so, but don't expect them to bloom quite as soon or as vigorously as those planted last fall or even last month. Plant nasturtium seed, remembering that they prefer a soil that isn't very rich.

Water the lawn and flower beds if weather has been dry. And while the hose is out, soak down the compost heap to speed its decomposition.

—Marian Price Scruggs

CENTRAL-EAST

Apply dormant spray to shrubs and trees during the later part of the month on clear days when the temperature is above 40 degrees; a freeze before the spray is dry may damage plants. Cover plants with a fine mist; don't drench them.

Apply 2,4-D weed killer if there is a pleasant spell in the winter weather. Treat lawns heavily infested with crabgrass with arsenate of lead, 10 pounds per 1,000 square feet. Fertilize lawn and sow grass seed on days when there is no snow and the grass is dry.

Start pruning now. Take grapes first because they may bleed if pruned later in the spring. Prune hardiest plants now, the tender ones later.

Move large trees too difficult to handle in the fall. After moving large evergreens, trim at once to reduce evaporation and build a windbreak if new location is windy.

Plant sweetpeas as soon as you can get on the ground. Snapdragons, petunias, larkspur, and other slow-growing annuals should be started indoors.

—Harvey Bicknell

Set out new shrubs, trees, and roses whenever the ground is free of frost and dry enough to be worked. Finish pruning fruit trees and then spray with dormant spray if you haven't already done so this winter.

Transplant rooted cuttings of Japanese anemone and phlox when the first leaf appears; put each plant in a 3-inch pot and place in coldframe. Also repot house plants such as sansevieria and aspidistra, using a heavy soil to which a little sand and bonemeal has been added.

Prepare plots for vegetable gardens by deep digging and plant food and compost. Sow dwarf peas, carrots, and onion sets in areas near the ocean if weather permits.

Repot fuchsias which flowered last year, cutting back the branches about one-third to stimulate branching and blooming.

—Ada V. Turner

CALIFORNIA

Start tuberous begonias by placing bulbs on a layer of moss to sprout. Then plant in a roomy pot with soil at least half leafmold. Other bulbs to plant are zephranthes, tigridias, ranunculus, montbretias, anemones, and black callas.

Reseed bad spots on lawns, feed with high-test plant food, and spray with 2,4-D to kill weeds.

Plant vegetables like beets, carrots, peas, radishes, and lettuce, but wait until later for warm-weather vegetables like tomatoes, melons, and beans which want warm soil.

Plant shrubs and roses; delay means less vitality.

—Alfred C. Hottes

once again...IT'S TIME TO FEED VIGORO*

Let early thaws

... and spring rains

... soak Vigoro deep into your lawn

VIGORO—complete, balanced plant food supplies all the essential plant nutrients grass must get from the soil for best growth and development.

Your lawn wakes up from its winter sleep much earlier than you think! That's why you should feed Vigoro NOW—even before the frost is out of the ground.

You see—during early spring, plant nutrients can do the most good—will readily benefit the entire plant when there is plenty of moisture in the soil. And Vigoro—complete, balanced plant food—provides in ample amounts all essential plant nutrients growing things must get from the soil. Just apply Vigoro evenly at the rate of 4 pounds per 100 square feet.

Here's another Vigoro plus! Vigoro increases the humus (organic material) in your soil by helping grass grow extra large root systems. Thus, soil becomes a better storehouse for plant nutrients and moisture. And aeration is improved, too—helping both root and plant growth and development.

Make your lawn the neighborhood beauty spot. Get Vigoro today. Feed it right away to everything you grow—and at regular intervals.

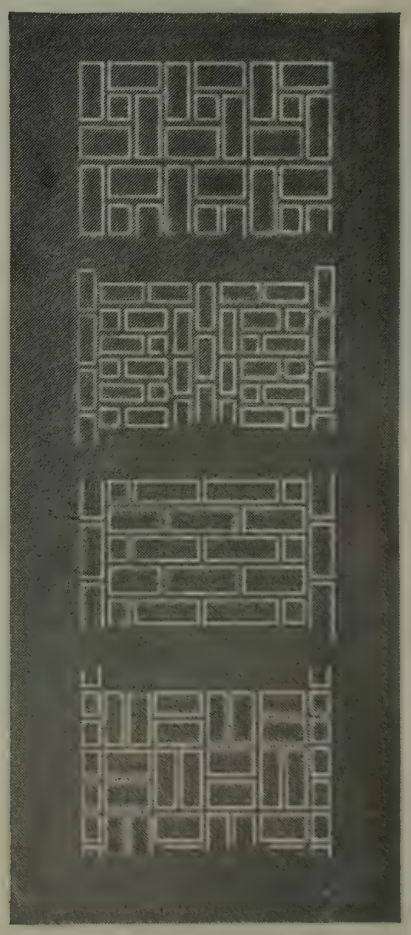
New beauty for your yard



By Clifford Rhodes

YOU don't need special equipment or skill to build yourself a good garden path. Attention to these simple know-hows will make you a successful path maker. But first, ask these questions:

1. Will the path be used all year and in all kinds of weather?
2. How much daily traffic will it have to carry?

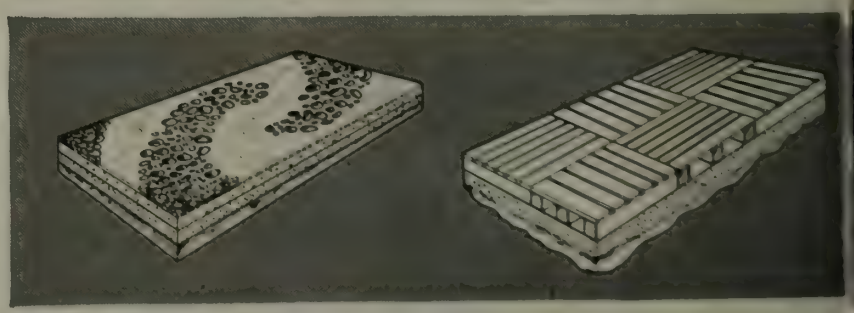
Heavy, all-weather traffic on a path rules out grass, tanbark, pine needles, cinders, and gravel, also unmortared brick or stone for areas where snow can be expected. Blacktop, concrete, and mortared bricks and stones are better in cold climates.

If your path is merely part of your garden design, or is likely to be used only in the garden months, a choice from the first list usually will prove best. These materials blend into a garden setting best, both in color and texture.

Easy-to-lay brick patterns

Pointers for path makers

1. Level the ground and thoroughly wet down all filled places so they won't settle later. Tamp the entire area. You can make a tamper by spiking a 6x6 piece of planking on the end of a 2x4 cut to convenient working height for you.



2. If drainage is poor in your soil, excavate enough to permit adding a 4-inch layer of cinders or gravel and tamp well.

3. Use boards, held in place by stakes, as guidelines to help keep the edges of your path straight and the surface level.

4. Make your main paths 4 or 5 feet wide, others 2 to 3 feet. These are the minimum widths; allow more if your garden is big.

5. Never locate a path close to a large planting likely to crowd out onto it.

6. Use only sand bricks, not wire-cut bricks or others made for fireplaces or house walls. Stones must be weathered, not freshly cut, or they're likely to scale off when exposed to freezing winter weather.

Swirls of many kinds are within the skill of the amateur path man. Push the colored pebbles into the concrete after it has started to set. To play safe, practice your swirl making on a small area before you tackle a wider path

Wooden strips, soaked overnight in a wood preservative solution, can be nailed together in patterns, as shown, then laid directly on the sand. You get at less cost a garden flooring as serviceable as one of brick or stone

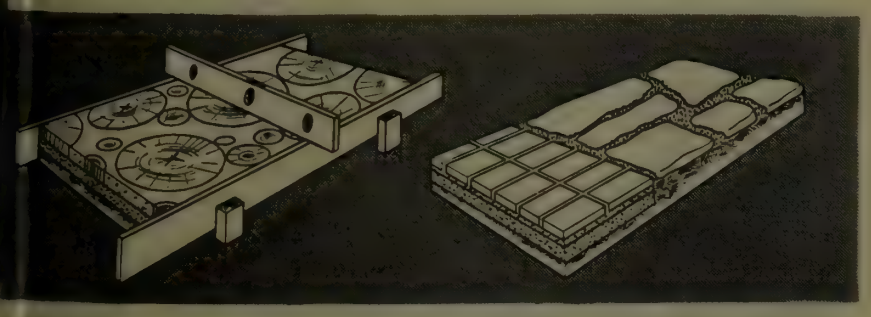
nmortared bricks are the gardener's favorite paving. They are easy to lay in variety of patterns. You simply lay the bricks directly on a bed of firmed nd, as above, then brush sand into joints. If weeds should start later in the un- ortared joints, you can easily spray them away with a strong solution of 2,4-D



For your scrapbook

Home-mix mortar: Thoroughly mix a sack of cement with a sack of lime. Add water to make a soup thinness, then mix in 5 sacks of clean sand and more water as needed. Wet the bricks with water before you butter them with the mortar.

To clean old bricks: Old mortar can be removed by scrubbing the bricks with muriatic acid solution. Dilute a pint of acid (from your drugstore) with a gallon of water. Always add the acid to the water, never the reverse. Apply with a fiber brush, and use only glass or crockery containers. Wear rubber gloves.

Home-mix concrete: Spread one sack of cement over 2¼ sacks of coarse sand (sold as concrete mix) and mix well. Mix in 3 sacks of pebbles, then add 5½ gallons of water to the center of the pile. Plan to lay all of the concrete you've mixed within the next 30 minutes.

Water-mix blacktop: Order emulsified asphalt. You apply this liquid through a sprinkling can to sand spread 4 inches deep in excavation for your future blacktop path. Apply enough to wet half the sand, then mix thoroughly with a rake until all the sand is evenly coated. Add more asphalt, if needed. Dilute asphalt a little with water if the weather is cold enough to make it gummy.

Trick in laying redwood circles is to check constantly to see that surface of each is kept level. Try to have each circle touch at least one other to prevent shifting. Keep all wheeled traffic off your new path for several months. With bricks, choose patterns that use only whole bricks until you feel you are in the professional bricklaying class. Wear a pair of stout gloves.

Diary of a Plain dirt gardener

Maggie and I went to the roadside-beautification-school dinner. Speaker of the evening was Maggie's brother Bob

By Harry R. O'Brien

Feb. 1 Ground covered with snow. Thermometer hunting for the zero mark. Birds eating their heads off at my high-priced feed.

Stack of seed and nursery catalogs already on hand. First packets of ordered seeds already arrived.

I'm happy. Stack of seed and nursery catalogs already on hand and first packets of ordered seeds have arrived

As I lay in my trundle bed this late Sunday a.m., I heard the cardinals beginning to rehearse for spring. They are later than usual at it and haven't as yet found out how to hit the high whistle notes.

Garden plans for this year are beginning to shape up. Maggie has announced that she wants to fill our zero box in the basement with frozen vegetables for next winter, on top of having plenty to eat as we go along. And, of course, make up a new supply of her famed tomato juice.

We need to set out a new strawberry bed when spring comes. This year I want to plant some Temple and Sparkle, the two new varieties resistant to red stele disease. We have a good planting of asparagus and rhubarb on the other side of the bushes. Maggie puts all three of these in the freezer.

I've been thinking in terms, too, of flowers, some of the new annuals, some more perennials, and a few more roses to fill up holes that I know blamed well I'll have in the beds come spring. Also I hope to do more with glads and dahlias this year. These have been neglected of late.

If you pick the All-America Selections of annuals and roses, the medal winners, and the highly rated ones of the plant society trials and judgings, you can't go wrong on new varieties of plants.

In case some of these newer things are still high priced, go back through the lists of standard varieties and pick out those which won honors in former years. These are still the best ones and usually down by now to a more nominal price. Just because a plant is new doesn't mean that it will add anything to your garden except social standing. The new variety should also be better in some way—and usually is.

Feb. 2 Once again, there is no argument about it. Old Man Groundhog saw plenty of shadow all day long. But, shucks—if he sees his shadow, we'll have only six more weeks of winter. If he doesn't, we still will have only a month and a half of same.

Feb. 9 For about 10 years now, at its March meeting, the Saginaw branch of the Women's Farm and Garden Association, has had a display of forced branches. Today I was a guest at their meeting and learned all about it. Early in the year members are handed a list of plant materials which can be forced. Arrangements are made to get twigs of apples, peaches, and other fruits from a nearby fruit grower. Directions for forcing are carried in the local newspapers.

Feb. 11 Tonight Maggie and I went downtown to a dinner of people attending the annual roadside-beautification school. The speaker was Maggie's brother Bob, general manager of the Chicago Regional Planning Association. He told how the region around Chicago has been planning for the future by zoning for various purposes, acquiring areas for recrea-

Feb. 13 Snow is melting. Tonight it poured down rain—just poured and poured. It was so foggy, coming back home toward dark, that I could hardly see, and I was actually afraid to make the left-hand turn across High Street, to get onto our side road. But in spite of its being Friday, the thirteenth, I made it.

Feb. 14 Outside it was warmer than it has been in weeks. That rain of last night, though, had turned to snow and ground was white this morning. But it went away rapidly during the day. Outdoors it was too mushy and slushy, but to keep busy, I did a bit of house cleaning.

Feb. 16 First day of spring. Snow all gone, except in hidden dark corners. Weather up to 50 and oh, so balmy. The cardinals are now whistling freely and cheerfully.

But ground wet and soggy. So nothing outside was done except

Wet and soggy so nothing was done outside except put on arctics and stomp around to renew the bird feed put on arctics and stomp around to renew the bird feed. On a day like this I cut down on the amount of feed I put out. I want just enough for the good birdies without leaving a surplus through the day for the glutton sparrows to guzzle down.

Feb. 19 Business matters brought me to Chicago this morning. Hied over pronto to Vaughan's seed store to howdy with Milt Carleton, who's in charge of research for this firm.

To help me promote research in my own domain, Milt put a packet of the new pea, Bayou, in my brief case. This is the pea from down in Louisiana, generally introduced in 1948, I believe, that is a good grower in hot weather. I'll be delighted to try it out.

In the hotel lobby toward night, ran across some men I know. They were on their way to dine. They invited me to go along and then go to a meeting afterward of the largest garden club in the world—5,400 members. There were about 1,200 at the meeting tonight. This is the Hawthorne Garden Club, made up of employees of the Western Electric Company and their families.

I learned, as the program proceeded, that this club pools its orders for seeds and plants and has one member of a committee do the buying for each item. The order for tomatoes for this spring amounts to 120,000 plants. The club has its own mimeographed magazine, filled with good information and news.

Feb. 22 Here's good news for a holiday. I spied little green tips along the edge of the new bulb bed made last fall in front of the shrubbery on the south side of the house. Those tips are crocuses coming up.

Good news! I spied the first little green tips of crocuses, coming up in the new bulb bed I made last fall

Feb. 23 To the monthly meeting of our local iris society tonight. Topic for discussion was an informal round table on flowers to go with iris in the garden to carry on bloom after iris is gone. Members had been asked to bring along some color slides of their favorite flowers.

For my bit, I showed a few slides of some of my newer daylilies. These flowers go mighty fine with iris anyhow, and a proper selection of later-blooming varieties will keep color coming on after iris time, clear up to fall.

Feb. 25 Downtown after work and met Maggie—on order—at the furniture store. She made a utility purchase, left an order for putting up new window shades all over our house, and tried to get me interested in a new rug for the dining room.

My eyes wandered from those rugs—and what did I see but something I've been dreaming about for years. It was a little stand with a good sized drawer in the top and two shelves underneath. I bought it promptly.

Feb. 27 When I came home tonight, there was that little stand at the right side of my easy chair in the living room. Into the drawer Maggie had put my pipes, a tobacco pouch, some pencils, a supply of matches. On top was an ash tray. So my years of parking pipes and tobacco on the mantel are over.

Feb. 28 Carried out the ashes. Carried is the correct term, for it was too muddy to run a wheelbarrow about. These ashes went on a rose bed—where most of the ashes are going this winter.

News Notes: Here are some new posies you'll find mighty nice.

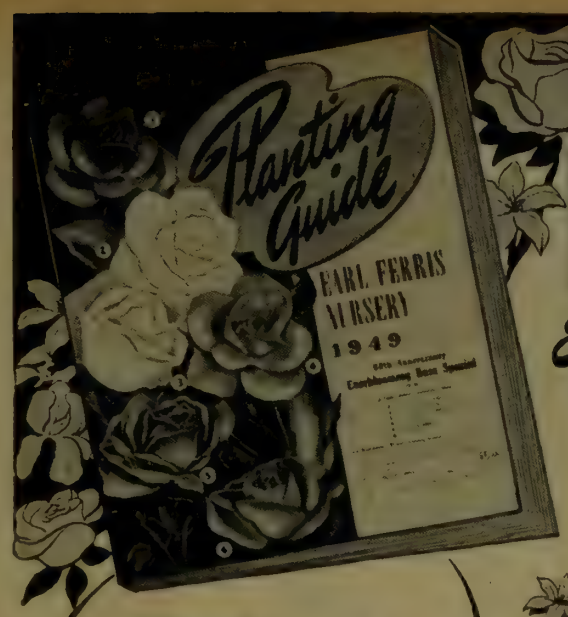
Among the new floribunda roses I like Golden Jubilee, an unusually hardy yellow; Lavender Pinocchio, whose pink, olive, and lavender are new colors in roses; Holiday, in two-toned orange-red and pink; and Alain, bright red-orange and created by the originator of the great rose Peace.

New gladioli to keep a watch for are Shirley Briggs, Allice Adams, and Easter Parade.



Man and Boy

No matter what the signs of age,
By whatsoever means you gauge,
A man, to woman's constant joy,
Remains throughout his life a boy.

However gray (or gone) the hair,
However stout, the boy is there,
And can be very clearly seen
Behind the silly grownup screen.

By daily work and daily act
A man makes evident the fact
Of boyishness. A woman, though,
Must never, never let him know.

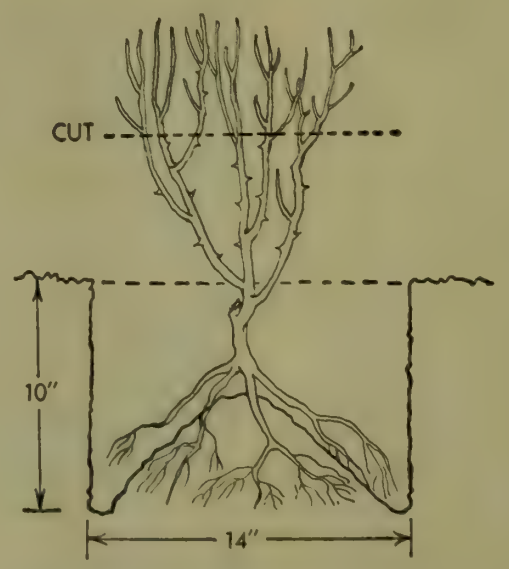
How to grow a rose

YOU can grow a good healthy rosebush—or a dozen of them—on your first try, if you will follow directions.



Keep in mind that a woody plant like a rose stores plant food during the winter in its stems and roots. It will start its spring growth on this stored food.

Very soon after the buds push out it must have sunlight, water, and its roots in good soil in order to produce new leaves, and push up strong new stems with fine blooms on them.

How to buy

Start with the best plants you can get. Buy only of reputable dealers and if mailing your order, ask for No. 1's (Nos. 1 and 2 above). If picking dormant plants from a bin, take nothing poorer than a No. 1½ (No. 3). Look for short shanks between roots and knob of graft, stems one-third inch through and more, plump unskinned bark, and 3 to 5 main roots

How to plant

Choose a spot with at least 4 hours sun a day and quick surface drainage. Allow 20 to 24 inches around each rose. Dig out soil at least 10 inches deep. Form cone of soil on bottom, spread rose roots over cone. Use the best topsoil next to roots. Half-fill hole with water, jostle slightly. Finish with topsoil

More on next page

I been sharpening lawn mowers thirty odd years now. So I guess I know a good mower.

Course you want a good one. No sense having to buy another four, five years from now.

First place, remember that what you want a lawn mower for is to cut grass. Just that.

There's a lot of important things about a lawn mower you can't see. Like the kind of steel in the blades—whether it has good ball bearings and cut gears on both sides—whether you can true it up and be sure it'll stay trued up. Average man has to take things like that pretty much on faith.

Tell you what you do:

Find out where they sell Pennsylvania mowers. There's five of them—Great American, Meteor, Pennsylvania Jr., Penna-Lawn and a power mower—for different kinds of lawns, different kinds of grass and different size pocketbooks. Those Pennsylvania people been making fine lawn mowers for more than 70 years. Some of their mowers been cutting grass for ten, twenty, forty years.

You'll be mighty pleased with a Pennsylvania-made lawn mower.

How to feed

Nitrogen, phosphorus, and potash are most important elements in feeding roses. Supply these in form of a balanced plant food or special rose food. Place out from stem, over root tips. When plants have been in place 3 weeks, give each a handful (about 1 cup) of food and water thoroughly at once

How to water and protect

Roses need a good watering once a week in spring and summer. Apply water at soil level, without splattering. Hold tip of sprayer or duster near soil when spraying or dusting. To kill disease spores and pests, coat leaves lightly every 10 days with combined Fermate, sulfur, DDT, and rotenone

How to cut

Always cut a rose with an eye to the health of the bush and other buds to come later. Take no longer a stem than you actually need. Always leave two full-size rose leaves on the stub and make the cut with very sharp shears or knife one-quarter inch above base of topmost leaf left on the stem put it in undisputed first place among dark red roses everywhere except in Texas and California gardens. The many-petaled blooms develop from handsome urn-shaped buds, and the excellent color stays until the last petal falls.

Etoile de Hollande. This fine red is slightly lighter than Crimson Glory and almost as popular. It wins votes with its generous show of fine blooms on good stems.

Charlotte Armstrong. Spectacular for size, color, and height, this dramatic variety has rose personality plus. The vivid cerise-pink blooms get the eyes of visitors a long way off. Close examination is just as pleasing.

Eclipse. This yellow rose is liked the country over for its sleek, long buds, its pure, clear color and the nonfading high-quality flowers. A fine rose to show off in a bud vase and a good one for buttonholes, too.

President Herbert Hoover. The only multicolored variety to make the top dozen, this long-time favorite supplies large-size blooms on stems plenty long for cutting. In each bloom you can find, cerise, gold, flame, and buff tints. A tall-growing rose.

Nocturne. The newest of the reds in this list, Nocturne is gaining in popularity almost hourly. With long buds like Charlotte Armstrong's and a color very close to Crimson Glory's, this vigorous, fragrant rose is outstandingly fine.

Picture. With beautifully rounded petals of a rich, wholly satisfying pink, this rose is applauded from coast to coast. A suffusion of gold in the heart helps create the effect of sparkling color. The whole plant has distinction.

Mirandy. This blackish crimson rose does its magnificent best when the huge blooms can unfold in constant sunshine and heat. If cold, or opening in foggy weather, the flowers sometimes blue disappointingly. One of the most fragrant roses we can grow.

Mrs. Pierre S. DuPont. Still a favorite 20 years after its introduction, this variety keeps up a steady production of nicely turned out, clean yellow blooms. Good for small beds or a front-row place because the plants seldom reach above two feet.

Christopher Stone. Another fragrant red with a brilliant long-lasting color that does not blue. This variety is unusual because the open flowers are more uniformly fine than the buds are.

Red Radiance. This is the dependable red rose for southern gardens (and the sixth red rose in this list). The blooms of Red Radiance are not large nor high-centered. But they come by the dozen and for mass effect it gets the votes.

Ranked at the top for sweetness

Here are the best roses to bury your nose in. The 25 hybrid-tea varieties listed below rated tops in three recent polls taken on the most fragrant roses.

Cecil Solly, radio commentator and authority on gardens in the Pacific Northwest, sampled opinions on rose fragrance in that greatly rose-favored section. Nurserymen in all the large rose-growing areas and the directors of the American Rose Society were polled separately on the same subject by Secretary Ray C. Allen for the American Rose Society.

Crimson Glory—full fruity perfume

Etoile de Hollande—very pleasant true rose scent

Mirandy—a very full-bodied but unmistakably rose perfume

Heart's Desire—vermilion-red, intensely fragrant

San Fernando—a very new red with a heady captivating scent

Hadley—old-time favorite dark red. Rich true-rose scent

Christopher Stone—damask fragrance

Rubaiyat—a splendid newer red with opulent old-rose scent

Nocturne—slightly spicy

Hector Deane—a lively Chinese red with a heady scent

Girona—a multicolor with pleasant strong fruity scent

Saturnia—brilliantly orange-red, fruit-like fragrance

Texas Centennial—tall multicolor with pleasantly strong fragrance

Taffeta—new multicolor with pronounced but not cloying perfume

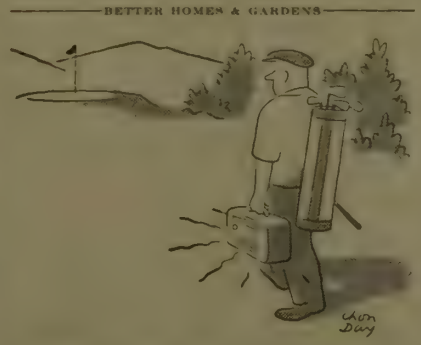
The Doctor—huge, brilliant pink, strong, clean wild-rose scent

Applause (see page 52, January Better Homes & Gardens) strong sweet fragrance, just plain rose

Sweet Sixteen's perfume just suits its lovely pink petals

Neige Parfum—handsome white with invigorating perfume

Dickson's Red—a big bold scarlet with an alluring odor



Golden Rapture—old-rose scent

Golden Dawn—a big light yellow that's delightful to sniff

Hinrich Gaede—a brilliant copper-red that smells like raspberries

Countess Vandal—coral and rose bicolor with scent both rich and sweet

Kaiserin Augusta Victoria—a beautiful, precisely rolled, antique with a true tea scent.

"And now we bring our services to a close with a selection from the choir."

High blood pressure

What are the symptoms?

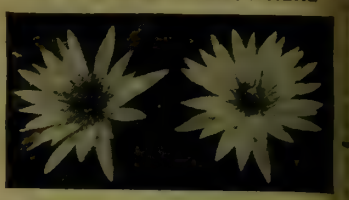
Often, none at all. In early stages the body frequently adjusts so well to high blood pressure that it makes no complaints. When symptoms do arise they are not very specific. Headache and dizziness are most common. Insomnia, heart flutterings, general weakness may also be complained of. And every one of these symptoms could arise from something else.

Is it a deadly disease?

Strictly speaking, it's not a disease at all, but a symptom with a hundred possible meanings. You might liken it to a headache, which is also a symptom. That is, a headache can arise from a brain tumor, but it's much more likely to come from something simple, such as eyestrain or unwise eating. High blood pressure is just a clue which directs your doctor to study your condition to see whether or not it is associated with damage to organs. There's a good chance that it isn't. Most people with high blood pressure are relatively normal, don't need much medical management. Statistically, high blood pressure is associated with shortened life. But it's not at all unusual for individuals with it to outlive their life expectancies.

Then what makes it serious?

Damage to vital organs—particularly the heart, blood vessels, brain, and kidneys—is the great threat of high blood pressure. That is why your doctor X-rays or fluoroscopes your heart to determine if high-pressure work has enlarged it. He looks into the back of your eyes with an ophthalmoscope. There he can see the condition of living blood vessels. He studies other near-the-surface vessels. He makes tests to determine how well your kidneys are functioning.



If you have a stout heart and good blood vessels, your chances of living a long life despite high blood pressure are pretty good. Unnecessary worry about your pressure, despite your doctor's reassurances, can take much of the zest out of life. A yearly checkup will enable your doctor to discover signs of complications, if any.

At what point does pressure become high?

There is no sharp line between normal and abnormal blood pressures. But for practical purposes an arbitrary standard had to be adopted. Sustained blood pressures higher than 140/90 are considered to be hypertensive. In this case, the 140 (millimeters of mercury on the scale) is systolic pressure, the pressure when the heart is at the peak of its beat. The 90 is diastolic pressure, the force when the heart is at rest between beats.

When asked, "How high is your blood pressure?", most people (if they happen to know) answer 120 or 140 or 200—whatever the systolic pressure happens to be. But your doctor is much more concerned about that seemingly innocuous little diastolic figure. The reason is that high diastolic pressure is more likely to be associated with hypertensive disease—damage to heart, blood vessels, and other organs. You can have a relatively benign form of high blood pressure in which high systolic pressure goes along with normal or low diastolic. The cause may be nervous influences, or thickening and loss of elasticity of large arteries, especially the aorta. The heart has to pump a little harder, but no great stress is imposed on other organs.

Does age have much to do with it?

The frequency of high blood pressure increases with age. However, the figures don't mean quite what they seem to if we're thinking of high blood pressure as a symptom of serious disease. In general, the younger you are, the more seriously you should take it.

If you reach 45 without developing high blood pressure, you have a fine chance of living a long life even if your pressure jumps in later years. If high blood pressure is going to lead to real organic damage, it usually starts doing so before early middle age. At New York's Presbyterian Hospital, Dr. George A. Perera studied 200 patients and found that 92 percent of them were under 40 when they found they had high blood pressure.

Can you avoid it?

Many persons with mild high blood pressure have no real need of following rigid rules and regulations. But if your doctor raises his eyebrows at your way of living, or if his checkup reveals signs of oncoming damage, complications may be avoided if you learn to saunter instead of gallop. Better than medicine, says Dr. Paul D. White, noted New England heart authority, is a way of life including such measures as: A planned program of leisure. Doing six hours of work in eight instead of crowding 24 into 16. Vacations spread through the year. Mild exercise, unhurried and enjoyed (preferably noncompetitive, so you don't have to outsweat an opponent). Eight to nine hours in bed every night, and an hour's rest at midday before or after lunch. Reduction in weight if you're too fat.

What about diets?

Low-calorie reducing diets usually bring down blood pressure if the patient is overweight, and are a sound health measure for anyone who is too fat. The much-discussed rice diet for high blood pressure, introduced by Dr. Walter Kempner of Duke University, is a stringent measure for hypertensive patients who have organic damage. Not strictly a reducing diet, it allows up to 10 ounces of rice daily, boiled or steamed in plain water or fruit juice. Fresh, canned, or dried fruits are allowed if nothing but white sugar has been added to them. All fruit juices (but no tomato or vegetable juice) are permitted, and white sugar as desired. A supplementary vitamin pill is taken, and that's all.

The belief that rice has some

peculiar, specific virtue is not shared by most doctors. Similar benefits have been achieved by non-rice diets equally low in salt content. Doctor Kempner reports that three out of five severely ill hypertensives have a reduction in heart size, blood-pressure drop of at least 20 points, and improvement of blood vessels in the eyes, on the strict rice program. The drawback is that some patients aren't helped and many won't stick to a highly distasteful diet.

Mild starvation will reduce blood pressure. Dr. Ancel Keys, of the University of Minnesota, found that high blood pressure all but disappeared during wartime famine years in Leningrad. But two years after Leningrad started eating normally again, high blood pressure suddenly showed a four-fold increase in younger persons, threefold in the age-50 group. Doctor Keys suggests that if a patient on a rice diet abandons his restrictions, he may be worse off than before treatment was instituted. The average overweight hypertensive who has no complications requiring more specific treatment would perhaps do better to go on a balanced reducing diet because this teaches a way of eating that should be followed for life.

Does salt cause high blood pressure?

No, but if high blood pressure already exists, table salt may make matters worse. Salt tends to bog down the tissues with water. Kidneys not quite up to par can't get rid of salt efficiently. So the doctor is very likely to order a salt-poor program if high blood pressure is getting out of hand. It's more than going easy on the salt cellar at the table. Salty foods—ham or sauerkraut, for instance—are forbidden. No salt can be added to cooking water. And such seemingly saltless things as a dose of sodium bicarbonate for an upset stomach are ruled out, because it is the sodium part of common salt that causes trouble. Low-salt treatment is now so general that the drugstore has half a dozen substitutes which taste like salt but differ chemically.

Are there drugs that help?

Scores of them! Almost every substance has been tried, including mistletoe and pumpkin seed. And the odd thing is that most of them work, at least for a time. Your doctor has drugs that are very useful in treating symptoms but which are not claimed to cure. Some drugs ease hypertension by expanding the diameter of blood vessels. The nitrites are an example. Potassium thiocyanate is sometimes effective in relieving headaches, but has toxic possibilities. Sedatives are very useful in relaxing tensions; the barbiturates are most popular. Despite scare stories, you run hardly any chance of becoming a bug-eyed dope addict if you use sleeping pills as your doctor orders.

Can surgery cure high blood pressure?

No, but there is a dramatic operation for relief of symptoms in desperate cases where all other treatments have failed. One factor in producing high blood pressure is nerve impulses that make blood vessels tighten up. The operation known as sympathectomy consists of cutting fibers of the sympathetic nervous system so that orders to tighten up no longer get through. Usually, sympathectomy brings a drop in blood pressure, abolishes distressing symptoms such as headache and dizziness, frequently restores miserably disabled patients to active working life.

There is a grimmer side of the picture. Sympathectomy is a major operation, convalescence is long and can be quite painful. Blood pressure tends to climb again, up to its old tricks, after months or years. Only about 4 percent of all hypertensives (very few of these are past 50) pass the rigid test of suitability for sympathectomy. But for the younger patient with unmanageable, rapidly increasing high blood pressure, sympathectomy is a hopeful court of last resort.

Alcohol and tobacco?

Differently! Alcohol is a depressant, not a stimulant. It tends to relax and dilate the blood vessels. Tobacco is just the opposite—a blood vessel tightener-upper. If your high blood pressure is kicking up enough signs of trouble to make the doctor warn you to watch your step, he is much more likely to urge you to go easy on smoking than to give up a daily highball.

New treatments in the offing?

Always! Research may eventually lead to treatments much more specific than anything we now have. The part played by what the doctors call humoral factors is being investigated. That is, fluids secreted by the body are known to have chemical effects on blood pressure. Two such substances have been isolated from the kidneys: one acts to increase blood pressure, the other to subdue it. A way may be found of keeping these teeter-totter forces in balance.

Drugs which perform something like the sympathectomy operation by purely chemical means are being studied. One goes by the long name of tetraethyl ammonium chloride. Instead of cutting the nerves, as in sympathectomy, this drug blocks pressure-raising nerve impluses for brief periods. However, these and other experimental measures have not reached the stage of routine treatment.

Money for research has been of small-change proportions, compared to funds spent for study of diseases afflicting far fewer people. The American Heart Association is a nationwide organization spearheading the attack on heart and associated diseases, and a large proportion of the funds it collects is used for projects on high blood pressure.

Should you worry about high blood pressure?

Frequently a patient who feels perfectly well is found on routine examination to have a higher than normal blood pressure. From then on, if he isn't properly advised, he begins to notice symptoms and can easily become an imaginary invalid. Much unnecessary worry is focused on day-to-day changes in blood pressure. You are frightened by a figure, but you aren't any better off the day your pressure drops 20 or more points, or worse off the next day when it climbs back up. You aren't bound to have high blood pressure just because it's common. Some of us probably couldn't get it if we tried! One road to peace of mind, if your pressures are creeping up, is to live within the way of life your doctor suggests and to forget about the fluctuating height of your pressure readings. It is surprising how often the hypertensive is an essentially normal person who needs little or no change in activities that give him the most satisfaction—and more than surprising how many patients live up to and beyond their life expectancies.

There is comfort, too, in the fact that high blood pressure is an adjustment of body machinery that assures vital organs of getting an ample blood supply. In a heartening sense, high blood pressure is not a purposeless threat of imminent disaster, but an adaptation that keeps you alive.

hat makes dwarf fruit trees dwarf?

HE grafting of the desired vari- y of pear upon quince or other nderstock has the effect of dwarf- g the size of pear trees.

Paradise or one of the several falling understocks have been uch used for dwarfing apple trees. A tree on Malling or Paradise un- erstocks must be set with the nob of the graft well above the ound. Otherwise, in time the op might form its own roots and, eed of the dwarfing influence of he understock, become a stand- rd-size tree.

For severe climates, better dwarf ees are now being made by a louble graft (see sketch above) hich results in a tree made of ree parts.

The nurserymen start with a whip"—an unbranched yearling of Virginia Crab. This is very hardy, has strong brace roots and a vigorous root system.

Onto this with a tongue graft he puts a 3- to 6-inch piece of the hardy Clark dwarfing stock.

Into the upper end of the dwarf- ing piece is budded the desired variety of apple. All this takes skill, patience, and time.

Once the tree starts growing again, the dwarfing insert swells in girth faster than the tree body above and below and continues this way.

Besides restraining the height of the top, this band hinders the downward movement—what fruit men call translocation—of plant foods. And this results in early formation of larger numbers of fruit spurs—exactly what you want.

Here's what you can plant on a 50-foot lot

YOU can quite literally eat your way around the place if you plant a family-size orchard of dwarf trees. This planting plan gives you apples to pick from late summer until frost and excellent kinds to store for winter eating.

The trees will bear from a half to a bushel each.

Because it's best for pollination and fruit set, plant two trees—and if possible two varieties—of apples and pears.

The Apple Lodi ripens about the same time as Yellow Transparent. Lodi's big fruit bears early, and does not turn mealy quickly.

Red Wealthy retains all the good points of its ancestor, but is handsomer.

Red McIntosh is also a glamourized favorite and desirable.

Jon-a-red is a very pretty red Jonathan and a great fall apple.

Golden Delicious is one of the best for early bearing of large crops annually. The apples are low in acid content.

Red Delicious is a country-wide favorite for winter eating.

You can cook and serve in them.

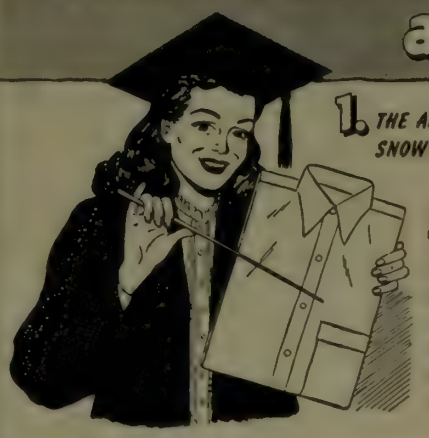
Result: hotter food, less dishwashing

By Fae Rowley

HERE are dishes that are efficient in the oven, effective on the table. Yes, you can cook in these smartly designed dishes. All of them, from the large casseroles to the individual bowls, have been specially treated to make them heat resistant.



In these dishes omelets, baked beans, and chicken pie emerge from the range ready for any occasion from a family breakfast to a company dinner. Because they're a little heavier than the average china or earthenware, the dishes will stand hard usage.

Toy Chest on Wheels

HOW many times have you just missed a bad fall, over toys left scattered around by your youngest? You'll find it easy fun to teach him to pick up and put away his playthings if he has this gaily painted Toy Chest on Wheels. He can push it around himself, making a game of pickup time; yet it's big enough to hold all his blocks, balls, and animals. Using Pattern 3.465, Dad can make the chest in a jiffy, with only basic tools. Price, 25 cents.

We all run up against foreign food names we can't pronounce, or cooking terms that mean nothing. Find out what it is, or how to do it, by consulting this complete food dictionary. Order Better Homes & Gardens Food Pronunciation Guide. Booklet 89, 20 cents.

Kitchen Gadget Shelf

When the meat and potatoes, vegetables, and gravy all need attention at once, you'll find this Kitchen Gadget Shelf as helpful as a third hand. Hang it near your stove, where it's always ready with the utensils you need. Dad can make it; you can paint it to match your kitchen. Pattern 3.408 tells how, 25 cents. A gay Peasant Shelf for spice jars or small pieces of pottery will liven the Provincial kitchen. Full-sized pattern offers design to simplify painting. Pattern 3.402 is 25 cents.

If you're planning to build a new home, here's a valuable tip. Better Homes & Gardens book of Home Building Ideas offers you authoritative help in every phase of planning and building a new home—from selection of the right lot to installation of fixtures. Price of this complete guide, $1.

Better Homes & Gardens' Five Star Homes features plans for 66 homes. They are designed by leading architects to combine top comfort and convenience with lowest possible costs. When you find the home you want, you can buy complete Working Drawings. The book is 50 cents.

Hanging Bookcase

Handy in the bedroom, but attractive enough for your living room is this Hanging Bookcase. And it's so easy to make—just trace the full-sized pattern on wood, cut and assemble. Pattern 3.421 is only 15 cents.

Equally easy to make, is a narrow Wedgewood Shelf, which you can hang just under your kitchen cabinets, or in the bathroom, for the little things you want close at hand. Make it from Pattern 3.404, 25 cents.

For a complete listing of Better Homes & Gardens booklets and patterns, write for B-J-6, Extra Helps. It's free for the asking.

Your Dog and Mine

The best friend your child can have is a happy, healthy dog. He's always ready for a romp with his young master, always lively and alert to possible danger. If you have a better understanding of a dog's simple, everyday requirements, you can make sure that your dog is fit for his important job as companion. And you'll find it easy to train him, too, by following authoritative advice in Better Homes & Gardens dog book, Your Dog and Mine. This newly revised book is $1.

Chintz marks me as the queen of the fiesta, steeped in the colorful romance of old California . . . the charm of the jarabe, the click of castanets and the gay swirling of colorful costumes. Pick the right lamp—and get better lighting

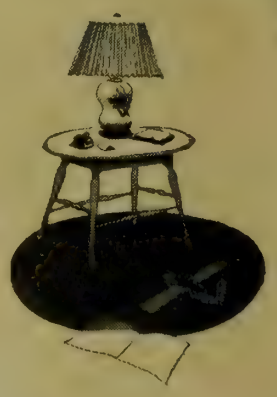
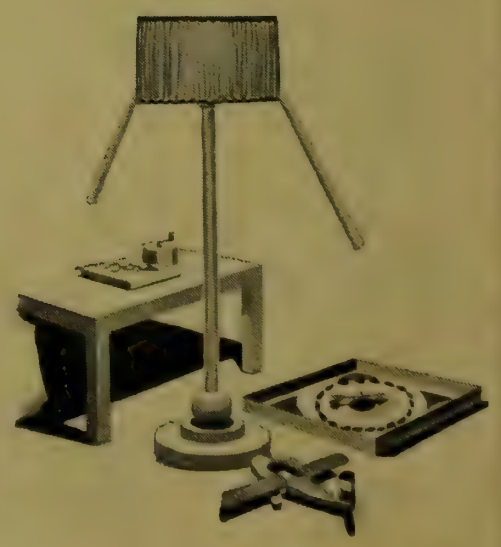
By Harry Richardson



With one simple change you may see the old room in a brand-new glow

Don't expect your mantel to look dramatic by the half-light of a faraway reading lamp or ceiling fixture. Even a colorful picture hung here will be lost completely



Do spotlight your over-the-mantel picture. Any low pewter, brass, or copper bowl can be wired for light. It acts as its own reflector

Don't cast large shadows in a child's room by using a small table lamp. And don't expect a china base or paper shade to last

Do keep room bright with floor lamp with light-colored fabric shade. Weighted wood base will be hard for youngsters to tip over

THE MAN NEXT DOOR

One of our flossier friends vows she'd rather have a maid than be a two-car family.

"But it's rule No. 1 in the class struggle," she confides, "that when I do have a maid she always breaks my more expensive dishes first."

Another February contrast that makes me feel my age: When I'm dressed in wool sox, scarf, sweater, galoshes, and overcoat, and encounter a sweet bareheaded young thing wearing about 24 ounces of ski clothes with the temperature only 5 above.

One of our lazier friends complains that his active wife coaxes him to take physical exercises with her before breakfast.

"She wheedles and browbeats me," he reports, "even if I argue there isn't room enough for a man my size to squat and twist between the bed and the dresser."

So for safety's sake he gets up and tiptoes downstairs half an hour before she does.

"It's a victory for our educators," says Les Gowan wryly, fishing his boy's cap out of the evergreen shrub. "Our kids lecture and scold us more nowadays than we lecture and scold them."

"I could easily be led astray," says the most popular bachelor at the country club, "but fortunately I'm saved because the only women who dazzle me are so straight-laced."

Since I gained my last 10 pounds, I've noticed that it's easier for a man to be well-poised and urbane if his clothes are loose all over, especially at the throat and waist. My blue suit is so tight that in the presence of a lovely woman I feel stuffy.

When I garage the car in late afternoon and detect the presence of six or eight teen-agers in the living room, I'm torn between two courses:

To march in boldly, as the breezy, undaunted modern parent, and exchange greetings and wisecracks on even terms as if I weren't afraid of 'em; or to tiptoe in unobserved through the side entrance. My decision depends entirely on how tired I am.

For 12 years the kittenish blonde around the corner has put off having a baby, and she still acts like an itsy-bitsy bride.

Lately her husband's been telling her he still loves her, but that he's read in the Bible that men once took concubines.

Our town's parties seem over-cluttered with high-toned people who took piano lessons when they were children but who can't play a note today. (Or only a small part of one ancient tune.) It makes me mourn the passing of the player piano and wish I'd claimed Grandma's when we divided up her furniture.

For reasons too feminine to fathom, my wife's vexed with me when I point out that our town's foremost clubwoman has a son who at the age of 9 can't tie his own shoelaces.

Well, I've been borrowing snow shovels all over the neighborhood this winter, hoping I might borrow back the one that a neighbor borrowed from me last winter.

"Well!" snorted Phyllis Gowan, counting 14 men's shirts drying on the clothesline next door, "it's easy to see who's got the upper hand in that family!"

My dream girl and I differ decidedly on what really constitutes shopping. She thinks that if she buys something in the first store she visits, that's shopping. I argue it isn't shopping unless she visits at least two stores before she buys.

I realized that our marriage was on solid and permanent ground when my wife began to offer me the kind of food I like at dinner instead of trying to make me eat the kind she and her bridge table associates like.

Our family is embroiled in a controversy about converting our dining room into a sort of annex to the living room.

I argue that we only use it for eating about 30 or 40 minutes a day some days.

But my dream girl quiets me with the news that her grandmother would turn over in her grave at the very idea.

When the little boy you've scolded last night leaps into your bed in the early (but not too early) morning. . . .

When your wife removes your shoes after she thinks you've fallen asleep on the davenport. . . .

When your friends treat you and your wife as if you were one unit, with a singular joint-and-combined personality. . . .

When your child confides that he feels good tonight "because I haven't done anything naughty all day. . . ."

When your son's letters begin to reveal an observing eye on the life around him. . . .

When your daughter begins to discuss boys objectively, as if they were just boys . . . .

When you find your bedtime chats with your mate more fascinating than they were 15 years ago. . . .

When you suddenly discover that your family shares your secret idealisms and scorns the same things you scorn. . . .

Then you agree with the parson that marriage is a desirable state and will endure longer than the last statue of Venus.

HOW TO DO WONDERS ON AN ACRE!

IT'S ALMOST beyond belief what you can do today on a little land of your own! New dwarf fruit trees; new simplified methods of pest control! New breeds of poultry and livestock and better ways to get results from them. Scientific layouts for small acreages; new small barns; country homes especially designed for country living! New baby tractors that do a day's work in an hour! New, inexpensive quick freezers; beautiful new kitchens, designed to live in! Whether you are interested in ONE subject or FIFTY, let Ed and Carolyn Robinson's famous "HAVE-MORE" PLAN show you how to HAVE MORE in every way on YOUR place!

And the best part of the whole thing is that you can enjoy this wonderful new way of living on less than $100.00 a month! Just a small income—from your Social Security, or a part-time job, or a pension—and you can live like a king for the rest of your life!

Ed and Carolyn Robinson have spent six years gathering the newest and best knowledge for you, experimenting at their own little place, "trading" methods and ideas with experts and amateurs all over the world. (Perhaps you've seen the stories about their 2-acre "miniature" farm in the Saturday Evening Post, Reader's Digest, Better Homes and Gardens, etc.)

"This is the way we want to live the rest of our lives . . ."

Today—more than ever—Ed Robinson's Have-More Plan is a "must for thousands of couples who can't quite keep up with the rising cost of living. Here is one way to cut corners and actually save money, too!"

Six years ago, Ed and Carolyn Robinson lived in a big apartment house in New York City. Ed had a pretty good job. People said he was a "success."

But deep in their hearts, they knew they were not really living. Just "existing" would be a better word for it. Every time they turned around, it cost money. They never seemed to be in really good health. When the year ended, all Ed had left from his "success" was a great big bundle of canceled checks. And, most important of all, their son, Jackie, was missing the healthy, out-of-door upbringing that every kid should have.

Today the Robinsons not only feel better and live better . . . but also know they are secure—and independent. On their 2-acre suburban Homestead, they raise chickens, plenty of fresh eggs, a variety of vegetables, milk, butter and cream—plus pork and bacon, plump geese, honey (over 90 pounds last year), fruit from their dwarf trees, berries, etc. It's all the result of planned spare-time farming on a highly productive scale. Of course, they didn't begin all these projects at once. But almost right from the start they had enough to give them a wonderful feeling of freedom.

Carolyn and Ed have put the whole story of their "Have-More" Plan into this wonderful big illustrated book—which is yours for FREE EXAMINATION. Just send the coupon.

PAINT hides bad lines

To see a miracle wrought by paint alone—without a single structural change—look at this house before and after painting

By Elizabeth Gilrain

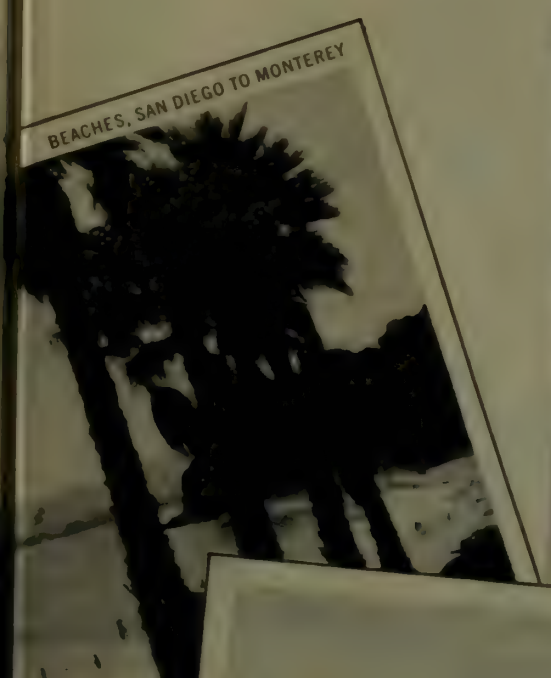
MANY old homes were not designed, but were just built. As a result, they often have some good lines, and some bad. Because of their sound structure, heavy timbers, and size, these houses are hard to remodel except at unwarranted expense.

The answer, in many cases, is judicial use of paint to emphasize the good lines and camouflage the bad points.

The work of Decorator Helen Logan on the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred V. Kayser of Pasadena shows how. Originally, the house had white clapboards, gray shingles, and red brick pillars. It now has only two colors—white on window frames and shutters, a dark blue-green on everything else. What a difference the repainting made is shown by the before and after photographs.

Before Big, roomy, but no beauty, the Kayser house seemed to need extensive remodeling. To change its lines structurally, though, would have been expensive. Color scheme included white, red, and gray, which brought out the home's worst lines

Photographs: Baskerville



After Repainting—in only two colors—was the answer. Dark blue-green played down bad points: the prominent chimney, shingled face of attic, little windows over front door. White emphasized the good proportions of the larger windows. Note how the addition of shutters and fence (left) has also improved lines of the original house

When the Telephone Rings

Pop hopes it's a call from Brown & Smith, saying that business deal is OK.

Mom's expecting a call from her mother.

Sis will go into a tailspin if it isn't Harry, who hasn't yet asked her for a Saturday night date.

Buddy hopes it's Joe, asking if he can come over.

Family Story. The story of Pop and Mom and Sis and Buddy is typical of many a family throughout the country. It shows the two-way value of your telephone service. The calls you get are as important as the ones you make—sometimes more so.

Greater Value. Your telephone is more valuable today because there are 40% more telephones—about 9,000,000 more—than three years ago.

You Can Reach more people and more can reach you. The cost is small per call and exceedingly small in relation to the value of each call.

Rates Are Still Low. Telephone rate increases are much less than the increases in most other things you buy. They are far less than past increases in telephone wages, and other higher costs of providing service.

In fact, telephone rate increases average only a penny or so per call.

Give your bedroom drama

By Betty Childs

YOURS can be a bedroom with drama—if you'll concentrate the punch in one place, then give that spot emphasis by keeping the rest of the room simple. Fancy wallpaper, frilly curtains, and costume pictures scattered throughout the room pull your attention in many directions at once. But one big impact—all in one place—will give your bedroom drama.

Take this bedroom in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis M. Constance of Los Angeles, for example. Though it was a small room, it used to be jammed with fanciness and frill. Now look over the bottom picture and see how much difference centering the punch in one part of the room made. Floral draperies hung against the window wall steal the scene as they are meant to do. Plain walls and simple furniture accent the draperies rather than crowing for notice.

Study these before and after pictures and see if you can't help yourself to a bedroom sparkling with drama, too.

Before Your attention wanders all over this bedroom. Figured wallpaper, ruffled curtains, and costume pictures all fight for attention

Photographs: George de Gennaro

After Now the drama of drapery panels against the far wall catches—and holds—your attention. Decorator Lorenz Hansen painted the walls a plain color and used simple furnishings to show off the draperies

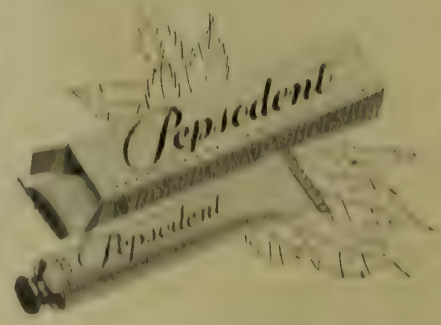
Madeleine Swenson's smile wins a passport to a bright new world !



Madeleine Swenson, French War Bride, was a Paris manicurist when an American soldier fell in love with her smile. Two years later, she was one of France's most popular cover girls . . . and on her way to Mason City, Iowa, to marry her soldier fiance, Warren Swenson. Madeleine's chance at cover-girl fame came after Warren returned to the U. S. and began sending her packages which contained, in her words, "always your wonderful Pepsodent." "So I thank Pepsodent today for my big chance," Madeleine says, "Always now, my smile is a Pepsodent Smile!"

The smile that wins is the Pepsodent Smile!

Madeleine Swenson knows it. And people all over America agree—the smile that wins is the Pepsodent Smile! They've seen how Pepsodent removes the film that makes teeth look dull—uncovers new brightness in their smiles!

Wins 3 to 1 over any other tooth paste—families from coast to coast recently compared delicious New Pepsodent with the tooth paste they were using at home. By an average of 3 to 1, they said New Pepsodent tastes better, makes breath cleaner and teeth brighter than any other tooth paste they tried. For the safety of your smile use Pepsodent twice a day—see your dentist twice a year!

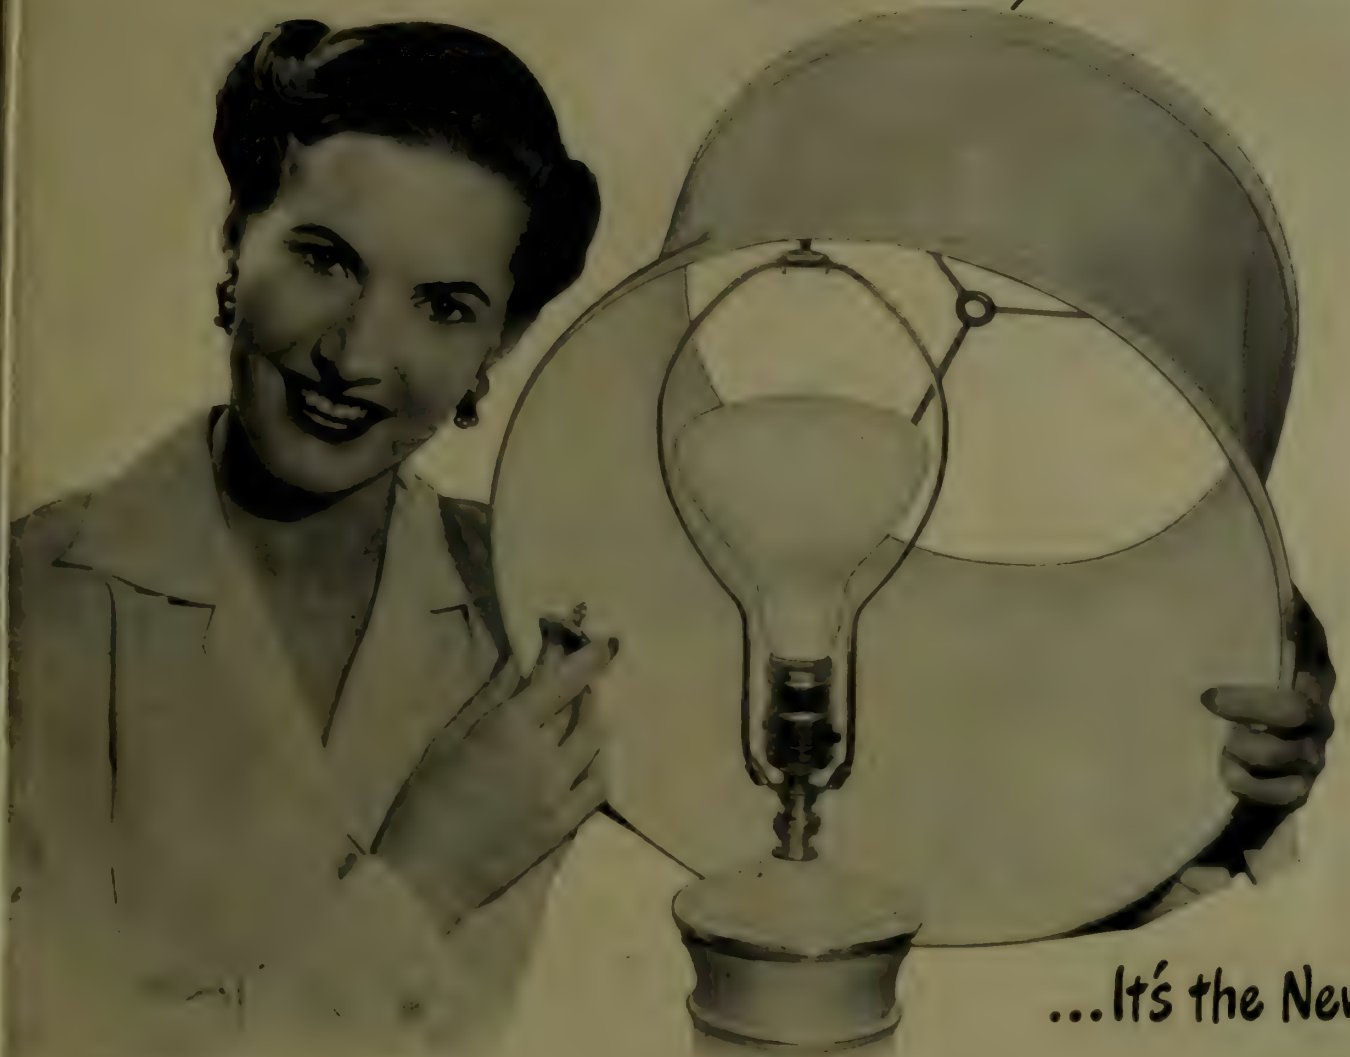
Let your hot spots grow sedums

IT'S time to start thinking about planting those dry, sun-baked spots that wouldn't grow anything last summer. The answer to your problem is sedums, which come in dozens of shapes, sizes, and colors and thrive on hot sunlight. Grow them in rock crevices, or on any well-drained soil, where they'll flourish with little attention. You can start them this spring from seeds or transplants. Read below to learn more about the hardy kinds of sedums and suggested uses for them.

To dress your steps. Any of the trailing sedums like Ewers, shown here, will trim raw edges of concrete or stone. They'll look as crisp in July as when the snow leaves. Use them for draping sun-baked rock walls. The kind above thrusts up rosy bloom heads in August. Leaf color varies within some varieties



Photographs: McFarland

For spots of color. These little plants will never go back on you. You'll come to depend on their fresh leaves, year after year, in clumps of color from pearl-gray to brightest green. Most colorful of the sedums is Siebold, shown above. Its coral-edged leaves look as though they've been silver-plated, turn to smoky-purple in the fall. A bright green mosslike sedum covers the ground at left

Mueller Climatrol *Modular Furnaces

make it easy to afford complete, year-'round comfort

Install heating and air-conditioning a step at a time to fit your budget

Yes, you can enjoy complete all-season comfort in your home, as you want it and as your budget allows—thanks to Mueller Climatrol modular design.

This exclusive new development allows you to install year 'round air-conditioning complete at one time, or a step at a time as you can afford it. Each basic unit (from burner to summer air-conditioner) is designed to fit each other unit in any combination. Whether you get one complete installation, or start with a gravity furnace and add the other modular units later — you wind up with the same efficient Mueller Climatrol system.

Here's the plan many far-seeing home owners have set up, both for new homes and replacing obsolete heating equipment:

1. You may start with an efficient, fuel-thrifty Mueller Climatrol gravity furnace, equipped with a modular burner for gas or oil as you choose. If you want to change fuels later, simply change burners.
2. When you're ready for the next step, add a blower-filter unit and you have a Mueller Climatrol winter air-conditioner.
3. Finally, you can complete your system by adding the modular cooling unit, and you have the Mueller Climatrol year 'round air-conditioning system as illustrated above.

At any stage of expanding your modular heating and summer cooling plant you have a completely design-engineered system — not a makeshift furnace dependent on later additions.

This important new advance in home-heating design is backed by Mueller's 92 years of specialized experience in building fine heating equipment. Make it a basic part of your home planning. Ask your Mueller Climatrol dealer for complete details today. L. J. Mueller Furnace Company, 2075 West Oklahoma Avenue, Milwaukee 7, Wisconsin.

Let your hot spots grow sedums

To cover bare spots. Here's a garden stand-by, the Showy Stonecrop. It's the tallest of the common sedums, and has been a favorite for generations. Like most sedums, it's good for filling blank places in your border after tulips have died down. Sedums are shallow-rooted, and they don't compete with bulbs

Squeeze sedums into narrow spaces where the sun beats down. They'll thrive, and will keep that border looking well-tended with very little care. Some sedums are green the year round

Use them in pots on the terrace. Any of them will take root and grow if you just break off a stem and bury all but the top inch. Some kinds propagate from a single leaf pressed against soil

Pick off a few stems and make a dish garden. Sedums take root without any trouble if you bury the stems in gritty soil. Since they thrive in heat, many make good winter indoor plants

Sedums take care of themselves in light soil. In places where the soil is slow to dry after the snow goes, it's best to give each plant a collar of stone chips in the fall. Collars keep plants dry and set them off nicely

How I retired with $200 a month

"It was back in 1928 that I made up my mind. In twenty years, I told myself, I'm going to be retired, living out in Southern California. I'd no idea, though, just how I'd manage it.

"Business was booming in '28. Yet there were rumblings that 'it can't last,' 'things are bound to drop.' Wasn't there some way for a man like me—making a fair salary but no expert on stocks and bonds—to plan to have a retirement income? A way that couldn't fail? So safe that I could actually afford to stop working someday, sell the house, and drive to California for good? (Mind you, I didn't have a lot of money. In fact, I never could build up a bank account.)

"Well, I started talking to friends about my idea of retiring. Like myself, they were in their early forties or younger. But none of them knew any kind of plan that seemed right for me. Then one day a man in my office showed me a copy of the Literary Digest, with an ad for the Phoenix Mutual Retirement Income Plan. 'Maybe this is what you're looking for,' he said. I read the ad through. And I knew at once—here was my answer.

"The ad told of a simple, systematic way almost any man of forty or so could plan to retire at 55 or 60. He needn't be rich. All he did need was fifteen or twenty good earning years ahead. He could make part of his present salary buy him a retirement income later. Then, when he hit retirement age, he would start collecting his first check for $150 or $200.

"Every month, wherever he lived, his checks would keep coming in—right on the dot. They'd bring him an income he couldn't lose and couldn't outlive.

"At the bottom of the ad was a coupon offering more information. I clipped it and got it in the mail right away. Back came a booklet telling all about Phoenix Mutual Plans.

"Soon as I could, I applied and qualified for a Phoenix Mutual Plan. And ever after—through the stock market crash, the depression, the war—it gave me a feeling of security I wouldn't trade for a big bank account. Best of all, in April, 1948, I retired! Today, just as I planned, I'm out in California. I'm enjoying sun and freedom for the rest of my life. I'd say there's just one secret to retiring—starting young enough."

Are you overpaying n

Whether your tax is $60 or $60,000, the gov ernment wants only what's coming to it Here an expert who helps the big boys fin legitimate ways to save offers advice to kee you from pulling the drunken sailor ac

PERFECTLY skilled tax collection has been defined a "The art of plucking from the goose the greatest number o feathers with the least amount of squawking."

If you're an average taxpayer, it probably looks to yo as if Uncle Sam is only half skilled. For, while the govern ment gets plenty of feathers, it sets off an awful annua squawking.

However, if you examine the tax process carefully, you'l realize that the government demonstrates plenty of skill— even with the goose analogy as a standard. Most of the time you don't know when your feathers are plucked. And when you do feel pain, it's usually induced not by the collector's clumsiness, but by your own.

The tax that probably causes you the most pain is your income tax. It is jerked out of your pay check each week, and each year it seems to be bigger.

To many government employees, accountants, and attorneys, it is almost beyond comprehension that individual taxpayers do not take advantage of the simple means available to all of them to pay their taxes with more accuracy and less anguish. This year the government has mailed out millions of copies of a 16-page pamphlet: "Helpful Information on How to Prepare Your United States Income Tax Return." It hopes you will read it and quit sending in money Uncle Sam didn't ask for and doesn't want.

While laziness is probably the No. 1 reason for inaccurate returns that cost you money, excuses are a dime a dozen. You've doubtless heard this one: "I think it's immoral to use clever little schemes to beat taxes. A fella ought to step up and pay 'em like a man." This excuse expresses a half-truth. It is morally wrong to use clever schemes and cute tricks, but it is not morally wrong to avoid unnecessary taxes by legal means.

AS JUSTICE SUTHERLAND of the Supreme Court once said, "The legal right of a taxpayer to decrease the amount of what otherwise would be his taxes or altogether avoid them, by means which the law permits, cannot be doubted. . . ."

Another common alibi for expensively inaccurate returns is, "The tax laws are so complicated, and they're always changing. It takes a Philadelphia lawyer to understand 'em."

Again a half-truth. Admittedly, since 1929, there have been 20 major revisions in the revenue law, and a steady flow of new regulations pour out of Washington each month. Yet none of the changes really complicate things for you if you're an average taxpayer. You can still fill out your return without studying all of the changes because few of them directly affect you. For instance, the 1948 Revenue Act made fundamental changes in the entire tax structure, yet, when you start to fill in your individual return, you'll find hat the form was not perceptibly changed. And page 1, ne 9 still contains those four formidable words "Balance f Tax Due."

Uncle Sam?

BUSINESSMEN, generally, have not found the tax law o complicated that they cannot avoid taxes the law permits hem to avoid. One thing they have learned is always to examine tax consequences before entering into a transaction. For example, well-informed businessmen know that if they vote themselves a high salary instead of a dividend, their corporation will pay less taxes. This is because a salary is an expense which will reduce the corporation's profits (and, thus, ts taxes too). A dividend, on the other hand, is not a reduction, but a distribution of profits. It won't reduce taxes. Businessmen also know that the very form in which they do usiness may save them thousands of dollars in taxes because a corporation is taxed as a corporation and a partnership is not taxed at all. Therefore, many who did business in a corporate form have dissolved their corporations and formed partnerships.

Maybe you've been saying, "There's very little I can ave. It's hardly worth the bother." More often than not ou're just kidding, not to mention shortchanging, yourself vhen you talk like that. Too many people fail to recognize hat overlooking a $10 deduction costs them $2 (or more) in ash. And once you've set up a deduction, you can use it gain the next year, and so reduce your taxes year after ear—as long as the same expense recurs.

The tips that the average taxpayer needs to know are elatively simple, and if you're willing to learn a few of them, ou can save yourself real money.

OK, YOU say, shoot me the inside dope. Well, first of all, ou can take a tip from businessmen who have learned that nost of their transactions allow alternatives. Taking the ight alternative is a royal road to legitimate tax avoidance. For example, a gift to a church or charity should not always e made in cash, but, if practical, in the form of property r stock. This is because a gift of stock which was purchased or $100 and has a value at the time it is given of $250, permits you to make a $250 gift, deduct the full $250 as a charitable contribution, and yet pay no tax whatsoever on the profit you realized of $150 (the difference between $100 and $250) provided the total deducted for contributions doesn't exceed 15 percent of your adjusted gross income. If you first sold the stock at $250 and then gave the $250 to the charity, you would have to pay a tax on the $150. True, the tax may not exceed 25 percent, but $37.50 in taxes isn't hay.

The second thing you can learn from businessmen is that if you don't want to pay more taxes than you should, you must keep some kind of intelligible books. [Turn to page 251

DEEP-FRIED FRENCH TOAST

(Makes 6 servings)

Here's a delicious treat for Sunday breakfast or holiday "brunch"! These rich, sugary morsels of toast will wake up sleepy appetites—start the day smiling!

¼ cup flour • 1 egg • ½ cup milk
6 slices dry bread • Crisco for frying

All Measurements Level: Make batter of flour, egg and milk. Trim crusts from bread and cut diagonally. Dip bread into batter. Fry in deep Crisco heated to 365°F. for 2-3 minutes, or until golden brown. (Temperature is right when an inch cube of bread browns in 60 seconds.) Notice —there's no unpleasant smoke or smell when you fry with Crisco!

Drain on absorbent paper. Sprinkle toast with cinnamon and powdered sugar. Serve with fruit.

PAN-FRIED FRENCH TOAST:

Dip bread in batter and fry in hot Crisco about ¼" deep in heavy skillet. Fry about 3 minutes on each side.

Get a head start— prune in spring

SPRINGTIME is pruning time for most of your trees, shrubs, and vines. Wounds made now, before growth begins, heal much faster. Besides, you can check branch patterns and locate bad spots without foliage to hide them.

Tools for spring pruning are simple; a saw, a knife and a hand pruner will take care of almost all jobs. If you plan to remove branches larger than an inch in diameter, you'll also need a small amount of paint for covering the wounds. Ordinary linseed oil house paint is good, but be careful not to get any on the raw edges of the bark from which growth will come to cover the wound.

DON'T prune spring-flowering shrubs like lilacs and spirea Vanhoutte beyond clipping out dead and diseased wood. Otherwise you'll remove many of the branches which would produce flowers in a few weeks. Prune spring-bloomers only after they have borne their blossoms.

On the other hand, you're safe in trimming shrubs which will bloom in late July or after. Their flowers will come on new wood which will grow this year.

An unforgivable sin in pruning is to leave stubs. They can result only in decay which will finally extend into the plant. Cut tree limbs off flush, and remove shrub branches just above a bud or the next lower side branch.

If you use your pruning tools on diseased wood, sterilize them before moving to the next plant to avoid infection. Any good household disinfectant will do the trick. Burn diseased wood at once, and if there is much of it, find out why your plants are ailing.

You may want to call an expert for jobs needing special equipment, such as removal of large tree limbs. But for most other pruning problems you'll find the answers below.

Photographs: Stanley

Get your evergreens under control. Stragglers like the ones on this yew should be nipped back to get bushier growth. You can force your evergreen to spread by cutting out top shoots; prune spreading branches if you want upright growth.

Spring pruning

Trees planted now or last fall should have some of their branches trimmed off to ease strain on the root system. The rule is to trim off about one-third of top growth. Make the most of the pruning by cutting out weak twigs, poorly spaced branches and those with bad V-shaped crotches.

Branches which rub together should be pruned to remove the offenders. Otherwise rubbing will injure bark and open trees to infection. Cut the limbs off flush, trim rough edges, and if the removed branch was large, paint the wound to seal the opening against moisture, insects, and disease.

Your front walk

By Frederick Lang
Landscape Architect

YOUR front path or walk is the part of your home on which a visitor first sets foot. It should provide an attractive first impression, but instead a path or walk often mars the entire appearance of a home and may even be a safety hazard. We present several problem paths, together with a landscape architect's suggestions for making them respectable again.

PROBLEM: Path across house front too close to building; shrubs crowd onto walk.

SOLUTION . . . and what's good about it:

1. The foundation planting has been removed, and the walk has been widened back to the base of the house to provide easy passage along the front of the house.
2. New planting has been put in on street side of the crosspath. The new arrangement permits use of shutters on the windows. Even where shutters are bolted open the planting should not look as though it prevented them from being closed.
3. An untrimmed hedge has been planted on the left side of the lot. It makes the house seem farther back from the street, and thus makes the walk in front of the house appear necessary.

Is your front yard chopped to pieces?

PROBLEM: Too many walks for size of yard, but owner doesn't want to use driveway as a walk; the planting chops up yard.

SOLUTION . . . and what's good about it:

1. The front walk has been replaced by a narrow one along the driveway. The new path is adequate for foot traffic but is separate from the drive and is raised about 3 inches above it. The curbing between the two is rounded, making it easy on tires, but is enough to warn that you are running up onto path.
2. The new planting is simplified and co-ordinated. The chopped-up effect given by the former "scatter-gun" planting is gone, and shade has been added. The lawn now seems much larger, and mowing and watering are made easier.
3. A terrace-walk has been built to take care of traffic across front of house and around to back. The terrace also helps to tie house to lawn.
4. A boxed plant has been used to fill in the bare spot in the corner by the doorway.

There's no other cereal like it!

CORN for flavor and energy
SOYA for body-building protein

"The Twin-Treat Breakfast"

For a more nourishing breakfast*

It isn't only the crisp, sweet taste that makes this just about the most satisfying cereal you've ever eaten for breakfast . . . it's the stays-by-you nourishment of Corn-Soya with milk. It provides against mid-morning slump! CORN brings you glorious flavor and up-and-at-'em energy. SOYA brings you more body-building protein* than in any cereal. Whole-grain vitamins and minerals. Get some at your grocer's.

*The protein value of one ounce (2/3 cup) of Corn-Soya with four ounces of milk equals that of one egg with three slices of bacon. It's real nourishment and real economy.

Does it really matter?

It's easy to say "No" to everything, but where does it get you?

By Helen Hungerford

"DOES it really matter?" "Will it make much difference one way or the other?" These are the questions to ask yourself when your children want to do something unusual.

When our 8-year-old Dorothy wanted to make a butter icing for a cake "all by myself, Mother," I was tempted to say, "No, you are too little." But I let her make it. She was thrilled, though it wasn't very good. Did it really matter?

Our older daughter Jean decided recently that she was going to walk to school, instead of riding her bike, because almost everyone else walked. School is quite a distance and her legs get tired. But does it really matter?

I haven't always taken this "Does-it-really-matter?" attitude. When my son was born, I was sure something terrible would happen to him unless I clung rigidly to a schedule. The schedule was enforced with an iron hand. The only trouble was that my small son didn't like the way his life was arranged. Instead of being hungry for his evening feeding at 6, as he was supposed to be, he began yelling at 5:30. I let him yell nightly for two whole weeks before I dared to defy the schedule and feed him a half hour earlier. The result was a happy baby and an unharried mother. I should have asked myself sooner, "Does it really matter?"

I STRUGGLED to get Jack to eat strained carrots, which he disliked intensely and refused to swallow. He won in the end. He never has eaten carrots, and so far as I can see the lack of them has never hurt him. Did it really matter?

When Jack was 2, we moved into a house with only two bedrooms. We set Jack's crib up in the second bedroom, which was furnished as a guest room. With two perfectly good single beds in his room, Jack didn't see why it was necessary for him to sleep in a crib any longer. Every night he protested that he wanted to sleep in a bed.

Finally I got wise and decided it was better to take a chance of having him fall out of a single bed rather than have him dangling from the top of a crib. Once he was settled in a real bed, he was proud and happy.

I determined to go along with him in the future on little things like this, instead of always opposing. And I'm sure that this is a lesson all parents might learn. It doesn't spoil your child. It does help develop his abilities.

WHEN Jack was 12, he wanted a paper route. I didn't like the idea of having him delivering papers in all kinds of weather. But he wanted to earn money. Finally his father said, "Does it really matter? Let him try it."

It wasn't always convenient for us to arrange our lives around a newspaper route, but we went along with him. His route was a success. Managing it taught him a lot.

Ask yourself if it really matters when your boy or girl wants to do things before you think he's ready.

A "Does-it-really-matter?" attitude will make children cooperative friends instead of rebellious individuals resenting your authority. When you do have to say a definite "No" to something, your children will know you must have a good reason.

The Mahogany is SOLID... and so is the VALUE !

Enjoy the graceful beauty and luxurious quality of this Lexington Colonial Grouping...in SOLID MAHOGANY by MENGEL

Want to get most for your money?

Well, feast your eyes on these breathtaking new Lexington pieces by Mengel. Notice the authentic Colonial styling: delicate pierced-brass drawer pulls, graceful Lexington base, handsome pineapple finials on the roomy poster bed . . . the crystal-clear mirror, surrounded by a charming pediment frame. Every detail reflects the American heritage of fine craftsmanship.

Now look at the wood . . . the gleaming, oven-hardened finish . . . the luxurious grain figure . . . the rich, satiny luster that spells fine cabinet wood. That's mahogany. Solid mahogany. From Mengel's own timberlands in Africa.

And you get more. Much more. For . . . like all Mengel Furniture . . . every piece is Permanized.*

"Permanized" is Mengel's name for their exclusive scientific method of building durability into your furniture. Joints and veneers in furniture built by this method will never come apart. No matter what the climate . . . hot or cold, damp or dry . . . your Mengel Permanized Furniture stays sound and beautiful.

There's another point you'll like. This suite is made in solid maple as well as solid mahogany. Choose the wood you prefer. Whichever it is, you can be sure you're getting solid value for your money in this graceful Colonial suite.

Straightening evergreens

Q Some of my evergreens came through a winter sleet storm with their tops badly bent. Will they straighten up by themselves?—M. K. C., Nebraska.

They'll need help, just as the junipers shown above do. Sleet and sticky snow are great damagers of evergreens whose thick foliage gets loaded down until the tree bends or even snaps off. Often trees remain bent even after the snow is gone. If your trees look like this, they may remain permanently crooked unless you straighten them.

Photographs: Stanley

Here the needed help has been given. Each trunk is straightened by tying it to a long splint rod with well-padded cord. Guy wires (arrows) hold trees erect and are tied to the rods to avoid bark injury. Such inconspicuous support will give the trees back their erectness.

...and good enough to eat in! See how I framed that awkward bay window with two cottage sets of luscious, strawberry color Velon film curtains. For a dinette area, I resurrected an old "parlor" table and chairs from the attic, slip-covered them and draped a strawberry color Velon cloth over the table for protection. My fresh-fruit motif is repeated again and again...in the Velon film shelf edging that frames my "picture" plates...in Velon film food bags, bowl, electric mixer and toaster covers. I topped it all off with leaf-green walls and whipped-cream woodwork. Now who could resist picking my "strawberry" kitchen!

Disposable nursing bottles are pliable plastic film, come already sterilized in rolls of 100, heat-sealed in sections to hold 4 or 8 ounces of formula. Bottle collapses as baby nurses so there's no air for him to swallow. Natural-action nipples allow baby to nurse easily. Kit consists of 2 racks for assembling and storing; 6 boilproof nipples, rings, and caps; bottle expander for filling and assembling; roll of 100 bottles. Shellie Nurser Kit with pink, blue, or white trim, $6.95, in stores or ppd. Additional bottles, $1 per roll. Shelmar Products Corporation., Mount Vernon, Ohio.

Steel braces for wood joists are installed with one nail at each end; the flange-grip ends of the braces bite into the wood and give more strength than is possible with wooden braces. Braced floors stay level and quiet, since joists are held in place even during shrinkage, and weight is distributed evenly. Sta-Tite Steel Bridging is at dealers only for 10c per brace. Beloit Steel Industries, Inc., City Hall Bldg., Rockford, Illinois.

Hooks for kitchen equipment, tools, accessories, or clothes hangers slide freely in a stainless-steel track to accommodate articles of various sizes. Bases of hooks are square, permit hook to be turned four different directions. Track can be mounted under a shelf, flat against a wall, or upright. Hooks are transparent plastic each capable of supporting 15 pounds. Trahook is 90c in stores or plus 10c postage from H. B. Dodge & Co., 332 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago 4, Illinois.

Hanging rod for your ironing clamps right on the ironing board where it's handiest to use. Clamp may stay on the board while rods pull out for storage. Will hold 12 hangers to keep clothes smooth after ironing and let them finish drying. Sav-a-Step is red enamel with chrome-plated rods. In stores, $2.98. Huffeld Engineering Co., 228 Main St., Peoria 2, Illinois.

Cushionlok carpeting is carpet and underlay all in one. Sponge rubber is blown into the backing, binding the tufts and making the carpet ravel-resistant and flexible. No underlay is needed since the sponge rubber backing remains permanently resilient. Strips 27" wide are laid with adhesive to produce a seamless effect, without stretching. Carpet may be relaid, recut, and re-used, or repaired on the floor. Cushionlok is available at dealers, in loop pile in popular colors; about $12 per yard. Bigelow-Sanford Carpet Co., Inc., 140 Madison Ave., New York 16, New York.

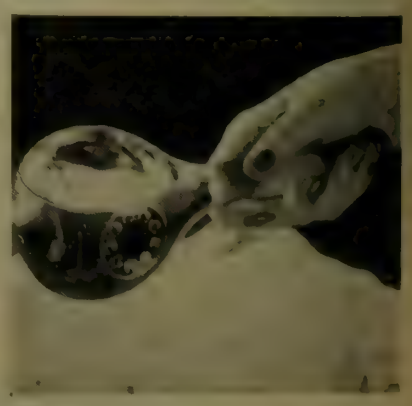
Folding chairs can be handsome and comfortable. Frame is lightweight magnesium. Folding mechanism is simple to work, but makes chair completely rigid. Back and seat are padded with foam rubber, upholstered with leatherette in red, blue, green, cream, or tan. Use as extra chairs for parties, or permanently in small dining areas. Solid Kumfort Folding Chair, $39.75, in stores only. Louis Rastetter & Sons Co., 1300 Wall St., Fort Wayne 1, Indiana.



Stepladder with platform-type steps prevents arch and leg fatigue, gives you freer motion. Third and fourth steps are hinged, swing up out of the way for complete knee freedom. Since your weight is squarely centered, the ladder will not tip. Shur-Foot Ladder is smoothly finished wood with steel braces; 4½′ or 5½′, about $9 and $10, in stores only. Craft-Bilt Products, Inc., Hastings, Michigan.

Sliding doors add space and trim lines to your home. The suspension mechanism shown fits into standard 4-inch walls, eliminate the use of tracks, but suspends door at the back on scissors action brackets. Door may be removed for adjustment if settling causes binding. Door slides back and forth at a slight touch. Completely concealed mechanism is noiseless. Dorflo Floating Action Door Hanger is at dealers only, $14.90. Dorflo Manufacturing Co., 1902 First Ave., Hibbing, Minnesota.

Gardens grow their best only when seeds are planted at the right depth. In using the tool shown, you set the upright plate between the blade and roller at the depth required, with a wing nut. As you pull the tool forward, the plate makes a trench. After seed is sown, reverse the tool so the wooden roller rests across trench. Pull back so the roller refills trench smoothly and firmly. The 4-foot handle lets you stand up straight. Tommie Furrow is $1.98, in stores or ppd. Tommie Furrow Co., 4000 21st Ave., So., Minneapolis 7, Minnesota.

Sprinkle clothes for ironing with a stemmed glass ball. Water is released through small openings on the flat side of the ball. Handle fits your hand comfortably; a rolling wrist motion sprinkles effectively. Use it, too, for watering plants. Comet Clothes Sprinkler, 50c, in stores or ppd. K. R. —how to furnish a house so they can't hurt it

Let it go. Dirty boots don't hurt

Don't shriek. The curtains won't burn

Don't scold. It won't stain

Hang them damp. No need to iron

Soap and a cloth. And it's clean

By Christine Holbrook and Walter Adams

Here lies a poor woman, who always was tired;
She lived in a house where help was not hired.
Her last words on earth were: "Dear friends, I am going
Where washing's not done, nor sweeping, nor sewing;
But everything there is exact to my wishes,
For where they don't eat, there's no washing of dishes."

THEY cut that into the cold gray stone more than a hundred years ago, in England. But many a wife today, with love in her heart, suds on her hands, and a scold on her tongue, would find it a fitting last line to her own end. Ad men won't admit it, and the movies won't look at a woman in suds unless she's in a bathtub, but that doesn't fool Mother; there's mud on the floor and butter on the wall, and she well knows who's in the scrub bucket.

Some months ago, over a sandwich with Horne's, the big Pittsburgh department store, we got to wondering what to do about it. With them we got Our Idea: to show you how to furnish your house with some of the newer plastic materials, most of which you can clean with a damp cloth. It's the first time anybody has shown you how to put plastics together in a comfortable, normal house instead of a facsimile of a Statler cocktail bar. Horne's worked the house up for a centennial they're having this month, and you see it on our cover and in the following pages. For details about materials themselves, go to the back of the book, page 266.

Materials like these make you a fresh, colorful house ——→

House is homey, chintzy, and comfortable

Begins on preceding page

No stain, not even with chocolate

To damage it, build a fire

Scuff? It's so tough they make tailcoats of it for Ringling Brothers elephants

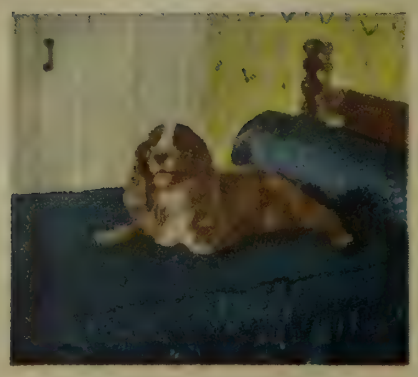
TO MANY people plastics are brightly colored kitchen gadgets and junk, sold to a gullible public with ballyhoo and cheesecake. ("I wouldn't put those gimcracks in my living room on a bet.")

But plastic is a family name, like wood. Wood is made into thousands of things, good and bad, exquisite and shoddy, beautiful and cheap. So, too, is plastic. There are a score of plastics and hundreds of fabricators cooking them into thousands of products. Some burn, some melt, some explode; some don't. Most juke boxes are plastics; so are most stockings, only they're called nylons, and they dry quicker, and look better than the silk they replace. Thus it is with plastic furnishings. Some are juke-boxy; some have elegance, and with it they stay fresh longer, clean easier.

There are still others, like the plastic-coated curtains we show in the bedroom, that you'll have to get used to or go without. They clean with a cloth, rain won't hurt them, but they don't look like bedroom curtains; they look like shower curtains with ruffles on. If America is to accept them, it'll have to change its notion of how bedroom curtains should look.

Photographs: Suter, Hedrich-Blessing

Draperies, ready-made, cost about $16.95, swag $1.70 a yard. Dust, gravy, little hand prints wipe off; or draperies wash in machine, lose wrinkles while drying, mustn't be ironed because they melt. Nylon curtains dry at window, need no stretching



Some cottons can be plasticised, but draperies and sofa here aren't; the process, not yet perfected, muddies up colors. Striped chintz on chair ($3 a yard) is coated, but colors are in coating, not fabric

Carpet, chair seats, place mats, dishes, even wallpaper here are plastics but don't look it. You can wipe hash and crankcase drainings off all of them but the carpet, without stain. The wallpaper costs 12½ cents a square foot, withstands ink, lipstick, shoe polish, salad oil, transmission grease, whiskey, flood. Hospitals find it fine for steam-filled sterilizing rooms

Bedrooms, kitchen stay fresh ——→

Bedrooms and kitchen absorb abuse, stay fresh

Do it yourself, shoes on

It washes like enamel

He'll have to use lye or an ax

AT A recent plastics show a visitor said to a manufacturer, "This stuff burns, don't it?" He jabbed a cigarette to the fabric, melted a hole. Angered, the manufacturer grabbed the visitor's tie, burned a hole in it with his own cigarette. "So does your necktie!" His point was, good plastic articles are designed to take the abuse such articles normally get in use, not everything. "The public's attitude is fantastic," said the manufacturer. "Imagine a woman buying a wooden salad bowl and asking, 'Will it burn if I put it on the fire?' " When using plastics, recognize the use for which they are intended; the same plastic that cleans easily with water may dissolve in cleaning fluid.

Where to get it, page 264

Even your boys, with their gouging, pounding, and tracking, will have trouble making this room hard to keep up. Manufacturers use the leatherlike plastic in the curtains and bunks (about $6 a yard 54 inches wide) to make footballs and upholster gravel trucks. A California builder demonstrates the counter top by building bonfires on it. A Spokane filling-station man has found the floor tile (about 90 cents a square foot installed) so resistant to dirt and oil, he uses it in grease pits

In an ideal kitchen everything would withstand steam and grease, splatters and juices. It would wash like porcelain, have the color delicacy of a rich wallpaper. Here you have about that: stainless paper; no-wax floor impervious to grease; wipe-clean blinds and curtains; counter tops like those in the boys' room; stool covering that takes much abuse and costs about $6 a yard 50 inches wide but is so de luxe it's used to upholster $2,000 wheel chairs for gouty Indian potentates

Swinging doors in small halls block passage; folding doors (plastic covered, naturally) don't. And bags of the same plastic surgeons use to replace brain membranes keep woolens dust- and moth-free

Draperies are rayon voile dipped in plastic. Material costs about $2 a yard, sews like any fabric, isn't damaged by rain. And like the plastic bedspreads, it can be cleaned with a duster or cloth. Spreads come ready-made or at goods counters (about 89 cents a yard)

WHEN you plan an informal mixed border for summer, you're adopting America's most popular way of growing flowers. You can fill all your space with long-lived perennials such as peonies, iris, phlox, and daylilies. Or you can use these as the backbone of your planting and get still more color by filling in between them with bright annuals—zinnias, marigolds, asters, mallows, and cosmos.

You can add a lot of color in summer bulbs such as dahlias and gladioli and summer-blooming lilies—regal, turkscap, tiger, goldband, and showy rubrums.

You can have a background of flowering vines supported by a fence or wall. Or you can start your summer border against such flowering shrubs as the rosy-red weigela, white mockorange, or sunny-yellow hypericums.

Your mixed border should be packed with the colors you like best at the time that is most important to you. How close you come to that depends on how you plan now.

Sun. For top performance, a mixed flower border should get full sun for at least six hours each day. Morning sun is preferred, or some in early morning and early afternoon.

Soil. Most of the plants you'll want to grow do best when set in a loose loamy soil, one that's neither very sandy, nor stiff with clay. Both can be remedied by working in some form of humus, peat, leafmold, or grass clippings.

Never start a new border in a spot where water stands for long, either winter or summer.

Water. Don't expect peak performance unless you can supply water by irrigation or spray when your plants need it. Don't plan a border beyond reach of the hose.

Background. Shelter from strong winds is advisable. Protection against breakage is good common sense. Both can often be supplied by a flowering background.

For best display. Spacing and staking are important. With perennials, allow for mature plants—5 to 6 feet between peonies, 3 feet between centers of iris clumps, at least 4 between the larger summer-blooming daylilies.

Space seedling marigolds and other annuals 15 inches apart, 9 if in edgings. Stake inconspicuously. Let each plant stand naturally. Stake delphinium spikes individually.

For the biggest show, an informal border is planned in three parts

Background

Pictured opposite are two extremes in backgrounds. The upper border has a grassy slope behind it, needs only this open fence to define the boundary and protect the flowers from cross traffic. Below, is a deeper border that needs a background to protect it and also screen what lies beyond.

The chief tall plants used here are, left, goatsbeard or Spirea aruncus, still good-looking although gone to seed, delphiniums, hollyhocks, and shrubby roses.

Other sturdy perennials good for background positions, but not shown, are plume poppy, globethistles, the several meadowrues, liatris with its tall, stiff wands. You can also have heliopsis—the handsome orange sunflower, coneflowers, rose-pink liatris, and thermopsis that look like tall yellow lupines. If your border is more than 6 feet deep, do have a narrow access path just in front of these background plants. This need not show from the front but lets you stake and cultivate without undue stretching.

Middle of border

Medium-height flowers such as the phlox, yellow daylilies, and the gladioli in the upper picture serve as background plants in a border under 4 feet, but look best in the middle band of one 6 feet or deeper.

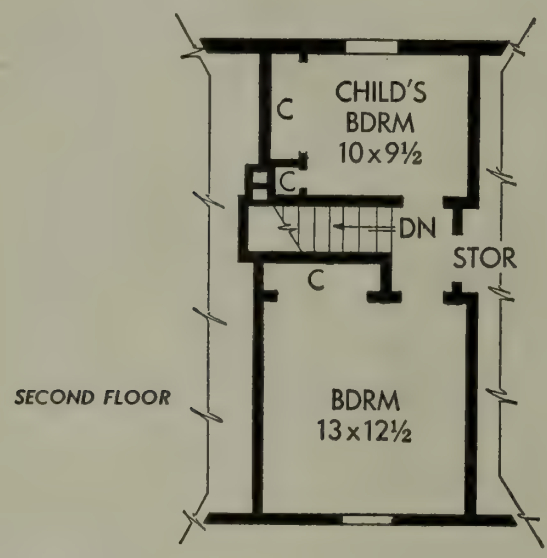
For a blazing spread of sweetwilliams like the one shown opposite, buy plants this spring. Then grow your own from seeds this summer for next year's show.

Good middle-of-the-bed perennials for a dependable summer display are gaillardias, coreopsis, monarda, Shasta daisies so good beside yellow daylilies, and lupines and columbines (pictured at extreme right).

In deep borders, this is where your peonies and iris should go. It's also the place for tall chrysanthemums of the kinds that you think will need staking.

The taller varieties of marigolds and zinnias, cosmos, cleome, asters, satiny godetias, larkspur, and red and white jasmine tobacco are the annuals to plant here in the middle band of a deep border.

Edging



Never underestimate your edgings. They're always on view. They can be perennial and green—the kind you keep clipped for trimness, or informal mats of low-growing flowers.

The choice is endless. Consider tidy bindings of green box-barberry or teucrinum—silvery-gray lavender—tumbled sweet-smelling pinks—sprawling mats of glowing pink petunias and verbenas—lacy lilac and white sweet alyssum—toy-soldier line-ups of small scarlet zinnias.

If your border fronts on the lawn, plan for a mowing strip. This need be nothing more complicated than space you allow on the cultivated soil for the wheel of the lawn mower to run on. Very trim but more costly and formal in effect is a mowing strip made of bricks. To make this, lay bricks on edge and level with the sod. This band also keeps grass from growing into the border and mats of flowers from lopping out onto the lawn and spoiling the sod, leaves no need for hand trimming.

Four bedrooms, but still small

YOU can get along with two bedrooms, you say, but it means living in cramped quarters.

Three bedrooms are a lot better than two, you add, but they leave you no room for expansion.

What you'd really like to have—all this you tell us in your letters, in our surveys, in conversation—is four bedrooms. But won't the cost be too great? Won't a big house like that require a big lot?

No, we say. And to back up that answer to both questions, Better Homes & Gardens presents Five Star Homes Nos. 1903A and 1903B. Both are compact four-bedroom houses that will fit comfortably on an ordinary city lot, giving you the space that you tell us you want in your home and on the land around it.

As you study these two homes, you will discover that the floor plans are identical except for the location of the garage. The basic house is a rectangle 30 feet by 25 feet with the kitchen extending beyond the rectangle and the garage attached to it. Designed for the greatest possible economy in building costs, the house has no basement, uses stock sizes of windows and doors, and standard lumber lengths. It gives you living space for a family of four on the first floor alone. Second-floor space, which could include two bedrooms and a second bath, takes care of future family expansion and can be finished at a later date if you don't need the space [Turn to page 271

Your lawn—feed, seed, and repair now

Remove as soon as possible any leaves which have collected on the lawn during the winter. Otherwise they'll soon mat down and smother the grass.

Remember that the ground is soft and grass roots are just renewing themselves. Use only a broom rake and use it carefully or you'll scratch out some plants.

Get down to the cause of the trouble on spots where soil bakes hard every year and grass is sparse and anemic.

Spade soil 6 inches deep and work in 2 inches of peatmoss, compost, or other humus to loosen the ground. Rake smooth and seed. Coal ashes are also excellent for loosening heavy clay soil.

Level down a bumpy lawn to make it easier to mow. Rake humus-rich top-dressing into small hollows but don't cover grass more than half an inch deep or it may smother. If the hollow is deeper than that, dig it up, fill, and plant new seed. Or peel back sod, fill underneath with good soil, and lay the sod back.

Apply a complete plant food to your lawn at the rate recommended by the maker (plant foods vary in strength). Most lawns need food more than they do reseeding.

Feed early so plant food can sink into winter-loosened ground. If growth has begun, apply the food only when grass blades are dry to prevent burning.

Feed trees which have bare spots under them; soil-robbing tree roots kill more grass than does too much shade.

Punch holes 18 inches deep, 2 feet apart, under outer half of branch overhang. Put about a pint of complete plant food in each hole; tree should have about 3 pounds for each inch of trunk diameter.

Give lawn a "once-over" with a roller to firm soil around roots loosened by winter frost. Don't over-roll, and roll when earth is moist but not soggy or you'll have hard-baked ground all summer.

Remember that rolling closes the millions of tiny frost cracks so feed and seed first to take advantage of them.

By Ralph K. Andrist

WINTERS are hard on lawns, and your grass can use a lot of help in early spring. Correct its shortcomings now and you won't worry during the hot, dry days of summer.

An early start is important, but don't be too impatient. Stay off your lawn when there is white frost on it or your weight may injure or kill brittle grass crowns. And wait until the ground is no longer soggy or your feet will pack it down into brick-hard spots where the grass will fight a losing battle all summer.

But as soon as you can get on the ground, take a good look at the grass. Note the bare spots, the slopes washed empty of grass, the bumps, and hollows. Then go to work and correct your troubles by following these procedures.

Sow seed at the rate of 2 pounds per 1,000 square feet to thicken an established lawn. Don't plant more heavily or young plants will be weakened by crowding.

Sow early—even while earth is still frozen. Seed will sink into frost-loosened ground without raking. Use shady-lawn mixtures for spots getting little sun.

Seed at the rate of 4 pounds per 1,000 square feet where you're starting a new lawn. Rake in lightly, covering seed no more than half an inch deep.

Don't expect merely to scratch hard clay with a rake and then get miracles with a handful of seed. First prepare poor soil as explained across the page.

Prepare soil carefully when repairing a slope bare of grass; otherwise you're wasting time. Quickest but most expensive cure is sodding. Or sow seed, rake in, cover with burlap and keep moist.

Remove burlap when young shoots pierce it, or use light open-mesh material like cheesecloth and let it rot away.

Sprinkle the ground lightly but frequently; this is the one time of year you can flout the rule never to water less than 6 inches deep.

The soil usually has plenty of moisture in spring but the surface must be kept from drying out until seed has germinated and grass roots have started down.

Spray with 2,4-D weed-killer only after young grass has taken on its darker green mature color because 2,4-D may also damage seedling grass.

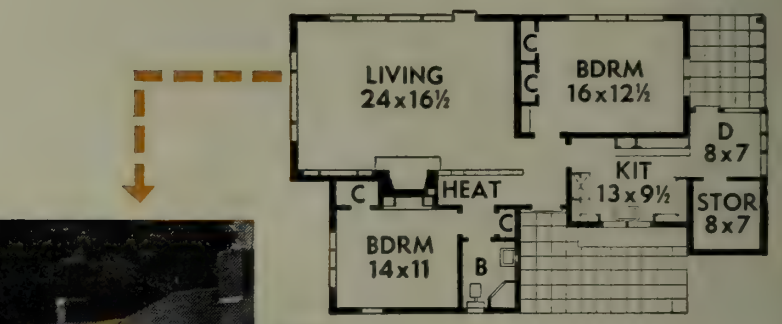
Pick a windless day, use a coarse spray and cover nearby plants; a fine mist of 2,4-D can drift many yards and do heavy damage to other plants.

Start mowing before young grass gets higher than 2½ inches. Set mower to cut at 1½ inches—no shorter.

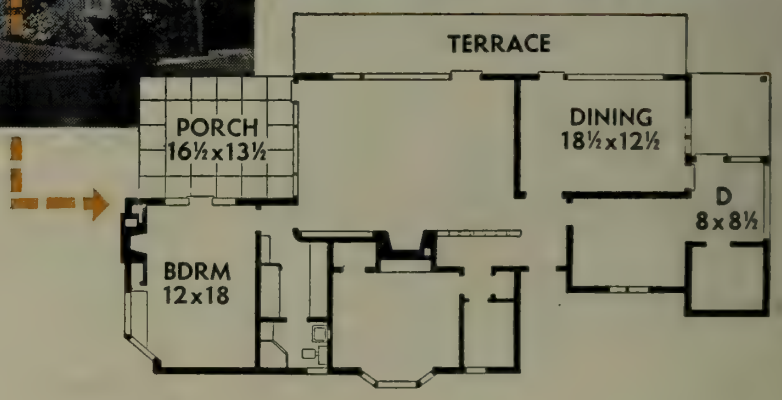
Frequent mowing won't hurt grass, but cutting too close will. Don't let it get too high either, or grass plants will develop an erect growth habit instead of hugging the ground as grass should.

Your house can grow gracefully

. . . if you plan its growth before you build



Here's what they had . . .



Construction on the Johnston home began near the outset of the war. Knowing that good materials would be scarce, the Johnstons built a house with only enough space to be temporarily adequate, and designed it specifically for later enlargement.

Plans at the right show clearly where space was added. Of the two original bedrooms, the one at the rear was converted into a dining room; closets had been built for easy removal. A new bedroom (shown by dotted lines), with its own bath and small dressing room, was attached next to the remaining bedroom. Dinette was enlarged to make room for a door into new dining room

Here's what they did . . .

Photographs: Loren Smith-Fred Milkie

South side of original house (above) was attractive and tastefully designed. By removing the windows, and rebuilding them for use as bays in the existing and new bedrooms, the final version of the same house (right) is even more attractive and has better and more graceful lines.

It is the excellence of details that gives the Johnston home its beauty. The partial bay on the side, for example, was placed on the side wall where it doesn't detract from the beauty of the full bay. The two small windows in the original street wall are still there, adding spots of interest to a plain wall. Chimneys of different heights emphasize the break in the ridge line of the wood shingle roof

Today the house looks larger than it is. Addition extended the eave line 23 feet, makes house seem lower, more snug. Original siding and roof match so exactly that you can't see where old house and addition come together

Here's what they have . . .

By Adrienne Baker

EDITOR'S NOTE: Here is a remodeling so beautifully done that we didn't know it was a remodeling until we had decided to publish the story. It is well done for that very reason—the house was planned from the very beginning to look as you see it now.

FEW families have houses that can grow with them with convenience and economy. The Seattle home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Herbert Johnston demonstrates how planning can let a house expand without growing pains.

The Johnston home was built while their two sons were at war. But Architect Edwin Turner designed the one-floor, four-room house with full blueprints for its enlargement into a two-bedroom home complete with dining room and two baths. When it was enlarged, only changes required were filling up two windows, moving another, cutting through a fourth, and making two new doorways.

The result: Instead of a house obviously enlarged by a wing or an extra bulge, the Johnstons have a home with harmonious lines.

If you're planning to build a small house now, and expect your family to grow, plan your expansion before you dig a shovelful of earth. With good planning, you can cut costs by eliminating every unnecessary change.

Here are nine questions and answers and nine sketches that tell you . . .

What wallpaper can do for you

By Helen Aves

As A result of many requests for information on the use of wallpaper, we asked Helen Aves to answer your principal questions. And we asked Decorator Harry Richardson to supply the nine sketches (right) that illustrate these answers from Mrs. Aves.

1. What wallpapers make a small room look larger?

Wallpapers with small, allover patterns in soft colors against light grounds: Polka dots, stars, small, scattered leaves or flowers, tiny bouquets, small diamond designs, and the mild plaids, or two soft, light tones on a light ground. Plain papers. Stripes if they're two-toned or fine pin stripes. Another good way to enlarge a room is to use three plain walls with one patterned wall.

2. How can a ceiling be made to seem lower?

By using a wallpaper with horizontal stripes on three walls and plain paper or paint on a fourth wall.

By painting or papering ceiling color part way down each wall.

By using a three-foot dado of wallpaper with a narrow strip of molding at its top and plain walls above it.

3. How should you paper a sloping ceiling, as in an attic bedroom?

Use the same paper on walls and ceiling. But be sure to use a pattern with no particular direction to it. A scattered, stylized flower, dot, or check pattern is best. Allover neutral color will also subdue the sharp breaks where the roof slope joins wall and ceiling.

4. How should a room with walls broken by projections be handled?

By using a paper that is reasonably bold but has no discernible set pattern. Vertical stripes will also hide faults.

5. Should the same paper be used in the living room and dining room when there's a large opening between the rooms?

Yes, if you wish to give a feeling of space. But more effective is a dramatic paper in dining room and a harmonizing color in living room.

6. Where can bold, dramatic patterns be used?

In small rooms, you don't live in, such as halls, bathrooms, closets, small dinettes, or on one wall of a dining room. The smaller the room, the more daring you can be. A phone closet or a powder room could be treated to a pattern that almost rocks you on your heels. But you wouldn't want such impact in a room that's lived in.

7. Can strong patterns be used in bedrooms?

Yes, if you keep the strong pattern behind the bed. A striking effect will give you a lift every time you enter the room, but you won't want to look at it the first thing in the morning, or all day if you're in bed recuperating from a cold. Do the rest of the room in soft, restful colors taken from pattern in paper behind the bed.

8. Do deep-colored walls require certain types of furnishings?

No, deep colors can be used with any furniture. You can use any number of walls in deep colors, depending on the effect you want.

9. What types of paper are best for Modern rooms?

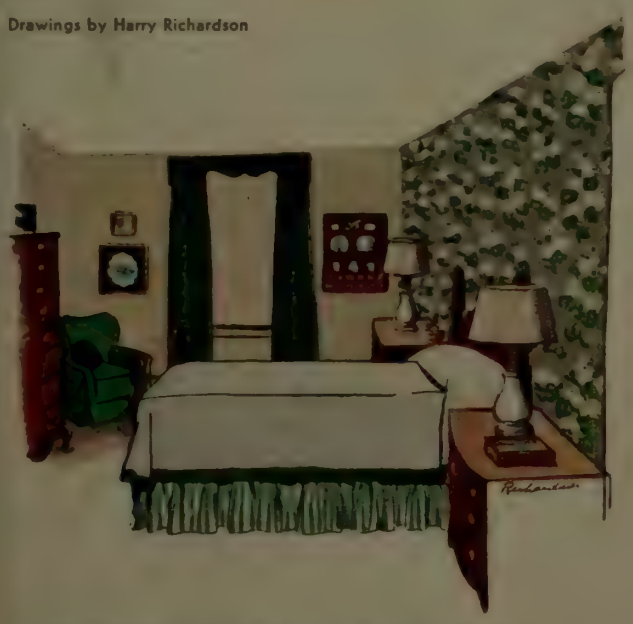
Stripes, large plaids, bamboo slats, grass cloth, and textured designs are all good in Modern rooms. Stay away from conventional flowered and geometric designs. It's wise to combine any paper with one or more painted walls.

1. Make a small room look larger with small, allover designs. Plain, two-toned striped, or pin-striped papers also make a room look larger

2. Lower the ceiling with horizontal stripes. Painting or papering the ceiling color part way down the wall also helps lower the ceiling

3. Disguise a sloping ceiling with a scattered, stylized flower, dot, or check pattern. An all-over neutral color will also play down angles

4. Camouflage architectural faults with hard-to-trace patterns. The trick calls for a paper that is fairly bold, and a pattern that is irregular



5. Tie adjoining rooms together with related colors in different patterns. The rooms, although definitely separated, have colors that harmonize

6. Brighten small halls, closets, bathrooms, and small dinettes. A small room gives you a chance to try things you can't use in larger rooms

Drawings by Harry Richardson

7. Dramatize one wall of a bedroom. The colorful pattern of a strong paper will suggest possible color schemes for the rest of the room

8. Center attention on the best wall or furnishings of your room by papering one wall in a deeper tone of the color used on other walls

9. Create a setting in keeping with Contemporary furnishings by using as background one of the new papers that resemble textured fabric

Color-style your home

By Frederic H. Rahr

Left: This New Englander uses reddish-brown on its clapboards and dormers. Solid color is broken by white on chimneys, windows, shutters, and trim. Roof is gray-green.

Center, above: The light-gray wall color and darker trim appear well with the red roof here. Shutters, window sash are white. Use darker trim color on door also.

Right, above: Basic color is yellow, from the light shade on the wall to the yellowish-tinted off-white trim. Roof is grayed yellow-green; shutters are lighter.

Left: Siding and door of this cottage are a coral shade; low eave line is accentuated by white trim. Dark color of roof sets off the long line of the pastel walls.

Center, above: Here, wall is an ivory-cream, set off by darker, related detail colors—russet-brown on the shutters, and russet-red on the door. Trim and chimneys are light.

Right, above: Three shades of green, ranging from the deep roof color to the light tone of the walls, offers a good treatment for a small house. Door is painted a lemon-yellow.

The author, president of the Rahr Color Clinic, New York, advises manufacturers, stores, and publications in color use. He also has devised Marine camouflage, lipstick, and a yellow baseball.

ON HOUSES now being built, many architects and builders are using a new approach to color planning. They believe owners want new houses to look new.

You, too, can make the exterior of your home look new by carefully selecting colors that go well together.

Your house has two big color areas—the roof and the walls. These need not match. Usually they don't. But their colors should be carefully related. Dormers, chimneys, windows, trim, shutters, and doors can be used for color accents.

Play down ugly details with colors close to the wall color. Then use a strong color on one feature, as the front door, to distract attention from ugly parts. Show off well-proportioned details with a stronger color.

Use your own preference in selecting roof and wall colors. Other colors should be derived from combinations of those two, or should contrast pleasingly with them.

With each photograph below, sketches show two of the many possible plans. Each is a co-ordinated color ensemble.

Left: This Cape Cod has a cream wall, brown roof. White sets off the gable, trim, and door. Other contrast comes from gray-green shutters.

Center, above: Here off-white is used on wall, trim, and sash to make the cottage appear larger. Light blue of door, yellow of shutters provide interest.

Right, above: Yellow-green in steps of increased lightness maintains color relationship between roof, wall, shutters, trim. Door provides contrast.

Left: On this Dutch Colonial, the primary color is the purple-gray of the roof and side-wall shingles; the dark red of the front wall is secondary.

Center, above: Doors and shutters are emphasized by purple in this scheme. The off-white trim blends it with the light color of the clapboards and shingles.

Right, above: In this version, the green-blue roof color has been extended into lighter, related tones for the wall, trim, and shutters, complemented by red-orange door.

Grow begonias—

big as your fist, more gorgeous than orchids!

Spectacular begonias can be grown on your first try if you will supply their really very simple needs

Great mimics, begonias often resemble camellias, rosebuds, carnations, giant crape-myrtle blossoms

By Fleeta Brownell Woodroffe

TUBEROUS begonias belong in television. They're peacock flowers—brilliant and showy. They're big and bold and handsome. Yet no flowers are more exquisitely formed and colored.

And for a spot in partial shade where geraniums, roses, or petunias won't grow, you can't beat these begonias for summer color.

This makes them big news if you're looking for flowers for a big pot on the porch. Or if you need something to dress up the shady sides of the house.

Yet, oddly enough, tuberous begonias are so far from common that you'll have 9 out of 10 visitors guessing wildly what your big beauties are.

If you grow enough of them, you'll also have gorgeous long-lasting flowers for floating in bowls indoors. And begonias make stunning corsages, too.

You start with dry tubers. Buy the best you can find. For the really mammoth blooms, get tubers at least 1½ inches across. The larger tubers give you more stems and [Turn to page 246

Soil is mulched. Plants get fine spray of water daily during hot weather

Washington, D.C.

the one vacation memory your family owes itself

By Hal Burton

A GROUP of high-school graduates from a small town in the East—typical youngsters, who might have come from any part of the country—tiptoed into a drab, brick building in downtown Washington one June day last year.

All around them, in glass cases, were faded mementoes of Abraham Lincoln. It was here, in Ford's Theater, on April 14, 1865, that the nation's greatest single tragedy occurred, the assassination of Lincoln by John Wilkes Booth.

Most of the youngsters concentrated on the exhibits: rusty sabers, yellowed photographs, letters in Lincoln's angular script. One wide-eyed girl, in bobby sox and saddle shoes, wandered to the other side of the room.

In front of her, stretching across the floor, she saw a line of painted footprints. Before she could frame the question in her mind, a uniformed guide answered it for her.

"Those footprints," he said, "show the path taken by Booth as he ran out through the wings after firing at the President."

"Golly," breathed the awestruck girl, [Turn to page 212

Fit your lot to your needs

By Catharine and Harold Sleeper

THIS is the first of two articles by Mr. and Mrs. Sleeper, authors of "The House for You." The second, "Fit Your House to Your Lot," will appear soon. Mr. Sleeper is president of the New York Chapter, American Institute of Architects.

WHERE do you want your home? Do you want to live in the open country, with privacy, a long view, and room for out-of-door activities? Or do you prefer a location near transportation, friends, or schools?

Those questions are part of a long list you should answer before looking for a site for your new home. They are questions which will pay dividends in money and satisfaction if properly answered—but which will lead to a hornet's nest of troubles if disregarded.

Remember this when you select your building place: Land has characteristics of its own which defy changes except at great expense. A poorly planned house may be altered—but little can be done to correct a poorly chosen site.

There are two ways to find a suitable building lot. One is to look at a number of lots, then check their individual disadvantages against their assets. The other way is to decide first exactly what your lot will have to give you, then find a lot answering those specifications.

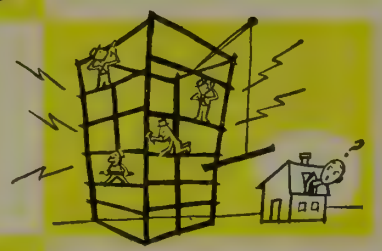
That procedure, you will find, will save you the trouble of checking, one by one, a number of lots with basic drawbacks, and will enable you to recognize your lot when you find it.

IN MAKING your choice between a settled area or open country, keep in mind the time you are willing to spend going from house to office, and the type of transportation you will use. This will enable you to mark on a map the general areas which come within the time limit.

What should be near your site? How important is it to you to be near a railroad station, a bus line, shopping center, schools, church, or friends? If you are far from business, stores, and school, a heavy load will be placed on the family car, making supplemental transportation desirable.

Another major consideration is cost. Lots are cheaper and taxes are lower in thinly settled areas, but there may be no [Turn to page 104

Put a lot to this test



Convenience

Is it near schools, transportation, handy to a shopping center, church, and a park?

Neighborhood

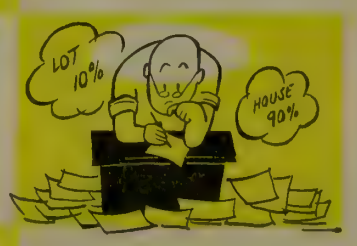
Are houses and lots about the same size as yours? Are nearby houses run down?

Zoning

Is the area free of factories, sources of noise or odor, protected by zoning?

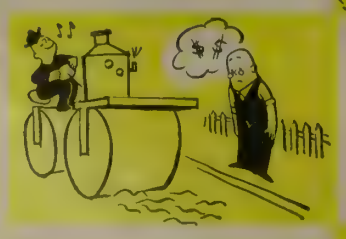
Utilities

Are electricity, gas, water, sewer available? Is sewer line below basement level?



Underground hazards

Are there a high underground water level or rocks to increase basement costs?



Legal hazards

Is the title clear? Do deed, building code, allow the type of house you want?

Cost

Does the lot price represent 11 to 18 percent of the total cost of your home?

Taxes and assessments

At the courthouse, check the amount of taxes and assessments you will have to pay.

Protection

Fire and police stations make good neighbors. Also, they cut insurance costs.

Easy springtime meals

IT'S one thing to stir up a cake, make a pan of candy —something else to plan a meal. To time it right, put foods together that taste well together and look pretty on the plates.

We know meal-planning is one of the most important jobs you have. That's why meal plans are a big section of our red and white Better Homes & Gardens Cook Book.

There are eight Cook Book recipes pictured on the page at the left—cookies for your cooky jar, a wonderful chiffon pie to make for company, a salad that's both quick and beautiful, Veal Birds for the meat platter. All appear in the springtime meals below.

Signs of Spring

MAIN DISH	VEGETABLE	SALAD OR ACCOMPANIMENT	DESSERT	NICE TO SERVE
Broiled Ham Slice Broiled Pineapple Rings	Spring Vegetable Platter* Lemon Garnish	Corn Sticks	Oatmeal Crispies* Divinity Puffs*	Crisp Pickles Coffee or Tea

Make luscious pink divinity and crisp oatmeal cookies (in picture) early. Perfect timing's needed here. Give green beans 15 minutes head start on cooking; then, carrots; last, spinach. Start broiling ham and pineapple just before carrots go on. Tenderized ham needs only heating through, slight glazing. Corn sticks go in oven 10 to 12 minutes before you serve dinner.

Lazy Susan Salad

Fruit Salad Plate* Honey-Celery Seed Dressing	Carrot Sticks	Hot Cloverleaf Rolls or Nut-Bread Sandwiches	Squares of Spice Cake Easy Chocolate Frosting	Ripe Olives Coffee or Tea

The fruit salad plate is creamy, well-seasoned cottage cheese between pineapple rings and plump peach halves. Around each salad there's a whirligig of grapefruit sections and red apple slices. For frosting, melt 3 tablespoons butter, 2 squares chocolate together; beat in 3 cups sifted confectioners' sugar, enough cream to spread; your mixer does this perfectly.

It's a Party!

Chicken Salad Supreme in Ring Mold* Tomato French Dressing*	Potato Chips Relish Tray	Tiny Hot Rolls	Vanilla Ice Cream Regal Chocolate Sauce* Crisp Sugar Cookies	Orange Marmalade Hot Coffee

Pack chicken salad lightly into oiled ring mold; chill thoroughly. Broken lettuce, ripe olives, and a tomato "rose" go in center. Try midget-sized rolls. Form dough into ½-inch balls; bake close together for crusty tops, soft sides. Corn syrup and evaporated milk make the chocolate sauce especially creamy. For Hot Fudge Sundaes, heat sauce in your double boiler.

Guest Night

Veal Birds* Savory Stuffing* Rich Brown Gravy	Buttered Peas Mashed Potatoes	Spring Salad Bowls French Dressing	Citrus Chiffon Pie* With Whipped Cream	Dinner Rolls Hot Coffee

Fat Veal Birds bulging with savory stuffing are for the company platter. Serve salads in individual bowls; arrange circle of grated carrots on shredded lettuce; fill center with thin radish discs; pass tangy dressing. The pie has the refreshing flavor of orange and lemon. It's light and fluffy like your other chiffon pies but has the added richness of a topping of whipped cream.

Tuna-Deviled Eggs and Rice Casserole Curry Sauce	Fresh Green Vegetables	Bowl of Cabbage Slaw Rye Bread	Lemon Cream Pie	Celery Sticks Tea or Coffee

Make the deviled eggs, recipe on page 254, but add one 7-ounce can flaked tuna to yolks; more mayonnaise or lemon juice, too. Pile high in whites; set on hot cooked rice (measure 1 cup uncooked rice for 6 people) in casserole; cover; bake 15 minutes at 325°. For a quick Curry Sauce simply stir ¼ teaspoon curry powder into 2 cups medium white sauce (page 80).

The big 3 of choice cheese dishes

By Tasting-Test Kitchen Staff

LIGHT, puffy cheese soufflé; rich, crusty macaroni and cheese; smooth, golden cheese sauce—these are the big three in cheese dishes. And like perfect recipes for fluffy baking-powder biscuits and flaky piecrust, these cheese recipes should be in every cook's repertoire—ready as ideas for quick family lunches and suppers or for the meal you whip up for the unexpected guest. They are treats right now for the change from heartier winter fare to lighter springtime meals.

Here we show you two important steps in the making of each cheese favorite, and a picture of it as it will look when served at your table. For the simple ingredients you'll need and more detailed directions see below.

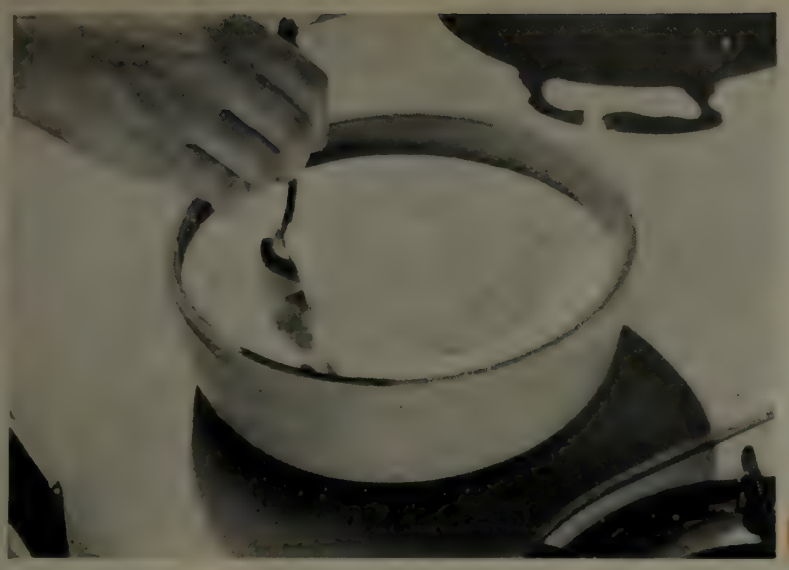
Cheese Soufflé

¼ cup butter or fortified margarine
¼ cup enriched flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
½ pound package sharp spreading cheese
4 well-beaten egg yolks
4 stiff-beaten egg whites

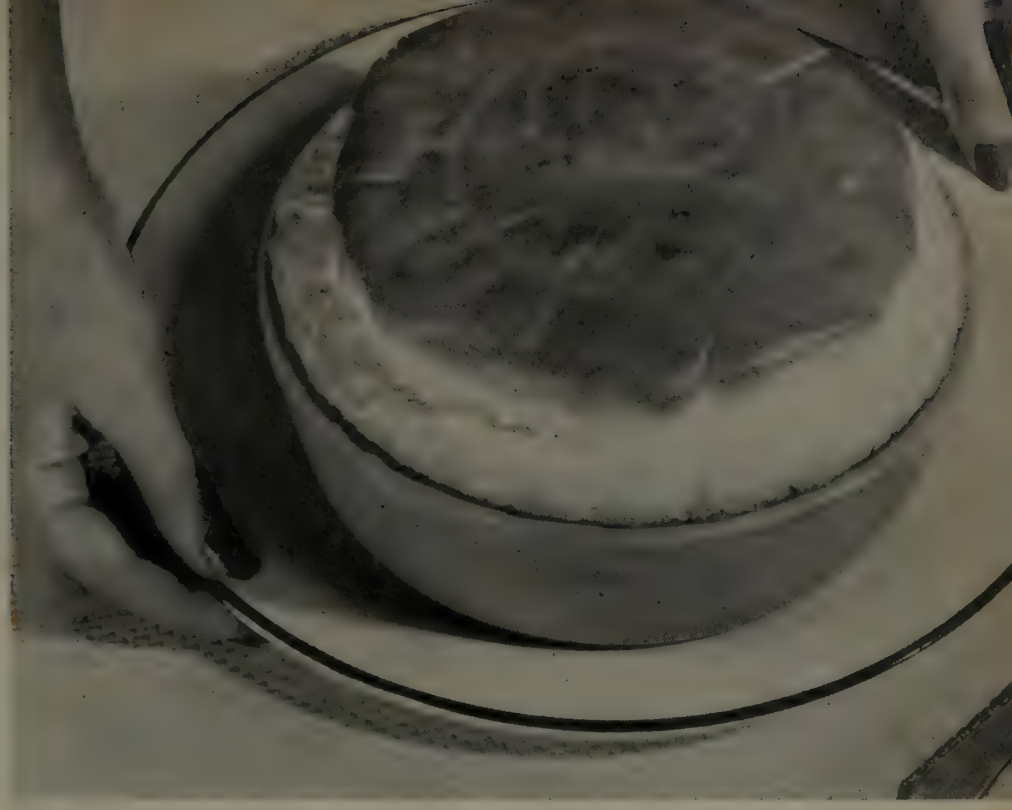
Melt butter in double boiler; add flour and salt; blend. Gradually add milk; stir constantly until sauce is thick and smooth. Add sliced or diced cheese to the hot white sauce. Cover. Let stand over boiling water until cheese is soft. Beat egg yolks with rotary beater; add the blended cheese sauce slowly. Beat the egg whites until stiff, but not dry; fold into the cheese-sauce mixture. Cut and fold gently until the whites are thoroughly combined and the whole mixture is light and fluffy. Pour the mixture into 2-quart ungreased casserole. (The size is important.) Bake in moderately slow oven (325°) 1 hour and 15 minutes. See pictures top of page. | Turn to page 102

Cheese soufflé

Fold hot cheese-sauce mixture into the stiff-beaten egg whites. Cut and fold gently with blending fork (shown in picture) or metal spoon until mixture is thoroughly combined. It should be light and fluffy



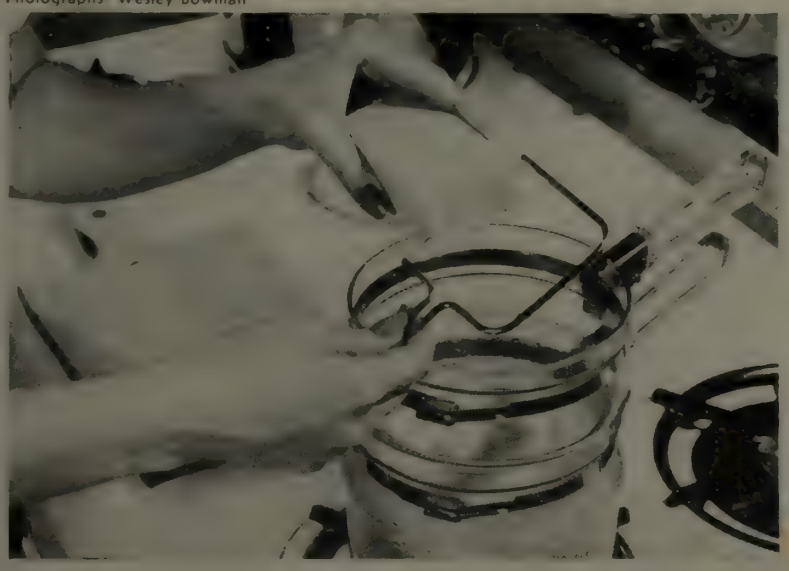
Macaroni and cheese



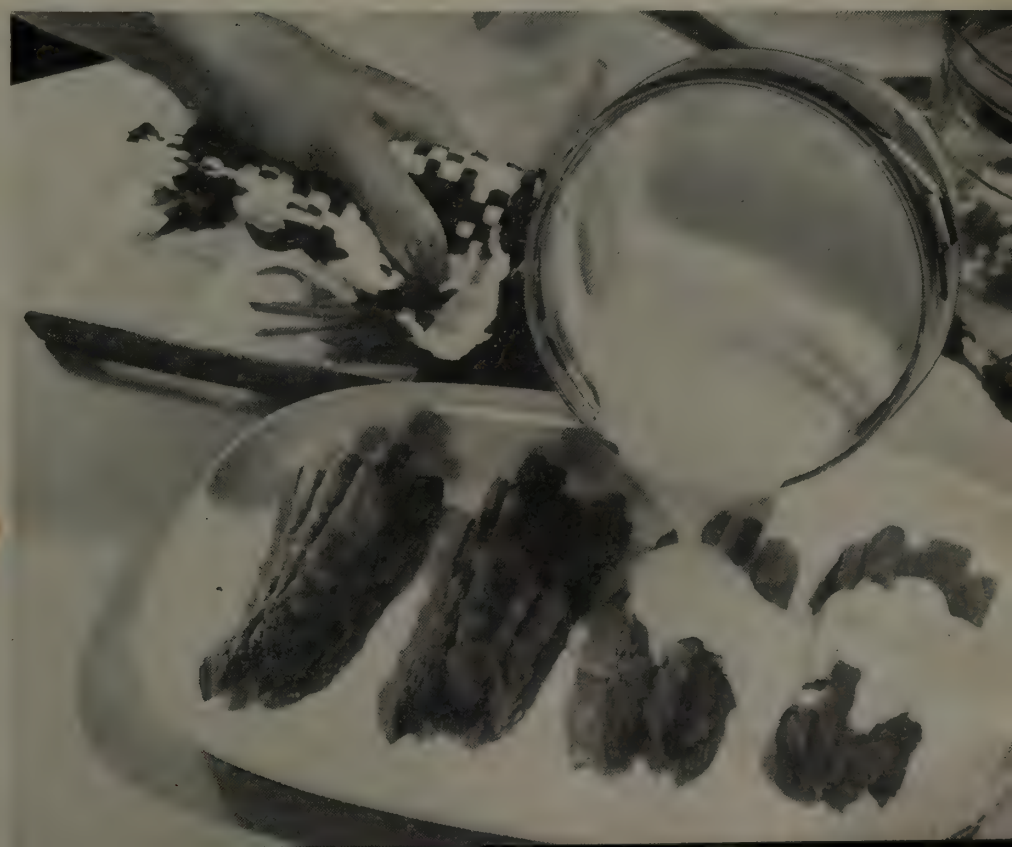
Grate American cheese on a piece of waxed paper. Use medium grater for the best results. Part of grated cheese is added to smooth white sauce; the rest is sprinkled over top of the macaroni for a good, crusty top

Cheese sauce

Add milk to butter and flour which have been blended. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly, until sauce is smooth and thick. This makes a white sauce to which you will add the cheese—see next picture

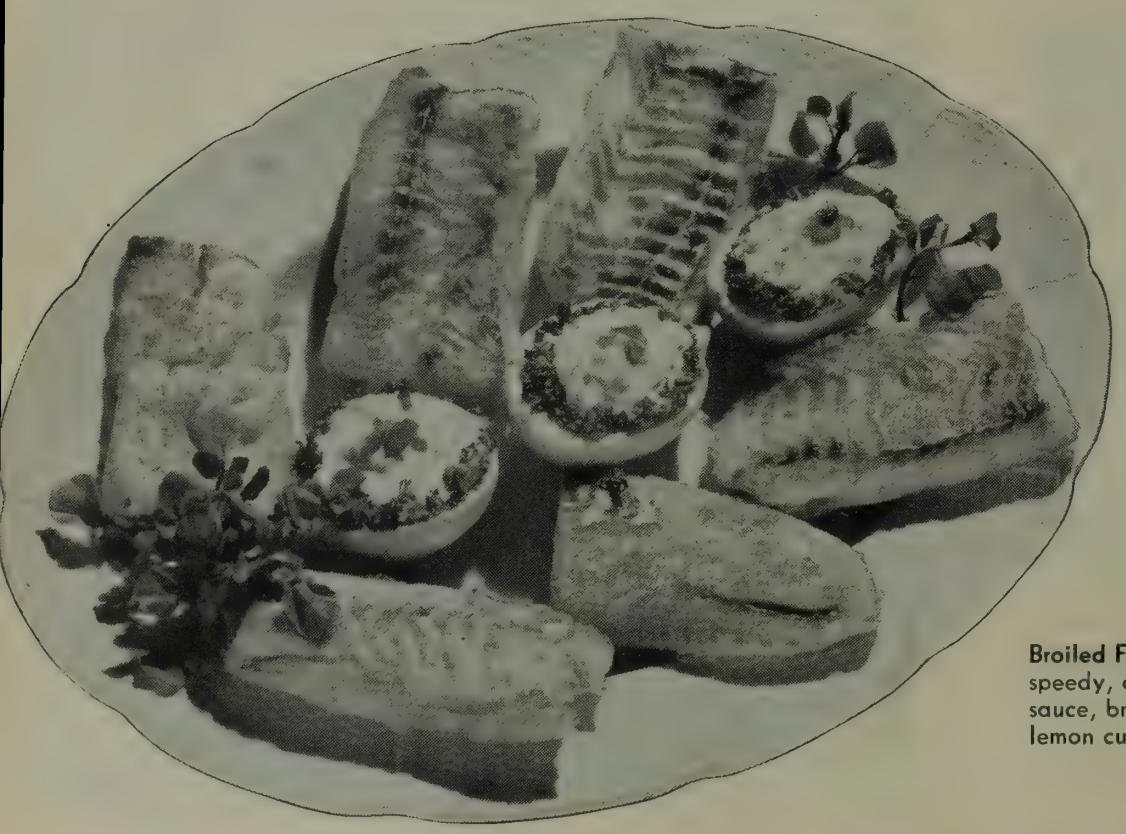


Here we're tracing a circle through the souffle with a metal spoon about 1 inch from edge. This gives souffle the "top hat" effect you see in the next picture. Right: Here's your souffle, puffed and golden brown. Inside it has the texture of moist, airy cake. Don't keep it waiting. Rush the souffle and the family to the table. Eat it while it's high



Fill greased baking dish with cooked macaroni. Add the smooth cheese sauce. Mix lightly. Sprinkle top with more cheese (it melts) and some buttered crumbs (they get toasty). Right: Old-time favorite Macaroni and Cheese. It's moist, rich, and creamy with golden-brown crusty top—and lots of good cheese flavor. Cut in squares or spoon from baking dish

Photographs- Wesley Bowman



Slice mild spreading cheese or grated American cheese into the white sauce. Turn off heat. Stir mixture until the cheese melts. Right: Cheese Sauce is ready—smooth and golden. Here we're serving it over spears of asparagus on a hot platter. You may want to serve it over cauliflower, green beans, with a fluffy omelet; or over toasted meat sandwiches

Five fish dinners and how to cook them

YOU'LL find a fine sea-food selection at a moderate price all during Lent. Forget your old stand-bys and try different kinds of fish, and different ways to fix them.

Broil or bake fresh fish. Fix canned salmon and tuna in casserole dishes or toss them in a salad. There are five main dishes here—all using fish. And, if you're fishing for ideas for what-to-serve-with, each dish is presented in a meal. See page 98 for more pictures and more ideas.

It's magic your sewing machine can do

By Mary Brooks Pickens

IN NEARLY every picture on these pages you see hands. But the hands aren't sewing. They're guiding. Your sewing-machine attachments do the work.

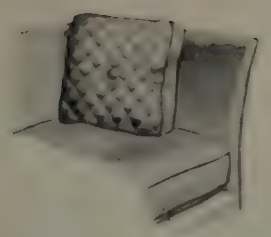
The attachments go through their jobs so fast and work so deftly, you can do yards and yards of ruffling or hemming—even embroidering—in a fraction of the time it would take you by hand. And the finished piece has the sturdiness of good workmanship.

Attachments are back on the market now. Photographs show how they look and what they do. Follow these rules when you use them: (1) Have the material straight with the woof or filling threads. (2) Tear or pull a thread across material. (3) Cut straight with the thread of the material. (4) If the selvages are uneven, stretch the fabric diagonally until they are straight. (5) Measure widths and lengths, hems and facings accurately. (6) Cut all seam lines true. (7) Press each seam before it joins another. (8) Practice using the attachment on a piece of the fabric so your work will be perfect from the first stitch to the last.

Dainty lace insertions

The edge-stitcher holds one edge over another so precisely you can sew ribbons, and rows of braiding or banding together with one stitching.

In the picture we're applying a lace insertion to the skirt of a bassinet. Edges are caught securely, without too much overlap, so you get a dainty, even finish.



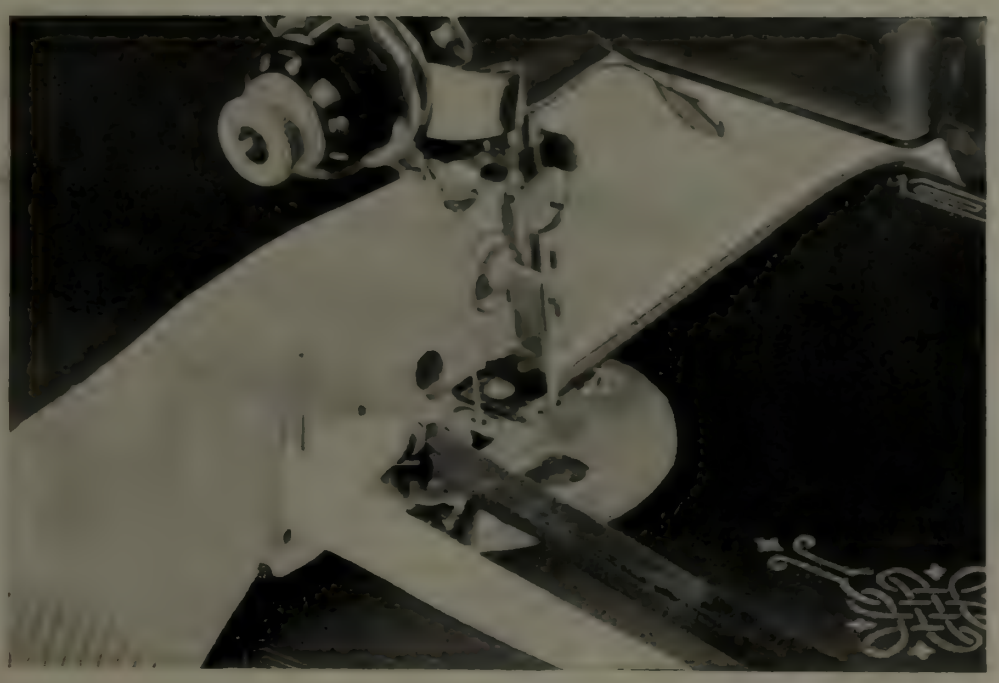
Sturdy, colorful slipcovers

Two attachments—the bias cutting gauge and the cording foot—are your helpers here. With the cutting gauge cut cording strips evenly. Then enclose cord in the bias strips with the cording foot. Insert covered cord in seam, using the same foot to hug the seam line close to the cord, as we show in the picture above.

Hours of work saved for these fingers

The quilter is a special attachment which you can adjust for quilting a design or making parallel rows of stitching as we are in the picture, left.

Quilting by machine is a practical way to enhance fabric and to add to its weight or warmth, and usefulness at little cost. This attachment insures even spacing and straight stitching. Pillow in sketch has quilted cover.



Fast hemming

You can adjust the machine hemmer to the width hem you want—from the narrowest to a two-inch width. Fabric lies flat so you can keep your work fresh looking; hemmer keeps hems perfectly even.

In the sketch, for example, the hemmer was used for the wide hems for the curtain rod and for the narrow hems on the ruffles. For even, narrow hems in sheer fabrics, there's a flange hemmer attachment.

Quick, smart trim with binding

With the multi-slotted binder, shown working at left, you can do a dressing-table skirt in a whiz—and at the same time brighten up the bedroom with fresh color.

What's so fast about it? You can apply two colors and two widths of bias binding at the same time. Use this same attachment for making colorful trim for bedspreads. With a few bright pieces of material you can soon have a brand-new pair of kitchen curtains.

Embroidery by machine

Here's where you can have fun making gifts. A design for a drapery or for cushions or table linen is stamped on the fabric. The fabric is held taut in an embroidery hoop. The decorative stitching is then done by machine with the embroiderer attachment. Sketch above shows place mat and napkin which have been machine-embroidered. Same device does a neat darning job in record time.

The 3,000,000th

Cook Book

THE Better Homes & Gardens Cook Book, an all-time best seller, has now sold 3,000,000 copies.

So this month we're having a "birthday." Here's how we're celebrating the 3,000,000th cook book. On pages 60, 61, and 62 you will find color photographs of special recipes from the Cook Book. The recipes themselves you'll find on page 170.

Cooks' Round Table is printed in color. See page 73.

The success of our Cook Book, the success of our Cooks' Round Table is largely the success of our readers. You send us recipes—through our monthly contests. This month's contest is set forth below. And this month a $3,000 contest is announced on page 176.

We at Better Homes & Gardens like the flood of mail you send us—recipes by the thousands. Each recipe is carefully read. Each recipe that finally appears in the magazine and in the Cook Book has been prepared and tested by us at least three times, so we can be sure others can duplicate our success. Keep those recipes coming and your Cook Book will keep right on growing.

New recipe contest

Cash for cookies and pot roasts

RECIPE contest offers $10 for first prize and $3 each to 20 other winners. Just send your best bar cooky or pot roast recipe—an easy way to try for a prize.

Bar cookies include fig or raisin bars, date and nut fingers, fudge-frosted brownies, almond-coconut squares, peanut strips, ginger-flavored Chinese sticks, or any favorite you have. The bars may be chewy or crisp, fruity or nutty. Just so they're mighty good to eat.

Pot roasts will be popular fare next October, when we publish your prize recipes. Tell us just which cut of meat you buy, what you cook with it, and how long you cook it.

Do you have any special tenderizing tricks, like substituting tomato juice and vinegar for the liquid? What seasonings do you use—mustard, garlic, cloves, marjoram, a bay leaf, Worcestershire or chili sauce?

Besides potatoes, carrots, onions, and celery, do you add a surprise vegetable, like Limas or a special topper like browned mushrooms? Do you make dumplings? Maybe you omit the vegetables, and spoon a tart fruit sauce over the pot roast. Cranberries or stewed apricots lend distinctive flavor.

Tell us exactly how to reproduce your best pot roast dinner, and don't forget the gravy; we'll try it in our Tasting-Test Kitchen. You may win a prize.

And remember, the winners of these 21 prizes will receive the Better Homes & Gardens Certificate of Endorsement, and six copies of the endorsed recipe.

1. Write your recipe clearly on one side of the paper. Send but one recipe at a time and mark it, "October Bar Cookies" or "October Pot Roasts."

2. Print your full name and address clearly in upper right corner of recipe page.

3. Give measurements in level cups, tablespoons, and teaspoons, never in heaping or scant measurements.

4. Be sure to specify in your recipe the brand names of the nationally

Beef Stroganoff

Pass a bowl of Parmesan cheese. Each one sprinkles the cheese over his own steaming plateful—

- 1 pound round steak, cut in ¾-inch pieces
- 2 tablespoons fat
- ½ cup chopped onions
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1 6-ounce can broiled mushrooms, quartered
- 1 cup sour cream
- 1 10½- or 11-ounce can condensed tomato soup
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
- 6 to 8 drops Tabasco sauce
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 1 8-ounce package spaghetti, cooked

Dip meat in flour; brown in hot fat. Add onions, garlic, and mushrooms. Combine remaining ingredients, except spaghetti; pour over meat. Simmer till tender, about 1 hour. Serves 4 to 6. Serve over spaghetti. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese.—Mrs. E. A. Bedell, Fort Belvoir, Virginia.

Fruit spreads you can make now

Photograph: Stanley

Fresh strawberry jam with frozen berries; golden grapefruit-orange marmalade

IF YOUR jam-and-jelly shelf is down to the last glass, here are recipes for four spreads to replenish your supply. You can make these spreads from dried, canned, fresh, or frozen fruits.

Grapefruit and Orange Marmalade

Its tangy flavor goes perfectly with breakfast toast, hot biscuits, or muffins—

1 large orange
1 lemon
1 grapefruit

Shred fruit fine with a sharp knife. Add three times as much water as fruit and let stand overnight. Boil 15 minutes and let stand again overnight. Measure, and for every cup, add a cup of sugar. Boil mixture till it sheets from a spoon. Makes about eight 8-ounce glasses.—Mrs. A. D. Miller, Grinnell, Iowa.

Fresh Strawberry Jam

To taste it, you'd think the strawberries were fresh from the patch—

Thaw 1½ cups (1-pound package) frozen, sweetened, sliced strawberries, as box directs. Place in large, heavy saucepan. Measure and set aside 1½ cups sugar, to add at a moment's notice. Place saucepan of strawberries over high heat. Add 3 tablespoons (⅓ package) powdered pectin; stir until mixture comes to a hard boil. Add sugar immediately, stirring. Keep jam at a full rolling boil for 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat; skim; pour quickly into glasses. Paraffin at once. Makes three 6-ounce glasses.

Pineapple Jam

Open a can of pineapple, a package of apricots, add some sugar—that's all you need for a delicious golden jam—

1 pound dried apricots
2 No. 2½ cans broken pineapple slices
Sugar

Wash apricots and cut in pieces; soak overnight in syrup drained from pineapple. Dice pineapple and combine with apricots; measure and add ½ cup sugar for each cup fruit and juice. Cook over low heat until thick and transparent. Seal in hot, sterilized glasses. Makes ten 6-ounce glasses.

Cranberry and Grapefruit Jelly

Tender, quivery bright-red jelly you'll like with hot breads or as accompaniment for meat—

2 cups canned cranberry juice
2 cups strained fresh grapefruit juice
1 3-ounce package fruit pectin
4½ cups sugar

Combine juices. Stir in fruit pectin. Heat to boiling. Add sugar. Stir constantly until boiling. Boil hard ½ minute. Remove from heat. Skim. Seal in hot, sterilized glasses. Makes twelve 4-ounce glasses.

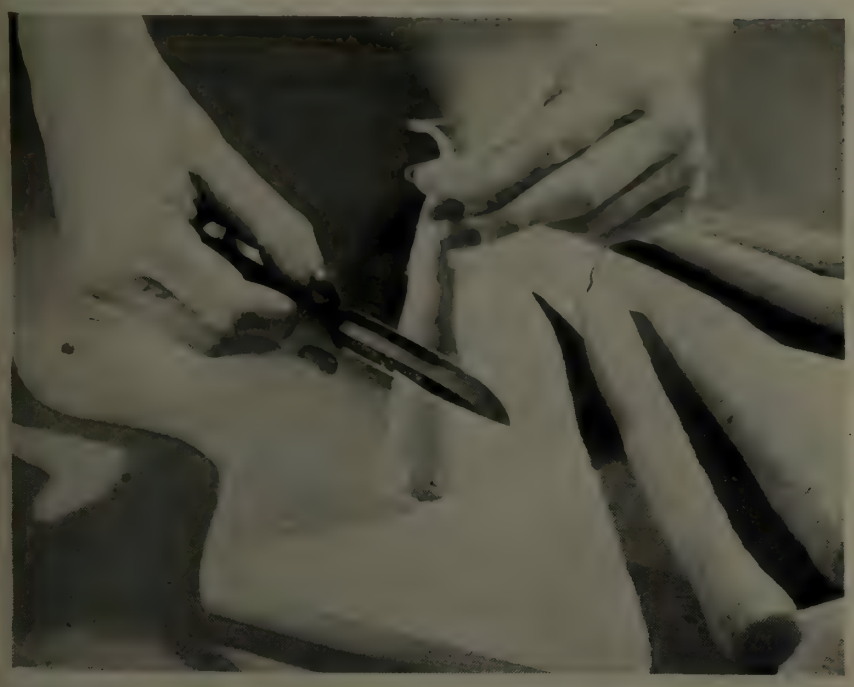
The story of a house



Put yourself in the Watsons' place for "The Story of a House" with Sydna Scott and Richard Kendrick

WOULD you like to be in on the planning, building, and furnishing of a home? The Watsons, Pete and Mary, Susie, and little Pete are an average American family; they could be your family, for that matter. You can meet them in "The Story of a House," a color movie now being shown by department and furniture stores across the country.

Produced by Sarra, Inc., under technical supervision of the editors of Better Homes & Gardens, this 30-minute film traces the building of a home from blueprint to housewarming. The picture is packed full of homemaking ideas you can use whether you're building a new home or just remodeling or refurnishing. You'll want to watch for a showing in your city.

There are three types of Karo Syrup . . . each with a different flavor . . . each identified by a different colored label. Can you name them by these clues?

1. A dark, rich, golden syrup. For 46 years its distinctive flavor has made it America's favorite syrup for both table and cooking.

This is [ ] Label KARO.

2. A lighter, sweeter, crystal clear syrup, which many people prefer for table and cooking. Especially good for canning and freezing finer fruits.

This is [ ] Label KARO.

3. A dark, savory syrup with a delightful maple-y flavor, particularly good as a spread. In cooking, makes many dishes extra delicious.

Allemande Sauce

Left: Add ½ bouillon cube or ½ teaspoon paste meat extract to 1 cup white sauce. Just before serving, add 1 tablespoon lemon juice and 1 well-beaten egg yolk mixed with a small amount of the hot sauce; blend. Cook 2 minutes over low heat, stirring constantly. Below: Allemande Sauce gives steamed cabbage wedges or broccoli a big boost in flavor

3 Cook till thick and smooth, stirring constantly. (Water shouldn't touch top pan.) Add about ¼ teaspoon salt and dash of white pepper. Cover; cook 5 to 8 minutes. Makes 1 cup

4 You may cook white sauce over direct heat if you use a heavy saucepan and stir the sauce constantly. If sauce must stand before using, cover pan to prevent scum forming

WHEN you leaf through a cook book, what's the recipe you find used most? White sauce. It's an extender in soups, casseroles, and creamed dishes, a binder in croquettes and soufflés.

Once you have the knack of making this basic sauce, you'll have all sorts of ways to give meat and vegetables new flavor build-ups. Pictures above tell you how to make perfect white sauce in double boiler or saucepan. Pictures below tell you how to vary its flavor and uses.

FIESTA BANANA CAKE

Preparations. Have the shortening at room temperature. Line bottoms of pans with paper; grease. Use two round 9-inch layer pans, 1½ inches deep. Start oven for moderate heat (375°F.). Sift flour once before measuring.

Measure into sifter:
2 cups sifted Swans Down Cake Flour
1 teaspoon Calumet Baking Powder
1 teaspoon soda
¾ teaspoon salt
1⅓ cups sugar

Measure into mixing bowl:
½ cup butter or vegetable shortening

Measure into cup:
*Sour milk or buttermilk (See below)
1 teaspoon vanilla

Have ready:
1 cup mashed fully ripe bananas (peel should be yellow flecked with brown)
½ cup coarsely chopped nut meats (optional)
2 eggs, unbeaten

*With butter, margarine, or lard, use ½ cup minus 2 tablespoons sour milk or buttermilk. With vegetable or other shortening, use ½ cup sour milk or buttermilk.

Now—Swans Down's "Mix-Easy" Part I

1. Stir shortening just to soften. Sift in dry ingredients. Add ¼ cup of the milk, the mashed bananas, and mix until all flour is dampened. Then beat 2 minutes, or 300 strokes.

2. Add eggs, nuts, and remaining milk. Beat 1 minute longer, or 150 strokes. (Mix cake by hand or at a low speed of electric mixer. Count only actual beating time or strokes. Scrape bowl and spoon or beater often.)

Baking. Turn batter into pans. Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) 25 minutes, or until done.

Cooling. Cool cake in pans on racks for 5 minutes. Then loosen from sides with spatula, turn out, remove paper, and turn right-side up on racks to cool completely.

Serving. Whip 1 cup heavy cream. Peel and cut 3 ripe bananas crosswise into ¼-inch slices. Fold 1 tablespoon finely chopped maraschino cherries into one-third of the whipped cream. Spread on bottom layer. Arrange half of banana slices on top. Cover with second layer; spread top with remaining cream. Decorate with remaining banana slices and maraschino cherries just before serving.

Stop scolding, lady!

Of course, it's maddening when your child leaves dirt anywhere in your house. But . . .

Is there a spot that you yourself have forgotten to clean? Ugly filth hiding in your own sink drain!

In this spot (so close to food and dishes) grease collects—filthy grease where sewer germs make their home!

Liquid disinfectants can't get rid of this grease that gathers in your drainpipe! It takes Drāno to boil out this muck and the germs that breed there!

Put a tablespoon of Drāno in your drain once a week—every week! Drāno has a special churning, boiling action that loosens grease and chases it down your drain. It leaves your drain clean and clear, always fast-running!

P.S. Remember—Drāno also opens clogged drains in a flash!

Drāno®

removes the muck that slows drains and breeds sewer germs

Peanut Butter S'Mores

Cut buns in half. Toast or not—as you please. Spread with crunch-style peanut butter. Top with a spoonful of marshmallow cream. Then toast in broiler till marshmallow is a golden brown. This is a good snack to let your gang fix when the plea is, "Mother, we're hun-gry!"

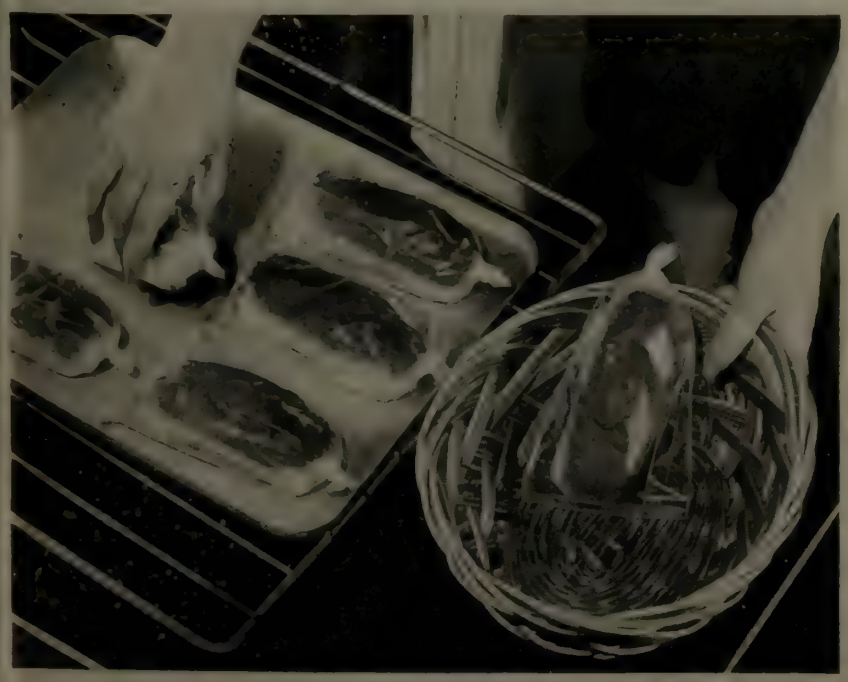
can fix with buns

THERE'S more to be done with a bun than put a hamburger or a hot dog in it.

When you want a hot bread to dress up a meal and don't want to fuss with baking—split, butter, and toast fresh buns. Serve them plain or sprinkle with grated cheese or paprika and keep them piping hot in a napkin-lined breadbasket.



Whether you start with a whole package of buns or want to finish up two or three you have left, there's an idea for you here and on the pages that follow.

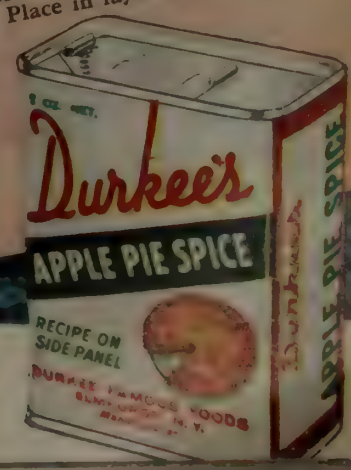
Easy as Pie... and make it apple!

Virginia Coates
Home Economist



Happy ending for Sunday night supper—a super-duper apple pie! Make the pie crust the simple way—with quick-mix. I've used Pillsbury's and Betty Crocker's Crustquick and they're both excellent.

Here's my own recipe for apple-pie filling. Spice? That's for luscious flavor! Notice the addition of Durkee's Apple Pie guesswork and gives you the same delightful flavor every time. It's a perfect blend of cinnamon and other spices. Ideal for all apple dishes—applesauce, baked apples, apple Brown Betty, apple tapioca, apple cakes, etc.

A New Apple Pie Filling

2 tbsp. breadcrumbs
8 medium apples (approx. 2 lbs.)
⅔ cup sugar
1 tsp. Durkee's Apple Pie Spice
1 tbsp. cornstarch
1½ tbsp. Durkee's Margarine
1 tbsp. lemon juice
3 tbsp. water

Line a 9-inch pie pan with pie crust. Sprinkle bottom with breadcrumbs to prevent fruit from soaking crust. Peel and core apples and slice thinly. Combine sugar, Durkee's Apple Pie Spice and cornstarch and sift over apple slices, stirring with fork until slices are coated. Place in layers in pie shell. Dot with Durkee's Margarine and sprinkle with lemon juice and water. Cover with upper crust and prick with fork in several places. Bake in hot oven (450° F.) 30 minutes. Reduce heat to slow oven (325° F.) and cook 10 minutes.

there's something about a Flame

it boils best!

it bakes best!

it roasts best!

...and it broils like charcoal!

Gas has captured the hot flame of glowing coals, separated it from its hot bed and applied it, clean and modern, to cooking.

Universal ranges, for city gas and for gas beyond the mains, completely control this natural heat. In boiling, Universal top burners give real flexibility, plus instant and accurate control of the flame. In baking, Universal's oven is famous for uniformity. Roasting is done while the housewife is away . . . on-off by AUTOMATIC clock control.

Yes, there's something about a flame, and when it comes to broiling, Universal's Radiant Mesh broiler restores the hotbed and puts in charcoal's double punch—flame and glow. With this exclusive feature you can now broil at home just as they do in famous restaurants.

"Comfort-Touch" adds air cooling to the surface of the range, so that oven and broiler doors may be touched at any time with comfort and safety. No other range—with or without the precious flame—can claim as much. Now on sale at leading utilities and dealers everywhere.

Betty Crocker Chocolate Chip Chiffon Cake

MAKE ONLY WITH SOFTASILK, says Betty Crocker. Don't risk failure with another flour, since proportions might not be right. Sift an ample amount of SOFTASILK Cake Flour onto a square of paper. Grate unsweetened or sweet chocolate on medium or coarse grater. Preheat oven (see pan sizes and temperatures below).

STEP 1.... Measure (level measurements) and sift together into mixing bowl
- 2¼ cups sifted SOFTASILK Cake Flour (spoon lightly into cup, don't pack)
- 1¾ cups sugar
- 3 tsp. baking powder
- 1 tsp. salt

Make a well and add in order:
- ½ cup cooking (salad) oil such as Wesson or Mazola
- 5 unbeaten egg yolks (medium-sized)
- ¾ cup cold water
- 2 tsp. vanilla

Beat with spoon until smooth.

STEP 2.... Measure into large mixing bowl
- 1 cup egg whites (7 or 8)
- ½ tsp. cream of tartar

Whip until whites form very stiff peaks. They should be much stiffer than for angel food or meringue. DO NOT UNDERBEAT.

STEP 3.... Pour egg yolk mixture gradually over whipped egg whites—gently folding with rubber scraper just until blended! DO NOT STIR!

Sprinkle over top of batter, gently folding in with a few strokes: 3 sq. unsweetened or sweet chocolate (3 oz.), medium or coarsely grated.

Pour into ungreased pan immediately.

CRANBERRY CROWN PLATTER

You really won't know how good this salad can taste unless you try it with Miracle Whip. For Miracle Whip has a lively, "different" flavor you get in it alone. A unique type of salad dressing, combining the qualities of zesty boiled dressing and fine mayonnaise, it's truly the one and only.

1 tbsp. gelatin	¾ lb. cranberries, ground
¼ cup cold water	Lettuce
1¾ cups hot water or fruit juice	Sliced pineapple
	Cooked chicken

Miracle Whip Salad Dressing

Soften gelatin in cold water. Dissolve in hot liquid. Cool. When it begins to thicken, fold in cranberries. Pour into 6½" ring mold; chill until firm. Arrange 5 nests of lettuce in circle in center of chop plate; place pineapple slice in each. Unmold gelatin so half of each pineapple slice forms a border around mold. Surround with cold sliced chicken. Fill center of mold with tiny lettuce cups and Miracle Whip.

Broiled Fillets

1 pound fish fillets
Salt and pepper
2 teaspoons soy sauce
2 tablespoons salad oil
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons minced parsley

Cut fillets into serving pieces; salt and pepper. Combine soy sauce and oil. Arrange fish on oiled broiler rack. Broil until golden brown, about 8 minutes. Baste frequently with soy mixture. Turn. Broil about 5 minutes. Place on warm platter. Heat remaining oil and soy sauce with fish drippings; add lemon juice and parsley; pour over fish. Garnish with water cress. Serve with Lemon Tartare Cups: Cut each lemon lengthwise; remove pulp. Fill with tartare sauce. Garnish with chopped parsley.

Simple Simon Tuna Pie

1 7-ounce can flaked tuna fish
¼ cup finely chopped onion
2 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
1 10½- or 11-ounce can condensed mushroom soup
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 6-ounce package (2 cups) noodles, cooked
¼ cup grated American cheese

Arrange border of cooked noodles in greased 8-inch square baking dish—center with fish. Sprinkle fish with onion and eggs. Blend soup, Worcestershire sauce, salt, and pepper. Pour over fish. Sprinkle cheese over casserole. Bake in moderately hot oven (350°) 30 minutes. Serves 4 to 6.

Tuna Salad Platter

2 6½- or 7-ounce cans tuna fish
4 hard-cooked eggs, quartered
1½ cups celery chunks

Arrange tuna, eggs, and celery in salad bowl—see facing page. Garnish with water cress. Serve with mayonnaise. Serves 4 to 6.

Gloucester Codfish Balls

3 cups diced raw potatoes
1½ cups freshened shredded salt codfish
2 tablespoons butter or fortified margarine
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 beaten egg

Freshen codfish by soaking in water several hours or overnight. Cook potatoes and codfish in boiling water until potatoes are tender; drain. Mash and add remaining ingredients; beat thoroughly. Drop from tablespoon into shallow fat, hot enough to brown bread cubes in 40 seconds; fry until golden brown. Drain on absorbent paper. Makes 1 dozen fish balls. Note: If canned codfish is used—reduce potatoes to 1½ cups and increase codfish to 3 cups.

Halibut Bake

8 thin slices salt pork (½ pound)
1 small onion, sliced
1 bay leaf
3 or 4 halibut steaks (2 pounds)
2 tablespoons lemon juice
3 tablespoons butter or fortified margarine
3 tablespoons enriched flour
¾ cup finely crushed cracker crumbs
1 tablespoon paprika

Cut half the salt pork in small pieces; arrange in baking pan. Cover with onion slices. Place a bit of bay leaf on each onion slice. Place halibut steaks over pork and onion. Sprinkle lemon juice over fish. Blend butter and flour; sprinkle over fish. Top with cracker crumbs; sprinkle with paprika. Lay thin strips of salt pork over the top. Bake in moderate oven (375°) 40 minutes. Serve with lemon wedges and water cress. Serves 4.

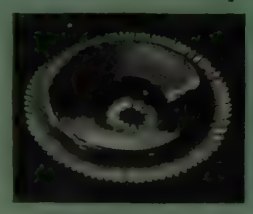
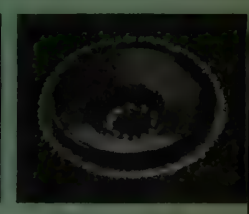
Guaranteed by Good Housekeeping



Good cooks everywhere, as well as home economists, know that for perfect cooking you must have perfect heat control. And that is what you get with Ultramatic Caloric's "Flexible Heat."

You can "tune in" any degree of temperature from "keep warm" to "sizzling hot". Caloric's "Flexible Heat" also saves gas, speeds cooking, and is ideal for pressure cooking.



Caloric is America's easiest range to keep clean. Porcelain enamel finish inside and out, One-Piece Porcelain Top and Veri-Clean Removable Broiler are a few of many easy-clean features.

For list of local dealers see "Caloric" in classified 'phone book —or write Caloric Stove Corp., 1204 Widener Bldg., Phila. 7, Pa.

Flavor-Saver Dual Burners Give Quick, Flexible Heat

salt, pepper, ¼ cup melted fat, hot water to moisten. To close opening, insert toothpicks; lace with string. Put fish in shallow baking pan, tail and fins waxed-paper-wrapped. Brush with fat or top with bacon slices. Bake in hot oven (400°) 40 to 50 minutes.

Sunday Supper Sandwiches

Combine 1 7-ounce can tuna fish, flaked, 2 tablespoons chopped onion, 2 tablespoons chopped pickle, and 2 tablespoons mayonnaise. Split 6 buns and spread with tuna mixture. Top with grated American cheese. Broil 3 minutes, or until cheese melts. Top with an X of pimiento. Serve immediately. Makes 6 sandwiches.

Salmon Bake

- 1 16-ounce can salmon
- 1 cup milk, scalded
- 2 slightly beaten eggs
- 1 tablespoon melted butter or fortified margarine
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon paprika
- 1 teaspoon onion juice or grated onion
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1 hard-cooked egg, sliced

Remove bones and skin from salmon. Break into bite-size pieces. Slowly stir milk into eggs. Add butter or fortified margarine, seasonings, onion, Worcestershire sauce. Combine with salmon. Mix lightly. Pour into greased 6- by 10-inch baking dish. Bake in pan—1 inch of water surrounding—in moderate oven (350°) until inserted knife comes out clean, about 40 minutes. Top with egg slices after 30 minutes of baking. Serve with lemon slices. Serves 6.

Tuna Salad Mousse

- 1 tablespoon (1 envelope) unflavored gelatine
- ¼ cup cold water
- ¾ cup hot water
- ¼ cup vinegar
- 1 7-ounce can tuna fish, flaked
- 1 cup chopped celery
- 2 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
- 8 stuffed olives, sliced
- 2 sweet pickles, chopped
- 1 tablespoon minced onion
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- Pepper
- ½ cup mayonnaise

Soften gelatine in cold water; dissolve in hot water. Add vinegar and chill until partially set. Add remaining ingredients. Chill in oiled 1-quart salad mold or in big fish mold, (see photograph, page 99) until firm. Unmold on endive or crisp lettuce; garnish with radish roses. Pass additional mayonnaise. Serves 6.

Tartare Sauce

- 1 cup mayonnaise
- 1 teaspoon grated onion
- 1 tablespoon minced dill pickle
- 1 teaspoon minced parsley
- 1 tablespoon chopped pimiento

Combine ingredients. Serve in individual sea shells or pass with fish. Top with slivers of pimiento and green pepper. Makes 1 cup.

Keep your rugs from sliding

Antiskid pads, powders, and liquids make rugs sit still

By Louisa M. Comstock

EVERY rug which skids underfoot, turns up its corners, or buckles ahead of your vacuum cleaner is a daily annoyance—and may be a threat to life and limb. But it is possible to have scatter rugs and safety, too. Today there are rug pads, antislip powders, and rubber composition liquids to make rugs hold still. Here are suggestions on what to use for each kind of rug.

Shag, hooked, rag rugs can be skidproofed with liquid or paste rubber-composition backings or with antislip powder.

Apply a thin coat of the composition on the back of your rug with a small brush, a hand spray gun, or your vacuum-cleaner spray attachment. Overnight the composition will dry to a pliable coating which will hold your rug flat, lengthen its life by securing its loops, and cling to the floor without marking it. Most rubber or rubber-composition backings last through several cleanings. One pint of backing will skidproof one 6x9-foot rug or five 2x3-foot rugs.

Or use powder. In this case, remove the rug, sprinkle powder on the floor under it, and replace the rug carefully to avoid blowing powder around. After the powder has been under the rug for a few days it works into the fibers. Then, even if the floor is cleaned under it, the powder retains its nonslip qualities. More powder can be applied when it's needed. One two-ounce can has enough powder for 10 to 12 scatter rugs.

Bunching rugs which tend to rise in crosswise ridges may need new sizing. Your rug cleaner will do it for you for around $1 for a 6x9-foot rug.

To make a ridging rug firm and flat without tampering with the rug itself, look into slipproof underlays. Least expensive are treated paper sheets you trim to small-rug size or lay side by side to go under larger rugs. A sheet 24x48 inches costs 50 cents.

You can get antiskid padding in rubberized fiber at around $1 per running yard; in moisture-, dust-, and mothproof rubber or composition rubber at about $1.50. Widths vary—according to the brand—from 24 to 54 inches.

Curling edges can be held down with carpet tacks. Or try grandmother's remedy—a row of Mason jar rings sewed to the rug back. Or try a strip of rubber padding along the edge.

Often, however, a curling edge needs rebinding. You can do it yourself with one of the stitch-on or iron-on rug bindings carried at department-store notion counters. Most rug dealers and cleaners will do a professional job for you at around $1 per yard for hand binding and 50 cents a yard for serging (thread binding, machine-stitched).

Traveling rugs, like long runners that work out of place, can be carpet-tacked down. Two tacks at each end and one tack in each edge halfway between the ends should be enough.

Small strips of double-edged adhesive tape, gummed on both sides, will tape the ends and sides of a traveling rug to the floor.

Or treat a wandering rug with one of the non-skid paddings mentioned above, or with a regular rug cushion. Rug cushions are deeper than non-skid pads, and are designed to reduce wear and lengthen life of the rug. Because of their resilience, however, they help a rug stay put.

Where to buy it. Most antiskid paddings and cushions are sold at carpet and rug stores or department-store rug departments. Antiskid liquids, pastes, powders, and tapes come from housewares or from notion counters or from hardware stores. Inquire at your local stores about other sources of antiskid rug products utilities, such as water, electricity, gas, or sewers. These may cost large sums of money if you have to put them in yourself.

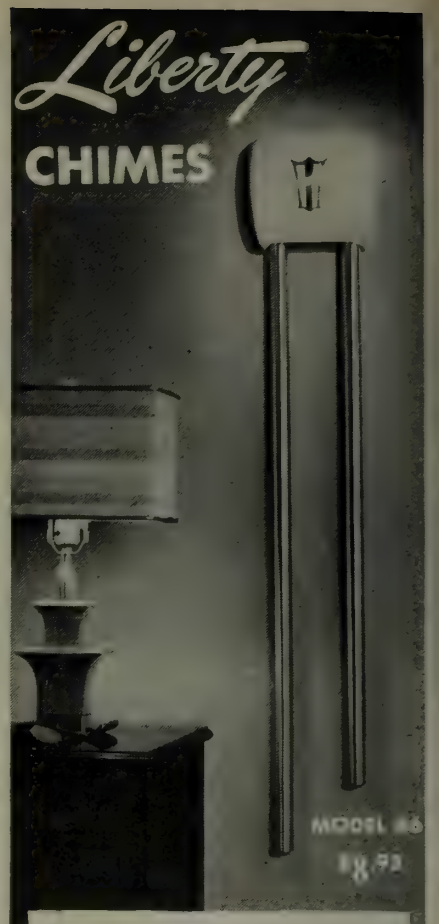
What kind of land appeals to you? Do you like it flat, rolling, wooded, by a stream, or in a valley? In making this decision, keep in mind that a house site has two costs. One is the price you pay for the land. The other is the amount you pay to put that land in condition for your home.

Farm land is likely to be low in first cost, but the installation of utilities may make the second cost high. Desirable hilltops and shore property probably will be high in first cost, as are districts composed of large estates. Rocky, picturesque land may need grading and many loads of topsoil before it can be used for lawn and gardens. Land costs should range from 11 to 18 percent of the total cost of the house and lot. Corner lots usually cost more than inside lots.



Immediate surroundings

In choosing a neighborhood it is wise to select one where the people live on a scale similar to your own. Notice whether neighboring houses and lots are smaller or larger than the one you plan. A house in keeping with nearby homes is likely to bring a better price. Beware nearby dilapidated houses, shoddy developments, filling stations, or factories. Sniff the air, then make a wide tour of the area to make sure you are not near a packing house or other sources of odor or noise. Also notice what sort of view the lot provides, whether expansive or limited. Notice whether it's on a heavily traveled street, or whether it's on an unimproved road.

The individual lot

Choose the proper side of the street to give your house and lawn the full benefit of the sun. Any large, or square corner lot can be successfully developed. But among rectangular lots, one with the long side running north and south will get the most sun.

In selecting an inside lot, the best direction for a street is one that runs east and west. On such a street, the south side will get more sun than the north. On streets running north and south, the west is usually the better side for the same reason.

Those preferences are based on the assumption you will want your living room and perhaps one side of the dining area to face south, so the low winter sun will reach the windows.

Lots 40 feet wide are quite common, but are too narrow, and should be avoided. Sixty feet or more should be the minimum width if you wish to give an interesting treatment to the exterior of your house and garden.

If your lot slopes down from the street, you may have a drainage problem, and may not be able to have basement plumbing. Sites sloping up from the street with an easy grade are fine for basement garages.

From a neighbor, or a test hole, find out the underground water level. If high, it may make a basement too expensive.

Utilities, services, and restrictions

After narrowing your choice to several lots, get full information regarding them on the following important subjects:

Water	Postal delivery
Electricity	Police protection
Gas	Fire protection
Sewer (location, height)	Zoning restrictions
Building code	Deed

Have your deed, the building code, and zoning laws checked by your attorney or architect, to make sure you can build the type of home you want.

Fire protection will mean much both to the safety of your family, and in insurance rates, so don't neglect to check on that especially.

Want to cook dinner at the movies?

Ask your Frigidaire Dealer to show you how — in the finest automatic electric range in Frigidaire history!

You can take the afternoon off, at the movies or a bridge party, and still have dinner all cooked and ready by the time you get home—when you have the new Frigidaire Electric Range to do your cooking for you automatically. Ask your Frigidaire Dealer to show you how the Cook-Master Oven Clock Control turns on your oven automatically at the right time, turns it off when cooking's done. You just put things in the oven, move two knobs and flip a lever—that's making life easy, isn't it?

And look at these other conveniences—the Triple Duty Thermizer (it's a deep-well cooker, a small oven or a surface unit!)—the 5-heat Radiantube surface cooking units—the Even-Heat oven—and of course, the easy-to-keep-clean porcelain finish.

Visit your Frigidaire Dealer at once—see your wide choice of Frigidaire Electric Ranges and Refrigerators. And have a demonstration of the Automatic Washer, too. Find Dealer's name in Classified Phone Directory. Or write Frigidaire Division of General Motors, Dayton 1, Ohio. In Canada, Leaside 12, Ont.

Listen to Frigidaire's New Lum and Abner Show, Sunday nights, CBS.

Radio repairs you

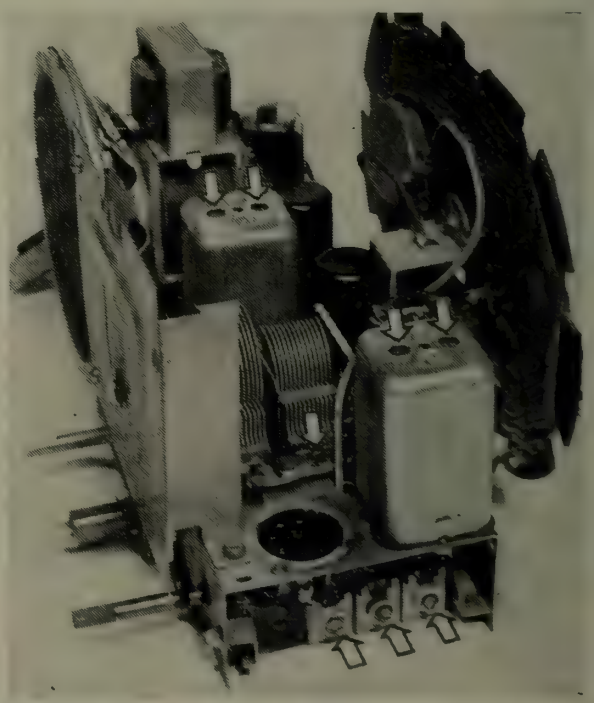
By Jack Darr and W. R. Simmons

IF YOU own a table-model radio, sooner or later it will need repair. Have you ever thought of the fun you could have—and the dollars you could save—by making minor repairs yourself?

Don't get us wrong. We don't advise amateur tampering with a valuable console radio. Even a table model is a complicated piece of machinery; unskilled hands can easily throw it out of whack.

But if you are careful, and can restrain that impulse to experiment, there are several simple, dollar-saving repairs you can make at home.

First, three warnings.



Never attempt a repair with the power connected.

Even with the radio off, switch terminals carry 110 volts, ready to bite unwary fingers. With the radio on, up to 700 volts are present, and can cause serious injury or death. Don't take a chance.

Never plug in a radio to test a repair without first sliding the chassis back in the cabinet.

Never attach a ground wire to a small AC-DC set. Most table-model radios are of this type. Use any kind of antenna, but don't hook the set to a wire that makes metallic contact with the earth.

Observing these precautions, here are the repairs you can make easily and quickly, together with a few tips on things not to do.

What not to do to your radio. Never attempt to adjust any of the small screws indicated by arrows. They all must be set by an expert in proper relation to each other can make

Trouble: Scratching noise when the station is changed.
Cause: Probably dust on the variable condenser plates.

What to do: Disconnect radio. Pull knobs from the front (there may be setscrews to loosen) and remove bolts holding the chassis in the cabinet. These bolts will be on the bottom or inside at the back. Slide the chassis out carefully. Blow dust from between the plates. Use a rubber tube at least two feet long so you don't get dust in your eves. You can use a vacum cleaner with a hose attachment if you hook it up in reverse so it blows dust out. Except on condenser plates, dust in a radio does little harm because there are so few moving parts

Some variable condenser plates should be bent and some should not. The outside plates (arrows, left section) often are purposely bent to make two sections track on all stations. In the right section (circle) a plate has been bent through carelessness so it touches another. Note whether any plates are bent in your radio. Then if any are accidentally bent later, straighten them by prying carefully with a knife blade. Plates should be closed while you work on the radio. To be safe, set dial pointer at 55 before you take radio chassis out of cabinet Trouble: The dial pointer won't turn, or it points t the wrong station.

Cause: String driving the pointer is broken or slipping

What to do: Disconnect radio and take the chassis out the cabinet. If the pilot light is mounted on the dial fac slip it out. Remove dial pointer. Take out screws holding th dial face (circled) and remove the face. Then you can se the string which drives the pointer. If string isn't broken, pu beeswax on it to stop slipping. Replace dial face, pointe and light. To reset pointer, close condenser plates (arrow so they mesh, and set pointer at 55 or the small mark beyon

If string is broken, replace it with fishline. Wind string three times around station control (arrow). Bring ends around wheel and through opening in rim. Thread string through spring (arrow at the top), one end from back to front, one from front to back

Pull ends of string tight enough to stretch sprin and tie a knot. Test by turning station control. the string is tight enough, it won't slip. Tie sever more knots, put a drop of glue on them, and tri Trouble: Noisy crackling when volume control is turned.

Cause: Dirt or rust on the contact that moves when the volume control shaft is turned, or dirt on the shaft itself.

What to do: Control may need replacement, but try putting carbon tetrachloride (available at any drugstore) on the shaft. Use a medicine dropper. Lay chassis on its back, and turn shaft so liquid runs inside where it is most needed

Turn chassis upside down. Look for three metal prongs (arrows) where wires are soldered onto control. As you turn shaft, put carbon tetrachloride around these prongs. Prongs at extreme back are connections that turn the radio on and off; they are not responsible for crackling, need no cleaning

Clean the short-wave switch the same way. You can find moving parts by watching the switch as you turn the shaft. Do the same with push-button tuning switches. In stubborn cases, flood moving parts with the fluid and brush gently with an old toothbrush. Be careful not to break wires cook chuck roast tender as rib!

Yes, you can . . . and without adding a drop of water, either. In fact, that's one of the secrets of Club Aluminum's juicy, tender way with meat. The only moisture needed is supplied by the roast itself. Cooks in its own rich juices, over low heat. Wonderful! And what gravy!

What makes Club Aluminum perform "waterless" wonders on top of the stove like this? You'll find the answer below . . .

As you can see from this diagram, Club Aluminum cookware doesn't need any water to cook fresh foods uniformly. So, precious vitamins and minerals aren't poured down the drain. Fresh vegetables, fruits, meats cook in their own natural juices, flavor and reflavor themselves instead of the water. It's "Full-Flavor" cooking!

A Moisture-sealed lid holds heat in—bastes juices back into food
B Thick, molded aluminum walls spread heat evenly
C Less heat needed—you save on fuel

Radio repairs

Trouble: Not enough volume on a small set, even though the tubes and condensers are in good condition.
Cause: Too little signal strength in the built-in antenna.

What to do: A built-in antenna can be coupled to an outside aerial for more volume, assuming the radio is in good working order otherwise. If there is a connection in your radio marked "A" or "ANT," hook a flexible piece of wire about 25 feet long to it. String the wire around the room, out of the way, or hook it to an outside aerial.

If no connection is provided, as in the set pictured above, wind the piece of wire around the edge of the built-in antenna. One or two loops will do the job. Tie the inside end of the extra wire to a projection of the frame, and string the other end around the room. Or better still, connect one end of the extra loop to a ground wire (being careful not to ground the radio itself), and connect the other end to an outside aerial Trouble: Rattles and rasps in the radio's tone.

Cause: Tears in the paper that covers the speaker cone, possibly looseness around the rim of the speaker.

What to do: Disconnect radio and remove chassis. Repair tears in the speaker with a few drops of glue. Apply it sparingly with a pipe cleaner or toothpick. Spread glue on both sides of the tear if the inside is accessible. Press edges of tear together, and hold them until the glue starts to set. Let cement dry an hour before turning on the radio.

If the speaker rim is loose, as pictured, pry it up gently with a screwdriver or fingernail file. Put glue under it, and press into place. Be careful not to shift the speaker cone out of position, or you might spoil the radio's tone. Repairing a shifted cone is a job for a specialist, not a home handy man

Radio repairs you can make

Trouble: No light on radio dial.
Cause: Burned-out pilot light.

What to do: Unplug radio and replace faulty bulb. Be sure the new bulb is the right type, as designated by the number on the base or by colored beads in the glass stem. Most small radios should not be operated without a dial light. The type of socket pictured is removed by pinching sides and pulling back. Some lights are mounted with a gadget like a pencil clip. The pilot-light socket should be taped for safety. Otherwise it could give you a nasty jolt when the radio is on. In this set, a voltmeter showed 100 volts between untaped socket and and the metal chassis of the radio.

Trouble: Radio dead. No light on dial, no music.
Cause: Probably a dead tube. Most small sets are of the AC-DC type with tubes connected in series like old-fashioned Christmas-tree lights. Failure of one tube makes the whole set go dead.
What to do: Have a radio repairman test the tubes. He can quickly find the one that is bad. If the tubes are good, have the repairman check the entire set.

Trouble: No sound except a loud hum, or a burned varnish odor, or smoke.
Cause: Short circuit somewhere inside the set.
What to do: Disconnect the radio at once. Take it to a repairman; finding a short is no job for an amateur. If the cord carrying power to your radio is frayed or cracked, it is dangerous. Have a repairman replace it.

TO GET the best tone, place your radio an inch or two from the wall, to allow free circulation of air behind it. That prevents overheating. Never put a table radio on a metal surface; there's always a chance of a short circuit. No radio should be placed near the room's heating apparatus or near windows, for humidity will cause the wood to expand, and extreme dryness will cause contraction.

When a portable radio is idle, take the batteries out and store them in a cool, dry place.

Cook-of-the-Month is Mrs. Robert Young of Glendale, California, a former home economics teacher. Her Dessert Coffeecake, inherited from her college sorority mother, is a tender cake with a rich date-nut filling.

Another prize cake for coffee-time is Marillynn Mark's Cinnamon Coffeecake with a nutty, spicy topping.

Yeast coffee breads winning awards are Mrs. Lorenz's Refrigerator Coffee Ring and Mrs. Koehler's Butterscotch Curls. The refrigerator bread takes little last-minute work—you mix the dough the day before and store it in refrigerator. The Butterscotch Curls are made cinnamon-roll fashion, then baked in a brown sugar-butter-cream sauce.

Spaghetti star is Mrs. Bedell's Beef Stroganoff, featuring a delectable sour cream-tomato sauce. Noodle specialty, Big Dinner Casserole was submitted by Mrs. Lax. Try serving this at a potluck affair to win acclaim; subtle soy flavor will have them guessing.

Macaroni takes a bow in Mrs. Hartnagel's Pork and Macaroni Bake, a flavor-packed he-man's casserole. For a macaroni bake that takes only a jiffy to put together, try Mrs. Blake's Macaroni 'n' Cheese. It has a mushroom-soup base, so there's no white sauce to make.

How this room grew

Window walls and mirrors make this room seem larger; storage space proves that it is

Klaus Pfeffer's boyhood study was designed to his liking, but it has since come of age. Today Pfeffer uses the same room, but remodeling has made it a man-sized room seasonal changes serve as color scheme

BEFORE

AFTER

As A boy, Klaus Pfeffer, a Berkeley, California, designer, had an unusual room. When his parents built their home, they gave him a free hand. He chose pine-paneled walls, a beamed ceiling, lots of shelves for books and all the assorted junk that a 12-year-old accumulates. The quality of the furnishings was improved as he grew older, and the room seemed appropriate for his college days.

But when Pfeffer began to study architecture, he saw what was wrong with the room. The room had too many doors—eight of them. The wood moldings were dust catchers. The lavatory was too small, and there wasn't enough closet space. Added to that, the small-paned French doors all but shut out a magnificent panorama of San Francisco Bay.

Klaus Pfeffer's neatest trick was creating an illusion of spaciousness. He opened the room by adding a wall of glass, and by mirroring an adjoining wall he gave the room breadth. Since curtaining would make the room seem smaller and would not be needed for privacy, an outside awning was installed over the balcony. The awning can be rolled out of sight when it's not in use.

The warmth of redwood plywood walls and soft, textured fabrics keep Pfeffer's room from seeming too cold. And across an entire wall of windows nature itself brightens the room with pattern and color contrast.

HEN Klaus Pfeffer decided to give his boyhood y the proportions of a master bedroom, he converted study into a bedroom and made the former bedroom a complete bath-dressing room. He found the small n that had served as a lavatory could accommodate mpact built-in desk apart from the bedroom. The le bath-dressing room contains a large shower, a n-foot built-in chest, and a nine-foot wardrobe et designed to store all his clothes neatly.

plicity of room today makes it seem double its size. Plain paneling places dust-catching moldings. Former lavatory (at right) now serves compartment for built-in desk. Waffled window glass over his bed minates the need for curtaining and fills the corner with soft light

Klaus Pfeffer's wardrobe problems were solved when he installed a 13-drawer dressing cabinet and an entire wall of closets. Mirror and clothing are kept free from steam by an exhaust fan in a corner shower

NEW EASY SPINDRIER
WITH AUTOMATIC SPIN-RINSE

Every day more women say—"It's EASY for me!"

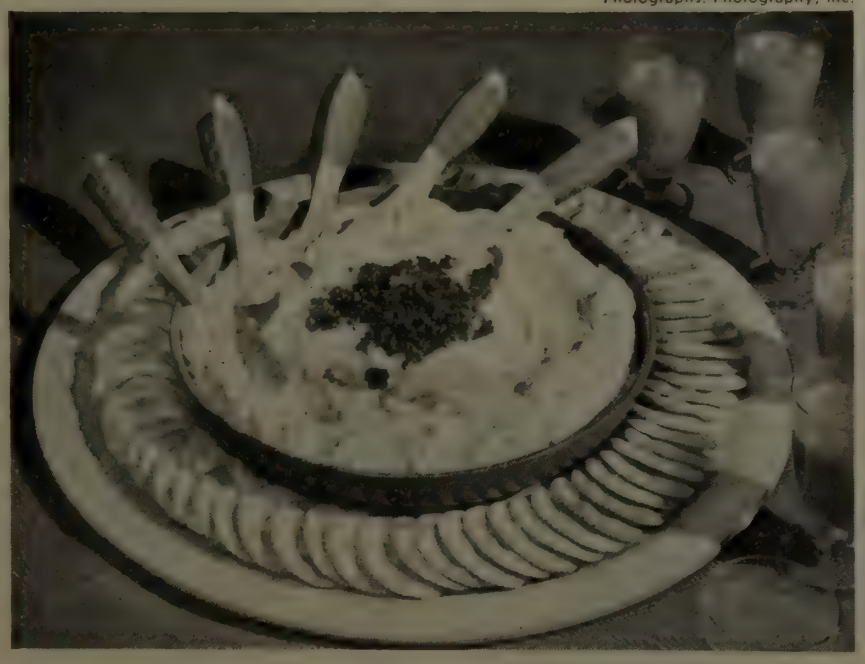
Blue-cheese specials

By Frances O'Connor

WHEN you want snappy flavor, want to serve something easy yet different, or want to serve something that will please the men, buy a wedge or wheel of Blue cheese.

Below we show Blue cheese served for snacks, as a dessert that can follow a big or little dinner, and in specialty salad dressings and a casserole, pages 123 and 125.

Snappy Snacks



Blend 2 3-ounce packages cream cheese with ⅛ pound Blue cheese. Add 2 tablespoons finely chopped celery, 1 tablespoon finely chopped onion, a dash of cayenne, and salad dressing to moisten. Form in 16 to 20 tiny balls. Roll in 1½ cups chopped California walnuts and chill. Stick each ball with a bright-colored cocktail pick.

Blue-Cheese Log

This uses the same mixture as the balls in the picture above. Serve it for appetizers. Shape cheese in a log, roll in California walnuts or pecans. Chill. Serve with fresh, crisp crackers. A log the size of the recipe will serve 6 to 8.

Photographs: Photography, Inc.

Blue-Cheese Dip

Here's a snack that says "more." Mash 3 3-ounce packages cream cheese. Add ¼ pound Blue cheese, crumbled. Blend. Add 1 tablespoon grated onion and 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce. Mix thoroughly. Pile lightly in dish. Sprinkle with chopped parsley. Serve with assorted cocktail crackers or potato chips, and tall cold drinks. Those are cheese spreaders in the cheese. If you like a creamier, softer mixture, beat in a little top milk or cream.

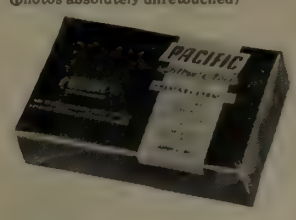
Enjoy your silver

WITHOUT POLISHING!

Your silverware can't tarnish in a Pacific Silver Cloth chest, bag, roll, packet, wrap or buffet drawer. You save work for a lifetime. You get more pleasure from owning new silver, and old silver is more fun to use often. Both flatware and hollow ware are kept always bright and ready for instant use. Whether used daily, for entertaining, on or off vacations, or after years of storage, silver shines like magic!

That is why famous brands of sterling silverware usually are offered with a Pacific



Silver Cloth container. So is high quality silver plate in the beautiful inlaid Invitation pattern by Gorham illustrated here. Such high grade silver and Pacific Silver Cloth naturally go together. When you buy new silver, look at the chest, bag, or roll for the Pacific Silver Cloth label. It means quality.

Avoid imitations. Pacific Silver Cloth is an exclusive product of Pacific Mills. It contains millions of particles of silver in a non-visible compound which absorbs the tarnishing elements in the air so they cannot reach your silverware. Why spend money or laborious hours on abrasives or other tarnish remover unnecessarily? Buy a chest lined with Pacific Silver Cloth, or a bag, roll or wrap today at your leading local jewelry or department store (yard goods in Piece Goods Departments); or see your furniture dealer for Drexel dining room furniture with Pacific Silver Cloth compartment. Write us today for literature and name of dealer. Pacific Mills, Dept. S3, 214 Church Street, New York 13, N. Y.

In a tarnish test* conducted by the United States Testing Co., Inc., only spoon A, protected by Pacific Silver Cloth, retained its original sparkle! The other spoon, though wrapped in so-called "anti-tarnish" cloth, nevertheless did tarnish as shown.

Chef's French Dressing. Combine 1 teaspoon sugar, ½ teaspoon each salt, dry mustard, paprika, a dash of cayenne, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, and 2 tablespoons vinegar, ½ cup salad oil, and ¼ cup crumbled Blue cheese in jar. Cover and shake well.

Creamy Blue-Cheese Dressing. Blend 3 ounces (⅓ cup) crumbled Blue cheese with 2 3-ounce packages cream cheese. Thin with light cream or top milk to the fluffy consistency you like. Season to taste. Serve over crisp, cool lettuce wedges. A salad favorite with men.

Bunburgers. These are hamburgers on bun halves. You broil the hamburger till it's done. Then put Blue-Cheese Mix on top and broil just long enough to heat the cheese. For the mix, blend ¼ cup butter or fortified margarine with 2 tablespoons crumbled Blue cheese.

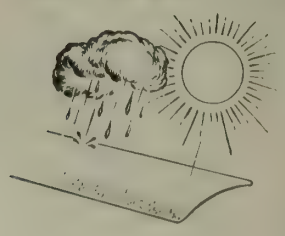
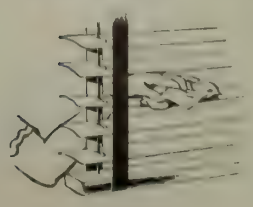
VENETIANS OF



ACME Galva-bond STEEL

STEEL FOR SMARTER STYLE



Because steel is strong, each Galva-bond slat can be "thinner," more delicate in appearance, gracefully curved. The smooth porcelain-like finish reflects light softly to flatter any decorative scheme.

STEEL FOR LONGER LIFE

Venetian blinds of Galva-bond Steel bend without buckling, and hold their shape because steel gives them strength with flexibility. The special galvanizing-bonderizing process is the best-known method of giving the finish lasting beauty and long life.

STEEL FOR EASIER CLEANING

So simple and convenient to dust! Galva-bond Steel slats flex at a touch. And the smooth, nonporous finish keeps cleaner longer . . . resists smoky, grimy stains, even when hung in kitchens.

The Cheese Tray. Simple to do, easy to serve. It's a dessert or snack. Everybody reaches to spread his own, can nibble as long as he pleases. The big wedge of Blue cheese is on a paper doily. Around it arrange crisp crackers and fresh fruit—grapes, pears, or apples.

Noodle and Sausage Bake has crumbled Blue cheese mixed into it for fine flavor. Cook ½ 8-ounce package noodles in boiling, salted water; drain and rinse. Season 6 pork sausage patties with salt and pepper; dip in flour and brown in hot fat. Melt 2 tablespoons butter; add 2 tablespoons flour; blend. Stir in 1 cup milk and cook until smooth and thick, stirring constantly. Add ½ teaspoon salt, a dash of pepper, ½ cup crumbled Blue cheese; stir until cheese melts. Add the noodles, 3 tablespoons chopped green pepper, and 2 tablespoons chopped pimiento. Pour into greased casserole. Arrange meat on top. Bake in moderate oven (350°) 30 minutes. Serves 6.

Home furnishings answers

Q. Trees and bushes outside cut off the sunlight in my dining room. What can I do to make the room seem brighter? Mrs. R. V., Portland, Oregon.

A. First off, choose light-reflecting colors for your color scheme. Yellows, grays, white, ivory, sky blue, pale greens, or shell pink will make the most of a little sun.

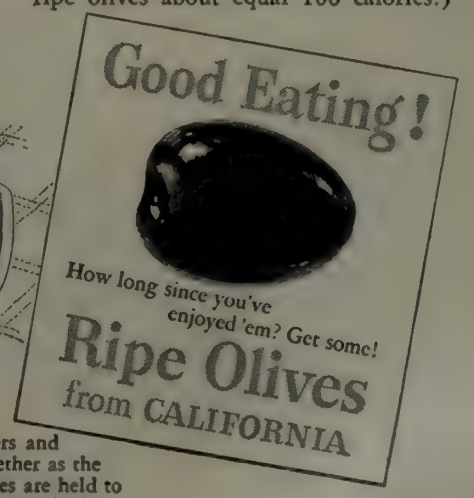
Then paint the ceiling one of these light colors. Use paper or paint in a slightly darker shade of the same color for your walls. Keep your woodwork light by painting or bleaching it.

For your curtains and upholstery, choose materials that will reflect the light—glazed chintz, silk, damask, taffeta, and leather. And, by all means, use a mirror and well polished surfaces to brighten the room.

"I commend to you our pleasant California custom of the Olive Bowl"—says

KATHLEEN NORRIS

Queen of American authors, Kathleen Norris is beloved by millions of readers. In addition to her prodigious output of 73 novels (her latest, High Holiday, is just out) and countless heart-warming stories for the top magazines, brilliant, energetic Kathleen Norris has found time for family and national affairs — and is noted for her hospitality



"It's an easy, well-liked gesture of hospitality when friends drop in...an enjoyable "first course" when just the family comes to table"

"I'M GLAD TO HEAR our good California custom is becoming so popular throughout America today," writes Kathleen Norris. "Do try it at your house soon, if you haven't already: simply fill a generous bowl with your favorite brand of California ripe olives and set them out for all to enjoy. Compliments never fail you."

Ripe olives from California fill an honored place in the diet. Among other food values, California ripe olives offer you nourishing protein...and they're a source of Vitamin A, and iron. But the reason California ripe olives are famed throughout the world is FLAVOR!

Bite into one. Here's plump, meaty goodness. Here's good eating. Have another...enjoy all you want! (Yes, even if you're a "calorie-counter." For 8 to 10 ripe olives about equal 100 calories.)

This advertisement is published by the growers and processors of California ripe olives, acting together as the Olive Advisory Board. All California ripe olives are held to standards of quality, strictly graded and correctly labelled.

Trade old shelves for new

Low bookcases divide living and dining rooms without giving you claustrophobia

By Dorothy Killan

Problem This gumwood bookcase was a barricade between the living and dining rooms in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Gilmore in Long Beach, California. The shelves were just high enough and wide enough so you couldn't see over or around them. Books were hidden behind barred glass doors.

Photographs: George de Gennaro

Solution Bookcase was cut down and filled in with framing and plaster so both rooms would have a more open, spacious feeling. Even so, the bookcase still serves to separate the rooms. Shadow-box-type grill above the shelves makes an ideal place for a display of plants and china. (Radiator used to be on the floor beside the old bookcase. It was moved up so the Gilmores could carpet between the rooms.)

Leery of Ladders?

Get SELF-INSULATING WINDOWS That stay in the year 'round

Thermopane.* That's the glass to have in all your windows if this isn't your idea of a pleasant weekend. With Thermopane there's no wrestling with storm sash and ladders. Nor hiring help for the job.

With Thermopane your windows open and close just like sash with ordinary single panes. BUT . . . you have two panes of glass with dry air sealed between—insulation built right into each window.

There's your fuel saving. Your comfort. Freedom from downdrafts. Freedom from frosted or fogged-up panes.

You can now have Thermopane in almost any type window you want—casement, double-hung sash or picture windows, made of either wood or metal.

When you build or remodel, ask your architect or contractor to figure on installing Thermopane in every window. Naturally, it costs more than single glass panes, for you're getting insulated windows. And what a relief it is to have year-round comfort (summer heat insulation, too) without lifting a finger.

For full information on this ultramodern window, write for our new Thermopane book.

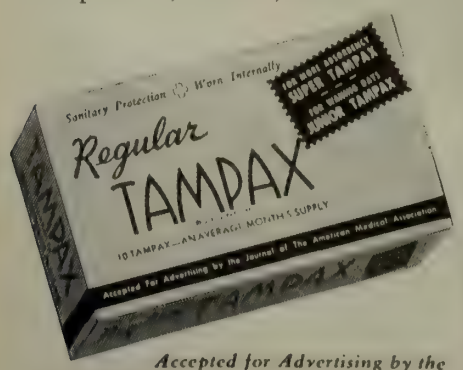
Please lady, listen



Please don't walk away or turn a deaf ear, gentle lady! There's big news in the air and you may find it just as important in your life as it has proved to millions of other women all over the world—not once, but thirteen times a year....As you already have guessed, the subject under discussion is a wholly feminine one—monthly sanitary protection.

NO BELTS
NO PINS
NO PADS
NO ODOR

But the "big" news deals with a very tiny product indeed, no longer than your little finger! It is called Tampax and it is worn internally. This principle is well-known to doctors and it has many advantages. Tampax frees you from the tyranny of belts, pins and external pads. It causes no odor or chafing. Quick to change and easy to dispose of. Tampax is only 1/9 the bulk of older kinds and you can shower, tub or swim without removing it!

Made of pure surgical cotton compressed in dainty patented applicators, Tampax comes in 3 absorbencies—Regular, Super, Junior. Average month's supply slips readily into purse. Compare today's price of Tampax with the price of nationally-advertised external pads. Tampax Incorporated, Palmer, Mass.

Should you shield your boy or girl from sorrow?

By Dr. Arnold A. Fenton

Rector, St. Thomas's Episcopal Church, Mamaroneck, New Yo

"WE DON'T discuss tragic happenings around Roger and Ruthie. When they are older they will be better able to handle suffering and sorrow."

You, like many parents, may have followed this policy of delayed action, in the hope the day will never come when Roger and Ruth must face unhappiness.

But, though we surround our children with a cordon of police, and inoculate them with all the antitoxins, there is no immunity against exposure to pain and grief. There is always the unexpected that so abruptly ends routine happiness, no matter how foolproof our precautions may have seemed.

The fact is that the more mature we become, the greater is our capacity for sustaining shock. Our task is to courageously, wisely, and honestly gear our children to withstand rather than postpone its impact.

Illness and invalidism. The Platts of Westchester have always believed in facing unpleasant facts. Their experience proves that you can prepare your children to do the same.

Nine-year-old Timmy had gone with his mother to visit Mr. Platt, convalescing in the hospital on the fourth day after an operation.

"Go get your sandwich, Mother. I can look after Daddy," Timmy told his mother. And his mother left him, knowing she could depend on him. Five minutes later the father experienced a post-operative flare-up. Coolly and deliberately, Timmy first cranked his choking father up out of a prone position. When a floor nurse failed to respond to the push-button signal, he summoned a private nurse from a nearby room. She administered first aid until an interne arrived.

The Platt children haven't been endowed with unusual powers of self-control or bedside nursing. Just many little things taught in easy stages—helping mother bandage a badly cut finger, nursing sick pups, and the like. The Platt youngsters are destined to become efficient men and women.

Contrast Timmy Platt with Michael, a harmonica prodigy who was enlisted by the director of his club to play for a badly crippled nephew. The director, accustomed to the helpless, distorted figure of his nephew, didn't consider the possible effect on the 11-year-old musician, whose parents had always kept him out of sickrooms.

Michael could scarcely finish his selection. Pale and tottering, he was caught just as he collapsed outside the crippled boy's room. Revived from his fainting spell, Michael confided thoughtfully: "Now I guess I will know a lot more about other people's troubles."

Happenings like this make you wonder: "What will be the total effect of such sudden shocks? Wouldn't my children, like Michael, prefer to learn more gradually?"

Suppose that you or one of your children should meet with an accident, become disfigured or incapacitated? Because such shocks are more personal than injuries to a stranger, the impact is that much greater. To reduce emotional strain and shock, avoid cynicism, and build right attitudes and helpful responses, you should begin a program of preparation when your children are still small. But remember to provide a shock absorber. Disaster and pain, whether seen or heard about, stir up curiosity and rapid fire questions. "Did he scream and cry, Daddy?" Your answer should be softened with a description of the doctor's gentleness, the wonderful nursing, the luxury of special meals, the happiness cards and flowers will bring.

And prepare your youngster for an active role in the recuperative stage. "When Billy comes home, here is what you can do."

Utilize the appeal to bravery. How does a soldier conduct himself? What does a nurse do when someone is hurt? When tragedy strikes in your family or neighborhood, the hero appeal is a great fortifier and comforter. "My idol didn't fail, and I won't either."

Children of junior-high-school age should be instructed in first aid and lifesaving. When your children know they are able to help, their horror of pain and injury is lessened and, often, entirely eliminated. If she knows first aid, your young daughter can treat an injured person without flinching. If she's a mere spectator, the sight of blood might make her sick.

Grief through death. You just can't say: "There is death. You had better learn something about it." We have to explain the depth of human love and what anguish the breaking of earthly ties produces. You must carry a child beyond the immediate crisis, assuring him that time will heal the present sense of loss.

Skippy's mother has a wise and graded program for preparing her child to handle grief. She put it into operation last year when little Cathy down the street was burned to death. The ambulance had whisked Cathy away before most of the children in the neighborhood were up. The mothers held a council and settled on an iron-curtain policy—all except Skippy's. She regarded the scheme as flimsy, unrealistic, and a blow to character growth.

With carefully chosen words and explanations suited for a 7-year-old, she muted the tragic news and reduced shock with an incentive to be of assistance: "You could make Cathy's mother a lot happier than I can if you took this cake to her. And think how you could help heal her sorrow if you stopped in for a few minutes each day."

Skippy was thrilled over the prospect of being useful. There wasn't any storm of depression for him to ride out.

A death in the immediate family makes the problem more critical. Just because a 6-year-old girl doesn't shed tears and go around with a bereaved look, don't say "Connie doesn't appreciate what's happened to Mother." Connie may be keeping her grief to herself, which is much worse.

At any stage of child life, grief must be converted into something objective: "Sister would want you to carry on. . . . Dad expects you someday to complete what he didn't finish. . . . Uncle Ted is counting on you." Those assignments can be specific as well as general.

When sadness seems to be too much for Bobby to bear, remind him of some happy or humorous memory: "Remember the time when Auntie took you to the farm . . .?"

Grief through loss of a pet. The loss of a pet may be a child's

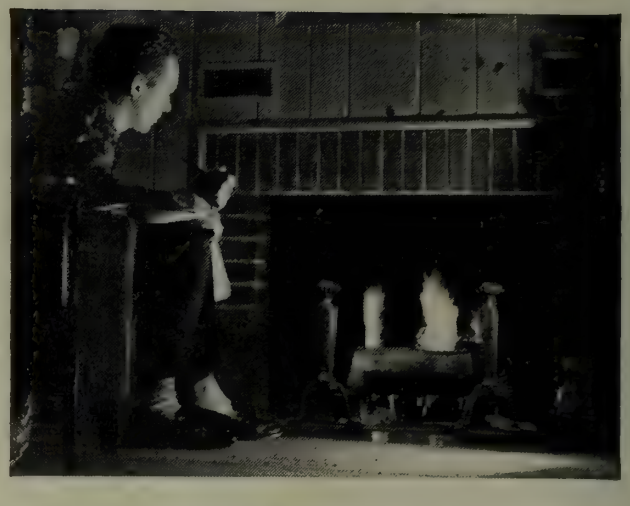
... Frigidaire's 10-year Protection Plan will still be guarding this water heater!

Yes, you get 10 full years of protection when you buy a Frigidaire Electric Water Heater—more years than it takes a fourth-grader to become a college star. And these dependable water heaters are built to give you trouble-free service for years beyond that!

These added years of usefulness are made possible by a wonder-working magnesium rod. Like magic, this rod diverts corrosive elements in the water from tank walls to itself, whether local water is hard or soft—thus checking "pitting," rust and "red water."



Moreover, the sickle-shaped Radiantube Heating unit is completely immersed, delivers all of its heat right into the water, saves current. And it's wonderfully clean, completely automatic—no flame to tend, no soot to clean! You can actually forget it completely for months on end.

Choice of table-top or round upright models; 30 to 80 gallon sizes. See them now at your Frigidaire Dealer's. Find his name in Classified Phone Directory. Or write Frigidaire Division of General Motors, Dayton 1, Ohio. (In Canada, Leaside 12, Ont.)

Do you want

YES

I WOULDN'T build a house without a fireplace. Sup pose it does cost $500, or even $800. You can't put a pric tag on the things a fireplace stands for.

I have three good reasons for wanting a fireplace. Senti ment is the first, and it's a good enough reason to outweigh al arguments against it. A house without a fireplace is cold— not frigid, but barren of warmth. It looks as if something i missing. Something is—a gathering place for the family.

If you think back to your childhood, you will probabl find that many of your recollections are of storytelling in fron of a crackling fire; of roasting potatoes or marshmallows i the coals; of slowly growing drowsy from watching th flames; of hanging stockings at Christmas; of thawing ou stiff fingers and toes after playing in the snow. The flavor c memories of home is gone without the mental picture of fireplace to hang them on.

Lighting the fire in a fireplace is almost always a signa to the family to come running. There's something magneti about the popping of a wood fire, the smell of smoke, th dance of the flames. It eases tension and draws the famil together. It's an anodyne that melts the lines of strain fro your face, and makes you feel better and sleep better.

YOU hear some people say that a cord of firewood cos more these days than they want to spend. You'll find tha these same people don't think twice about spending tha money for movies, and going out in the cold to see then

The second reason I want a fireplace is as a source emergency heat. It isn't often that your main heating pla fails to perform its chore, but when an ice storm cuts o your electricity, when a burner becomes clogged, or whe your boiler or furnace won't go, you're in for a cold evenin If you have fuel, you can always get heat from a fireplac

On late spring or early fall evenings, when the temper ture stays around 55 degrees, room temperatures drop slowly that there is a long interval between the times whe your heating plant comes on. The steady heat of a fireplac keeps the temperature constant.

My third reason for wanting a fireplace is for looks. Fro a design point of view a chimney gives an appearance strength and of hominess to a house, no matter what i size. It also serves as a focal point—an anchor around whic a house can be built.

That's my side of the story. When I want to be warme I want to warm my spirit, too. Ted Haz a fireplace?

Pease

NO

THE average fireplace, chimney and all, costs about $500 to build. And it's one part of a house that won't give you your money's worth.

Sure, I'm sentimental. I like to sit around the fire on a cold evening, and watch the flames and maybe roast marshmallows or pop corn. But I'm also hardheaded, particularly when it comes to money. And there are a lot of places where you and I could make good use of 500 bucks.

Look at it this way: You spend a lot of money for a fireplace. You use it maybe once a week five months a year. If you use it more often—few families do—you must add cost of the fuel you use to your original investment. And with wood and coal at present prices, you can't ignore fuel cost.

YOU may save a little on your fuel bills, because a fireplace does give out heat. But that, too, is a drawback. It heats one room, usually the living room, where your furnace thermostat ordinarily is placed. The heat from the fire keeps your furnace off or running at slow speed, and by bedtime you're nicely toasted, but your bedrooms are about 40 degrees colder. That's a fine way to catch cold.

A fireplace is dirty. Nothing burns without leaving an ash except gas logs, and if that is what you have, you might just as well burn the gas in your furnace and heat the whole house right. In most fireplaces you have to get down on your hands and knees to clean out the ashes. And if you don't have an ashpit, you run the risk of spilling ashes all over the house before you get them outdoors. If you have an ashpit, remember you have to clean it once in a while, too.

HOUSES used to be designed with the fireplace as a focal point in the room, most often flanked by bookshelves and topped by a fine Colonial mantel. But in these days a picture window, a sofa, an arrangement of pictures, or an unusual furniture grouping can be a strong focal point, and also can be useful the year around. On the days you have a fire, a fireplace makes a fine focal point. But what is attractive about a pitch-black hole in the wall the rest of the year?

No fireplace is entirely airtight, and every chimney is drafty to some extent. As winds sweep across the top of your chimney, they suck air up the flue—warm air from your house. In the same way about 40 percent of the heat of a fire goes not into the room but outdoors.

You can have your beautiful fireplace. I would rather pocket the saving.

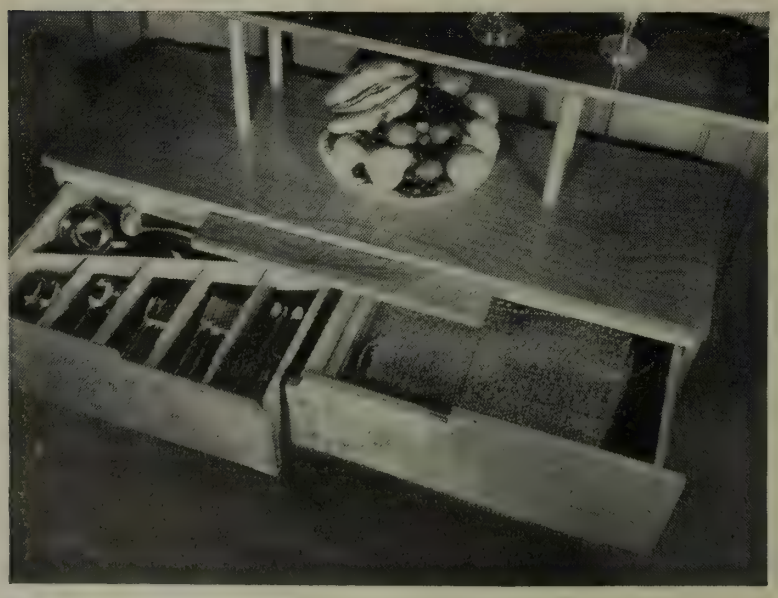
Turn carpenter yourself

—and make your own custom-built furniture

By Hoyt Allen



WITH your hammer and saw, you can turn out professional-looking furniture for your own home. Cabinets, desks, bookshelves, simple tables, even straight chairs are furniture-making jobs you can handle. Simplicity is the key to modern furnishings—and functional, simple-lined furniture is the kind that's easiest for you to make.

By designing your own furniture you can also avoid carpentry problems that might be too hard for you to solve yourself. If you don't want to tackle fitting drawers, for example, you can work out a shelf arrangement that will serve just as well. [Turn to page 134

Bookshelves and desk cost about $81. Shelves capitalize on dining-room corner space clear to the ceiling. Pole through the center of each shelf makes an adequate br without any nails or screws. The more shelf sags, the tighter it pinches the p

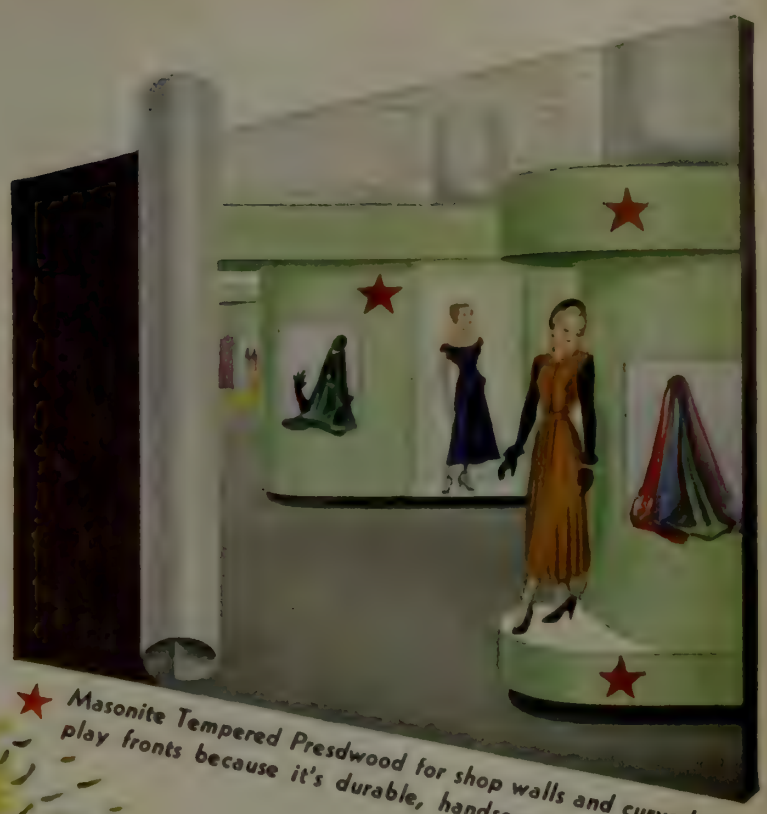
Buffet drawers were arranged to make the most of limited space. A partition (left), angled to fit silver pieces, takes advantage of space usually wasted at the back of the drawer. Sliding shelf in the top brings waffle iron within serving reach yet keeps it off the dining table



Buffet cost $58.50 for wood—and turned out to be my most ambitious carpentry experiment. Leaving plywood edges exposed cut costs and work. Putting shelves below kept drawer-fitting to a minimum. Top shelf is finished to match the buffet, but it can be used as a serving tray

Turn carpenter yourself

Home-built furniture cuts furnishing costs way down. I know. Two and a half years ago I took up carpentry. Since then I've saved over $800 by building four storage pieces myself instead of turning them over to a professional carpenter. Bookshelves cost $81 against a $265 estimate; dish cupboard cost $52 against $275; buffet cost $58.50 against $345; and nursery storage cost $47 against $268.

And you don't need to apologize for making your own furniture, either. Not only are you saving money, but you're getting pieces that actually fit your space and needs, pieces that are tailored to suit your taste.

Try carpentry in your spare time

Whatever the project you decide upon, you're the one to be pleased. There's no hurry, no boss, no due date, so you can relax and take your time about finishing it after work and on Saturdays.

You don't know the first thing about carpentry? Fine. Then you bring a brand-new viewpoint to carpentry.

A bumblebee can't fly; his body is too heavy for his wings. But a bumblebee doesn't know this, so he flies along beautifully.

You don't know you're not a carpenter, so go ahead—make something. All you'll need is wood, a handful of tools, and patience. I use my kitchen for a workshop, but we've never had a complaint from neighbors because I do all the sawing in the daytime and put the pieces together with screws.

Buy tools as you go along

Get one or two tools at a time as you need them. That way you'll build up your toolbox without spending a large lump sum. I got all the tools I needed for my furniture building for about $40—and saved enough on the bookshelves to pay for them. Here's my list, to give you an idea of what you might need:

Crosscut handsaw
Small all-purpose saw Claw hammer
Ratchet screwdriver
Brace
Expansive wood bit (to make holes for door and drawer pulls)
Chuck hand drill and assortment of bits
Two wood chisels—½ inch and 1 inch
Adjustable combination square
Six-foot folding rule
Pliers
Medium rasp
Two files—coarse and fine (also used as rasps)
Rattail file
Wire brush

[Turn to page 137

Dish cupboard cost $52 to build. It's sized to fit a narrow space in the kitchen and still hold a full set of dishes—plus odd serving pieces. The inside of the cupboard is neatly partitioned off so each dish has its place. Dishes with a raised design are stored in grooves. Middle door opens down to form a serving shelf; brass chains at the side hold it steady

Start from sketch

Designing the furniture is part of the fun—especially when you pull out all the stops and let your genius take over. By all means let your wife get into the act. She'll have ideas about how to arrange shelves or open doors.

The simplest way to design furniture is to let the use determine the shape. Available space will usually dictate the size. Then, with shape and size in mind, sketch the furniture. Start from the outside and work in.

Your home-built furniture need not always come out in the ultra-simple rectangles mine seems to. And you can dress your furniture with a wide variety of ready-made moldings and any number of stains or finishes.

Dawdle over your roughs as you choose. You'll be surprised at the ideas that come out of you, who don't know the first thing about building.

Make a scale drawing, too, for details

For simple pieces rough drawings may be adequate; for something more tricky it's a good idea to work out construction details in a scale drawing.

Plenty of square scale paper and a T-square or ruler are all the drawing tools you'll need for figuring how to build simple shelves or miter corners.

But if you're planning to make a more elaborate piece of furniture, or want the fun of puttering with detailed scale drawing, here is the equipment you'll want to have:
20x26-inch drawing board
24-inch T-square
8-inch transparent triangle
Pad of 18x24-inch tracing paper
Compass
Thumbtacks
Ruler
Hard and soft lead pencils.

Scale drawings give you an accurate idea of how the finished piece will look and how it will work. They also help you figure out the kind and amount of lumber you need and how to fit the boards together economically.

Study other home-built furniture for ideas

Pictured here are a few of the pieces of furniture I made. Perhaps they'll suggest cupboards or shelves you could use in your own home. Maybe you'll see an idea you can adapt. You're building to please yourself, remember, so rehash your plans for weeks if you like. Make what you want, as you want it — it'll be furniture exclusively yours.

Nursery unit cost $47, and keeps everything baby wears near the crib. Instead of trying to fit regular drawers, I hung them on a side pole so they swing out from side to front. Sliding doors at top push open easily

Wicked mince

As late as the early eighteenth century, many Europeans believed that mince pie was first baked by the Devil himself, and that eating it was a carnal sin. The ungodly openly boasted of their fondness for the exotic pastry, but few clergymen dared risk their reputations by so much as tasting the "wicked" dish.—Webb B. Garrison.

Ten tips on refrigerator care

Whether your refrigerator is shiny new or has that middle-aged sag, you can use these maintenance ideas

By Richard Hanscom

THE lines of your refrigerator may be somewhat dated, like last year's dresses. But whether your refrigerator is new or old, you can keep it looking better and working more efficiently with a reasonable amount of periodic care. And you'll be happy to learn that such care is easy on your pocketbook.

Here are 10 tips on refrigerator care to help you do the job well and with a minimum of effort. You can apply all of these tips without special skill or equipment. Each of them will mean longer life, better looks, or increased efficiency for your refrigerator.

To clean enamel surfaces on your refrigerator, use a damp, soapy cloth, rinse, and dry thoroughly. Stubborn stains can be removed with cleaning fluid, or use the special cleaner recommended by the refrigerator maker. Don't use gritty soaps, acids, abrasives. THE PONDEROSA PINE

The widespread use of Ponderosa Pine for building purposes is due to its uniform texture and exceptional workability. In house and commercial building, Ponderosa is very often used for sash and frames, doors, and general millwork.

WOOD . . . most widely used of all building materials is now made still better with penta- chlorophenol

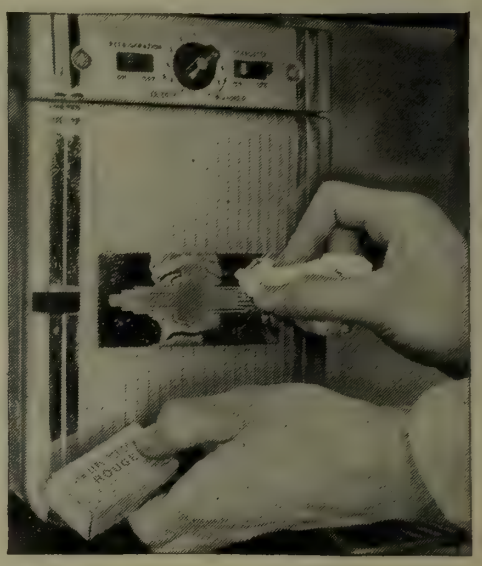
Wood has richness and warmth . . . as a natural beauty all its own. Wood has structural and natural insulating advantages unavailable in other building materials. Wood's economy, versatility and easy workability make it the ideal building material for your house.

Where decay and termites are present, safeguard your wood with PENTAchlorophenol. "PENTA" is a preservative that effectively protects wood from decay and termites.



Use "PENTA"-treated lumber in "critical" areas—flooring, joists, rafters and roofing, frames and sash . . . places that are extremely susceptible to decay and termite attack in almost any part of the country. In this way, you can take full advantage of the beauty and economy of wood . . . with fullest confidence that your home will be a safe and long term investment.

Candles and flowers on your table

By Fae Huttenlocher

CANDLES and flowers together give your table both the elegance of candle glow and the graceful beauty of flowers. Whether it is a simple dinner or a formal tea, the combination gives loveliness to the occasion. Many dining tables are too small for an elaborate decoration. So here are five simple candle and flower ideas that make your table handsome in a minimum of space.

Wax Madonna with candle back of it has pussy willows, narcissi, and ivy grouped around it in a halo. Left: crystal holder holds flower corsages for those at the table

How to wax your floors

WAXING a floor is like any other job—there's a be way of doing it.

Wax forms a protective film which takes the wear ar protects the floor, gives it a gleaming polish, and sav you cleanup work.

When you buy wax, you have a choice between bu ing-type waxes and self-polishing waxes. For special us for each type and for the best ways to apply them, stuc these pages and those that follow.

Buffing-type waxes

Paste and liquid waxes, the buffing-type waxes, requi polishing, but give a more permanent finish than se polishing waxes. The glossy protecting surface will la 3 to 4 months with proper care.

For a wooden floor that's never been waxed before or floor from which all wax has been removed, many pref paste wax for the first coat.

For upkeep. For additional wax coatings on wood floors, many prefer liquid wax, since it's easier to app and cleans at the same time.

How to apply

1 Remove surface soil with dry duster, a cloth wrung out in cold water, or cheesecloth moistened with liquid wax. Old wax need not be removed before adding another coat if the old wax is not stained or unevenly worn. If you have to remove old wax, use a wax remover solvent.

2 Apply paste or liquid wax to the thoroughly dry floor with soft cloth or a long-handled wax applier. If you use cloth, choose a large absorbent one that can be folded into a big, soft pad. A yard of cheesecloth is good. Dip cloth into jar or can of wax and pick up a generous amount of wax. Meshwork of cheesecloth holds wax so you can spread it in a thin, even coat. Use long, sweeping strokes and work with the grain of the wood. Too heavy a coating of wax is apt to make floor slippery and appear streaked. Before polishing, allow to dry 30 minutes or according to the manufacturer's directions.

3 Polish until surface is lustrous, with a weighted brush or electric floor polisher. If you've allowed the proper time for drying, the luster will come up almost instantly. A second, thin coat of wax, applied and polished like the first, adds further beauty and protection. Three wax coats give a satiny finish you can keep with a minimum of care.

4 To remove black marks and scratches, rub with liquid wax until they disappear. Treat any worn spots with a reapplication of wax. After you've polished the rewaxed area, it will blend in with rest of floor, so there's no patched effect. Stairsteps stay shining if given a frequent touch-up with liquid wax.

Daily dusting with a dry dust mop removes dust and dirt particles. Never use an oiled mop; it softens wax and leaves an unabsorbed film of grease to catch dust. If water is spilled on waxed floors, wipe it up at once or it might make a white spot which will require rewaxing.

Self-polishing waxes

Self-polishing or no-rubbing waxes have a water base instead of a solvent base as have paste and liquid polishes. They dry to a shiny finish without polishing and are easy to spread. The resulting wax film is thinner, and must be renewed more often. Self-polishing waxes are especially practical for linoleum floors and work surfaces where frequent cleaning is necessary.

Right wax for composition floors. Self-polishing waxes are also particularly suitable for use on rubber, asphalt, or composition floors, since these floor surfaces are often harmed by the solvent in many paste and liquid polish waxes. Some women like to use a self-polishing wax on all floors even though it's necessary to apply it oftener. Here are tips for applying self-polishing waxes:

How to apply

1 Clean linoleum with soap and water, let dry completely. For rubber, asphalt, and composition floors, use a cleaner approved by manufacturer of floor material. Clean a wooden floor first with cloth wrung out of cold water. Then let it dry

2 Simplest way to apply self-polishing wax is with long-handled applier made of yarn, lamb's wool, or cellulose sponge. But you may also use a soft cloth or new pliable paintbrush. Pour a little wax onto floor right out of container. Spread

Checked your gutters and downspouts?

Spring is the time to clean and repair them. Do a thorough job, so they'll last longer, work better

By Kenneth Murray

If your downspout is clogged, chances are you'll find wet leaves in an elbow. Remove elbow and clean it. Forcing leaves down might cause a worse stoppage

YOU can easily double or triple the life of the roof drainage system of your home. How? By inspecting your gutters and downspouts carefully at least twice a year, and by repairing any minor ailments before they have a chance to grow.

For best results, time your inspections to come before the heavy spring rains, and between the time when leaves fall from the trees and the arrival of snow in the fall. But be careful; there's no point in saving money on gutter repairs only to spend it on hospital bills.

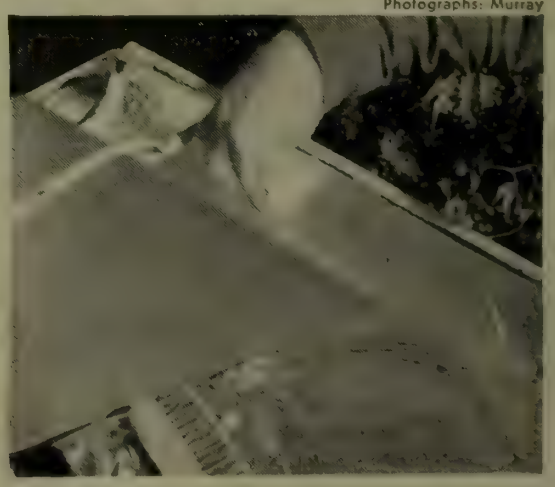
Water drains from a roof into gutters, hung on the roof's edge. Then it flows to downspouts which lead it to the ground or to a disposal system.

Hence, all gutters must be pitched slightly toward the downspout openings. You'll find that most of your gutter troubles can be traced to standing water. Water fails to run off when the pitch is lost because the weight of ice and snow forces the gutter out of line, or when the gutters and downspouts are clogged with leaves and other debris.

Even a badly rusted section of gutter doesn't necessarily have to be replaced. Four of the pictures on this page show how a rusted gutter can be renewed so it will give years of additional service. Other pictures that follow show how you can make your whole roof drainage system work better and last longer.

Long-lasting repair for a rusted gutter

1 When your gutter rusts so badly that it leaks, scrape out as much rust as you can. Do the job with a wire brush or with coarse steel wool. You should scrape away the rust on the bottom side of the gutter, too



Photographs: Murray

2 Cover inside of the rusted gutter with a good grade of asphaltum paint, diluted with an equal part of white (unleaded) gasoline for easy brushing. Let the asphaltum dry before continuing the job

3 Coat dry asphaltum with a thick film of plastic cement, using a waterproof type prepared especially for roof and gutter repairs. It is very thick and resists cracking. A 1/8-inch film is not too thick

4 Before cement sets, cover it with strips of heavy aluminum foil. Press foil down tightly with a dry cloth. Where strips of foil meet, overlap them in the direction of water flow and cement edges together

Key to a better tomorrow

It's clear that the 1949 models by General Motors are definitely ahead of yesterday's. And there is a good reason.

It begins with GM research, which is constantly at work digging out better ways of making things and doing things.

What research discovers is the starting point for better engineering and better production.

That is why General Motors has, for more than a third of a century, maintained the largest research department in the automotive industry.

Because research is hard at work now, you can be sure that GM's cars of tomorrow will be even greater values than those of today.

Gutters and downspouts

Gutter pitch should be checked regularly to make sure water will drain away. You can use a carpenter's level (foreground) but it is easier just to empty a can of water into the gutter. Make sure water flows away quickly, and that there are no pockets in which water can be trapped

To correct gutter pitch, just bend gutter hangers up or down slightly as required. You will find the pitch often needs correction in the spring due to winter's load of ice and snow

Rusted hangers may throw gutter out of line. Replace them, using zinc-coated shingle nails to fasten roof strap. Bend front end of the strap underneath the gutter until it locks into the slot provided. Straps that are not concealed by shingles can be painted to match your roof

A ladder needs remodeling if you use it for working on gutters. A short ladder rested against the house is awkward and dangerous; a long ladder may bend the gutter. To overcome these difficulties, bolt two short sections of 2x4 lumber to the sides of ladder, at the angle shown. Test ladder thoroughly to make sure supports hold it without wobble

Wet leaves and dirt in a gutter clog it up and accelerate rusting. You can do a good job of cleaning them out with a whisk broom. This job should be done several times a year, especially after the leaves fall

Prevent clogging of your drainage system, install strainers at each point where the gutters are connected with downspouts. You can buy these strainers at your neighborhood hardware store

Downspouts are often held with concrete at the top of a draintile. These are impossible to remove and clean. A better way is to drop a downspout loosely into a smaller tile which is cemented into the drain. Then you can easily remove the downspout for cleaning or replacement as needed

If the bottom end of a downspout is not connected to a drain, add a length of pipe to lead water away from the house. That will protect the foundation footings, basement walls, and shrubbery, and may eliminate a bad source of moisture inside the basement

Garbage Gone ··· Like That

No more trips to the garbage can—no more household pests attracted by garbage!

Hotpoint Disposall

Eliminates Garbage the Modern Way!

NOW, you can end forever the old-fashioned, unsanitary job of collecting garbage! With the new Hotpoint Electric Disposall® you simply scrape table refuse into the drain and turn on the cold water. The Disposall shreds it to bits and washes it down the drain. This efficient, automatic waste disposer is safe, odorless, self-cleaning—costs amazingly little to operate. Let your Hotpoint dealer show how economically the Disposall can be installed in practically any sink.

HOTPOINT INC. (A General Electric Affiliate), CHICAGO, 44

1 Simply remove control cover and scrape table refuse into drain opening. Replace control cover and turn handle to ON position.

2 You turn on the cold water, which automatically starts the action. Table refuse is shredded to bits and washed down the drain.

- More than 125,000 in use
- Costs less than 10c a month to operate
- Full year warranty
- Can be used with any sewage system, including septic tanks and cesspools

3 Here's how the Disposall looks and performs. Arrows show how waste goes down drain.

FLOWERS and CANDY?

"What's wrong with flowers and candy for my own little wife?"

"Nothing, to be sure. But am I supposed to receive them in a forgiving or a festive mood?"

"Festive, my suspicious pet. We're celebrating tonight — celebrating my freedom from worry and your freedom from care. You are looking upon a man with Insured Income!"

"George, what have you been up to?"

"I'm trying to tell you. Today I fixed it up with Mutual Life so that no matter what may happen to me, you'll always have a regular monthly income—and if nothing happens to me, we'll have money enough for a comfortable retirement later on. Thanks to Mutual Life's Insured Income planning, I can manage it without straining the budget at all. That, I maintain, is worth celebrating."

"Modern Maple — Mayflower Background" Living Room, Illustrations, Pages 72-73

This hospitable living room is glowing with color. The red chintz in an over-scaled check and the soft green walls set off the soft, mellow tones of the maple furniture in delightful fashion.

For the paints to achieve this color scheme, we suggest.

Walls: Kyanize Clingcote Flat Enamel in Lime Green (1 quart Deep Color Forest Green to 1 gallon Clingcote Standard White, No. 500).

Woodwork: Kyanize Lustaquik Enamel White.

Ceiling: Kyanize Clingcote Flat Enamel, Color No. 500, Standard White.

Note: Tell your Kyanize dealer the approximate dimensions of each area to be painted. He will tell you how much of each paint to buy.

Color Recipes are issued monthly by the makers of Kyanize Self-Smoothing Paints.

To get privacy in a room without sacrificing daylight, try this: Cover the existing window glass with a sheet of opaque glass, cut to the right size at the glass store. To install, first glue small rubber or wood separators at about eight points around the sash to hold the two panes of glass apart. Put the opaque glass in place, and secure it there with thin strips of molding, nailed around the edge. Incidentally, the dead-air space between the panes will reduce heat loss. Robert Hoppough, Waukegan, Illinois.

ture frames made at home, with hand ls, don't always fit precisely at the mitered ners. When you get a poor fit, don't throw frame away. You can hide the results of ur miscalculations behind short pieces of ided rope. Glue the pieces in place over the rner joints, and secure them further with ads. You'll find this will make the frame at- ctive, besides covering up your error. George mstrong, Billings, Montana.

When you cut glass, you may find that your straightedge slips just when you bear down on the cutter. Here's what you can do about it. Screw two clamps to the end of your workbench, far enough apart so the waste portion of the sheet of glass can slide between them. Then rest the straightedge against the clamps as you draw the cutter along the glass. John Robertson, Key West, Florida.

Make the cement by dry- ixing an ounce of litharge (from the drug- tore) with an equal volume of Portland cement. tir in an ounce of glycerine. Turn off the water, orce the cement into the break, smear it around he pipe. Wrap pipe around the break with can- as, and bind it tightly with wire. Alden Stahr, Basking Ridge, New Jersey.

When you store lumber that you don't plan to use for awhile, brush melted paraffin or rub the wax from a candle into the end grain. That will seal the fibers against moisture, assuming the lumber is dry to start with, of course. How a Kentile floor makes any room more beautiful!

Notice how this Kentile floor "blends together" all the colors of this room—the walls, the closet, the accessories—into a perfect decorating picture. Color harmony like this can be yours, in any of your rooms. Kentile makes it easy.

Unlike most floors, Kentile comes in squares that can be put together into any combination of colors and designs you wish. Your Kentile dealer can show you countless patterns you may alter to match your room. Or he will show you how to put the Kentile squares and colors together into a new floor design—original with you. You can be sure of this: — you'll get exactly the floor you want. Kentile is custom designed to your own taste.

Unlimited color design is just one of Kentile's built-in virtues. In addition, it is durable—so durable it should last as long as your home. Its beautiful colors can't possibly wear off because they go clear through. It's all floor, contains no felt or other backing. Easier to clean, too — the smooth Kentile surface repels dirt.

You might expect a floor like Kentile to be expensive. Decidedly not—many ordinary floors cost more than Kentile. Ask your dealer for full details.

1. Call Western Union by number and ask Operator 25 for the name of your nearest Kentile dealer. 2. Visit him and see for yourself how beautiful and inexpensive Kentile is . . . He will give you a Free estimate on the Kentile flooring you choose. 3. Design your own Kentile Floor on the "Kenstyler", the floor-designing cabinet shown above.

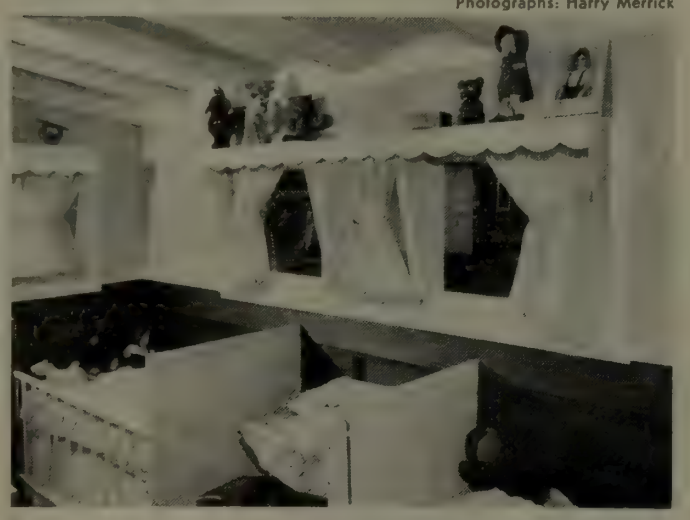
Window wall adds height to the front of house, breaks low eave line. Dale and I made the brick flower box one Sunday and two evenings



We built our house of weekends

By Emily Walling

Our living room is 14x14, and its large window area lets us see some beautiful sunsets. In fact, they're about all we had to look at until we had time to line the walls and paint them

Photographs: Harry Merrick

Because girls' nursery is only 6x12 feet, cribs, toy chest, and wardrobe were built in. One of these weekends, Dale is going to make blanket drawers and a chest for the room

WE STARTED building our house before we really owned the lot it was to stand on.

There was a good reason for our haste. Like thousands of young couples with children, we had been living in motels and apartments. The winter of 1946 we received notice that we were to be evicted from our current home, and we had no other place to move.

In December we found a lot in Costa Mesa, California, that could be purchased for a small down payment. We were so eager to get our new home started that my husband, Dale, began building the walls in seven- and eight-foot sections—while the lot sale still was in escrow.

Working weekends and evenings after his job at a Laguna Beach lumberyard, Dale had the house ready for us to move into on our wedding anniversary, July 27. We had no gas or hot water; my daughter Judy slept in a corner surrounded by two dressers; Julie Lynne's crib was in the kitchen; Dale and I had a daybed; and the large living-room window was covered with wallboard in place of curtains. But our home was our own, and no one could evict us.

Since we moved in, Dale has built two bedrooms, a dresser, coffee table, and lined the walls. Meanwhile, I have sewed 20 yards of green percale into one piece as a curtain for our living-room window. Together we made a flower box, and put aluminum paint on the roof (Dale found out how fast he could paint when the can overturned just as we were finishing). I made the back-yard lath fence; Dale put it up, and I painted it.

WE STILL have much to do; but considering we've been doing all this on a pay check, it is going fast. And we have saved money by doing the work ourselves. Not counting our labor, it has cost us around $2,000. The average building cost in our area is $8 to $10 a square foot. We built our home for between $2 and $3 a square foot. Up to the time we moved in, we had worked about 350 hours—for which we would have had to pay hourly wages of $2.03 for carpenters, $2.11 for bricklayers, $2.50 for plumbers, and $2 for painters.

We're now at work on a combination service porch, dinette, and rumpus room on the back, which will give us a total of 770 square feet. And what is more important—it's all ours.

We made some of our own furniture, too. Here are our cost lists:

Orange Bowknots

There's orange juice and peel in the rich yeast dough and in the creamy glaze—

- 1¼ cups milk, scalded
- ½ cup shortening
- ⅓ cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 cake fresh or 1 package granular yeast
- 2 well-beaten eggs
- ¼ cup orange juice
- 2 tablespoons grated orange peel
- 5 cups enriched flour

Combine milk, shortening, sugar, and salt; cool to lukewarm. Soften yeast in this mixture. Add eggs, orange juice, and peel; beat thoroughly. Add flour; mix to soft dough. Cover. Let stand 10 minutes. Knead on lightly floured surface. Place in greased bowl; let rise in warm place (82°) until double, about 2 hours. Punch down. Roll dough ½ inch thick; cut 10-inch strips, ½ inch wide. Knot each. Arrange on baking sheet; cover; let rise until double. Bake in hot oven (400°) 15 minutes. Spread with Orange Topping: Blend 2 tablespoons orange juice, 1 teaspoon grated orange peel, and 1 cup sifted confectioners' sugar. Makes 2 dozen.

Biscuits Supreme

They deserve their name. We've never eaten better biscuits than these—

- 2 cups enriched flour
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 4 teaspoons baking powder
- ½ teaspoon cream of tartar
- 2 teaspoons sugar
- ½ cup shortening
- ⅔ cup milk

Sift flour, salt, baking powder, cream of tartar, and sugar; cut in shortening until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Add milk all at once and stir just until dough follows fork around bowl. Pat or roll ½ inch thick; cut with biscuit cutter. Bake on ungreased cooky sheet in hot oven (450°) 10 to 12 minutes. These are appropriate for afternoon tea or as a base for creamed foods. Makes 16 medium-sized biscuits.

Feather Devil's Food Cake

Light and tender; extra good flavor because of the brown sugar—

- ½ cup shortening
- 1 cup white sugar
- ½ cup brown sugar
- 2 beaten eggs
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 3 1-ounce squares unsweetened chocolate
- ½ cup hot water
- 2 cups cake flour
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon soda
- ⅔ cup sweet or sour milk

Thoroughly cream shortening and sugars; add eggs and vanilla; beat until fluffy. Melt chocolate in hot water over low heat; blend thoroughly and cool slightly. Add to creamed mixture. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with milk, beating well after each addition. Place in 2 waxed-pa lined 9-inch round layer cake p Bake in moderate oven (350°) to 35 minutes. Put layers toge and frost with Fudge Frost Decorate with chopped Califo walnuts.

Fudge Frosting

Here's creamy, rich fudge—the McCoy—

- 2 cups sugar
- 1 cup water
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 2 1-ounce squares unsweetened chocolate
- 2 tablespoons light corn syrup
- 2 tablespoons butter or f fied margari
- 1 teaspoon va

Cook sugar, water, salt, ch late, and corn syrup over low h stirring constantly until sugar solves. Cover saucepan 2 to 3 m utes to dissolve sugar crystals sides of pan. Uncover and c tinue cooking to soft-ball st (236°). Remove from heat; butter and cool to lukewarm. vanilla and beat until spread consistency. If frosting becomes stiff, add small amount hot wa

Barbecued Spareribs

Make these and you'll find they're competition for those at your fav eatspot—

- 3 to 4 pounds ribs, cut in pieces
- 1 lemon
- 1 large onion
- 1 cup catsup
- ⅓ cup Worcestershire sauce
- 1 teaspoon chi powder
- 1 teaspoon sal
- 2 dashes Taba sauce
- 2 cups water

Place ribs in shallow roas pan, meaty side up. On each p place a slice of unpeeled lem thin slice of onion. Roast in oven (450°) 30 minutes. Com remaining ingredients; bring boiling and pour over ribs. C tinue baking in moderate o (350°) until tender, about 45 m utes to 1 hour. Baste ribs with sauce every 15 minutes. If sa gets too thick, add water. Serve

Brown Stew

Don't skip a single ingredient. E one contributes to the superb flav this stew—

- 2 pounds beef chuck, cut in 1½-inch cubes
- 2 tablespoons fat
- 4 cups boiling water
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1 clove garlic
- 1 medium-sized onion, sliced
- 2 bay leaves
- 1 tablespoon s
- ½ teaspoon pepper
- ½ teaspoon paprika
- Dash of allspic or cloves
- 1 teaspoon sug
- 6 carrots, quartered
- 1 pound (18 to 24) small white onions

What you'll need for flower arranging

These are the pieces you'll need to make a toolbox. The hinges fasten inside the back piece

By Henrietta Stoner

YOU'LL find flower arranging twice as easy if you keep the tools needed all together in one convenient kit. Then you'll not be scurrying around the house hunting for stray pieces of equipment or losing special tools.

A handy man can make the toolbox shown here. (See sketch.) We have designed it around three silverware trays from the dime store. For the other things you need, see below.

Photograph: Stanley

To equip the toolbox for flower arranging, you'll need (1) small hammer, sharp knife, spool of fine florists' wire; (2) needlepoint holders, roll of florists' tape, small hack saw; (3) flower clippers; (4) chicken-wire holder, rocks; (5) small pebbles; (6) stiff florists' wire; (7) block of plastic foam from the florist; and (8) three plaque-wood stands for flower bowls.

A little extra glass means a lot of extra charm

THAT'S one of the best things about decorating with glass . . . a little goes a long way. One simple application of glass in any room is usually enough to transform the room completely, to give it new beauty, smartness and vitality. The room at the right, for example, has taken on new sparkle thanks to one simple addition: fireplace paneling of Pittsburgh Plate Glass structural mirrors. The mirrors dramatize the room's charm and multiply it by reflection.

How to teach your boy or girl good manners

Begin teaching courtesy when they're toddlers. Continue through the teens. The author of "Susan B. Smooth," a popular book on manners, tells how

By Nell Giles Ahern

WHEN Susie stuffs her mouth full of food and talks through it, do you sigh and hope she'll outgrow it?

When teen-age Eddie gets into a quarrel with the girl next door because he's sick of her, and the whole thing ends in coolness between you and her parents—do you think sadly, "He'll learn"?

He won't learn unless you teach him! If you give up the fight for good manners, he'll have to wait until he is old enough to figure out that something is lacking. Then he will begin to pick up a veneer of behavior by watching other people and reading books. And it's never the same!

You have to teach good manners at home. You must keep everlastingly at it. And hardest of all, you must be a

Girls are willing—but boys are wary

Training a girl to be sweet, polite, and courteous is like training a willing vine. Girls want to be nice.

With a boy, it's different. You must appeal to his manliness, develop his pride, show him that his dad does it this way.

You must know what to expect of your boy or girl at each age level: toddler, preschool, grade school, teen-age. Each level takes a different kind of training. So begin now.

Five ways to stay friends with your neighbors

UNLESS you own an estate, surrounded by a stone wall or a moat, you probably have neighbors. They're usually wonderful folks—almost as hard to get along without as they are to get along with. Here are five time-tested planks for your own "Good Neighbor Policy"!

1. Widen your circle. Get to know all your neighbors, or at least more than one family. Be friendly, but a little aloof at first. Call a cheery "good morning" and introduce yourself to all who stray your way the day you move in, but don't get in a tizzy worrying about whether they're going to like you, and don't go wooing them. Have friends from your old neighborhood in, or people from the office.

Neighbors will court and include you quicker if you don't act like a sorry set of social dependents plopped on them. Don't get too thick with any one family. Take the Caseys and the Blairs. They were "back and forth" all the time. The women shopped and sewed together; the men shared garden plots. But the children quarreled. Now the Caseys aren't even speaking to the Blairs, much to the amusement of the other neighbors who felt left out and resented it.

2. Return favors fast. If your next-door neighbor keeps Johnny while you go to P.T.A., make haste to relieve her of Susy some afternoon. Never send a plate home empty. Maybe you can't cook like Mrs. Smithers, who's continually bombarding you with goodies, but scare up something—a few fresh eggs, a book, some flowers. Go easy on the borrowing—keep your house well-stocked with hammers, rakes, vanilla, soap, and other things that send you begging at back doors.

Such errands, if frequent, play smash with prestige. And niggling little debts can throw a wrench in otherwise smooth relationships. It's asking too much of Mr. Hoozit to remember what a swell guy you are when he's wondering what became of the fly rod he lent you three weeks ago. And you'll find yourself blushing in the presence of Mrs. Munzy when your conscience reminds you her egg beater still reposes on your shelf.

Five ways to stay friends with your neighbors

Begins on preceding page

3. Stay out of children's quarrels. If you run to Johnny's rescue every time he's getting the worst of it, some day a policeman may have to run to yours. Don't boss youngsters other than your own, but try not to bristle when your offspring gets taken into camp by Mrs. Brown. On every street there are people who think it's their duty to check on the manners and morals of other people's progeny. Train your young to be as unobnoxious as possible; don't worry too much about meddlers. Take pride in Junior, but never let other parents suspect your private conviction that he's a little genius.

Keep your hound at home and keep him quiet. Roving Rovers that playfully upset garbage cans, paw up flower beds, and chase cats up trees, do not make for undying friendships. If you go in for such quaint pets as porcupines or foxes—better find a farm!

4. "Keep yo' big mouth shut!" Tempting as it is to babble about your affairs, social, domestic, and financial, refrain. Mysterious airs are silly, but reticence begets respect. Whatever you do, resist alluring huddles wherein someone whispers, "Have you heard about the Bowsers?" Don't be bossy. Let the girls figure out how to raise their children, plan their meals, or keep their husbands, unless they ask you for advice. And don't brag—if you must have a new fur coat or a new car, say you won them in a raffle. It's bad to be someone who tries to keep up with the Joneses, but it's poison to be the Joneses others feel they have to keep up with!

5. Put your family first. Getting along with the neighbors is important, but getting along with your family is doubly so. Never let a difference of opinion about the Lutzes come between you. Never sacrifice that afternoon you promised the children at the zoo or beach just to make a fourth at golf or bridge. Remember that your own four walls and those within them are more vital to you than all the neighbors in the world. Put them first! And let the neighbors do likewise.

How to butcher a good house

By Rand E. Wright

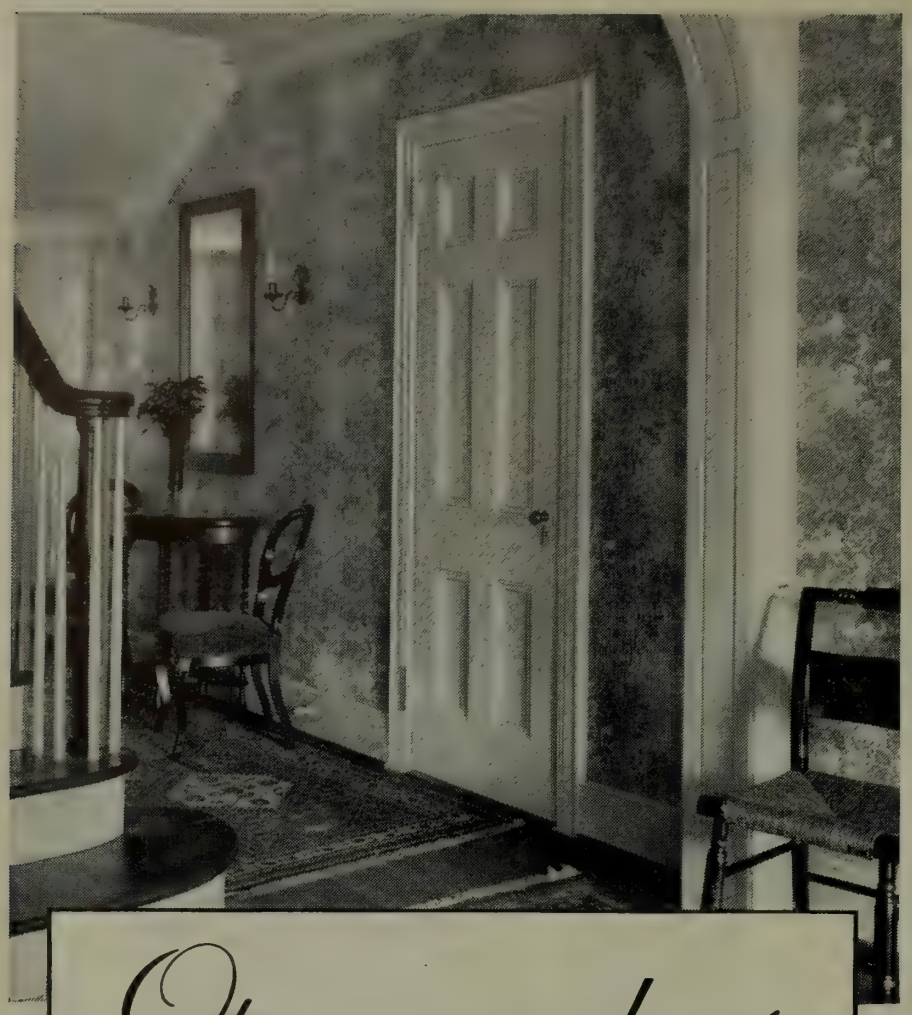
A STOCK house plan may not fit your family to a T. Minor changes may be required, and you are undoubtedly the one to decide what changes should be made.

Undoubtedly, though, you aren't the one to design the changes. That's a job for a thoroughly trained designer.

Here is Better Homes & Gardens Five Star Home No. 1612. It's small, compact, attractive. You might think it would be hard to butcher. But two readers found it easy to massacre.

▸ Our first butcher wanted four changes: a brick exterior, an entrance hall and closet, small-paned windows, and a better (?) roof line on the garage. He made changes himself.

What he didn't know was that brick often makes a small house look smaller, that small-paned windows are more work to clean and not as attractive on this house, that the house was too small for the wart he added to the front, and that the garage was well-designed to begin with.



▸ Another butcher made only minor changes, but the results were a major mess. He detached the garage to get more light in the kitchen, which left him a tiny, boxy house. He installed fixed glass adding shutter-like louvers beside the windows for ventilation. This change made the window opening much too large for the size of the house. Then he painted the house all one color, destroying the emphasis of the white trim around the front door.

▸ To prove that a change is possible, here's the home of a third couple who went to a designer for help. They, too, wanted more light in their kitchen, but got it by moving the garage back 12 feet, away from the house four feet, and connecting it to the house with a small breezeway. They also felt that a chimney, while not absolutely necessary, would make their home in keeping with others around it. So they added, not a skinny toothpick, but a full, fat chimney.

How one kitchen go

By Bob Gilmore

THREE years ago my wife and I owned this house in Corte Madera, north of San Francisco. Though middle-aged, it was sound as a 1939 dollar.

But the house had several flaws. Too few closets. No garage. Only two bedrooms (we had three children). An inadequate kitchen.

We sold the house to Mrs. Clara Taber who had two children and no car. A perfect fit, we thought. But when I stopped by a few weel ago, I found the Tabers had ove come the remaining flaw—th kitchen.

Where we had avoided the prol lem by moving, the Tabers ha solved it. So I rounded up a photog rapher and together we took pic tures to tell the story. Look ther over; your kitchen problem ma not be the same as the Tabers', bu they may give you an idea.

Photographs: Philip Fe

storage and work space

BEFORE This is how kitchen used to look. Only working space was on range, sink, and a pint-sized counter recessed under a china cupboard. Only storage space was under this counter, in the sink cabinet, in the china cupboard, and in drawers of range. Lighting was never adequate; even on brightest days we had to use both light fixtures. And to do our laundry we had to bring washing machine from porch, use sink as laundry tray

AFTER Now metal cabinets and counter units furnish needed storage and work space. Double sink has been added. Wall at left was moved over, adding two feet to width of kitchen. Wainscot of tile board replaced wood plank paneling. Old service porch was incorporated into the kitchen, and new corner windows now pour light over automatic laundry. Fluorescent light isn't needed during day, it is on only to show

AFTER Now service porch is part of kitchen, with windows that aren't supposed to hide what's behind them. Small bedroom at left has been lengthened five feet, and roof extended to protect kitchen entrance

BEFORE

Getting rid of the porch gave us a lighter living room, but the room was still far too narrow and cut up to be very attractive

We enlarged the living room to 18 by 18 by adding a steel I-beam at the corner. It carries the new roof which covers corner we built out

Good lines make an old house new

Corner windows of contemporary desig light new corner. We covered clapboard with building paper and redwood sidin

By William H. Hallenbeck

Flush siding covers all outside walls. Single door replaced French doors. Roof line was extended as archway to balance exterior

AFTER

The finished house is a far cry from what we began with. We gave the siding a coat of hard oil so it would hold its color before putting it up with galvanized nails. Trim is white with a softening touch of gray in it. Through the balancing archway you can see the carport at rear

ASIDE from the structural changes you see here, we did little to the house we bought in Lake Bluff, Illinois. Structural changes, though, make our "new" home an eye-catcher.

By filling in a corner where the porch used to be, we added 42 square feet of space to our living room, and an under-the-eaves closet upstairs. We enclosed a porch across the rear of the house to make a large utility room. Over the utility room is a deck reached from the two bedrooms we cut out of an oversized solarium. The carport at one side shelters our car but doesn't cut light out of the house.

Painting trim white brought out the color and texture of the redwood siding. Adding the arch over the driveway was our solution to the problem of overcoming the lopsided appearance of the house once the porch was gone.

"A CRAFTSPUN Lace Dinner Cloth is the perfect background to dress up your Easter table" says Mrs. M. Cochrane Cole, nationally known flower arranger

MRS. M. COCHRANE COLE

AFTER THE EASTER PARADE, a Craftspun* Dinner Cloth gives luncheon a festive air. Mrs. Cole suggests spring flowers with well-defined shapes, sharp color contrasts, in an informal arrangement. Mix various flower forms and mass colors for interest. Craftspun designs take on new charm with each fresh arrangement!

Why not give every meal a "holiday" look with this Craftspun Cloth. Even with constant use, it will give years of service. Since it does not wrinkle, and spots sponge off, you can use it over and over. The lacy weave is so firm, your Craftspun Cloth can go in the washing machine or to the laundry. Needs no ironing! You'll find Craftspun Dinner Cloths at leading stores, from $5.95 to $12.95. *Reg. U.S. Pat. Off.

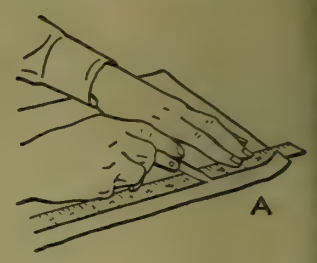
See plastic-house feature, starting on page

By Walter E. Burt

THE uses you can make of a plastic fabric in your home are limited only by your imagination.

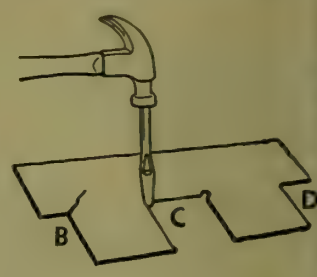
Plastic fabric makes a smooth, durable cover for an old table, desk, or door.

It can be tacked over padding to improve both looks and feel of an inexpensive straight chair.



It's an easy-to-handle material for surfacing such things as radios, metal boxes, drainboards, picture frames, even old pianos.

It can be used to make your lawn furniture virtually weatherproof.



When you shop for plastic fabrics for home use, you'll find them sold under a variety of trade names. They usually come in widths of 50 or 54 inches, in a great many colors and textures, including some that simulate leather. There are two general types—"supported," a fabric with a cloth backing on the plastic sheet, and "unsupported," without the backing. For home applications involving an adhesive, the cloth-backed type is preferable.

Photographs that follow show a number of specific handy-man jobs you may want to try. But whatever job you plan to do with a plastic fabric, here are several general tips that will help you do the job right.

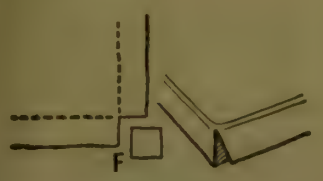
Cutting. Use heavy-duty scissors. For very straight cuts, place the plastic sheet on a smooth board, and cut it by running a sharp knife blade along a metal straightedge (Sketch A). For intricate cuts, use a sharp wood chisel.

Avoid sharp, angular cuts th might start a tear (B). Round any inside corner where t straight cuts meet (D). Professio als use a hollow punch to make tiny hole at each inside corner (C

To make decorative inser place two plastic sheets of contra ing colors together. Hold the firmly and cut the design throu both sheets at the same time. Th exchange the cutouts when y glue the plastic in place (E).

Sewing. You can sew plastic fa rics with a machine. Use a fai long stitch, say six stitches to inch, with light, even tension.

New top for an old table



To cover a scarred table or counter top, remove old cover, fill holes with wood plastic, and roughen surface with coarse sandpaper so glue will hold. Allow enough pla tic material to fit into fran grooves or to fold under and tac Spread adhesive over table surfac use plastic fabrics

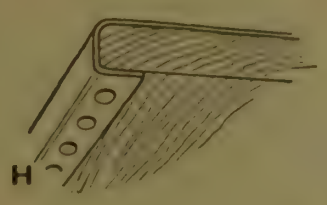
Tissue paper under the seam and talcum powder on plastic edges will prevent sticking. Use a fine needle, with plastic or mercerized thread. Run the machine slower than for ordinary sewing. On lawn furniture, use nylon thread for rot resistance.

To smooth a plastic fabric before sewing, hang it over an open door. Don't press with an iron; heat may soften the plastic.

Corners. To do a neat job of covering an outside corner, cut out a square segment of plastic so there will be no overlap (F).

By tipping the angle, you can move the joint away from the corner so it will be less likely to be pulled loose (G). Round the wood corner slightly with sandpaper.

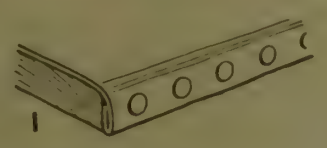


Gluing. You can use almost any good rubber cement or water-mixed glue to cement cloth-backed plastic fabric to wood. Waterproof casein glue is often used, as are the newer resin adhesives. If waterproofness is not important, any of the old reliable hide or fish glues will do the job. If you are covering a metal container, select an adhesive that will stick firmly to both cloth and metal.

The adhesive you use should be of fairly heavy consistency.

Some adhesives should be kept off the plastic surface, so test a scrap for staining. But usually you just wipe away any excess that gets on the surface, or peel it off later.

Use plenty of adhesive under inserts, trim strips, corners, and edges. Follow directions on application and drying time.



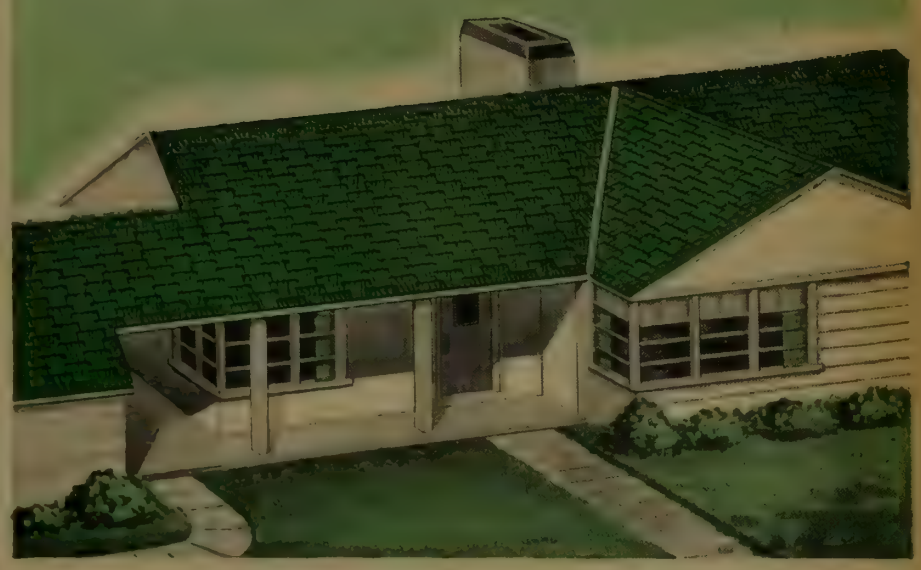
Tacking. When you cover something like a chair seat without using glue, draw the plastic fabric fairly taut, and hold it with large-headed tacks. Place tacks quite close together, say every inch or less.

Edges. Easiest way to handle the edge of a flat surface is to pull the plastic fabric over it and tack on the under side (H).

If you prefer, put a row of closely spaced decorative tacks directly into the edge (I).

Your cover will last longer if you round edges with sandpaper.

Maintenance. Clean plastic with a damp cloth, plus an occasional washing with soap and water. Use cleaning fluid to remove greasy dirt if soap and water won't do it.



Position plastic on glue-covered top and roll it down, working air bubbles toward the edges. Use a photographer's roller or improvise one by putting a short length of window-shade roller under a book. Glue or tack edges, depending on table. Let glue set for several hours.

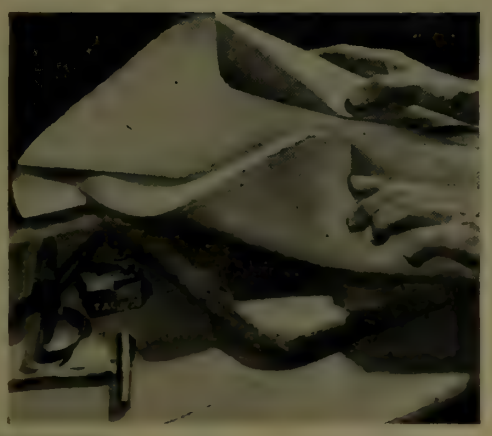
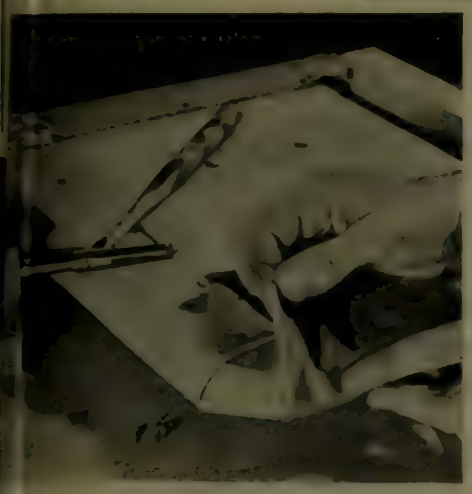
Upholstering a flat surface

A flat wooden surface suc as that of a chair back, a be headboard, a screen, or eve a door can be made mor attractive by using cotto padding and decorative tack to achieve a tufted effec First tack the plastic cove along one edge of the boar

Next, spread quilting cotton evenly over the board's surface to a thickness of about ¼ inch when compressed. Pull the plastic covering tight over this cotton and tack it to the board's other edges with small carpet tacks.

To achieve a neat finishing touch, cover the raw edge with a binding strip. Use a 1-inch strip of the plastic folded double as shown, and hold it with large-headed brass upholstery tacks spaced 1 inch apart. You could get a similar effect by merely folding under the raw edge of the cover and tacking it



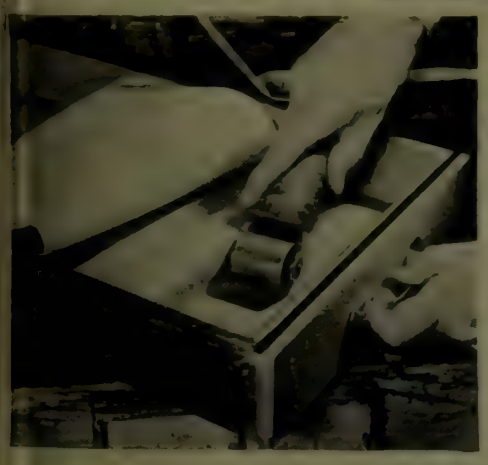


A tufted effect is achieved by driving brass upholstery tacks through the cover and the cotton padding to make a simple surface pattern.

...egins on page 190

...overing a chair seat

...d the seat of a straight ...air with inch-thick sponge ...bber, cutting pad ½ inch ...ger all around than seat. ...r make cushion of cotton, ...t, or even stuffing from an ...d chair. Bore holes in wood ...at to let the air escape.



Stretch edges of cover taut and tack to bottom of seat with closely spaced tacks. Here, a trim strip was used across back edge. Folds, as those at corner, should be as gradual and rolling as possible. If you use a sheet of unsupported plastic over sponge rubber, add layer of muslin between the rubber pad and the plastic cover.

Lining a drawer

The abrasion-resistant, easily cleaned surface of a plastic fabric makes it a durable lining for cabinet drawers, especially drawers holding kitchen equipment. For cushioning, glue thin cork sheets into the drawer first.

Fasten the plastic lining in with waterproof glue and roll it firmly into place. Tacks may be used to hold corners reluctant to stay put. For metal drawers, get an adhesive that will stick to the metal as well as cloth.

To cover a metal container, roughen metal surface with sandpaper. Cut plastic to fit, using as few seams as possible. Adhesive can be spread on metal or fabric, but it spreads more easily on fabric. Put plastic into place; roll for good contact.

The right answers can mean money in your pocket

Q. How much does insulation add to mortgage payments?

☐ 1% ☐ 5% ☐ 8½%

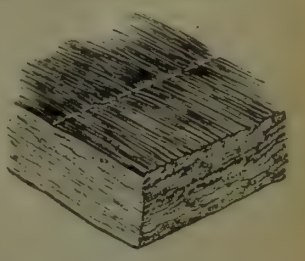
A. KIMSUL* insulation adds approximately 1% to the cost of a new house, and therefore would add about the same amount to mortgage payments—a matter of just a few cents. What's more, by insulating the walls when you build, you save from ⅓ to ⅔ on the job. Insulation installed in an existing home usually pays for itself in fuel savings within a few years.

Q. What special equipment is needed to install insulation?

☐ Truck-mounted blower ☐ None ☐ Batt-Positioner

A. With KIMSUL, no special equipment is needed. Anyone can install it. You simply expand the blanket and fasten it in place. Unlike loose-fill or blown-in types that vary in efficiency with the skill of the applicator, KIMSUL always provides uniform coverage over every inch of insulated area. No money-wasting thick spots; no thin spots where heat can leak out.

Q. What benefits may be expected from insulating?



☐ Greater home comfort ☐ Health protection ☐ Fuel saving

A. All three answers are correct. An efficient insulation like KIMSUL will make your home a healthier, more comfortable place to live. And with KIMSUL insulation installed throughout your new home, your fuel bills may be reduced as much as 44%.

Q. How often should insulation be repaired and renewed?

☐ Never ☐ After sudden temperature changes ☐ Every ten years

A. In the case of KIMSUL under normal climatic conditions—never! It will last for the life of your house. And in addition to being permanently resistant to insects, vermin and mold, KIMSUL is treated to resist fire.

It's the same house . . .

Before
This is the house in Los Angeles that my husband came home to after four years in service. It wasn't half as sturdy as it looks minus the stucco, and plus a year's work

Photographs: Peter Gowland

After A year's amateur work, and $1,500 for materials, made the difference. We got rid of the Spanish look by replacing the stucco with flush boarding, installing square-paned picture windows and a solid-paneled door. Extending the roof line across the driveway made the house look less boxy

By Ethel Dougherty

WHEN my husband, John, came back from service, he rushed up to the front door, and literally sank through the threshold. Our house was ready to fall apart.

We had to remodel, and with our limited budget, it was apparent the work would have to be done without professional help. To make the job even more complicated, we decided to change the style of the house at the same time.

John is employed by a gas company, so the work had to be done evenings and weekends. By trial and error, he learned to be architect, carpenter, bricklayer, tile setter, plasterer, painter.

My husband spent the next few months crawling underneath the house replacing weakened timbers, while I handed him lumber and nails—and located the hammer, which he always mislaid. After an inspector approved the foundation work, we started remodeling the exterior.

First we built out the front bedroom to include part of the old porch, then removed the stucco. We added a porte-cochere (my idea) to give width to the house, and for protection from the rain. Then we converted a service porch and breakfast nook at the rear into a den. We put in picture windows that double the light in the living room and bedroom.

FOR exterior wall material we used redwood siding painted yellow, with white trim around windows and the front door. To finish the job, we ripped off the tile roof, and used wood shingles for the new roof.

It took us about a year of spare time to do the work, and the materials cost us $1,500. But we spent not one cent for labor.

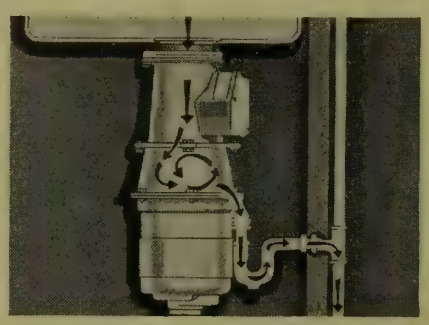
IT'S WONDERFUL— NEVER HAVING GARBAGE!

It's wonderful having the G-E DISPOSALL!*

There's everything wonderful about a garbage-free home. Your kitchen always clean. Your kitchen work so much easier. No more germy garbage can.

Wonderful having all food waste disposed of immediately right in the sink. Just see—in these pictures—how the General Electric Disposall ends the pesty nuisance of garbage:



1. Scrape all food waste—pits, peelings, fruit rinds, even chop and fish bones—into the drain opening. That's the last you see of them.

2. Lock protecting cover with a twist to the left. Notice openings in the cover for clean, flushing water to enter the Disposall as it works.

3. Turn on cold water. This automatically starts the Disposall action. Food waste is shredded into tiny particles, flushed into sewer or septic tank. The Disposall works perfectly with either sewer or septic tank.

4. Throw away that garbage can. You'll never see garbage again. You'll agree with Disposall users who say: "My kitchen's a million times cleaner," "The Disposall's my favorite appliance," "I'd never give it up!"

SEE YOUR RETAILER TODAY!

He'll be happy to give you a demonstration of how easily and efficiently the Disposall works. He'll show you how simply it can be installed in your kitchen—how it fits most every sink. Bleached to a

How you can make conversatio

By Richard R. K

WOULD you like beautiful, new-looking blon furniture for your home? You can have it with a few eve ings of work. Bleaching old, dark wood to a lighter hue a comparatively easy process. The odds are 10 to 1 you be gratified by the results you achieve.

Naturally light-colored woods, such as oak, elm, a birch, are the easiest to bleach. Walnut, mahogany, a cherry are receptive to the bleaching process. Dark woods may call for repeated applications of bleachi solution before you reach the color you want.

Bleaching an old piece of furniture begins with remo ing the old finish. Take time enough to do a thorou job; you can't bleach out streaks of old varnish.

Once the wood is stripped down, the hardest part of t job is done. These pictures show how bleaching work on an old, scratched record cabinet, originally stained deep red mahogany and covered with heavy varnish.

Photographs: Stan

1 Varnish remover is applied with an old paintbrush to doors the cabinet. The remover softens the finish and lifts it free the wood. Here taking the doors off simplified the job and made possible to work on a flat, level surface where the solution woul not run. You can improvise a bench by laying boards across saw horses. If your skin is sensitive, wear rubber gloves as you wor beautiful blonde

ieces out of dark, old furniture

2 Removing old varnish after it is loosened is a messy job at best. Give the remover plenty of time to penetrate and do its job. Then you can scrape the sludge away with a putty knife or coarse steel wool. A neater method of removal is pictured. After varnish is loosened, it is covered with wood shavings, and the residue wiped away with a dry cloth. Shavings absorb surplus liquid like a blotter. Coarse sawdust or excelsior work equally well. Be sure that you dispose of this residue; the remover may be inflammable

3 When the old finish is gone, the surface must be neutralized and any waxy residue washed away. You can do this job with lacquer thinner, turpentine, gasoline, or wood alcohol. Lacquer thinner was used here. Just saturate a cloth with the neutralizer and wash surface clean. Be sure to clean recessed corners thoroughly

Bleached to a beautiful blonde

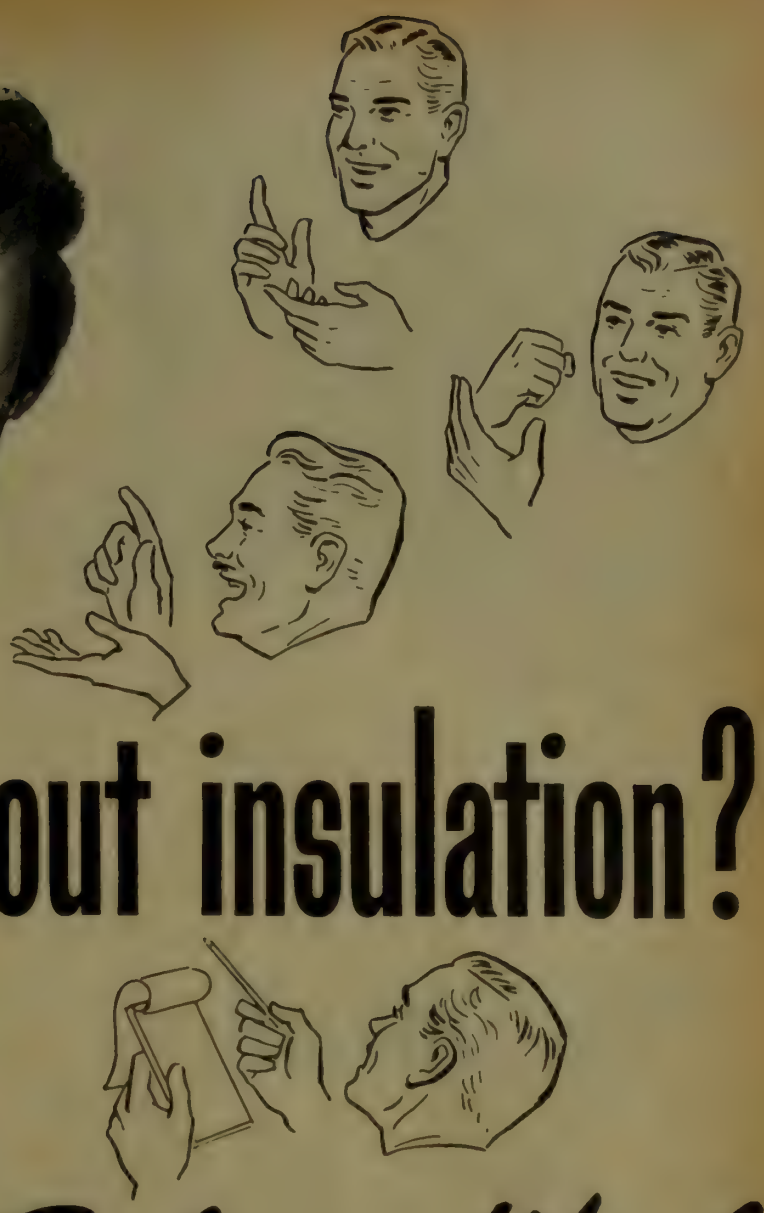
4 This is the first application of a two-solution commercial bleach. It is poured into a glass bowl, then applied with a stiff brush. Such commercial bleaches are tested preparations, more likely to satisfy you than homemade bleaches. Apply the first solution, let it stand the designated time, then apply the second solution. After this has had time to work, the wood can be lightened a bit more by washing with soap and water. On veneer, use very little water so you don't loosen the glue.



If a red stain is present, it may be necessary to use a third solution, a special stain remover, to finish the job. Red stains are likely to bleed through final finish if not removed completely. Imperfections filled with a colored filler may have to be gouged out and refilled to match the final finish. You can refill them with melted stick shellac of the right color. Fill any other deep mars in the wood too.

5 When the wood is bleached to the color you want, sand it lightly with a padded block and No. 3-0 sandpaper. This will prepare the surface for finishing. The bleaching process raises the grain slightly, so many small scratches will disappear. If stains have penetrated deeply, you may find it necessary to repeat the whole bleaching operation. The finish you select—wax, shellac, clear lacquer, or varnish—depends on the kind of wood you have

Portfolio of bookshelves

Photograph: Hedrich-Blessing

In the informal and subdued atmosphere of a den or library, soft-toned walls and a dark color for the back of shelves make books stand out. White streaks you see at the sides of the lower shelf are metal strips into which you can clamp holders, and adjust shelves to any height. Architects: Burns & James

Robert C. Cleveland

If you have this many books, you will probably need a separate room for them, or at least a book alcove. Shelves are 1¼-inch stock lumber to carry the weight. Distance between shelves is graduated, with the largest and heaviest books at bottom, most-read books near eye level. Architect: Edla Muir

Suter, Hedrich-Blessing

When shelves don't fill an entire wall, they must be in proportion to that wall. Design therefore dictated dimensions here, and space between books (if you have space left over) can be used for flowers or knickknacks. There are four cabinets with center door pulls below these evenly spaced shelves

Suter, Hedrich-Blessing

In a formal room, shelves can be white against either light or dark walls. Highest shelf should never be more than 6½ feet above floor, or shorter members of your family won't be able to reach books. If you need extra height for looks, put knickknacks there. Architect: W. L. Martling, Jr.

THOUGH you may find anything on them, bookshelves were first planned to hold books. You can build them in assorted sizes, as this collection proves once more. But the final design will depend on the number of books you have, the size of those books, and the space available for shelves.

Distance between shelves may vary from 7 to 18 inches—7 inches for pocket-sized editions, 9 to 10 inches for some novels and textbooks, up to 18 inches for atlases, albums, and bound volumes. Make shelves adjustable, if possible, to follow the changes in size as you add new books to your library.

Above all, be sure the shelves you build fit harmoniously into the architecture of your room. They can make a room look top heavy or too low, or they can create an added point of interest. If those shelves are always within easy reach, you'll do a lot of pleasant reading.

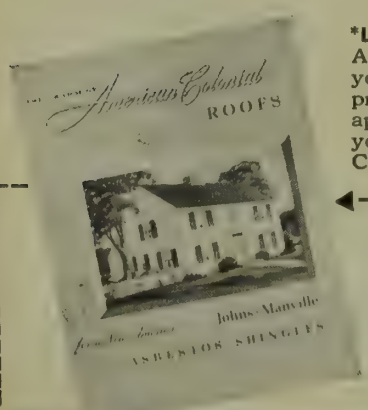
Note textured grain, staggered edges, and beautiful weathered appearance of these shingles. Come in several attractive colors.

the most Beautiful low-cost Asbestos Roof ever developed!

Johns-Manville "American Colonial"—the inexpensive asbestos shingle that lasts 35 years PLUS*



It's rotproof . . . fireproof . . . weatherproof. Permanent as stone! Not one has ever burned . . . not one has ever worn out!

JUST before the war, Johns-Manville introduced a new type of asbestos shingle—the most beautiful low-cost asbestos shingle in J-M's 90 years of roofing experience!

It's called the "American Colonial" and it has all the charm and beauty of weathered wood—yet it's made of asbestos and cement, two practically indestructible materials. Imagine a shingle so attractive also having the permanence of stone!

J-M American Colonials come in several pleasing colors to meet your preference or architectural requirements.

If you are considering a new roof for your present home, or plan to build a new home, we strongly recommend that you see your Johns-Manville dealer about this new development.

LAST 35 YEARS PLUS!—Thousands of J-M Asbestos Shingles have now been in service 35 years and more. They're still as fireproof, rotproof, and weatherproof as the day they were applied. No signs they won't last another 35 years or more! That's why we say American Colonial Asbestos Shingles last 35 years PLUS.

Shelves in a room paneled with knotty pine should be of the same material. These are only ¾ inch thick, which is permissible as long as the space between supports isn't greater than 2 feet or as long as loads on shelves are light. Black strap hinges and H-latches add to the rustic feeling in the room

Rounded shelves in this living room run from floor level to a height within average reach. Distance between shelves is identical. Some books therefore lie flat, can be used as braces for vertical books. This softens strong vertical feeling of shelves full of upright volumes. Architect: John Neikirk

Eleanor Taylor Moo

If you know exactly how you want to use your shelves, you can get a perfect fit. Here every book has its right place. Note that books a lower left could fit on lower middle shelf, but you wouldn't have roo for your fingers to pull them out. Note how dark books show off silve

An excellent spot for bookshelves is a partial partition separating two areas. Backs of the bottom five shelves are solid to create a partition that stops the view, while top two shelves have a glass back that lets light filter through. Thick shelves and supports would not blend with light furniture and simple wall treatments. Architect: H. Elliott Bredow

Of Philippine mahogany with a natural finish, these built-in shelves form a study in one corner of this living room. To extend shelves to ceiling would throw the unit out of proportion, make a wall instead of a partition, and put the top shelf out of reach. Architect: Paul Laszlo

You mean to tell me this good-looking, full length aluminum window screen sells for as little as $4.35?"

Yes, lady, and that's not all. Look at Durall's smart new design and unique trouble-chasing devices. It's flexible . . . without side frames! That makes Durall exceptionally easy to handle.

See how simply Durall slips into place from inside your house. Snap the catch at the top, turn the tension thumbscrew at the bottom and it's in, taut and trim—in seconds!

You can wash your windows without removing the screen, toss the screen in a tub for cleaning and roll it up for easy storage!

And remember, lady, Durall is hard-wearing aluminum. No rust or stains. No painting or repairs. Here are more savings to add to the dollars per screen you save in initial cost.

WHETHER YOU are planning a California Ranch House, popular Cape Cod, charming New England Colonial, smart Modern, romantic Spanish or any other style, there's no home like a concrete home. Concrete is adaptable to any size or architectural style or floor plan in any climate, and with concrete you get all of these advantages:

• FIRESAFETY—You protect your loved ones and cherished possessions when your house has concrete walls and subfloors and a firesafe roof. Concrete can't burn.

• COMFORT—You enjoy good living the year around in a concrete house because it's warm in winter, cool in summer and clean and dry at all times.

• DURABILITY—You free yourself of work and worries over frequent repairs because a concrete house requires little or no maintenance, yet preserves its new look. It defies storms, decay and vermin. Concrete floors do not creak or sag or vibrate and make a perfect base for any floor covering—hardwood, rugs, linoleum or tile.

• LOW ANNUAL COST—You pay two bills for any house: the purchase price and the maintenance expense. The first cost of concrete is moderate, the maintenance negligible. These, with its long years of service, give you low - annual - cost housing.

So whatever style or size house you plan to build, choose firesafe, enduring, economical concrete. And write today for free illustrated booklet about concrete houses, distributed only in the United States and Canada.

HOW TO GET A CONCRETE HOUSE
and what will it cost?

Phone a local concrete masonry manufacturer for names of architects and builders experienced in concrete house construction. They know conditions in your community and can answer your questions about plans and costs.

Take any plans or sketches you have obtained from any source to an architect. Have him show you how your home—of any size or style—can be economically built with concrete walls and subfloors and a firesafe roof.

Smoker's table

DOES the man of your house like to settle down after dinner with his pipe and the evening paper? Here's a smoking table for him. It's all mahogany with either a hardy, alcohol-resistant top or a glass-covered top. The leather-covered, three-sectioned compartment at the end of the table holds pipes, matches, and tobacco. And the table itself is light enough to carry about, if he changes his ideas on the most comfortable spot to smoke.

THE table has simple lines that will mix with any other furniture in your home. It's only 17 inches high and has a 13½- by 18-inch top—so you can use it anywhere, even in the smallest room.

Above you see the smoking table used beside a chair. Below, two of the smoking tables are placed end to end to make a cocktail table.

at your service

THIS month your service column is devoted entirely to answering questions on child care and training. The responses below are taken direct from the pages of the Better Homes & Gardens Baby Book.

Q How soon after birth may I take my baby outdoors for airings?

A Baby may be taken outdoors for airings after he's 3 weeks old. Up to this time it's best to let him rest comfortably in a warm room. Wrappings for his airings should depend upon the outside temperature and the weather. In summer, don't expose Baby at this age to the direct rays of the sun.

Q What emergency steps can be taken to reduce a child's fever?

A If your doctor advises, give Baby a sponge bath. Lay him on one large bath towel and have a second at hand. On his forehead place a cloth, wrung out of cool water. Sponge each part of his body several times. Dry him with the second towel. After you've sponged the front of his body, take the cloth from his forehead, turn him over, and sponge his back, using a fresh washcloth. Dry him well, put on fresh garments and get him back to bed quickly.

Q Our child seems to be healthy and strong, but he doesn't measure up to average weight and height for his age. What should we do?

A Much more important than weight and height are his posture, the color and brightness of his eyes, the strength of his muscles, the solidness of his flesh, and his animation and happiness. If these are all good, your child is all right whether he's above or below the average of the tables.

The Better Homes & Gardens Baby Book is really two books in one—a complete and authoritative child care and training guide, prenatal through sixth year; and a useful record book. More than 750,000 mothers are users of the Better Homes & Gardens Baby Book.

following the assassin's trail with her eyes. "This is where the history books really come to life."

Because Washington is magically able to make our national past live again, it is a city of reverent pilgrimage for all Americans—the four million who will go there this summer, and the 136 million others who hope someday to stroll its shady streets, walk through its museums, and stand awed by the majesty of its public buildings.

OF THOSE who make the trip this summer, more than half a million will be high-school graduates, for whom a Washington visit climaxes four years of hard work. After them will come whole families, parents and children sharing a great and impressive experience. In July and August, the peak of the season, the city is overflowing with visitors.

Since Washington has cared for tourists for nearly 150 years, and since these pilgrims form the community's second largest source of revenue (government being the first) the whole city is trained in hospitality, and its facilities are geared to the family purse. A trip to Washington represents one of the least expensive types of holiday. Perhaps nowhere else in the world can a vacationing family do so much at so little cost. In the 65 hotels, rates run from $2.50 to $14 for a couple, with the average around $7 a day.

GIRDLING the city, within easy motoring distance, are more than 2,000 tourist homes and motor courts. Within the town itself are an equal number of restaurants. And, precisely because Washington is one vast showpiece, sightseeing is completely painless.

For $1.50, for example, you can buy a streetcar pass, good for a week, and see the city's landmarks on rails. For $2.50 (short excursion) to $7.50 (all-day tours) you can sign up for conducted trips with any one of 30 licensed agencies. There are 10 thousand taxicabs available for short rides or charter, and practically all drivers double as guides.

AT FIRST sight, Washington is an overpowering city. It is the only capital of a major nation built according to a plan, and the plan at first glance seems confusing. Massive stone buildings rise from green parks. Heroes of the past, bestriding their horses, look out at the motorcars streaming past. In Rock Creek Park, primeval trees and a foaming brook form a tie with the wilderness, and highlight the miracle of this great city, which will celebrate its one-hundred-fiftieth anniversary in 1950.

As the visitor extends his stay, everything in Washington falls neatly into place—Capitol Hill and the long green reach of the Mall past the Washington Monument to the marble grandeur of the Lincoln Memorial; the tremendous government buildings; the rolling hills of Arlington, across the Po mac, where the tombstones fallen soldiers glitter in the su mer light; and the winding ribb of the river itself, arching arou the city.

Though there are more than 1 parks, buildings, museums, histo sites, and scenic points which c be visited in Washington, m visitors want first to see the Four. This grouping of nota points consists of (1) the Capit with its classic dome and ov powering blend of past and pr ent; (2) the Washington Mo ment, a 555-foot-high obelisk, t best-known landmark in Ameri (3) the Lincoln Memorial, wh our Civil War President, mass in bronze, looks out at the c through marble colonnades; a (4) Mount Vernon, home of Geo Washington, 15 miles and 35 m utes by car from the center of t city, where you contribute cents per person for the upkeep this historic mansion.

THIS year, tourists will be al to view the White House only fro its lawns. Inside, workmen a swarming through the great roo made so familiar by schoolbo pictures. A $500,000 program reconditioning is under way. A the President himself is livi across Pennsylvania Avenue Blair House. This classic fou story stucco building, in its historic, is visible from the stre but there are no facilities for vi tors.

It may be late autumn, or eve midwinter, before the White Hou is again open to pilgrims, some 4 million of whom have walke through its public rooms, but a the other great buildings of Wash ington will be ready to receiv their owners.

IN ANY case, whatever yo choose to do in Washington, wher ever you decide to spend the da it's difficult to ignore the dome the Capitol, towering over th city. In more than one sense, th great structure and its flankin office buildings inevitably wi form the focal point of your visi

How really to see Washington

TO DO Washington in a day is unpardonable; to sample it in three days is perhaps possible; but to feel a part of this great capital city you must plan to stay for a week, if not longer. "It is impossible to know Washington unless you devote seven days to your study," says Harry T. Thompson, Assistant Superintendent of the National Capital Parks.

The question then is: How to plan for a week in Washington? Seasoned residents, accustomed to showing off their city, pretty much agree on the schedule outlined below. Clip it out and file it in your scrapbook of vacation plans.

1st day

Walking tour on Capitol Hill. Visit the House Office Buildings, the Library of Congress, the Folger Shakespeare Library, the Supreme Court, the Senate Office Building, the Botanical Gardens, and the Capitol itself, all free.

2nd day

By auto, drive from Capitol Hill to the Washington Monument. Take the elevator to the observatory platform, to see all Washington at your feet. Go on to the Jefferson Memorial, the Pan American Union; drive past the White House; visit the Corcoran Art Gallery; the Commerce Building, with its aquarium; the Department of Justice, where F.B.I. "gang-busting" exhibits will fascinate the youngsters; the National Archives, with still vacant shrines for the Constitution and Declaration of Independence (Congress declines to let them leave the Library of Congress); and the National Gallery of Art, with one of the world's great collections. All of these also are free.

3rd day

By auto, to the National Academy of Science, with exhibits the youngsters can operate themselves; to the Lincoln Memorial, most-visited of all Washington attractions; across the Potomac to Arlington Cemetery and the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, as well as Robert E. Lee's mansion (10 cents); to Alexandria, where the village life of 150 years ago has been preserved; and end the day at Mount Vernon (25 cents).

4th day

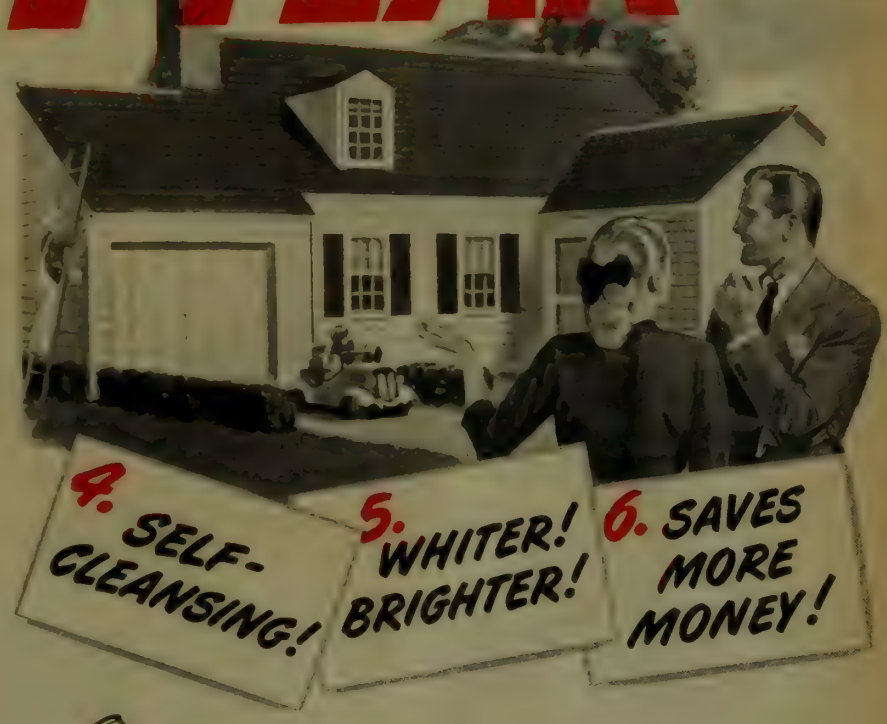
By auto to the Bureau of Engraving, where stamps and bonds thunder from the presses; to the Tidal Basin, a placid barrier between East and West Potomac Parks, where the cherry trees blossom in early April; to the Freer Gallery; and, finally, to the Smithsonian Institution, the New National Museum (natural history), and the Old National Museum (inventions, personal relics of the presidents).

5th day

By car to Ford's Theater and the Petersen House, across the street, where Lincoln died (10 cents each); to Meridian Hill Park, a remarkable formal garden; along "Embassy Row," home street of diplomats, to the National Zoo; to the Naval Observatory, where clocks that determine standard time are housed; to the Washington Cathedral, rearing its half-finished bulk high on Mt. St. Albans; across to Georgetown, a section that cherishes its Colonial past; and downtown to LaFayette Square, across from the White House.

6th day

By car to the Government Printing Office, one of the greatest publishing houses in the world; out, leisurely, through Rock Creek Park, often described as the most beautiful big-city recreation area in the world; eastward to Catholic University and the nearby Franciscan Monastery with its replica of the Roman Catacombs (25 cents for guided tour); through the National Arboretum, a park filled with remarkable trees; and then on to Annapolis, an hour away, the site of the Naval Academy.



7th day

Sunday services in a number of historic churches, including the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church (Lincoln's pew) and St. Patrick's, the oldest Catholic church in Washington proper. Then drive 13 miles up the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal to the Great Falls of the Potomac. As an alternative, ride up a section of the Canal on a mule-drawn barge (60 cents for adults, 30 cents for children) or make a boat trip down the Potomac.

pressive House and Senate chambers; from the great stairways to the reception rooms, the Capitol is a building rich in tradition and eternally impressive. You may remember its grandeur; your youngsters are most likely to recall Statuary Hall, where a whisper on one side can be heard clearly on the other.

The Capitol itself, like other public buildings, can be efficiently seen on an hour's guided tour (cost 25 cents) but even after that is over you may want to go back and wander around on your own. And then, having completed your study of this building, whose cornerstone was laid in 1793, you will walk across to the Library of Congress.

The six million books in this immense building may seem impressive initially, but to most Americans the Library is notable because it enshrines, in glass cases, the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution. To visitors, there is a further point: The Library is open until 10 o'clock in the evening. All other major public buildings close at 5 p. m.

FROM the Capitol, it is just a step to the Folger Shakespeare Library, with rare folios on exhibition; the Supreme Court Building (Court is in session October to May) and the Botanical Gardens, where tropical ferns and great palm trees bring the South Seas into the city. Nearly every month in the year, there are flower displays here.

There are intervening buildings you will want to visit, but the Washington Monument, visited by a million Americans each year, is second only to the Capitol in its universal appeal. For a dime, you are carried up to the observatory under the roof, just beneath the pyramidal cap. As you ride upward, a recorded voice tells you the history of this structure (tallest masonry structure in the world; started in 1848, completed in 1885).

"There used to be the darndest chattering and yammering going on in this elevator," says Parks Superintendent Thompson, "but the moment we installed this recording, everyone became silent. It puts people in the proper mood to appreciate this monument."

THE custodians of the monument have their own private troubles with it: People scribble their names, in lipstick or pencil, on the walls of the staircase descending from the top, and this keeps a cleaning crew busy almost all the time; the thin slabs of stone on the outside have a tendency to crack away, and replacement work is regularly needed.

Across the Mall is the Smithsonian Institution, founded in 1846 on the gifts of an irascible Englishman whose own country ignored him—James Smithson, who never set foot in the United States. This red brick, rambling structure always has been charged with argument. For years, its directors refused to accept the unmistakable evidence that Wilbur and Orville Wright had flown the first airplane. Instead, they gave precedence to Samuel Langley, whose plane hangs in the great center hall.

Visitors this year will see the end of the argument—the Wright Brothers' plane, with a description underneath which acknowledges their primacy in the air. For years, this historic piece of mechanism has been in England, it has come back as a gesture of good will. From outside, the Smithsonian is memorable because it is one of the few public buildings in Washington not built in the traditional Graeco-Roman style.

STRICTLY speaking, the Smithsonian is a group of buildings, comprising the main structure, the Old National Museum, and the New National Museum. The whole family will find this a fascinating place. In the Old Museum the history of the telegraph, telephone, sewing machine, and many military weapons is graphically shown with real working models. Wives and daughters will linger at the exhibit of wax figures showing the actual costumes of presidents' wives, beginning with Martha Washington; every member of the family will pause to look reverently at the original flag which floated over Fort McHenry and inspired Francis Scott Key to write The Star Spangled Banner.

The New Museum, across the Mall, is jam-packed with exhibits of American animals in their native settings; with models of early American Indian villages; and with nearly a million plant specimens. There are so many things to be seen in the Smithsonian group that it is all too easy to overlook important exhibits. For this reason, it's a good idea to allot half a day, if you can, to a leisurely tour.

DOWN the Mall, looking both toward Arlington and the Capitol, is the Lincoln Memorial. Up its steps come nearly two million visitors a year—in daylight, when Lincoln seems to retire behind the shadowy pillars; and until 9 at night, when floodlights bathe the 19-foot-high statue.

Custodians here have no trouble with vandalism. "The statue seems to overawe them," says one guard. "People come up the last steps as if they were walking into a church." On a warm day, a visitor who puts a hand against one of the walls will be surprised to feel heat coming through. Concealed pipes warm the walls to prevent condensation and to save visitors from a drenching.

Next month, in particular, the Lincoln Memorial is seen at its most dramatic, rising over the pink flood of the cherry blossoms alongside the Tidal Basin. Half a million outsiders come to see this great natural spectacle, and the city marks the occasion by a Cherry Blossom Festival.

ment horticulturists, studying buds and records impartially, have succeeded in predicting the blossoming of the trees within a day or two. Usually, the date is close to April 15. Washington newspapers run daily reports; and the whole city waits breathlessly for this annual miracle.

Since the government doesn't want its visitors to go away disappointed, its scientists have even devised a method for keeping the petals on the cherry blossoms. By using a hormone spray, the petals have been held on the trees for as long as 10 days, and they have resisted even the torrential storms which occasionally beat down during April.

TO THE summer visitor, particularly the visiting family, East Potomac Park has a particular significance. Hard by the Tidal Basin is a government tourist camp. Here, in comfortable cabins, a family of four may live for $2 a night, plus $1.05 for the first night for sheets and pillowcases. This is a little-known facet of Washington housing, but it is generally filled to capacity. It's advisable to write to the National Capital Parks, Washington, three weeks in advance of your visit to insure a reservation.

From the park, speedboats operate daily for a view of the city from the water. Rates are low: 60 cents for adults, 30 cents for children. The "Potomac Clipper," a full-size sight-seeing boat, makes 1½-hour scenic trips four times daily, at a charge of $1.15 per person. All such prices are regulated by the government.

SUCH a week as that described on page 213, even with side trips to places you may cull from the scores of guidebooks sold or distributed free in Washington, by no means exhausts the variety that is Washington. There are military band concerts on the steps of the Capitol three nights a week, with the floodlit dome seeming to float in space above the listeners. At the Water Gate, beside the Arlington Memorial Bridge, you may rent a canoe for $1.50 an hour and listen to symphony concerts while afloat on the Potomac.

To the motoring visitor, Washington can be either a delight or a dilemma. From 7:45 to 9:15 a.m., and from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m., roads leading in or out of town are jammed with government workers, and streets downtown are fairly well clogged. It's best to do your touring out of hours—before or after the times specified above.

THOUGH parking regulations are rather stringent, and the signs may seem confusing, police are patient and helpful with out-of-towners who unintentionally violate the law. A visitor who parks in a restricted space is practically never tagged. If you lose the way, or you want to find how to get to a specific place, just lean out of the car window and shout at the nearest passer-by. Washingtonians are courteous, and they're glad to help.

Your vacationing family, back

All kinds of windows

and what each will do

By Malcolm Graeme Duncan, A. I. A.

THE windows you need in your home depend on t service those windows must perform. No two types windows operate alike. Some work up and down, son work sideways. Others swing out; still others project o or in.

You can buy windows that let you see out, yet gua your privacy; let in air, yet don't let furnishings get we give rooms lighting without glare or contrast.

How are such things accomplished? The illustratio in this article show the variety of windows available you, how they work, and where to use them.

aking this picture window are double-hung sash to provide ventilation

Double-hung

Standard type

uble-hung. Most common among all types of windows ll is the double-hung window, available in wood, alum-um, or steel. It gives you a maximum ventilation of ly 50 percent of the window opening, but you can take at 50 percent in three ways; all near the ceiling, all ar the floor, or half and half. With proper weather-ipping this type of window is snug and windtight, yet ill operate easily.

You can screen a double-hung window with flat, full-ngth frames on the outside, or with roll screens on the side. Or you can use a combination screen and storm indow permanently fixed on the outside.

Though double-hung windows are the lowest in cost, ey have two drawbacks. Unless your roof has a good verhang, you have to close them whenever it rains and lows at the same time. You can't avoid the horizontal eak between top and bottom halves [Turn to next page of the window. In houses of colonial design, this horizontal line is effective in helping reduce the height of a story-and-a-half or two-story house. In houses of more contemporary design that are only one story high, vertical window lines are important in controlling the appearance of the house.

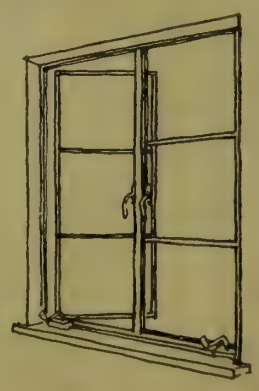
There are variations of the double-hung window which solve some of the problems. One type has the bottom pane of a four-pane window hinged at the bottom and held in place with spring catches. With the window itself closed and locked, you can still have ventilation through this projecting-in bottom pane. And you can wash all panes from the inside.

Opens horizontally

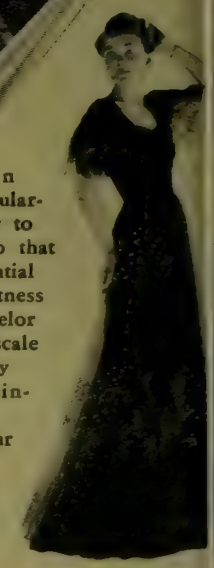


Sliding windows. A sliding window opens horizontally instead of vertically. It runs on a track in the sill, and one window swings out and past the other, leaving half the window opening free for ventilation. Screens are mounted outside the windows; storm sash fits inside. This type of window is made only in wood.

Sliding windows are attractive in appearance, and look well in pairs or in groups. You can get them with or without muntins (strips between panes), and because of their vertical lines, they are particularly well adapted to low-flung, one-story homes.

You can easily lift the windows out for cleaning. They don't project beyond the wall, are therefore not subject to strong wind pressure. They are made in a wide variety of sizes, and are weather-tight. Snow and freezing rain have no particular effect on their operation.

These swing out



Casements. Windows that swing from the jamb and open out perpendicular to the house are casements. They move on pivots or hinges operated by a lever or crank at the sill, and give you the full ventilating value of your window opening. They come in steel, aluminum, or wood. Both screens and storm windows fit inside the casements, and are notched at the bottom for the window crank.

Like sliding windows, casements are very attractive, especially in groups. They are excellent for ventilation in warm climates because they corral any breeze. Because they do open into the weather, maintenance costs are higher than for other types of windows. Casements come in a wide range of sizes, and have the advantage of being easy to wash from the inside.

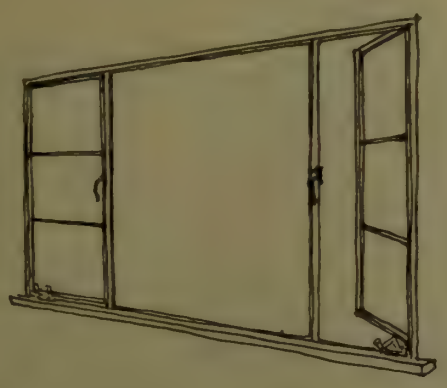
Awning type. Used for many years in hospitals, schools, and industrial plants, the awning-type window has only recently been adapted to home use. Like a series of casement sashes lying on their sides, one above another, they swing outward together, giving 100 percent ventilation but at the same time affording protection from rain when open. They operate on pivots at the jambs and open when you turn a crank in the sill. They are made of aluminum, wood, and steel. Both screens and storm windows fit inside.

Gives full ventilation

Awning-type windows are most effective when used in small groups. Because of their common industrial use, too many may make a home look like a factory. A breakfast alcove or a hallway are excellent spots for this window—where ventilation is important and privacy is not.



No drafts here

Combination windows. Where privacy and ventilation are both important, as in bedroom or bathroom, a combination of the casement and awning windows is a good answer. This type of window comes in three parts: Two casement sashes that are side-hinged and open out, and one bottom-hinged section which opens in.

With this type of window you can get anywhere up to 100 percent ventilation; you have air without rain coming in with it; you catch any stray breeze; and you can control the window opening so you get no draft. Flat screens for the casement part of the window fit on the inside; for the projecting section they fit on the outside.

For light and view

Glass walls. A lot can be said in favor of concentrating windows in groups, rather than having a series of single windows dotting the walls. You not only get more uninterrupted wall space, but you get a more even distribution of light.

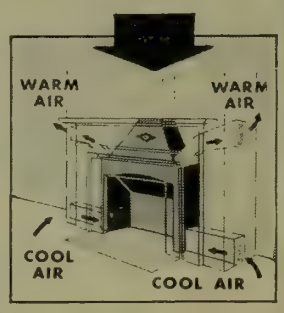
Warms ALL the Room On Cool Spring & Fall Days



THIS

actually circulates heat;

The Heatilator* Fireplace works on the principle of the warm-air furnace. It actually draws cool air from the floor level, heats it, and circulates it to far corners, even into adjoining rooms. It warms the entire room uniformly and comfortably, banishes chilly floors and drafty corners.

Helps Cut Fuel Costs

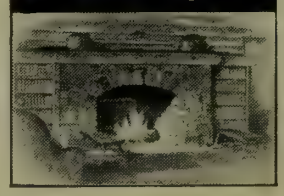
In thousands of homes, the Heatilator* Fireplace makes furnace fires unnecessary on cool spring and fall days. It keeps the entire house comfortable, saves the waste and bother of starting and re-starting the furnace, cuts dollars from fuel bills.

Used and proved from coast to coast, the Heatilator Fireplace is indorsed by thousands of enthusiastic owners. Many claim it is the only heating equipment needed by most homes in mild climates.

Will Not Smoke

The Heatilator unit is a scientifically designed steel form that serves as a form for the masonry of any style fireplace. It assures proper construction, eliminates common faults that cause smoking.

Add Little to Cost



Complete from floor to flue, the Heatilator Fireplace unit affords substantial savings in labor and materials; adds little, if any, to the cost of the finished fireplace.

Your fireplace must serve you a long time, so insist upon this unit that has been proved for 21 years in thousands of homes and camps all over America. The Heatilator name on the dome and on the damper handle is your protection—accept no substitute. Sold by leading building material dealers everywhere. Mail the coupon now for complete information.

Heatilator Fireplace

* Heatilator is the reg. trade mark of Heatilator, Inc.

For Camps

Makes camps and summer homes livable weeks longer every year . . . earlier in spring, later in fall, and for winter week-ends.

Basement Rooms

Solves the difficult problem of heating basement rooms. Warms recreation rooms, and hobby workshops quickly and thoroughly.

All kinds of windows

Extreme contrasts of light and dark will tire your eyes while a broad band of windows will fill your rooms with a uniformly high level of daylight. If you think you will have too much light, remember this: With ample windows, you can always reduce the amount of light by pulling a drapery, but with small windows you can have just so much light and no more. As a test, find out in how many rooms you can see comfortably without a light on a cloudy day.

You get properly balanced ventilation through bands of windows in a number of ways. You can have each window operative, but you don't need that much ventilation, and you lose the chance for a fixed picture window. One of the most popular solutions is the group of three windows with the center window fixed and the two at the ends either casements or double-hung. This arrangement gives you good ventilation, an unbroken view from the window, and pleasant proportions that are easy to drape or curtain.

Louvers at sides

Louvers below sill

Fixed sash and louvers. Many architects have completely divorced the ventilating function of a window from the functions of admitting daylight and providing vision. The result is a large, fixed glass area combined with screened louvers and hinged or sliding ventilating panels. You can locate these panels above, below, or at the sides of the glass, depending on the proportions of the exterior wall and the room itself.

You have glass free for unobstructed vision and for maximum daylight unclouded by screens. You don't have to close windows when it rains; louvers are rain-tight, even with a good wind blowing. You don't have to fuss with screens; they are permanently in place either just inside or just outside the louvers. You don't have to struggle with storm sash; simply double-glaze your picture window. If you want to leave the house and lock it up, whether for a two-hour shopping trip or a two-week vacation, you don't have to shut out air to keep out burglars. Curtains never have to get in the way of the breeze, and therefore won't be soiled by rubbing on the screens.

Only Wallace Sterling ... like Sculpture ... is lovely from every angle

SCULPTURE, "YOUNG GIRL," BY JEAN ANTOINE HOUDON, CIRCA 1800. COURTESY OF METROPOLITAN MUSEU

Only Wallace Sterling ... like Sculpture ... has

Third Dimension Beauty

When you go shopping for sterling, you will find that these five Wallace designs, created by William S. Warren, famous designer, are among the most popular silver patterns in America today. That's because their designs are so distinctive ... because they are the only silver patterns with the "Third Dimension Beauty" of sculpture — beauty in front, beauty in profile, beauty in back. Before you select your silver, hold a piece of Wallace Sterling in your hand and turn it slowly around. You'll find loveliness from every angle ... beauty from every possible perspective. This sculptural quality of "Third Dimension Beauty" is found in no other sterling but Wallace ... America's most sought-after silver.

Left to right: Grande Baroque, Sir Christopher, Grand Colonial, Stradivari, Rose Point. Six-piece place settings from $27 to $35, according to pattern.

ll kinds of windows

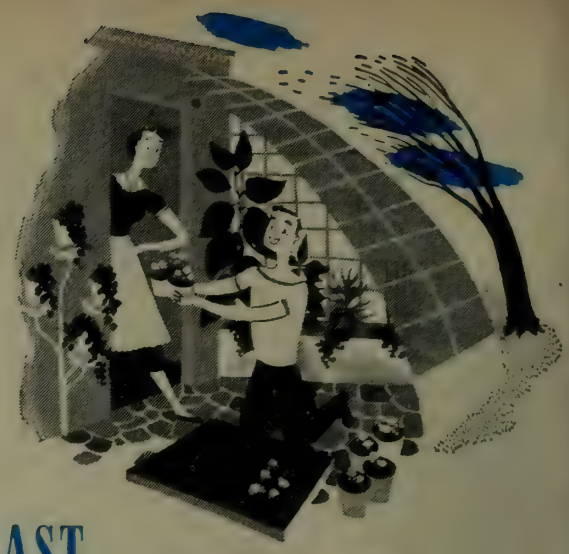
High for privacy

Strip windows. One way to handle windows in a small room with little wall space, or a room without any view, is to use strip windows. You can buy them in three styles —sliding, projecting out, and projecting in. You will find greatest use for them in a bedroom or on the street side of a living room where the street is heavily traveled. These windows give the light and ventilation you need without reducing privacy, and don't interrupt your wall space.

Minimum sill height should be about four feet. Wall space below can be used for beds, dressers, or bookshelves. High windows sometimes bring in a lot of glare with light, so unless you have a generous roof overhang or a trellis, you'll need some sort of light control such as blinds or traverse curtains.

Corner with a purpose



Corner windows. Though not as popular as they were 10 years ago, corner windows still serve a purpose—to give privacy in a room otherwise in full view from a neighbor's rooms. Or, if you have a fine view (not of your neighbor's room) from one corner of your house, why pass it up by using more conventional locations for windows?

One good corner arrangement is a combination of fixed and operating sash. Fixed glass at the corner, with ventilating sashes at the ends farthest from the corner, give cross ventilation as well as a continuous band of light. You also get as much unbroken wall space as possible.

Unbroken wall space is something to think about, too. You've probably tried to place furniture in a room with windows in the wrong place—a pair of sashes too close together for a divan between; or so far from your corner chair that you need lights on to read in the daytime; or the kitchen window so placed that your shadow falls on the range as you cook a meal. As you plan locations, widths, and heights of your windows, keep in mind what you want those windows to do for you and that room.

MARCH GARDEN GUIDE

In all sections:

- Repair and seed lawns
- Finish pruning hardy shrubs
- Feed complete high-nitrogen plant food to trees lacking vigor
- Apply lime where needed after forking in fertilizer
- Remove matted leaves on lawn, garden, and flower beds
- Straighten young trees before soil dries and becomes stiff

SOUTH

Start feeding and spraying roses as soon as first growth appears. Feed three times this spring with about 4 pounds of complete plant food per 100 square feet of rose bed at each feeding. Prune right after date of last killing frost in your area. Cut bush roses to 10 inches, but don't prune climbing roses until after they have bloomed.

Keep ryegrass lawns mowed so they won't shade out summer grasses which are just beginning to grow. Feed all types of lawns at least twice during spring, once now and again in May. Use 50 pounds pulverized sheep manure and 25 pounds of a good plant food for each 1,000 square feet.

Feed spring-flowering bulbs when in full bloom to insure growth of good bulbs for next year, 5 pounds of complete plant food for each 100 square feet of bed.

Kill weeds with hoe and 2,4-D before they get a start.

Feed azaleas and camellias and make sure they have at least 4 inches of mulch as they near the end of blooming.

—W. Elbridge Freeborn

TEXAS-SOUTHWEST

Divide fall-blooming perennials such as Shasta daisies and chrysanthemums. Plant zinnias, marigolds, and other tender annuals after the middle of the month. Set out seedlings of alyssum, coreopsis, petunias, verbenas, and similar flowers started indoors as soon as danger of late frost in your area is past.

Prune flowering shrubs (spirea, althea, vitex) as soon as possible to insure summer bloom, especially if pruning wasn't done after last season's flowering.

Fertilize and spray fruit trees and prune off deadwood.

Prune roses; remove old canes from climbers to help control mildew; feed and spray.

Re-sod barren and thin spots in the lawn.

Prepare beds for later planting of dahlias. But be sure not to work the ground while it is wet.

—Marian Price Scruggs

CENTRAL-EAST

Fertilize your lawn on days when ground is frozen and clear of snow. Use a low-nitrogen plant food (such as 4-12-4) to speed root rather than top development so grass plants will have a good root system when dry weather comes.

Check wrapping on trunks of newly planted trees to make sure they haven't blown loose, since damage comes when the spring sun shines on unprotected bark of such trees.

Straighten any fall-planted evergreens that are slanting due to uneven winter settling of earth.

Sow seeds of slow-growing hardy annuals (petunia, alyssum, and snapdragon) indoors. Pinch back petunia and snapdragon seedlings when 3 inches high to make stalky plants.

Also plant hardy vegetables (head lettuce, broccoli, cabbage) indoors for transplanting next month.

Start tuberous begonia bulbs for early summer bloom (see page 54). Pot and start to force geraniums stored dry in cellar over winter. Cut the plants back so they will be stocky and keep them well watered.

—Harvey Bicknell

PACIFIC NORTHWEST

Prune roses as soon as the weather is good. Burn prunings and dead or decaying leaves; black spot and other diseases overwinter in stems and leaves. Spray rose bushes with a dormant spray after pruning and before growth begins; cover every cane and the ground around the bushes.

Plant out pansies, ranunculus, wallflowers, and most other plants wintered over in coldframes. Plant cinerarias in rich soil in shady spots after about March 25 and give them a liberal amount of water.

Kill cutworms and insects in the vegetable garden with soil fumigant but wait 10 days after fumigating before planting.

Feed lawns with complete plant food; spray with weed killer if lawn is weedy. Sow new lawns and water thoroughly if weather turns dry after seed is up.

—Ada V. Turner

CALIFORNIA

Divide chrysanthemums and keep them growing with abundant feeding and regular watering. Take cuttings of bedding plants such as coleus, impatiens, geraniums.

Prune back fuchsias to two or three pairs of eyes on each branch. Mulch fuchsias instead of cultivating, if possible, since feeding roots are near surface.

Plant gladioli, tuberoses, yellow callas, and tigridias. Sow seed of ageratum, zinnia, phlox, and other annuals.

Wrap bark of newly transplanted trees or shade them on windy and sunny sides to prevent sunscald.

—Alfred C. Hottes

EndoPest . . . provides all the pest protection most gardens need!

EndoWeed . . . for a lovely, weed-free lawn.

VIGORO—complete, balanced plant food—supplies all the essential plant nutrients grass must get from the soil for best growth and development.

Work wonders with your lawn this year with Vigoro. And remember—the earlier you feed Vigoro, the more good it will get from the application. Vigoro—complete, balanced plant food—provides in ample amounts all the essential plant nutrients growing things must get from the soil. Just apply at the rate of 4 pounds per 100 square feet. Let early spring rains work the Vigoro down deep where it will do your lawn the most good.

Here's another Vigoro plus! Vigoro increases the humus (organic material) in your soil by helping grass grow extra large root systems. Thus, soil becomes a better storehouse for plant nutrients and moisture. Aeration is improved —helping both root and plant growth.

Make your lawn the neighborhood beauty spot. Get Vigoro from your garden supply dealer today and feed it right away—and at regular intervals, too.

A fellow could write a long piece about the works of a lawn mower.

. . . about crucible analysis steel blades, self-aligning ball bearings, whether the gears are cast or cut, how the shield fits against the wheel, how many spiders there are in the cylinder and how the blades are fastened onto 'em—and so on.

Average man has to take things like that on faith.

People ask me about a new lawn mower, I just say, "What's the name of it?" Then if they say Great American, Meteor, Pennsylvania Jr., or Pennsylvania Power Mower, I tell 'em . . .

"That's all you need to know, neighbor. It's made by Pennsylvania, so it's a good mower. It'll really cut grass and it'll last you a long time."

Those Pennsylvania people been making fine lawn mowers over 70 years. Their mowers are always good grass cutters and I can tell you they're easy to work on. When you sharpen 'em they stay sharp. And when you true 'em up, they stay trued up.

I always say, "You don't have to know all the ins and outs of lawn mowers. Just get one made by Pennsylvania. It'll be a good grass cutter and will really give you service."

New ideas for outdoor living

Fireplace and grill work overtime. They turn out delicious chops and spareribs at mealtime; at night the fireplace is used for its cheerful, ruddy light and to take the chill from the late evening air

By E. L. Anderson
Landscape architect

Photographs: Philip Fein

Sun shelter is simple but does a good job for a yard without trees. The two rafters are steel U-beams which need no support except at the two ends. Roof is o redwood stakes loosely spaced so some sun can ente

WHEN we set out to turn our back yard in Piedmont, California, into an outdoor living room, our requirements were far from simple.

We wanted a place to cook and eat and read and play. We had no trees, but nevertheless we wanted areas with full sun, with half-shade, and with full shade. Economy was important. And on top of everything, we wanted construction simple enough so that we could do much of the work ourselves.

We took care of the important matter of privacy by building a fence of redwood grape stakes, unpainted and six feet high. It is supported by steel posts set into a low concrete wall which levels the back yard.

Our area of full shade was already provided, in the space under the upstairs porch. For half-shade we extended supporting beams at right angles to the porch and roofed them over with grape stakes loosely spaced to allow sunlight to filter through.

Elsewhere on the terrace we get the full sun. Part of the open space was left in a small lawn; the rest was paved with concrete, leaving only a strip of earth for planting between paving and the grape-stake fence.

Concrete was used for paving because it could be cleaned easily just by turning a hose on it. We cut down the glare by using greenish-brown concrete stain.

Planting is permanent. That way it saves us the expense and work of constantly buying and setting in new plants. To make our outdoor living room usable at night, we attached a floodlight to the porch. It is removable for indoor storage in the winter.

A fence is only as good as its gate. This one is made of grape stakes fastened to the frame of a standard steel fence gate. There isn't the slightest sign of sagging although a young daughter has discovered it makes a perfect place to swing

Potted flowers brighten the deep shade under the porch. The gate opens on the driveway; translucent plastic cloth has been tacked up overhead to hide unattractive ceiling joists

Cover the seeds by sifting fine soil or sand over them. Then water and place in a dark but warm spot. You can cover with a piece of paper for darkness, but leave room for air circulation to prevent damping off disease. Keep the soil always moist but never have it in a soggy condition

If you're putting only one kind of seed in a flat, you can sow broadcast like this; cover with sifted soil and place in the dark. But no matter how you plant, move flats to a warm, sunny window when plants are through the soil. Seeds sprout best in darkness, but plants won't grow in it

As the seedlings grow, they will crowd. Thin out the weaklings, or transplant as here to a flat where plants will have more room. Treat them gently because they're tender. From then on, your only job is to keep them watered and in a sunny place until it's time to plant outdoors

The diary of a plain dirt gardener

By Harry R. O'Brien

What a day! Winter again, snow, wind howling. Blower on furnace broke down and so did thermostat. And I figgered up income tax and find I still owe Uncle Sam money on what I earned last year

March 1 As I paddled around this ...te p.m. putting out feed for the ...rds, I saw that some narcissi are ...ming up on the east side of the ...ouse, just underneath where the ...ey rack hangs from a lilac bush. ...from now on, I'll have to be ...reful-like, lest I step on these.

This appearance of narcissus is ...uch later than usual—which is ...l to the good. Late appearance ... bulbs is likely to mean a normal, ...od spring.

Weather was balmy, too, though ...ark and cloudy. Grass is begin...ing to show touches of green. Am...ition begins to stir within my ...oul. And so put on overalls and ...ut to work. Exact truth is that ...round was too soft to use a wheel...arrow. So I lugged out four bas...ets of ashes by hand. And, Broth...r, even this made me wheeze. ...o I quit and came back indoors.

March 2 Hurray!—as we sat at ...reakfast, we saw our first robin of Saw our first robin of the year as we sat at breakfast. In fact, I counted six of them hopping on the east lawn of the year. In fact I counted six robins right out there, hopping on the east lawn and flying around the viburnum bushes. As I looked out the study window later, I saw that buds are swelling on the President Grevy lilacs.

Within said dining room, by the south window, that amaryllis bulb in a pot, that Maggie has been nursing along since about November last, has a bloom stalk that is shooting up. It's nearly a foot high and there is great expectation as to just what color the flower will be.

March 3 To meeting of our men's rose club tonight. You guessed it, the program was about black spot, a talk by Dr. C. C. Allison, plant pathologist from Ohio State University. He brought in a blackboard and drew some sketches to illustrate how black spot works. The moral of his talk was that the best time to control black spot is to get on dust or spray just ahead of a rain. If the pizen is there awaiting when the spores of the disease light, they will be killed off and never get a chance to take hold and grow.

March 5 Homeward bound a bit early and stopped at Bill's barbershop for haircut. As I stood putting on my tie after Bill had given my meager gray locks their customary spring pruning, I stood there and made oration, to wit:

"What I need most in the world isn't a haircut. It's a nervous breakdown. Gosh, if I could just afford one. Then the doctor would tell me I have to go down South for my health." You see, I have reached the age in life when toward spring I'm sorta tuckered out

"I need a nervous breakdown," I told the barber. "Then the doctor would send me south for a good rest"

—what with too little exercise and too much smoking my pipe indoors and too great an expansion about my middle circumference.

March 6 "Where do you want me to put this thing?" says Maggie, this Saturday morning as she arrived with energy in the living room for a major assault on old papers, piles of magazines and seed catalogs. By "this thing," she meant a handy gadget that had come in the mail the other day. It's a new type of applicator for getting 2,4-D on big weeds in the lawn. It's a long tube, hollow, into which the liquid is put. You daub the weeds with a sort of sponge on one end. Looks right handy.

"Put it back of the door to the basement," says I. But it looked like high time for me to make a getaway from the living room. So I put it there myself.

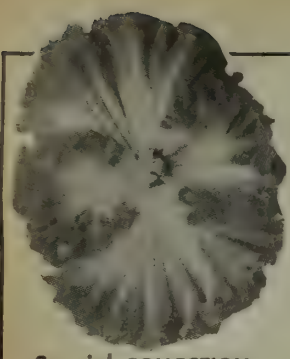
March 7 Weather bad, so I've been catching up on current literature which means seed and nursery catalogs and ads in the garden pages. Even clipped out some coupons to fill in for sending away—if I can get the checks written when Maggie isn't looking.

I've been thinking of spring work, too. There are some leaves to clear off the lawn. It would stand a square meal of plant food, and it is high time to put it on, around here. There's pruning work put off because of wet ground.

And I wonder if I could borrow Neighbor John's little power sprayer to get a dormant spray on the bushes to kill off scale and other pests. (Note: What I did later was to buy one of my own, an improved model of a small home power sprayer with a little gas engine on it. I can get a pressure readily up to 225 pounds and apply anything from a fine mist to a stiff stream. It does a much better job than the old bucket sprayer, worked by hand, now that our trees and bushes have grown so big.)

March 9 Downtown and sure enough, dropped in at the seed stores to howdy with the folks and find out how things are coming. Business is already under way, with considerable emphasis on the vegetable side. Supplies are more plentiful this year. Seed racks are well filled. There are stacks of lawn seed and plant food and sprays and dusts and racks of tools and shelves filled with flats and what not.

March 10 Dearie me—came home tonight with nerves worn, and yet with enough energy to make oration to the family.



"I'm gonna take a vacation," says I. "I'm gonna stop work and go down South, where it is warm. I'm gonna take $500 out of the savings and go down there and stay until it is spent. Anybody in the family who wants to go along is Save time! Energy! Money! You will if you "weed" your lawn with EndoWeed, the improved lawn weed-control that kills over 100 different weeds. Merely dilute EndoWeed with water and apply it with the EndoWeed "Side-Spray" applicator (or any spraying device). Your "weeding" job is done. The entire plant disappears in a week or so. welcome." Somehow, this did not strike a responsive note. So I got out some railway timetables and AAA hotel directory and atlas. Sat in my easy chair and studied these awhile.

Then I made another oration. "Guess, if none of you want to go south with me, I'll take a train trip," says I. "I'm going right down to the station, get in a sleeper on the Sunshine Special and stay right in that car until it gets to El Paso, Texas. I'll get out. Loaf a day or two. Then take the sleeper back home.

"Gosh—think of being on a train for two days. Nothing to do. Nothing to worry about. Nobody will know me. Nobody will corner me at lunch to ask how to prune roses. Nobody calling on the phone to ask whether wood ashes are good for the lawn." This didn't arouse any enthusiasm either. Maggie mumbled about how the kitchen needs painting. Donald voiced speculation about how the darkroom in the basement needs rebuilding. So I went to bed.

March 11 What a day. Winter again. Snow. Wind howling. Blower on furnace stopped working this morning. Thermostat control on furnace door stopped working too. Figgered up income tax and find I still owe Uncle Sam money on last year.

When David got back from classes at the university, he repaired the blower and got thermostat to working. Snow melted on south side of house, so I could see that the crocuses are growing.

March 12 News tonight was that Maggie was downtown, got her hair frizzed and bought a new spring suit and other things. She has decided we might as well take that trip down south.

And I've decided that we can't afford any spring vacation and will have to stay at home.

March 13 Excitement prevails. That huge bud atop the stem on the amaryllis is slowly opening out into a big flower—some sort of rich light red. Another bloom stalk is pushing up, too.

In the mail was a notice that some new roses ordered have been shipped. Donald is wondering where in the world we'll find room for them. He vows we filled up the beds last fall. Mebbe so, but I'm old enough to know without looking that there will be enough old ones dead to get in some new ones. When I hear a fellow bragging how he didn't lose a rose over winter, I put him down at once as a spreader of tall tales.

March 14 Visitors came this Sunday afternoon. I spied them flitting around in a high-bush cranberry bush as we ate dinner. I rushed to get the field glasses for a closer look. It was a flock of cedar waxwings. They stayed all afternoon, then proceeded on their way.

March 15 That box of roses came. One variety in it was Lavender Pinocchio which I saw last summer in a trial ground. It really is a soft lavender, a new color in roses. I'll report about the others later.

When roses come at a time when it is too wet to plant, I leave them packed in the box, if it is only a wait of a day or two, in a cool place where it won't freeze. If it means longer, and I can find a dry spot—often in a seedframe—I open the box and heel in the plants in a trench, leaning at an angle and covered almost to the tips. I left these today in the garage.

March 16 Into the house whistling this late p.m. My tune went, "Springtime is coming, hurray, hurray; the crocus is blooming today, today." It was the sight of the first little yellow flower outside the living-room window that I had spied as I went out to get the evening paper. But land sakes—Maggie says she had already noticed it.

March 17 Being part Scotch, I could see no special reason for breaking in my new green spring tie today. When work time came, I got out a spade from the tool shed and gingerly began to dig a hole in a vacant spot in the rose bed. As a matter of fact, there are a number of such spots, that Donald didn't know about. I found sun and wind had dried the soil enough.

So to work with the new roses. Donald dug the holes and I came after, doing the planting. With soil still a bit damp, I didn't set the plants too deep in the ground and just threw soil back in without any attempt to firm it down. Rains will settle the plants down better than I can. I like the bud joint to be about two inches below the surface. This is a good time to set out roses, the earlier the better around here.

March 19 Dressed up in Sunday clothes, our family went down to our nearby state university and saw Donald handed a diploma by the dean of the College of Commerce, which certifies that he is now a graduate of said university. While this commencement proceeded, there came a mighty storm of wind and rain.
